HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

MAIL REFORMS.

Hon. Mr. Mulock, Postmaster-General, Will Inaugurate Some of Them at an Early Date.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The Postmaster-General has, it is said, received a report from the special officer detailed some months ago to look into the methods of distributing mail matter in United States cities, and will see what can be done in Canadian cities, where electric service is available. It is probable that in Montreal electric roads may be experimented with in the line of distributing letters.

The Toronto postal service is considered one of the best, and probably cannot be much improved, but if the distribution can in any way be facilitated by a further use of the eletric lines, or by special electric cars, some such action will be taken.

The late fee system will probably be introduced into the Canadian postal service after the next meeting of Parliament, when the necessary legislation has been secured. By the proposed arrangement, on payment of an extra stamp, persons may drop letters in special boxes at city or country post offices half an hour after the regular mails have closed, these letters to be specially despatched to the mail trains.

At all railway stations where there are letter boxes a "late box" for extra stamped letters will be provided, so that five minutes before the train leaves the box will be cleared. This is the regulation in vogue in England.

It is understood that a system of insurance for letters containing valuables and money or securities will be adopted by the Postal Department. The transmission of moneys and documents of value by banks and monetary institutions is an important feature of the postal work in other countries, and the Postmaster-General is being urged to adopt some such scheme. The expense of sending money by the express companies would be largely reduced.

The postal order business is showing a most gratifying increase and is largely appreciated by the public. If the present rate of increase is kept up the amount issued will double every three months.

Discovered by a Woman

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her, and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking the first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hammick & Co., of Shelby, N.C. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

The New Canadian Service.

London, Dec. 8.—The new Canadian service between Milford and Paspebiac, Quebec, was inaugurated yesterday morning. A through train from London was despatched to Milford, where the passengers and cargo were embarked on the steamer Gaspesia, late Galicia, for Paspebiac.

True After All.

Moscow, Dec. 8.—The Emperor has received from Prince George of Greece, high commissioner of the powers in Crete, a telegram thanking His Majesty for his congratulations on His Royal Highness' prospective marriage to Princess Victoria of Wales.

The Prince Is Not Coming.

London, Dec. 8.—An official denial has been issued of the report from New York saying that the Prince of Wales contemplates attending the centennial celebration of the City of Washington as capital of the United States.

Kitchener Has Left for Egypt.

London, Dec. 8.—General Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, Sirdar of the Egyptian forces, started on his return to the Soudan yesterday morning. A crowd of friends bade him farewell at the railroad station.

RECIPROCITY.

Americans Expected to Be in a Position to State Their Views on This Question.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The joint high commission will resume the consideration of the reciprocity schedules this morning at 9.30, when it is anticipated the Americans will be in a position to state their views.

A Grand Trunk Scheme.

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 7.—A Washington despatch to an evening paper states that the Grand Trunk Railway Company has secured control of the Canadian section of the new bridge to be built across the Niagara River at Grand Island, and that the company has in view the removal of their yards at Black Rock to Grand Island, where unlimited space can be secured.

Taggart Committed for Trial.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—The preliminary investigation in the case of Robert Frederick Taggart, charged with wife murder, took place at yesterday's Police Court. The evidence of Police Constables Jenkinson, Allen and Wallace, as given at the coroner's inquest, was reviewed. Mrs. Singer, Mrs. Hornblau, and J. Draiman, York street dealers, told of the purchase of the hammer. Mrs. Hornblau gave further testimony in support of the Crown's theory that Taggart used the money received from the sale of the stolen harness to buy the hammer. The prisoner was committed for trial. Taggart appeared worried all through the investigation.

The New Order of Things.

Havana, Dec. 7.—The Official Gazette yesterday published a decree, signed by the Governor-General, dissolving the Colonial Cabinet of Dec. 15, assuming personal control of all branches of the civil service, and directing the present secretaries to prepare between Dec. 15 and Dec. 31 complete inventories of their departments, to arrange all the archives, to classify all the documents in their respective offices, and to figure up the pay rolls up to Dec. 31, in order that the employes may be immediately paid off.

Monument to Maine Victims.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 7.—Senator Hale yesterday introduced a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to erect a monument in Havana to the memory of the sailors and marines who lost their lives by the explosion of the Maine. The bill is recommended by the Navy Department.

Dr. Comeau Enters the Race.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—Dr. Comeau of Farnham was nominated yesterday by the Missisquoi Conservatives to contest that county for the Quebec Legislature.

"Joe" Should Get the Medal.

Vancouver, Dec 7.—Col. Cook, American consul at Dawson, has asked that an effort be made to secure the Humane Society medal for the colored man, Joe Fortes, bartender of the Alhamora Hotel, Vancouver, who saved from drowning Vice-Consul Burke of Dawson, at English Bay, Vancouver, by diving for him when he had disappeared for the last time. Fortes has saved six human lives in as many years at Vancouver's bathing resort, English Bay, and he deserves the medal far more than many of those who have got it. "Joe" thinks that the Humane Society has drawn the color line on him.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as though they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

Fat Stock at Guelph.

Guelph, Ont., Dec. 7.—The seventeenth annual fat stock and poultry show opened yesterday afternoon under auspicious circumstances. The show is one of the best displays of fat stock and poultry ever held in Guelph, or even in Ontario. Entries are away ahead and in some classes double those of any previous year in the club's history. The heavy roads interfered somewhat with the transportation of the different animals, but by night all were in place. Many well-known breeders are in attendance, and many of the prize-takers at the Toronto show are exhibited.

A McCarthy Meeting.

Collingwood, Dec. 7.—A public meeting was held in the Opera House here last evening in the interests of Leighton McCarthy, the Independent candidate, at which Col. O'Brien, Mr. Stubbs, M.P., and Mr. Leighton McCarthy were the speakers. Between 400 and 500 people were present. Mr. McCarthy announced his intentions of adhering to the platform of the late D'Alton McCarthy and of taking a purely independent course in Parliament if elected.

INCREASED VISIBLE.

During the Past Week the Visible Increase of Wheat Has Been Under Three-Quarter Million Bushels.

Tuesday Evening, Dec. 6.

Liverpool wheat manifested an easy tendency to-day. Chicago futures were also lower. The corn markets were somewhat in sympathy. A great many wires still being down, owing to the storm, news from the Chicago and other grain boards is still scarce.

Visible and Afloat.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has increased 746,000 bushels; that of corn has decreased 1,901,000 bushels, and that of oats has decreased 42,000 bushels.

To recapitulate, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 50,187,000 bushels, against 47,123,000 bushels a week ago and 68,705,000 bushels a year ago.

Toronto St. Lawrence Market.

Wheat easier; 700 bushels sold at following prices: White 70c, red 70c, goose 67c.
Barley easy, 300 bushels selling at 49c.
Oats firmer; 500 bushels sold at 30½c.
Peas easier, 100 bushels selling at 60c.
Hay unchanged; 15 loads sold at $8 to $9.50 per ton for timothy and $6 to $7 for clover.
Straw unchanged, four loads selling at $6 to $8 per ton.
Dressed Hogs—Deliveries light; prices unchanged at $5.25 to $5.50 per cwt.

Toronto Live Stock.

The receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market were light, 33 loads, all told, composed of 565 cattle, 340 sheep, 40 calves and 1300 hogs.

The quality of fat cattle offered to-day was fair, with prices unchanged from those of Friday; in fact, prices for all kinds of stock were about the same, excepting for hogs.

Total receipts for last week were as follows: 2252 cattle, 3386 sheep, 10,262 hogs. Total weigh scale receipts were $184.72.

U.S. POLITICS.

Senator Vest Sounds the First Note For The Anti-Expansionists.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 7.—The first note of the anti-expansionists was sounded in the Senate yesterday by Senator Vest of Missouri, who introduced a joint resolution, declaring that, under the constitution, the Federal Government had no authority to acquire colonial possessions as such, but that all territory acquired by the Government, except such as may be necessary for use as coaling stations, correction of boundaries and similar purposes, may be acquired with the purpose of organizing territories, suitable ultimately for admission into the union as states. Mr. Vest announced his purpose to address the Senate on the resolution at an early date.

Divorce Case at Victoria.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 7.—Hedley R. Chapman of this city is suing for divorce from his wife, Nellie Blanche Chapman, and in chambers yesterday the trial was set for Dec. 16. According to the petition, the parties were married on April 29, 1890, at St. Dina's Church, Fulham, Middlesex, England, and soon afterwards removed to Victoria, where they have since resided. The co-respondent named is Andrew Christian Martin of this city, and, among other specific charges, it is alleged that Mr. Martin and Mrs. Chapman lived together at the Irving House, Tacoma, in September last, while Martin was a frequent visitor at the Chapman residence here during Mr. Chapman's lengthy visit to England. Mr. Chapman asks for divorce, for $10,000 from the co-respondent, and for custody of his child.

John A. A. McDonald's Body Found.

Cornwall, Ont., Dec. 7.—The body of John A. A. McDonald, who was drowned four weeks ago, was found in the Cornwall Canal on Sunday, when the water was let out to do some cleaning for the winter. The deceased was 72 years of age, and he disappeared mysteriously about four weeks ago. On the same day a splash was heard in the canal, and after McDonald's disappearance the bottom of the canal was dragged in search for the body. Mr. McDonald was a lifelong resident of St. Andrews, Stormont County. He leaves a wife and several children.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, appraising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

"Oh Promise Me!" At some time in her life Cupid pleads in every woman's ear, and when that time comes it is a woman's duty to think twice before she answers. She should think once for herself, and once for the man who has chosen her for his life companion.

If she is suffering from a torturing, dragging weakness or disease so prevalent with her sex, she has no right to answer "Yes" until her health is restored. If she does, she will be wretched and ill herself and her home will be an unhappy one. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific remedy that cures all weakness, disease, disorder and derangement of the delicate and important feminine organs. It is not a "cure-all," but a medicine devised to correct this one class of disorders and no other. It has accomplished its purpose in tens of thousands of cases, as is shown by tens of thousands of testimonials of the grateful patients themselves. It imparts vigor and virility to the entire womanly organism, and is the best of all nerve tonics and restoratives. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It transforms weak, nervous, despondent invalids into healthy, happy women.

"I was so weak I could scarcely walk about the house," writes Mrs. Mattie Scruggs, of Allen's Creek, Amherst Co., Va. "Was reduced to a mere skeleton. I was never free from pain in the back and head and could not sleep at night. I bought three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' After taking these six weeks I felt like a new person; slept well and gained in flesh. I am doing all my own housework and we have nine in the family."

A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. All medicine dealers sell them. No other pills are "just as good."

"FILLED" BEDCLOTHES.

They Are Moisture Attractors, and Death Lurks in Them.

Science, thy name is adulteration! Another terror has been added to existence by the revelations made by a trade paper of the processes by which certain manufacturers "fill" the sheets and blankets with which they flood the market.

We are told that after a piece of waste sheeting has been woven the cloth is passed over a trough containing a solution of zinc, sulphate of magnesia (commonly known as epsom salts) and water. This is called a sprinkler. A revolving brush plays a spray of these noxious ingredients upon the cloth, with the result that a 50 pound piece after the operation weighs 7½ pounds more than when it left the loom. As the goods are sold by the pound, the object is evident.

But what about the purchaser? A piece cuts up into ten pairs of sheets. Each pair therefore contains three-quarters of a pound of moisture attracting material. The results are appalling. As soon as a wet day comes the sheets become damp and the luckless wight who sleeps between them is apt to contract a chill that may send him to the bourn whence no traveler returns. Even if his suspicions are aroused and he boldly casts aside the sheets and wraps himself in the blankets it may avail him nothing, for the blanket makers have learned the trick, and the same ill results may ensue.

Next we shall hear that the counterpane makers are equally astute, and the timid sleeper may be driven to provide himself with the woolen sleeping bags that suggest travels in the farthest north. The only advantage of these "filled" or heavily "sized" sheets and blankets is that they are death to insects, but if they kill the sleeper as well as the pulex irritans—to say nothing of the cimex lectularius—what boots it?—London Telegraph.

A Substantial Gain.

"I was very weak and hardly able to walk. My blood was thin and I was as pale as death.

Being told about Hood's Sarsaparilla I began taking it and in a few months I had gained twenty pounds in weight. I kept on with it until I was as well as ever." Arthur Mills, Dresden, Ontario.

Hood's Pills cure nausea, headache.

Effective Reflecting.

"It is so sudden!" exclaimed the fair haired girl, who had just received a proposal to merge her identity in that of a would be protector. "You must give me time to reflect."

"No, no," retorted the diplomatic young man. "One whose dazzling beauty makes a mirror ashamed of itself should never go into the reflecting business. Let this solitaire diamond do the reflecting."

And the records of the license clerk show that it was even so.—Chicago News.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

PRISONERS ON OATH.

In Future a New Criminal Procedure Will Be in Vogue in Great Britain.

In future all accused persons will be able to step from the dock into the witness-box, give his or her version of the facts and be cross-examined like any other witness. Trials and examinations will therefore be of longer duration, and we may expect to hear of stipendiary magistrates in England, Scotland and Wales applying for increases of salary.

Without a doubt the new law, which does not affect Ireland, says the London Daily Mail, will be a considerable aid to the elucidation of truth. On the whole, lawyers are strongly in favor of the Act, and they say that the only persons who will not hail it with entire satisfaction are habitual criminals, with whom silence is such a powerful weapon of defence. "Gentlemen of the jury, the unhappy prisoner's mouth is sealed," is a truly pathetic phrase which counsel often use, sometimes successfully, when addressing the jury for the defence; and the hardened criminal looks as aggrieved as he can, while he inwardly thanks goodness that the law imposes silence on him. But the plea will be of no avail now. The prisoner will be put on the high level of a witness for the prosecution.

In every criminal court a person charged with an offence, and also for the future the wife or husband of the person charged, will be a competent witness for the defence at every stage of the proceedings, and such evidence is to be given only on the application of the accused. There are certain necessary exceptions to this rule, but these exceptions relate only to some half a dozen Acts which chiefly concern domestic affairs.

Of course, in many cases, an accused will prefer to maintain strict silence, and there is a section concerning this which will exercise a wholesome restraining influence on counsel who are apt to be more zealous than considerate. Failure to give evidence, says this particular section, shall not be made the subject of comment by the prosecution. Whether a magistrate or judge may make such comment remains to be seen, as there does not appear to be anything in the Act prohibiting comment on their part.

Another important point is that although a person charged who elects to give evidence may be cross-examined, he will not be asked a questions tending to show that he has been previously convicted, or charged with any offence, or is of bad character, unless they afford proof that he is guilty of the offence wherewith he is then charged.

[A LESSON FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Dowson, of Toronto, Cured of Female Weakness by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Toronto Nov. 21—The case of Mrs. Ellen Dowson, of 640 Gerrard street, east, who has been restored to vigourous health by Dodd's Kidney Pills, after six years of agony from Female Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart, is causing widespread interest in the east end.

Mrs. Dowson writes that she used three so-called kidney cures and was treated by one of Toronto's most prominent physicians, without deriving the least benefit.

The first box of Dodd's Kidney Pills gave her pronounced relief; eight boxes cured her thoroughly.

Mrs. Dowson's case furnishes a lesson every woman should learn. Dodd's Kidney Pills are women's best friend.

FAKE "FENCES."

A Little Trick That Is Worked In Baxter Street.

"There was a time and that not so very long ago," remarked an old time puller in, "when almost every other store in Baxter street was a 'fence,' or pretended to be, in order to give customers the idea that they were getting good bargains. The clerk who took a hesitating customer aside and whispered 'fence' was generally sure of a sale. There are no genuine 'fences' in Baxter street now, because clothing, shoes and hats are so cheap, but some of the stores still pretend to sell stolen goods.

"When a customer in one of these stores has looked everything over in the shop and hasn't made a purchase, the salesman tells him that he has a little 'fence' down stairs and urges upon him the necessity of keeping it quiet on account of the police. Of course the customer won't say a word. So down stairs they go to the alleged 'fence,' which generally proves to be a big trunk packed with goods.

"While showing the contents of the trunk the salesman keeps up a running yarn about the famous criminals who brought the goods to the store.

"Finally, after showing a lot of stuff of the same quality and pattern the customer refused to buy up stairs, the salesman gets him to try on something, and as quality, workmanship and perfect fit always go with 'fence' goods, there is a sale made. This fake 'fence' answers sale purposes as well as the genuine," concluded the puller in, "and there is no risk attached to it."—New York Sun.

A Naval Row, 1702.

At 6 this evening Captain Norris coming on board this ship (the flagship), my Lord Hamilton, Captain Ley, Captain Wishart and Captain Trevor were standing on the quarter deck, and as Captain Norris came up Lord Hamilton asked him if he had taken any more wine or brandy. The other answered no, upon which Captain Trevor asked the price of his claret, whether he might have any at 4 li. a hogshead. Norris said he would have 6 li. or salt water, and then Captain Ley said he would rather the prizes were ashore than he would give 6 li. the hogshead; upon which Captain Norris said he was a rascal that wished his prizes ashore. The other replied he was a rascal, if he called him so, and then Captain Norris struck Captain Ley and threw him over the gun, which Mr. Hopson hearing, as he and I were in my cabin, ran out and upon inquiry found he (Norris) had hurt Captain Ley, and by the admiral's directions ordered him to be confined, upon which Captain Norris drew his sword and offered to stab Captain Ley, but Admiral Hopson, holding his hand, ordered him to be disarmed and confined in Mr. Rayney's cabin.—"Journal of Sir John Rooke."

Raw from Her Toes to Her Knees

DR. CHASE MAKES A WONDERFUL CURE

Mrs. Knight, 17 Hanover Place, Toronto, makes the following statement:—

MY mother, Mrs. Wright, who lives at Norval, near Doncaster, suffered a summer and winter with Eczema in her feet. She could not walk, and very seldom got any sleep. It became so bad that she was perfectly raw from the toes to the knees. After trying every available remedy without receiving any benefit, and almost hopeless of relief, she was advised to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. She has altogether used 8 boxes since commencing, but with the happiest results, for she is now completely cured. There is but one scar on one of her feet, a memento of her fearful suffering condition. Any person desiring further testimony in this case is at liberty to communicate with Mrs. Wright at her address, Norval P.O.

Mrs. Knight says after such a grand success, is it any wonder we recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment?

LIVERPOOL WEAK.

The Wheat Markets of the World and How Prices Ruled—The Latest Quotations.

Wednesday Evening, Dec. 7.

Liverpool wheat futures ruled decidedly weak to-day, and closed ¾d to 1¼d per cental lower than yesterday.

Chicago wheat futures comparatively steady, declining only about ½c per bushel for the day.

Leading Wheat Markets.

Following are the closing prices to-day at important centres:

Toronto St. Lawrence Market.

Receipts were fair at the St. Lawrence Market to-day, including 250 bushels white wheat, which sold at 68c to 70c; 200 bushels red at 69c; 600 bushels goose at 66c; 100 bushels rye at 51½c; 700 bushels barley at 48c to 50½c; 1000 bushels oats at 31c; 200 bushels of peas at 60c, and 100 bushels of buckwheat at 45c.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 7.—Cattle—There was about one load of sale and with a moderate demand. The feeling was steady for butcher cattle and stockers. Calves were in fair supply, moderate demand and steady at the quoted figures, but few sold up to the outside quotations. Choice to extra were quotable, $7 to $7.50; good to choice, $6.50 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs—The offerings were light, 28 loads, about six of which were Canadas. The demand opened fairly active, and from 15c to 25c higher on the top grades. The snow blockade that caused railroads to refuse shipments after noon checked business so that Canada lambs and some natives were held. The basis of Canadas was $5.40 to $5.50 asked. Native lambs were quotable, $5.50 to $5.65; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.50; common to fair, $5 to $5.25. Sheep, choice to extra, $4.25 to $4.40; good to choice, $4 to $4.25; common, to fair, $2.50 to $3.50.

Liverpool—Close—Spot wheat dull, with No. 1 Northern at 6s 1½d; red winter futures, 5s 10⅞d for Dec., nominal for Jan. and Feb. and 5s 9d for March. Spot maize quiet at 3s 9¼d. Futures quiet at 3s 8⅞d for Dec., nominal for Jan. and Feb. and 3s 7d for March. Flour, 19s 3d.

Boiling to Death.

The last instance of boiling to death took place in Persia in 1890. The offender, guilty of stealing state revenues, was put into a caldron of cold water, which was slowly heated to the boiling point. His bones were distributed as a warning among the provisional tax collectors.

A lady who had a kindly remembrance for all her domestic servants met an erstwhile washerwoman and stopped to ask her how she fared.

"Oh, mem, it's turrible finanshul disthress me an the childer's in!"

"Why, what is it—are you out of employment?"

"No, mem; work's in a fair state o' stiddiness, and not a cint do I owe, but it's lashins o' trouble I've got!"

"Are you not paid promptly?"

"As promptly as the day cooms round."

"What is your financial distress, then?"

"Well, mem" (in a burst of horror), "what's killin me is, I earn $6 the week an pay $8 for me boord, an God only knows how I do it!"—Short Stories.

Antique.

Says a dealer in antiquities: "I had a fat woman in here the other day. Well, sir, she was a caution, was that fat woman. She would have the antique all through her house, sir, nothing but the antique for her house decoration. Why, sir, judging by what that fat woman said and bought in this shop, I should judge she was heartbroken, sir, that she couldn't get the shades of her ancestors for her parlor windows."—New York Tribune.

HEART PAINS

The Heart and Nerves are Often Affected and Cause Prostration of the Entire System.

A Kingston Lady Testifies to Her Experience in the Use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

People who suffer from any disease or disorder of the heart nervous system, such as Palpitation, Skip Beats, Smothering or Sinking Sensations, Sleeplessness, Weakness, Pain in the Head, etc., cannot afford to waste time trying various remedies, which have nothing more to back up their claims than the bold assertions of their proprietors.

These diseases are too serious to permit of your experimenting with untried remedies. When you buy Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, you know you have behind them the testimony of thousands of Canadians who have been cured by their use. One of these is Mrs. A. W. Irish, 92 Queen Street, Kingston, Ont., who writes as follows:

"I have suffered for some years with a smothering sensation caused by heart disease. The severity of the pains in my heart caused me much suffering. I was also very nervous, and my whole system was run down and debilitated.

"Hearing of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills being a specific for these troubles, I thought I would try them, and therefore got a box at McLeod's Drug Store.

"They afforded me great relief, having toned up my system and removed the distressing symptoms from which I suffered. I can heartily recommend these wonderful pills to all sufferers from heart trouble."

Laxa-Liver Pills cure Biliousness, Dyspepsia and Constipation. Every pill perfect. Price 25c. Sold by all druggists.

PROVISIONAL SCHOOL.

Proposed Establishment of a Military Training School in Belleville.

The Belleville Intelligencer says: For some time the military officers of this district have felt the need of a provisional training school for the convenience of those officers who find it impossible to leave their business sufficiently long enough to qualify at the schools at Toronto and London. Lieut. Col. Ponton, always alive for anything that will benefit the city and increase the efficiency of his corps, together with the XV, has been endeavouring to have such a school established in Belleville, the location being a central one and all other conditions favourable. The co-operation of the commanding officers of the 16th, 40th and 49th and probably of the 47th and 57th, has been secured, and no effort will be spared to induce the authorities to establish the school. The XV are even willing to sacrifice their pay for drill in order to meet any outside expenses in connection with the school, if it is established.

Kingston, as usual, is trying to have the school established there, but in all fairness there claim should be disallowed. They have no suitable building there, while we have a splendid one. The authorities should also remember that Kingston secures $10,000 of the militia expenditure for every $500 Belleville receives. Another strong point is the fact that this city is much more convenient to the battalions, which would be chiefly interested in the establishment of the school.

PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONS.

Executive of the Foreign Mission Board Meets—Congregations Urged to Send in Contributions.

A meeting of the Executive of the Foreign Mission Board of the Presbyterian church was held in Toronto yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Moore, of Ottawa, presided, and Rev. Drs. Warden, Milligan, McTavish and McLaren, Rev. Messrs. Jordan and McKay, and Messrs. McNeillie and A. Jeffrey were present.

An interesting letter was read from Rev. G. L. McKay, of Formosa, describing an interview with the Governor-General, who impressed him as not only a man of ability but in sympathy with mission work.

Letters from India report missionaries well and the work moving on quietly, without anything specially noteworthy.

Rev. Donald Macgillivray has reached Honan, China. He took the eastern route and visited the central India missions on his way. The Honan missionaries are much interested in the movement taking place in China. They report that enquiries are constantly coming from the literary class as to western books and education, the result of the late Emperor's proposal to introduce European education into the annual examinations.

It was reported that twenty students expecting to graduate next spring are volunteers for foreign mission service. It was agreed to acquaint the church with this fact and appeal for sufficient funds to send out as many of them as may be approved of by the committee.

The debt at the present time is about $35,000. At this season of the year the funds are always behind, but it is hoped that as speedily as possible congregations will not only send in contributions, but send in larger contributions than ever before, both to maintain the present work and provide for other missionaries who wish to go.

IN MEMORIAM.

LINES WRITTEN IN MEMORIAL TO MRS. AGNES DETTMAN, WHO DIED IN SUMMERSIDE OCT. 7TH, 1898.

When falls the night upon the earth,
And all in shadow lies,
The sun's not dead, his radiance still
Beams bright on other skies.

And when the morning star fades out
On the pale brow of dawn,
Though lost a while to our eyes
It still keeps shining on.

Some other world is glad to see
Our light that's gone away—
The light whose going makes our night,
Makes somewhere else a day.

The feet that cease their walking here,
Grown weary of earth's road,
With tireless strength go travelling
The pathway up to God.

The hands whose patient fingers now
Have laid earth's labour by,
With loving skill have taken up
Some higher mini-try,

The eyes that gave no longer back
The tender look of love,
Now, with a deathless gleam, drink in God's beauteous world above.

The lips whose sweet tunes made us ask
If angels sweeter sung,
Though silent here make known glad,
With their melodious tongue.

And though her body lies asleep,
Our favourite is not dead,
She rises from dark death's bright birth,
With joy upon her head.

And she is just our loved one still,
And loves us now no less,
She goes away to come again
To watch us and to bless.

And though we cannot clasp her hand,
Nor look upon her face—
Nor listen to her voice again,
Nor watch her way of grace.

Still we can keep her memory bright,
And walk the way she trod,
And know she waits until we come
Up to the house of God.

Let us be thankful though our tears,
That she was ours so long,
And try to lift our tones of grief,
To accord with her heaven-song.

STRAINED RELATIONS.

The Telegraphers on the Grand Trunk Have Difficulties With the Management.

Montreal Dec. 6—The relations between the Order of Railway Telegraphers and the Grand Trunk are undoubtedly much strained, but there will be no new developments until the arrival of Mr. W. V. Powell, the Grand Chief Operator, probably to-morrow. Mr. Edward Davis, Deputy Grand Chief, this morning said that since the committee had been formed several changes had been rendered necessary in its personnel owing to members having been dismissed by the Grand Trunk Company. In all, five of the original members of the Executive Committee have been dismissed from the employ of the company without any reasons having been given. Of this number two have received notice of dismissal within the past week. This policy on the part of the railway company has not tended to improve the existing relations.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held in the Council Chamber, Monday afternoon at four o'clock. The following members were present—Misses Beck, Dixon, Walsh, Birdsall, Clarke and Revs. H. Symonds, Shorey, Father O'Sullivan, Messrs. McBain, H. Burnham, Dr. Burnham, Bamford and the agent, F. W. Miller. Mr. McBain took the chair. Among the matters of interest under consideration was that of giving a Christmas treat to the very poor of the town—that treat to consist of a dinner and musical entertainment with a Christmas tree for the children, to be held on the Thursday evening following Christmas day. It moved by Mr. Symonds, and seconded by Miss Dixon, that the secretary be instructed to call a public meeting in order to bring to the notice of the public the work the society is doing in Peterborough, and with a view to the formation of an auxiliary committee, composed of representatives of the various churches in town—this committee to assist the Board of Management both in in its general work and in a special effort to gladden the hearts of the poor during the Christian festival season. The meeting is to be in the council chamber on Tuesday afternoon next at 4 o'clock. Further notice will be given.

JOT IT DOWN!

On Friday evening, December 2nd., and following days, Mrs. Appleby will hold her grand Christmas opening of Fancy Goods, Novelties, etc., to which the ladies and gentlemen of Peterborough are cordially invited. 426 and 430 Water Street.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Now is a Good Time to do Your Holiday Buying.

Now is the time to buy your Christmas presents. The stores have in their full stocks of holiday gifts, staples and novelties, and now the choice is best. Later on the rush will be great and the choice limited as compared with now, and you will probably be compelled to buy something with which you will not be so well satisfied.

Early Christmas buying is judicious and economical and advantageous all round. Buy now and avoid the crush.

The Bargains at Kells & Co's Dry Goods Store.

Nothing gives a woman greater satisfaction than to secure a really good bargain. The retiring-from-business Sale now being held by Messrs. R. H. Kells & Co. has some genuine bargains in the way of dry goods, millinery and mantles. The opening sale days have attracted many interested shoppers, who are spending their money freely at the bargain counters. There are some opportunities offered that are unusual at this time of the year, and Christmas shoppers are attending in conspicuous numbers. In the small wares lines, there is much activity among buyers—the fact that five spools are being given away for ten cents creating a leader that is irresistable. dtf

VITAL QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Information That May Prevent Years of Suffering.

A Simple, Speedy and Effective Way of Curing Anaemia—Thousands of Young Girls are Dying With This Disease—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cure it.

What is anaemia?
Poorness of the blood.
What makes the blood poor?
Imperfect digestion of the food we eat.
What causes imperfect digestion?
Weakness or disease of the stomach, or a lack of gastric juice.
What makes the blood rich?
An abundance of wholesome food, thoroughly digested.
If the stomach is weak, or diseased, can the blood be rich?
No. Because a weak or diseased stomach cannot digest the food.
When the stomach is weak, or diseased, how can we make the blood rich?
By taking one or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after every meal.
How do Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets make the blood rich?
They digest the food thoroughly, strengthen the stomach, and stimulate the gastric glands to provide a full supply of gastric juice. The perfectly-digested food forms rich, life-giving blood.
Every person who suffers from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, or any other stomach trouble should use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, then?
Certainly. No person can get rid of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nor any other disorder of the stomach, unless Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are used.
Do they always cure these complaints?
They do—always. During all the years they have been used by the people of this country, they have never yet failed, in any case.
Where can they be got
All druggists sell Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or they will be sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE TREATY OF PARIS

Spaniards Refuse U.S. a Coaling Station in the Carolines.

THE TREATY IS NOW FINISHED.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain on Imperial Federation With Colonial Representation—The Times on the Yankee Game of Whole Hog or None—A Budget of Interesting Cables.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The treaty is finished. The Spaniards have declined to grant most of the requests of the United States which were unsettled at the beginning of the session. They refused to cede a coaling station in the Caroline Islands to the United States.

Judge Day said: "We have settled all the points on which we can agree. It only remains to engross and sign the treaty. That will be done in two or three days."

The conclusion of the work was, according to the commissioners, marked by politeness and all outward evidences of good feeling and relief at the fact that the task was accomplished. When all the propositions had been discussed, Judge Day, president of the American commission, remarked: "There seems to be nothing more to do but to engross and sign the treaty."

Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission, acquiesced to this and the Americans bowed themselves out before the Spaniards, according to their custom.

Unexampled Cruelty.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—A semi-official note just issued says: "Spain has been treated by the conqueror with unexampled cruelty and is resigned to her fate. But she cannot tolerate President McKinley's accusation, for she is conscious of her complete innocence."

Where France Comes In.

Paris, Dec. 9.—Diplomatic circles in Paris predict, as one of the results of the treaty, a diplomatic contest between France and the United States, which may have an important place in history.

The French Government is reported to have resolved to take up the case of the French holders of Cuban bonds, and it is believed France will declare that the repudiation of the bonds is the result of the treaty which the victorious nation imposed upon Spain.

West Huron and Halton Stand True to Their Colors.

GARROW AND BARBER RETURNED

Increased Majorities Run Up by the Triumphant Liberals in Both Constituencies—Mr. Garrow's Majority 81, Mr. Barber's 133, With Seven Places to Hear From—The Returns as Received.

Goderich, Dec. 9.—The contest in West Huron has closed, and one of the hardest-fought elections ever held in the constituency has resulted in the election of the Hon. J. T. Garrow by a majority of 81. Last March the result was a tie, and Mr. Garrow was declared elected on the vote of the returning officer. A protest and a counter-protest were entered, and Mr. Garrow resigned the seat, Mr. Beck abandoning his claim to the same, and a new election was called for. The question was decided by the electors yesterday, and the figures in favor of Mr. Garrow are such that there will be no necessity for a casting vote to decide the matter. The surprises of the election were the increase in Wingham from 19 to 72 in favor of Mr. Beck and the substitution in Goderich for a minority of 17 against Mr. Garrow by a majority of 66 in his favor. It was feared that the great storm which has prevailed in this district since Sunday night would materially affect the vote in the rural municipalities, but the returns show that the vote was not materially affected in that regard, as a very full vote was recorded in nearly all of the townships. The Liberals received their returns in the Temperance Hall, which was crowded to the doors, color being lent to the gathering by the presence of a large number of ladies, many of whom proudly displayed the colors of the successful candidate. Speeches were delivered by Mr. A. Hislop, M.P.P. for East Huron, by Hon. J. T. Garrow, the newly-elected member, and Mr. D. McGillicuddy. Following are the returns:

HALTON REMAINS LIBERAL.

Mr. John R. Barber Defeats Col. Kerns by a Majority of 133.

Milton, Dec. 9.—There was rejoicing in Milton last night among the Liberals, and the town is swarming with them. For the second time Mr. John R. Barber of Georgetown has defeated Lieut.-Col. Kerns of Burlington in a contest for the Legislative Assembly. When the report reached here that Georgetown had swelled its handsome Liberal majority of 144, given on the 1st of March last, to 164, the Liberals here felt perfectly safe. Owing to the recent storm and the damage to the telephone and telegraph wires the reports came in slowly. In the Liberal committee rooms a large number assembled, and while waiting for the reports Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the organizer, gave a rousing speech. As Mr. Preston left for his train he was given three hearty cheers. Other speeches were given by Liberals from different parts of the county. Mr. Barber made a gain of 25 in Acton, 20 in Georgetown, 24 in Oakville, 8 in Burlington, and lost 18 in Milton. The complete returns give Mr. Barber a majority of 160, as against 133 on the 1st of March.

Mr. Barber's Majority.

Georgetown, Dec. 9.—Yesterday's by-election in Halton for the Legislature has resulted in the return of Mr. John R. Barber, the Liberal candidate, by 133 majority, with 26 out of the 33 polling subdivisions heard from. It was impossible to get full returns last night, the wires to several points being still interrupted, owing to the recent storm. The majorities as far as heard from are as follows:

Shipments of bacon valued at $28,000, wheat at $2,500 and poultry at $8,000 were sent from Toronto on Thursday to Great Britain, and agricultural implements valued at $1,900 were forwarded to Australia.

In the United States Senate on Thursday Mr. Vest moved for a commission to be composed of three Senators and five members of the House, to investigate the charges of corruption in connection with war contracts.

A majority of the crew of the British ship Jane Burrill, from Philadelphia for Sanoa, with coal, mutinied at the former port on Thursday, claiming the vessel was unseaworthy. The captain had the ship examined, and she was declared all right. The captain locked up the mutineers and secured other men to work the ship.

Lieut. Wark of the Royal Artillery was sentenced to death on Thursday in London, Eng., on the charge of murdering Jane Yates, a girl of good family, by conspiring with her to perform an abortion. The girl made a statement before she died exonerating Wark, who declares that he did all he could to dissuade her from any illegal act.

Nelson Priest, a street railway conductor, was charged with stealing a watch and chain and $143 from Eliza Arberstadt, a Toronto domestic. It is said tht Priest represented himself to the complainant as an unmarried man and thereby got the woman to give up the articles and money under a promise of marriage. The watch and chain were recovered in a pawn shop. Priest was remanded until Tuesday.

Military Matters at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Ottawa will have an opportunity next summer of witnessing the permanent infantry schools undergo a course of training instruction in this city, under Major-General Hutton. This will likely take place in August, and the regiment will be here during the annual matches of the Dominion Rifle Association. The permanent infantry schools of London, Toronto, St. John and Fredericton will be concentrated, under command of Lieut.-Col. Otter. This will be the first practical training as a regiment that the permanent infantry have received since Major-General Herbert's time, when they were concentrated at Levis.

Miss Warren Dashed to Death.

Thamesville, Ont., Dec. 9.—The G. T. R. westbound express, No. 823, struck and instantly killed Miss Warren, a daughter of D. Warren, who lives about five miles from this place. The accident occurred about two miles east of here. From all appearances the horse she was driving was not under control, and she was thrown against the baggage car with sufficient force to cause instant death. The rig was demolished, but the horse, although pitched a considerable distance, was not injured.

Perrier Sent for Trial.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 9.—At New Westminster Donald Perrier was yesterday committed for trial by Police Magistrate Corbould, on the charge of having murdered Jennie Anderson on the night of Nov. 30. One of the principal witnesses for the prosecution was C. E. Tisdale, M.P.P. of Vancouver, who deposed the fact that the prisoner bought a knife of the same brand as the one produced in court.

Yankee Troops for Cuba.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The steamer Roumania sailed yesterday from Savannah, carrying the entire First Regiment of North Carolina, with their transportation, to serve as part of the garrison of Havana.

The Second Illinois Regiment was loaded yesterday at Savannah for the same destination.

Mr. Sifton at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Dec. 9.—On his arrival here last night Mr. Sifton was met by a number of his friends. A reception is to be given the Minister at Brandon on Wednesday night next, when Mr. Sifton will speak.

Head and Limbs

All Covered With Eruptions—Could Not Work, the Suffering Was So Great—Hood's Has Cured.

"I was all run down with complaints peculiar to my sex, and I broke out in sores on my body, head, limbs and hands, and my hair all came out. I was under the doctor's treatment a long time without benefit. They called my trouble eczema. Finally I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after I had used three or four bottles I found I was improving. I kept on until I had taken several more bottles and the sores and itching have disappeared and my hair has grown out." MRS. J. G. BROWN, Brantford, Ontario.

"I was all run down and had no appetite. I had a tired feeling all the time. I was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and it benefited me so much that I would not be without it." MRS. G. I. BURNETT, Central Norton, N. B.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE "wild charge" made by the Light Brigade was all very well for forty or fifty years ago, but it is dwarfed, the Hamilton Herald thinks, by the wild charges made against the Yukon administration.

THE chief Conservative organ measures its opponents so rigidly by its own standard that an absolutely necessary and every way defensible work cannot be announced but it is condemned as a bribe.

THE Mail and Empire argues as a point against Hon. Mr. Tarte that "he is fond of dry-docks." And with reason. The ship of state in the hands of the Conservative skippers had gathered a pretty foul bottom and she had to be considerably docked to scrape off the barnacles.

SECRETARY of War Alger asks for nearly $200,000,000 a year for the United States' military and naval expansion on a peace footing. This will provide for an increase of the standing army of 100,000 men, and for the enlarged navy. In addition the United States pays $150,000,000 a year in pensions. The war burdens of the Republic under the new order of things, says the London Advertiser, will be greater than those of any other country in the world.

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF.

History is repeating itself. What occurred in the experience of Hon. Alexander Mackenzie and his Administration is recurring in the experience of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues. Many have vivid recollections of the manner in which it was attempted, and with some degree of success, to lie Hon. Alexander Mackenzie out of office. The most rascally policy of detraction of libel, of gross misrepresentation and abuse was pursued by the Conservative press of that day. Who does not remember with what persistence it was reiterated that Mr. Mackenzie was not only extravagant, but personally corrupt? It was more than insinuated that the stalwart Liberal leader leagued himself with his brother to rob the country. It was asserted that he was no better than a common thief and that he was associated with thieves.

As at the present day, the detractors of the Liberal Administration led by Mr. Mackenzie were generally careful to save themselves from criminal prosecution by hiding in that invariable refuge of the coward—inuendo. When one of them, bolder than his fellow-libellers, did descend to particulars and put the accusation into such a shape that the Liberal leader could compel him to face a charge of criminal libel, he was forced to acknowledge, on his marrow-bones, that he had printed, on mere hearsay, a lie circulated by his associates in the work of endeavouring to injure the Ministry at any cost.

When the attacks on Mr. Mackenzie were of so outrageous a character one is not surprised, on turning up the records of that day, to find that equally unfounded accusations were made against the Liberal Premier's associates. As soon as it was found that Mr. Mackenzie was too ill to be again a power in the Liberal ranks, what was the programme of the detractors? Why to point to Mr. Mackenzie—who had been so shamefully and persistently libelled in the days of his strength—as the one honest man among the Liberal leaders! What a loss to the Liberal party, they said, is the withdrawal from public life of the one honest statesman in his ranks! And so it was with regard to Hon. Edward Blake, with regard to Hon. George Brown, and other leading Liberals. While they were actively in political life they were denounced by the leading Conservative journals, and by Conservative politicians as bad men, unworthy of public confidence, and dishonest. When they died, or were found no longer combating the principles, or lack of principles, of their opponents, they were extolled by their former traducers, who hoped by this affectation of liberality and justice, to give some semblance of truth to their libels on the Liberal leaders at present in public life.—London Advertiser.

WORK OF THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, superintendent of the Children's Aid Societies for Ontario, has been talking to the Ottawa Free Press about the Curfew law and the Children's Aid Society. He thinks the law in theory is all right, but in practice the law has been a failure in the forty towns in Ontario where it has been tried. Mr. Kelso believes that if the municipality would co-operate with the officer of he Children's Aid Society the results would be more encouraging. The law provides for the empowering of the Children's Aid Society to look after children on the streets at night, and if the city would assist the society, the secretary would undertake to give very successful assistance in obtaining the results aimed at.

In Western Ontario the Children's Aid Societies have almost completely stopped the practice of children begging on the streets. "I could empty at least ten orphan homes," said Mr. Kelso, "if the directors of such institutions would only co-operate with me. The society is flooded with applications for children, and while scores are placed out every year the supply does not come any where near meeting the demand, especially for girls from 3 to 5 years of age. Every child is placed in a home under a strict contract as to treatment and education, and a lady inspector makes regular visits to see that the agreement is carried out." Asked to explain why directors of orphanages do not co-operate, Mr. Kelso said the managers are generally ladies, and they like to see the beds all filled and the orphanage displaying the fruits of successful labour. If these children were placed in homes the orphanage could be utilized for aged people. The work of the society is also telling on the provincial industrial school and reformatories. At Penetanguishene the inmates have decreased from 264 to 110, and at Mimico from 220 to 115 inmates.

KIPLING ON THE SOUDAN SCHOOL.

The London Times publishes a poem by Rudyard Kipling entitled "Kitchner's School," purporting to be a translation of the song of an Indian Mohammedan addressed to the Hubshees, or Soudanese. The following three stanzas are typical of the whole:

"Knowing that ye are forfeit by battle,
And have no right to live,
He begs for money to bring you learning,
And all the English give;
It is their treasure, it is their pleasure,
Thus are their hearts inclined,
For Allah created the English Mad,
The Mahdist of all mankind.

"They do not consider the meaning of things,
they consult not creed or clan,
Behold, they clap the slave on the back,
and behold, he becometh a man,
They terribly carpet the earth with dead, and before their cannon cool,
They walk unarmed b twos and threes to call the living to school.

"Certainly they were mad from of old, but I think one new thing,
That the magic whereby they work their magic, wherefrom their fortunes spring.
May be that they show all people their magic,
and ask no price in return,
Wherefore, since ye are bond to that magic,
O, hubshee, make haste and learn.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Mr. R. Morrow Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Toronto, Nov. 28—The vast majority of Torontonians know and esteem Mr. R. Morrow, the able and popular general agent for the Toronto Auer Light Co.

For this reason the following statement made in writing by Mr. Morrow, possesses unusual significance.

"Two years ago I was attacked by Lumbago and Urinary trouble which caused me intense suffering. I took several different remedies without any benefit. Then I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and was completely cured by them."

Lumbago is unusually prevalent this fall. All sufferers should know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only known cure for it. They never fail.

LAKEWOOD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The new Methodist church at McFadden's Corners has been completed. It is a splendid building. Services were held both morning and evening on Sunday last. On Monday a New England dinner was held at the residence of Mr. McFadden, where a splendid supply was furnished by the ladies. After dinner an adjournment was made to the church, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion, where a programme was presented in which the Apsley choir took a prominent part. Addresses were delivered by Mr. Batstone, of Coe Hill, Rev. Mr. Edmison, of Lakefield, and the Rev. Mr. Barrett of this place. Rev. Mr. Sharpe, the Presbyterian minister, also delivered an interesting address. The recitations of Miss Staples and Miss Moffat were well received, as was the reading of Miss Lowsley. Altogether the church opening and entertainment was a great success.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I.T. He writes, "Four bottles of Electric Bitters have cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which has caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure was complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates, liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

WILL THE GOVERNMENT RUN IT?

An Object Lesson in Federal Management of Telegraph Service.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The situation in Porto Rico promises to force on this Government, for a time at least, the experiment of Federal ownership of telegraph and telephone lines. The War Department now controls all lines in Porto Rico, and in the evacuated sections of Cuba. The latter, however, is looked upon as merely transient. In both places the lines are being repaired and the Government is handling commercial messages after Government matter.

Considerable interest is expressed as to whether the management of the lines will be permanently retained by the Government. This enforced object lesson in Federal management is naturally expected to have considerable influence in the agitation for like control in this country.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

WRECKED LONDONIAN

A Grave for 25 Men of Her Passengers and Crew.

45 PERSONS WERE SAVED.

The Rescued Mariners Brought Into Baltimore by the Johnston Line Steamship Vedamore—Story of the Thrilling Rescue and of the Sufferings of the Wrecked —Brave Doings.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 9.—The Johnston Line steamship Vedamore of Liverpool, Capt. Robert Bartlett, for whose safety fears were beginning to be felt, as she was several days overdue, arrived yesterday with 45 shipwrecked mariners, whom she had picked up at sea. Twenty-five others went down with their ship.

The men landed are the survivors of the British steamship Londonian of London, bound from Boston for London, with a large general cargo and 650 cattle on deck. She left Boston Nov. 15 and on Nov. 23, in a violent gale, her cargo shifted and she almost capsized, finally resting on her beam ends, with big seas breaking over her. Her crew were helpless to right her and for two days she drifted about at the mercy of the wind and waves. Assistance came at 5 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 25. The Vedamore hove in sight, five miles distant, and, as it was still quite dark, the Londonian burned signal fires and fired distress rockets. The signals were seen by the officer on the Vedamore's bridge and reported to Capt. Bartlett, who gave immediate orders that the Vedamore's course be changed. It did not take the Vedamore long to cover the five miles that lay between them, and as soon as she arrived alongside she was signalled to stand by.

"Will Abandon Ship."

"Do you wish to abandon the ship?" was signalled from the Vedamore, and Capt. Lee of the Londonian replied that he wanted the Vedamore to tow his ship. Capt. Bartlett saw at a glance that this was an impossibility and refused to attempt it, as it would endanger his own ship. Capt. Lee soon afterward signalled "Will abandon ship," and at noon, in the teeth of a stiff gale, Second Officer Hobbs and a volunteer crew launched one of the Vedamore's boats and attempted to reach the sinking Londonian. For three hours the sturdy Britons battled with wind and wave in a vain attempt to reach her, but were finally forced to return to their ship. Capt. Bartlett then steamed to windward of the doomed steamer and tried to fire rockets, with lines attached, over the wreck, hoping by that means that the seamen in peril could be saved. After a number of vain attempts this idea was abandoned, and, as it grew too dark to do anything more, Capt. Bartlett signalled: "Will stand by you until morning."

The piteous signal, "For God's sake, don't leave us," came back in reply, and every man of the crew of the Vedamore pledged his life to rescue the helpless ones.

Tried Another Means.

During the night the wind increased, and by morning it was blowing very hard. Then it was that another means of rescue was decided upon. For hours life buoys, with lines attached, were floated to the Londonian, and at last her crew succeeded in getting one aboard. A heavy line was stretched between the vessels and one of the Vedamore's lifeboats was improvised as a life car to be hauled between the two ships. It made a trip successfully, and 22 half-frozen, exhausted men were hauled up over the high side of the Vedamore and given every comfort the ship afforded. As the boat was going back to the Londonian wreck a big sea broke over it and capsized it. Another broke over it and demolished it. The lines were also carried away, and the communication broken.

Chief Officer Doran of the Vedamore then stepped up to Capt. Bartlett and volunteered to launch another lifeboat to attempt the rescue. Another set of brave seamen dropped down into her as she touched the water and she sped away through the waves. The seas were by this time terrific, and that she lived five minutes seemed a miracle. It was only owing to the splendid manner in which she was handled that she lived it out. For two hours the boat's crew struggled at the oars, but could not get closer than 60 yards of the wreck. They were at last forced to give up and return to their ship, and in doing so the boat was smashed against the ship's side and lost. They all came near drowning, but were hauled aboard with lines.

Another Night of Peril.

Another fearful night of peril and fear passed. The next morning 23 of the men of the Londonian succeeded in launching one of their own boats and reached the Vedamore in safety. Their boat was also lost and all that day was spent in trying to again establish communication with the wreck. The gale was constantly increasing and all efforts to save the others were in vain.

Even after night had fallen the Vedamore was kept cruising in the vicinity, but when day broke next morning the Londonian had vanished. The Vedamore then proceeded to Baltimore.

Piles Cured Without The Knife, by Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Geo. Browne, painter, of Woodville, Ont., Victoria Co. says:—"For thirteen years I was a sufferer from bleeding piles and the intense agony which I passed through during those years and relief I obtained by Chase's Ointment prompts me to give this testimonial. My physicians wished me to have an operation but I felt I could be cured without the knife. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment stopped the bleeding and effected a permanent cure."

Severe Cough Cured.

A THRILLING FIGHT.

Sailors on the Scottish King Battled for Their Lives.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 9.—While salvors were working yesterday on the wrecked steamer Scottish King a fire broke out in the after hold, caused by the igniting of several cases of matches and of some goods that were packed with straw.

The fire lasted over an hour and was only extinguished, after considerable trouble, by buckets of water hoisted over the ship's side. For a time there was great excitement, some leaving the ship in fear of an explosion. Those who remained worked hard. The air in the hold was stifling from sulphur smoke, and when, one by one, the workers became exhausted, they were hoisted on deck, others taking their places.

PECULIAR POISONS

GENERATED IN THE HUMAN BODY.

The Result of Imperfect Digestion of Food.

Every living thing, plant or animal, contains within itself the germs of certain decay and death.

In the human body these germs of disease and death (called by scientists (Ptomaines), are usually the result of imperfect digestion of food; the result of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The stomach, from abuse, weakness, does not promptly and thoroughly digest the food. The result is a heavy, sodden mass which ferments (the first process of decay) poisoning the blood, making it thin, weak and lacking in red corpuscles; poisoning the brain, causing headaches and pain in the eyes.

Bad digestion irritates the heart, causing palpitation and finally bringing on disease of this very important organ.

Poor digestion poisons the kidneys, causing Bright's disease and diabetes.

And this is so because every organ, every nerve depends upon the stomach alone for nourishment and renewal, and weak digestion shows itself not only in loss of appetite and flesh, but in weak nerves and muddy complexion.

The great English scientist, Huxley, said the best start in life is a sound stomach. Weak stomachs fail to digest food properly, because they lack the proper quantity of digestive acids (lactic and hydrochloric) and peptogenic products; the most sensible remedy in all cases of indigestion is to take, after each meal, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply in a pleasant, harmless form all the elements that weak stomachs lack.

The regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure every form of stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

They increase flesh, insure pure blood, strong nerves, a bright eye and clear complexion, because all these result only from wholesome food well digested.

Nearly all druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cents full sized package or by mail by enclosing price to Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., but ask your druggist first.

KATHLEEN BARBER IS DEAD.

Two Lives Were Lost by the Fire in Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Miss Kathleen Barber, who was so seriously injured on Wednesday night at the fire which started in the basement of McLeod, McElroy & Hunter's tailoring establishment at 53½ King street west, died in the Emergency Hospital this morning at 1.30 o'clock. She was unconscious up to the time of her death. None of her relatives live in the city, but her brother Charles, who keeps a foundry in Meaford, will arrive to-day. Mrs. Pierce is doing well and will likely recover.

Crushed by a Crane.

Galt, Dec. 9.—Chris. Seip of this town, while at work in the moulding shop of the Goldie, McCulloch Company works yesterday, met with a painful accident. A swinging crane was being erected, when the tackle broke and the heavy structure descended upon Mr. Seip, partially burying him beneath its ponderous weight. It was some considerable time before the unfortunate man could be extricated. Jacks had to be got under the crane to lift it up. It was found when Mr. Seip was liberated that his leg had been broken, his arm bruised and that he had received a number of bad cuts about the neck and elsewhere. The injuries are very painful.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH CHOIR CONCERT.

A MOST PRONOUNCED ALL-ROUND SUCCESS.

Mr. Crane and His Chorus Hit the Mark Again—A Great Audience and a Great Concert—Detailed Reference to the Meritorious Programme, Presented.

Of course it was a success. It was expected to be, and it met the most sanguine expectations.

The Chorus.
Harold Jarvis, Tenor.
Miss Ina Fenwick, Entertainer.
A Crowded House from Doors to Stage.

These were the elements that brought about one of the most successful and enjoyable concerts ever given in Peterborough, both in solid musical merit and popular enjoyment.

The stage was beautifully and artistically set. The white dresses of the lady members of the chorus, with narrow blue shoulder sashes, on rising ranges of seats in the foreground, to which the black dress suits of the male members formed a striking foil, were backed by forest scenery. The stage floor in front was banked on either side by masses of chrysanthemum. The stage boxes were beautifully decorated with an artistic arrangement of red, white and blue bunting. Everything was favourable to the success that was achieved by the presentation of the excellent which began with the singing of the bridal chorus from the "Rose Maiden," by Cowan. It only needed a few bars to demonstrate that the chorus had been subjected to intelligent and careful training. All the conditions of first-class choral singing were present—beautiful balance of parts, phrasing, tempo, shading and consequent tuneful and satisfactory ensemble. The fine promise of the opening chorus was kept in the second contribution—"O, Happy Day," by Gotze, which was sung unaccompanied and with beautiful effect, in which the blithesome spirit of the selection was brought out in a most delightful manner. The ladies' chorus, a sweet and quaint "Lullaby" by Neidlinger, was a gem. It was sung without instrumental accompaniment, but the nasal, drone, with bouche fermee, had the exquisite function of an obligato with strings, the contralti especially yielding the rich effects of the 'cello. Too much praise cannot be given the ladies for the superb manner in which they brought out the dreamy spirit of this number, the delicacy of treatment; the exquisite shading and the generally effective production making it the piece of the evening. So strongly did its artistic delicacy appeal to the audience that a repeat had to be accorded in reply to insistent applause. The second part of the programme opened with a humourous part song by Caldicott—"Where are you Going my Pretty Maid." In this charming effect was produced by excellent shading and apt expression. The same good work was repeated in the succeeding part song, "Dreams," by Strelizki. The sweet pathos was developed, while the dove-tailing of the parts was smooth and the piano effects charmingly brought out. The unaccompanied chorus, the "Last Night," by Kjerulf, was another delightful contribution, sung with beautiful balance of parts, skilful management of the crescendi and generally most satisfactory effect. The work of the chorus throughout was conscientiously good and even. The balance of tone was well preserved and all details that go to make up proper chorus singing were faithfully observed.

Mr. Harold Jarvis was at his best, and he scored a triumph in every one of the four selections in which he appeared. His method is perhaps more matured but his voice has lost none of its robust richness, nor smooth sweetness, as occasion demands. He sang as his opening number, Gounod's "Lend me your Aid," from the Queen of Sheba. The dramatic treatment of the recitative and the tuneful elaboration of the theme and spirit of the aria were fine. "The Standard on the Braes o' Mar" falls far short of giving the scope to his robust tenor and his fire of interpretation that is afforded by "Scots Wha Hae," but he sang it with magnificent spirit and effect. As a recall number he sang "Kitty of Coleraine." In Allitson's "A Song of Thanksgiving," he was at his best; he caught the spirit of the song and translated it most effectively. But more delightful was his encore number, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," which was sung with a delicacy and sweetness that recalled the warble of the birds and the ripple of the waters. Hatton's "Bid me to Live," was a fitting conclusion to the magnificent contribution of song Mr. Jarvis gave. His work was thoroughly satisfactory but not satisfying; the audience didn't get enough of it, although he was liberal both in stated numbers and recalls.

The elocutionary work of Miss Ina Fenwick was highly appreciated by the audience. Her first essay was in a field that has been most industriously worked by readers—child reading of a humourous character, which was well done. Her best work was in the number "The La Rue Stakes," a race track legend which gave abundant scope to spirited reciting, which Miss Fenwick was quite equal to. Her third number was strongly tragic, "The Uncle," by Bell. Her closing reading "They Never Quarrelled," brought out in a most effective manner the humour of the selection. Miss Fenwick is a clever young reader and her popularity with the audience was shown by the hearty applause she received and the recalls to which she was compelled to respond. She has a bright future as an elocutionist, to which her charming presence and the maturing of her art will both contribute.

The concert was brought to a close by the singing by the choir of the National Anthem, as arranged by Sir Michael Costa. It was most excellently sung and was an artistic finale to a concert of uniform excellence throughout.

Mr. Crane has just reason to feel proud of his success. His enthusiasm, his earnestness in his work, and his musical spirit were able to gather about him a chorus that was willing to put in the exacting work which was necessary to produce the excellent results achieved last night. It would be a pity if the chorus that has been so splendidly trained and is in such fine form for good work, should be allowed to disband without having another opportunity of delighting the public. A proficiency that represents months of faithful and painstaking work on the part of both chorus and conductor is worthy of a more ample hearing than that represented by the two delightful hours they gave the delighted audience in the opera house last night.

Mr. Charles D. Rogers furnished effective accompaniments to the accompanied choruses and to Mr. Harold Jarvis' songs.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. James Gordon, in retiring from the position of night watchman for the business section of the town, desires to extend his thanks to the merchants who have patronized him so liberally since he undertook the duties.

A HUNTER STREET RUNAWAY.

A Team of Horses Makes Things Lively for a Few Minutes.

Last evening about 6.30 a runaway occurred on Hunter street, near the post office, when an Otonabee farmer's team became uncontrollable and dashed down the street towards the bridge.

At the corner of Queen street the sleigh overturned and a supply of groceries was scattered over the road. The team continued on their mad gallop until they reached Hunter street bridge, when they came to a sudden standstill, the sleigh having collided with the abutment of the bridge.

Meanwhile a little boy had gathered up the groceries, and carried them to the farmer who was extricating the team and sleigh from the tangle on the bridge. He was so much pleased at the boy's kindness that he rewarded him with a large smile, from which he has not recovered up to the hour of going to press.

A WINTER RACE MEET.

Peterborough Will Probably Hold One This Winter on Little Lake.

A number of local horsemen in conversation with a reporter last evening stated that it was their intention to boom a winter race meet in Peterborough this season. Towns like Napanee, Brighton and Lindsay hold successful races every winter, which attracted large number of horsemen, and they could see no reason why Peterborough, the banner town of the Province, could not provide a programme of ice races that would draw the leading fliers of the country.

Winter races have been held in Peterborough in past years, and though not as successful as the promoters anticipated, still it went to prove that with proper management and with a united effort on the part of all horsemen, a series of successful meets could be held.

The gentlemen interested further stated that a meeting of enthusiasts would be held at an early date, when steps would be taken to arrange the preliminaries.

SENT UP AS A VAGRANT.

An Old Harness Maker Sent up for Six Months.

At the police court this morning an old gentleman named George Wylding, a harness maker, was charged with being a vagrant. The old gentleman is well known in town, and in connection with his career an interesting story is told. Whilst residing in England he took out an insurance policy on his life, and some time afterwards he disappeared from his home. He came to Canada, and his wife, believing him dead, collected the insurance. But, like the proverbial cat, he came back, only to be disowned by his wife and family. He again returned to Canada and tried to earn a living as best he could.

The unfortunate old man is seventy-eight years of age, and the magistrate sent him up for six months.

Men will not believe, but women know from experience, the amount of sand and dirt in currants and raisins. Women also know that Mason & Co's Crescent brand currants and raisins are free from dirt and stems, as they are thoroughly cleansed by the new electric process. Price, same as ordinary fruit.

GIVING UP BUSINESS.
GENUINE BARGAINS.

W. J. Green wishes the Examiner to notify its readers that he intends selling out all his stock at less than cost price, consisting of ready made Overcoats, Cloths, Worsteds, Gents' Furnishing, etc. Everything must go before 1st January. Parties owing by accounts or notes must settle at once, or same will be put in suit for collection.

TWO BYE-ELECTIONS WON.

The result of the voting in West Huron and Halton bye-elections yesterday was the return of both Liberal candidates, Hon. Mr. Garrow and Mr. J. R. Barber. Both men were returned by greatly increased majorities over those obtained at the general election. In West Huron the first of last March the result was virtually a tie; yesterday Mr. Garrow was elected by a majority of 80. In March Mr. Barber's majority was 123, yesterday it was 160, or, according the Mail and Empire's figures, 200. The Opposition seems to be as hopelessly behind in its bye-election campaign as it was in the general election. Last March the Hardy Government had a popular majority of 7,000. The bye-elections have increased it to 8,000. Mr. Whitney is having a decidedly up-hill fight for office, and as the days go by the Government is gaining strength. The Hardy Government is safe, both as regards its tenure of office and the interest of the Province.

A Bible Benefit

We are overstocked with BIBLES, HYMN BOOKS and PRAYER BOOKS, which we imported direct from the Oxford Publishing House, London, Eng.

This is a case where it does not do to have too much of a good thing, and we intend to arouse a missionary spirit in Peterborough, if bargains in BIBLES will do it. It may cost us something to reduce the stock, but necessity has no law.

Between now and December 25th our $700 stock of Bibles must be reduced at least one-fourth, even if we have to anticipate cost as the selling figures.

We thought we had reached the Acme of Bible selling a year ago, but here's a new mark:

Bagster's Comprehensive Teacher's Bible, size of page 8x5¼, minion type, red under gold edges; tough paper, and almost as thin as India; binding so flexible that it may be bent double, back to back. Publisher's regular price $4.25; Stratton's price	$ 2.95
Oxford Teacher's Self-Pronouncing Bible, size of page 8x5¼ in., bourgoise type, red under gold edges. Publishers regular price $2.50, Stratton's price	$ 1.75
Oxford Ruby Type Bible, yapped binding, lined with silk baize. Publisher's price $1.25, Stratton's price	94c
Oxford Pearl Type Bible, yapped leather binding, lined with silk baize. Publisher's price 70c, Stratton's price	49c
Oxford Special Ruby Type Bible, leather binding, splendid pocket edition. Publisher's price 75c, Stratton's price	69c

FUNERAL OF SISTER NATIVITY.

The Obsequies in the Chapel of St. Joseph's Hospital This Morning.

The funeral services of Sister Nativity, who died Tuesday morning, took place in St. Joseph's chapel this morning.

The solemn mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Father O'Leary, of Rochester, cousin of the deceased. The deacon of the mass was Rev. Father O'Connell, and the sub-deacon Rev. Father McGuire, of Hastings. Rev. Father J. F. Sullivan acted as Master of Ceremonies. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was also present with his attendants, Ven. Archdeacon Casey and Rev. Father Fitzpatrick.

A number of the Sisters of the Order from Lindsay, Cobourg and other places were also present, together with several Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame.

The musical portion of the services was beautifully rendered and was under the direction of the Mother Superior from Cobourg.

After the mass an eloquent sermon was preached by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who also pronounced the final benediction, after which the coffin was borne to the hearse through double lines of the nuns, with veils down and each bearing a lighted taper.

The interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery, town.

DEBATING CLUB.

A splendid attendance and two splendid papers refer to the Y. M. C. A. Debating Club, which held its regular weekly meeting last evening.

Mr. Williamson acted as chairman. Mr. W. H. Collier gave a paper on the "Dreyfus Case," outlining in an interesting way the history of it. In the discussion which followed a sharp contrast was drawn between British and French justice.

Mr. Fred Ray's paper on "The Platform of the Peterborough Town Council for 1899," was full of points which the town fathers would do well consider. Every sentence of the paper was punctuated with a hearty laugh from the audience. Had the town council been there they would have joined in it too.

The discussion was most spontaneous. Some of the questions touched upon were "Electric lighting," "Waterworks Plant," "Encouragement of Manufacturies," "The Street Car Service" and the "Abolition of Wards."

At a meeting of the club on Thursday, December 15th, a debate will be held "Resolved that the United States were justified in making war against Spain."

COUNTY COUNCIL AFFAIRS.

Electors are Interesting Themselves in the Approaching Council Elections.

The second election under the County Councils' Act of 1896 takes place in January. As is well known, county councillors are elected to serve a term of two years, and this period of representation expires at the end of the present year.

Electors are now interesting themselves in the approaching elections and candidates' names are being freely mentioned, and from what can be gathered from reliable sources there is a prospect of a contest in all the divisions but two.

In the Otonabee and Lakefield divisions, Messrs. Peck, Anderson, Eastland and Shaw will not likely be opposed.

Warden Pearce and Mr. John Brown are again in the field in the Norwood Division and they will probably have a number of candidates against them, the names most freely mentioned being Reeve Andrews, ex-Reeve Buck and ex-Councillor Moore, of Asphodel, ex-Reeve Finlay, of Norwood, and ex-Reeve Joyce, of Havelock.

Mr. R. Crowe, of Dummer, will, it is rumoured, oppose the two present representatives from the Lakefield Division, Messrs. Casement and Hawthorne.

The candidates in the Bridgenorth Division, it is likely, will be Messrs. Fitzgerald and Middleton, and ex-Reeve Foster, of North Monaghan.

IS IT A CASE OF ELOPEMENT?

A VERY INDIGNANT HUSBAND THINKS SO, ANYWAY.

He Accuses a Well Known Local Character of Running Away With His Wife—Both Parties Have Left For Parts Unknown—Interesting Developments Expected.

This morning a resident of the town came to the police station with blood in his eye and informed Chief Rossel that a well known character in town had stolen his wife and departed for parts unknown.

He was anxious for the law to assist him in running the culprit to earth and wanted prompt action taken. The Chief advised him to see County Crown Attorney Wood and lay the matter in his hands.

A reporter collared the irate husband at the corner of George and Hunter streets and endeavoured to get the facts of the case, but the gentleman was too indignant over the affair to tell his tale of woe to anyone but an official of the law. But he assured the reporter that the truth would be known in a few days.

As far as can be learned the party who is accused of disturbing the domestic happiness of the citizen in question, was married a week ago to a girl from the south end, and was assisted through the trying ordeal by a well known market vendor.

On Wednesday of this week the newly married man and his obliging groomsman started for Ennismore to engage in a wood sawing contract which they had secured in that township; and right here is where the trouble commenced.

The indignant husband claims that his wife was persuaded by the party accused to accompany him on his journey, which she did, and as no signs of both have been seen for several days, he has come to the conclusion that it is a clear case of elopement.

County Crown Attorney Wood advised the citizen to ascertain if the accused had really been married last week, and if such proved to be the case a charge of bigamy would be preferred against him.

The accused is characterized as a "bad egg" and has figured in the Police Court on different occasions.

HOCKEY.

Competition for a place on the Colts O. H.A. team will be strong this winter. McBain, Armstrong, Bradd, Morgan, Dumble, Crossley, Macdonald, Graham, McGrath, McKee and others are getting into great shape.

Capt. Armstrong requests a special turnout to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the rink.

The Colts have made arrangements with the rink management for the season's practices as follows: Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, from 5 to 6, and Saturday night from 7 to 8. Thursday afternoon is reserved by the club management for special work, while other practices will be general.

Norwood is entering a team in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. The club is not responsible for the report that the team would drop out of the league.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THEY ELECTED OFFICERS.

The Beekeepers in Annual Convention at Guelph—A Very Interesting Report From the Directors.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—At the convention of the Ontario Beekeepers here yesterday the following officers were appointed: President, W. J. Brown, Chard; vice-president, C. W. Post, Trenton; second vice-president, James Newton, Thamesford; directors J. K. Darling, Almonte; W. B. Holmes, Athens; J. W. Sparling, Bowmanville; D. W. Hoise, Bethesada; A. Pickett, Nassagaweyga; James Armstrong, Champside; F. A. Gemmell, Stratford; W. A. Chrysler, Chatham; H. N. Hughes, Barrie; Dr. James Mills, president O.A.C., Guelph; inspector of apiaries, William McEvoy, Woodburn; assistant inspector, F. A. Gemmell, Stratford; representative to Industrial Exhibition, A. Pickett, Nassawageya; representative to Western Fair, London, R. H. Smith, St. Thomas; representative to Central, Ottawa, J. K. Darling, Almonte.

Toronto was chosen as next place of meeting. The Canadian Bee Journal, edited by R. F. Holterman, Brantford, was taken as the official organ.

The directors' report as presented by the secretary, Mr. Couse, showed that this season had been a fairly prosperous one as far as the supply and sale of honey was concerned. The financial condition of the association is fairly satisfactory, there being a good balance in the hands of the treasurer. The grants were made to the Toronto, London and Ottawa fall exhibitions. These grants were expended in compliance with the rules of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. There was an appropriation of $900 to the affiliated association, to be expended in accordance with the bylaws of the association. It was decided by the association to co-operate with the Dominion Government to endeavor if possible to make exhibits of honey at Earlscourt, London, in 1899, and at the Paris Exposition in 1900.

Discovered by a Woman

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her, and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking the first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hammick & Co., of Shelby, N.C. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Nicaragua Canal Bill.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 8.—The Senate committee on the Nicaragua Canal yesterday decided upon some changes in the bill for the construction of the canal, and authorized Senator Morgan to press the matter upon the early consideration of the Senate. The most important change made is one leaving to the President to decide whether the bonds of the Government shall be issued to aid the construction of the canal or the proceeds of the sale of the Pacific railroads shall be devoted to that purpose. The bill, as now to be reported, leaves the details of the construction in the hands of the Maritime Company as before, and will contain a special provision limiting the amount of cash in the United States treasury that may be devoted to its use to $5,000,000.

When you are nervous and sleepless, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It makes the nerves strong and gives refreshing sleep.

He Lost Two Men.

Machias, Me., Dec. 8.—The British schooner Florence Hewson, Captain Patterson of Parreboro, N.S., which has been towed into Machias port badly damaged by the storm of Nov. 26, reports the loss of two men during the gale. George McClelland of Moncton, N.B., and Charles Reed, son of Captain Reed of Hopewell Cape, N.B., were washed overboard and drowned.

Appointed Deputy Minister of Militia.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—Major Pinault, member of the Quebec Legislature for Matane, has been appointed Deputy Minister of Militia, in succession to the late Col. Panet.

It is said the Customs Department at Ottawa has decided to establish ten standards, which will probably come into force March 1 next.

A FLORID REPORT.

British Admiralty Has Bought Greek Pond, Jamaica, Which Commands Entrance to Nicaragua Canal.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 8.—As part of the scheme of converting Kingston harbor into a great naval depot and extensive dockyard, in view of the construction of the Nicaragua Canal in the near future, the Admiralty authorities have just completed negotiations for the purchase of Greek Pond, at the western extremity of the city, where the proposed dockyard will be constructed. It is reported that the work will be commenced immediately. The dockyard, it is said, is to be the largest and best-equipped in the British dominions.

A naval authority who has been interviewed on the subject says that the intention is to make Jamaica "another Gibraltar," to command the canal and for a rallying point for the naval and military forces of the Anglo-American alliance, when, by dominating both oceans, it holds the political and commercial balance of power in the hollow of its hand.

TRIAL OF RIOPELLE.

Mother and Stepfather of His Alleged Victim Give Evidence at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—Mrs. Leonce Boyer, widow of the man whose dead body was found on the Eardley road on the night of Aug. 8, was the first witness in the Riopelle murder trial at Hull yesterday. She was much affected and frequently broke down. Her evidence was not material.

Mrs. Pierre Potvin, Boyer's mother, endorsed the evidence of Boyer's widow as to Riopelle's stopping at the Boyer house the night Boyer was killed. "He told me he was stopping to give us news about my son and that Leonce had not got through with his business in Aylmer. He said he would come up the next morning with Mr. Mulligan, the butcher.

"'Tell me the truth, Andre; I think Leonce is dead.'

"He answered: 'No, he will come up to-morrow.'"

Riopelle took the horse to his own place, because, as he said, there was something in the wagon he wanted to leave there. He did not seem to be drunk.

The Stepfather's Evidence.

Pierre Potvin, stepfather of the deceased, gave evidence confirming that of his wife as to the prisoner's coming home without Boyer and his going to the accused's house at once to ask what he had done with Boyer. The prisoner did not seem intoxicated. He said Boyer was going to sleep in Aylmer and return in the morning. When he got the wagon back he saw nothing wrong with the hay-rick, but afterwards he noticed some blood on it, something like the traces of two fingers.

"I positively swear that the blood stains I saw on the wagon were not there when Boyer left for the city the day he was killed."

There will be no sitting of the court to-day, it being a holiday.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as though they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

FAT STOCK SHOW AT GUELPH.

Large Exhibits of Fine Quality in Every Department.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—The Guelph Fat Stock Show held here yesterday was a grand success. The exhibits of cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry were large, and as usual of first-class quality.

The weather being fine and good sleighing, the attendance was greater than ever. The banquet given by the Fat Stock Club at the Wellington Hotel was well patronized. Over 150 guests were seated at the tables in the spacious dining hall.

The president, James Miller, presided, Hon. John Dryden sitting to his right and Hon. J. M. Gibson to his left. Other persons of note present were: Prof. Curtis of Iowa, John Mutrie, M.P.P., James Mills, president of the Agricultural College, Guelph; James Innes, ex-M.P., Mr. Hobson and Mr. Duff.

The usual toasts were proposed and responded to, after which "The Lieut.-Governor and Local Legislature," responded to by the Hon. J. M. Gibson and Hon. John Dryden. "Trade and Commerce," responded to by Mr. Hobson, and "Municipal Institutions" by Mr. Duff.

PENNY POSTAGE.

Lord Minto Will Send First Letter Bearing It to the Queen.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The first letter to be sent to England under the new penny postage will be from the Governor-General to Her Majesty the Queen, and from the Postmaster-General of Canada to the Postmaster-General of England. In like manner the first letter from England posted on Christmas will be from the Queen of England to the Governor-General and the administrators of all colonies who are in the ocean postage scheme. Of course, all such letters are in ordinary cases franked and free, but the paying by stamp will be adopted for these particular letters, in order to commemorate the inauguration of penny postage on both sides of the Atlantic. All these commemoration letters will be posted at midnight on the 24th.

CAREFUL GREEK PARENTS.

Boys Were Escorted to School Just as Girls Are Now.

The extraordinary care that the Grecian boy received in his formative years made his moral training more effective than that inculcated by the most careful of modern parents. His general education, coupled with skillful and continuous physical instruction, produced a moral cultivation very similar and fully as strict as that the Christian father deems necessary for his daughters.

A pedagogue, generally an old and trusted slave, led the boys to school and called for them after it closed, carried the books, looked out for the little boys, kept the older ones from fighting and falling into bad company and had a general oversight of their conduct and street form. He was by no means a schoolmaster or even a private tutor, not even being allowed to enter the schoolroom. Oftentimes ignorant in the extreme, he was chosen simply because of his loyalty to the family and sometimes, I fear, because he was unfit for any other occupation. Though the butt of the boys' ridicule as well as that of the comic poets and low wits of the day, he did an incalculable service in preventing vicious companionships and keeping pure the minds of those intrusted to his charge.

The child was never sent off to boarding school, but boys attended the day school; town life prevailed. Besides, that sentiment that zealously guarded the boy's purity with a pedagogue from his sixth to his sixteenth year could brook no intermission of personal oversight. Education was essentially private, the state having jurisdiction simply over the moral and not the professional standing of the teacher.—Popular Science Monthly.

He Had No Choice.

The wife of a dynamo tender went to a haberdasher's to buy a necktie for her husband. She selected a brilliant red one, ready made, whereupon the young and inexperienced salesman, with compassion for the future owner, was moved to remark:

"Excuse me, missus, is this tie for your husband?"

"It is," replied the woman.

"Don't you think he'd rather have some other color? I'm afraid he won't wear this red tie."

"Oh, yes, he will!" said the woman firmly. "He'll have to—he's dead."—Electrical Review.

Raised . . .
From a Bed of Sickness . . .

Simcoe, Jan. 18th, 1897.

Messrs. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen—For over five months I was confined to my bed, not being able to move. The best medical skill was called in, all treating me for catarrh of the stomach, but to no avail. I could not eat the most simple food without being in dreadful misery, and found no relief until same was vomited up. After spending a large sum in medical advice, I was advised to try a box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I purchased a box from J. Austin and Company, Simcoe, and to my surprise found great relief. Not being able to eat I tried a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; the pains left me the third day. My appetite has been fully restored. I consider myself perfectly cured, and feel as well as when a young woman, although I am 65 years old at present. I was almost a shadow, now I am as fleshy as before my sickness. Have used only three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and two boxes of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I can do my house work as usual. I am positive that my marvellous cure (which I think it is) is due purely to Dr. Chase's remedies, which I have used. I can honestly recommend the same to any persons suffering from symptoms similar to mine. Wishing you every success,

Yours truly,

Mrs. Ann Churchill, Sr.

Now, Aristophanes also had the curious notion that just because he had written successful comedies he could be funny.

"You write in the attic," he mused, palpably struggling to remain calm. "Why not on the ground floor?"

"That," replied Demosthenes, whose great prophetic soul enabled him aptly to quote words as yet unspoken, "is another story."

Energy Easily Earned.

DR. WARD'S BLOOD & NERVE PILLS

Wasted energy must be made up or the body will weaken and perhaps perish.

For a long time prior to taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills my nerve system was greatly deranged and I was terribly nervous, so much so that in my business (Linesman of the Kingston Electric Light Co.,) my extreme nervousness naturally made the following of my business extremely hazardous. Before taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills my kidneys had been affected for some time. I had constant soreness and stiffness across my loins and the small of my back. My appetite was variable and very poor. I also suffered greatly with constant headaches. I am glad to be able to inform you that Dr. Ward's Pills completely cured me of all the above ailments and made me a well man. I have found no medicine like Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, although I have tried many different kinds. They acted quickly and effectually on my nerve system, making my nerves strong and removing all indications of nervousness. These valuable pills also removed all kidney and back trouble and restored to me a healthy vigorous appetite. I have had no headache since five months ago and feel justified in saying that they are a wonderful remedy. They not only removed nervousness, but gave me healthy kidneys, removed all soreness and stiffness from my back and loins, cured me of headache and gave me a good appetite, consequently I am highly pleased. I know of no medicine that equals Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills for nervousness, chronic headache, sore kidneys and back and loss of appetite. Yours truly, John McCutcheon, 522 Princess St., Kingston, Ont.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

CHAPTER I.

OLD FRIENDS, WELL MET.

It was the first day of September, but it might have been the earliest in August, or the latest in July, so fiercely did the sun shine down upon the city pavements, so sultry was the atmosphere, and so eager was the dust to defy sprinklers, and bestow itself, unsolicited, upon ladies' summer bonnets, and gentlemen's unmentionables.

It was only ten o'clock in the morning, and yet the pedestrian, walking down the sunny side of Madison street, Chicago, on this first day of September, in the year of our Lord 187—, would undoubtedly have exclaimed—had he been a true Chicagoan—that it was "hot."

At ten o'clock in the morning, aimless promenaders are few upon the thoroughfares; but on this especial occasion, at least one very listless individual might have been seen sauntering slowly down from Clark street, occasionally stopping to gaze at some window with a half careless, half critical, whony lazy air.

The loiterer was a young and handsome man. His face, so much of it as might be seen, under the shadow of a big "Kossuth," was much sunburned; the eyes were large, and dark, having, even in a listless mood, a certain quaint expression, that at once stamped the man as an "original." The chin was firm, and the mouth, which might have been handsome, or otherwise, was hidden underneath a heavy moustache of a reddish-brown colour, just one shade lighter than the thick, straight, close-cropped hair.

The young man had the look of an American, a genuine Yankee; but any citizen of Chicago could have told you that his clothes were never made by an American tailor; they had a very foreign look, as if they had been manufactured for some tall English sobersides, and had fallen upon the limbs and shoulders of this big, careless, self-reliant, yet somewhat preoccupied letterer, by mistake.

Evidently the buildings upon which he gazed were new things to him, for he seemed inclined to criticise some of the most pretentious, and to find some room for dissatisfaction.

Crossing Dearborn street, with the sublimest disregard for drays and newsboys, he paused before the "Tribune" building, and scanned the structure with considerable interest. Finally he entered at the great door, through which anxious-looking people are constantly hurrying, and, leaning his back against the wall, lost himself for a moment in watching and pondering the evolutions of the famous "advertisement" system. Shabby-looking women, who had advertised for lodgers, or for sewing, presented a lettered ticket, and walked away with a doleful face, and perhaps two or three letters. Flashy-looking men, who had advertised for a "lady correspondent," a "refined housekeeper," or a pretty "amanuensis," and who turned away from the box with a big packet of letters, and a coarse joke at the expense of the unknown writers; sharp-looking men who wrote "ads." for "partners" and "business chances," and handed them to the clerk, together with the required change, in an off-hand manner, plainly betokening that they knew what they were about, and that it was something worth knowing, too.

All those the stranger surveyed, with an amused twinkle of the shrewd dark eyes, and then turning himself about, was suddenly aware that his self-absorption had caused him to commit a blunder; he had tiffned upon a young lady who was just entering the building, with such force as almost to throw her off her feet. While he was offering a hurried apology, three young men entered the office, and he felt rather than saw that one of them had stopped short and was gazing fixedly at him. Having made his peace with the injured fair one, he turned and confronted the new-comer. In another instant, two hands were outstretched, and the latest arrival was saying in quick, cheery tones:—

"Rob Jocelyn! By the powers! Where on earth did you come from, and where have you been?"

"And where am I going?" supplemented Jocelyn, whose eyes were now dancing with mirth and glad recognition, and whose big brown hand was shaking the smaller whiter one of his friend with unmistakable warmth.

"Glad to see you, Neil; glad to see you—don't ask where I've been now—it makes me sweat to think of it."

"Well, I won't," declared the new-comer, with a mellow half laugh. "And I won't ask where you are going, for, by George, I don't intend to lose sight of you just yet."

"Good enough," cried Jocelyn, with a beaming countenance. "If that's the case, come along; I have been prancing up and down these hot streets for two long hours, and I want a cigar and a glass of lager in the shade."

The new-comer laughed again as if well accustomed to the odd expressions of his friend, and then lifting his hat to wipe the perspiration off a forehead that was white as a girl's, he turned toward the companions who had entered with him.

"Here you are, Bathurst," said one of them, turning from the clerk's window with a packet of letters in his hand. "Lots of missives from fair ladies; we will see what we will see, now."

Without replying to this somewhat enigmatical speech, the young man addressed as Bathurst turned toward his new-found friend and performed the ceremony of introduction.

"Jocelyn, this is Mr. Arteveldt," motioning toward the young man with the letters, "and this," turning toward the other, "is Mr. Fordham."

While they engaged salutations, the keen eyes of the big stranger scrutinized Messrs. Arteveldt and Fordham very closely, and then he said, in a drawling tone, quite different from that in which he had addressed his friend Bathurst:—

"Glad to meet you, gentlemen;" after which he turned to Bathurst and said, in the same tone, "Don't let me come in the way if you are engaged with your friends, Neil; you can look me up at the Tremont, later, you know."

"Not a bit of it," said Bathurst, "we only met by chance, as you and I did, and I must have a long talk with you off hand, so come along. Arteveldt will excuse us."

"Oh, certainly," replied young Arteveldt, carelessly; "it's too deuced hot to have anything special on foot this morning; in fact I have not had any breakfast. You will be on hand for the North Side to-night, won't you, Bathurst?"

Neil Bathurst hesitated for a moment, and then replied, "No, I think not. Not if Jocelyn is at my disposal. I haven't seen him in three years, Arteveldt, and I don't want to quit him; he is liable to slip me like an eel. You'll make my excuses to the Ruthvens to-night; I don't think they will take it amiss, as I am almost a stranger to them."

"Oh! of course I can fix it with them," replied Arteveldt. "But I am sorry you won't be with us, you will miss seeing some dueced nice girls."

Neil Bathurst shrugged one shoulder impatiently.

"I leave the girls to you," he said, half scornfully. "Come then, Jocelyn, right about for somewhere."

He nodded to Arteveldt, lifted his hat to Fordham, and turned away, followed by his friend.

"Which way?" he asked, as they stepped out upon the hot pavement.

"Anywhere," replied Jocelyn, "provided it's cool, and they keep good beer. I'm as thirsty as a herring."

"Then what do you say to the 'Gardens;' they are cool, and the tap is good; besides, if you want to see any one, man or woman, that's the place to find them?"

"Oh, I am not looking for any one," replied Jocelyn, indifferently. "at least, not for any one I am likely to find in that way. It's all one to me where we go, but let's go somewhere, quick."

"All right," rejoined Bathurst, with the cheery laugh that seemed habitual to him. "We will go to the 'Tivoli Garden,' it's not far; why, old man, you are a stranger in Chicago; you have not been here since the fire?"

"No; and I'll be blamed if it don't seem odd to me, after wandering all over Europe for a few years, to come back to the old city I knew so well, and find it as strange to me as was Greece or Rome. By the way, how long have you been here, Neil, and when did you quit the New York Agency?"

"How do you know that I have 'quit' the Agency?" asked Bathurst, with a side glance at his companion.

"How did I know? Well, that's a question. Didn't I go to the Agency straight, as soon as my feet touched New York bottom, and didn't they tell me that you had left them in spite of themselves, and were, or they supposed you were, operating in Chicago?"

"Well, to tell the truth, I quit simply because I wanted a change, and because I had overworked. I have been knocked on the head with a jimmy, stuck in the ribs with a bowie, and perforated in divers places with bullets since you 'sailed away in a gallant barque,' and neglected your friends for five long years. Eighteen months ago they sent me here to work up a forgery case. It took me three months, and then I sent back my papers, and remained here. I have been figuring, to some extent, as a private gentleman, and that is how you found me in company with that fop, Arteveldt, and his chum. But, here's the 'Tovoli,' Rob. Come in, and we will refresh the inner man."

They passed in at the Clark street entrance, and Jocelyn uttered a half whistle as he dropped into a chair, and looked about him.

"Why!" he exclaimed, giving the table an emphatic tap with his forefinger, "it's a regular German 'Bier Garten,' and on a grand scale, too."

"Nevertheless you can buy a Delmonico dinner here, and eat it off this same table."

"And all the pretty girls come here, don't they?" querier Jocelyn, continuing his survey, and gazing with considerable interest in the direction of the ladies' salon.

"A good many pretty ones do, that's a fact," replied Bathurst, indifferently, "and some deuced ugly ones, too."

"Don't look at them, Neil; don't look at them!" said Jocelyn, with great solemnity; "here comes the beer. Now then."

And he drained off his glass in a twinkling.

"I tell you what! old man," said he, setting down his glass with emphasis, and letting his eyes rove over the groups of ladies scattered about at the tables beyond him. "It won't do to try and compare notes here; I shan't be able to stick to my text at all."

"Good Lord, man!" exclaimed the other, "you are not woman-mad to that extent."

Jocelyn leaned back in his chair, and indulged in an exercise that was something between a laugh and a series of chuckles.

"Well, you know, Neil, I always had a fancy for pretty faces, on my own private account."

"No! did you?" sarcastically interrupted Bathurst.

"And," pursued Jocelyn, without seeming to notice the interruption, and with a flourish of the hand peculiar to himself, "I like 'em yet! very much; but lately I have had another reason for studying the faces of pretty women. Do you hold your old theory about faces?"

"Assuredly."

"Well, you always were a queer fish."

"Thanks," laughed Bathurst, "same to you."

"Oh, I know I have my oddities, at least, that's the general opinion. Well, let's go around to my quarters at the Tremont; we'll order up some good wine—I have 'brought over' some prime cigars—and talk things over. By the way, according to your face theory, how do you make out those chaps we have just left?"

"Who, Arteveldt and Fordham?"

Jocelyn nodded.

"Well, you see, I apply my theory to strangers; these fellows I know pretty well; tell us what you thought of them; you gave them a pretty close quiz?"

"Well," said Jocelyn, meditatively, "I should say that your Arteveldt was three parts fool, and the other chap tolerably sharp, pretty conceited, and thoroughly knavish. Ergo—if you were any one else I should wonder what you were doing in such company."

Bathurst laughed carelessly. "Well, you have hit them off as well as I could have done," he said. "Arteveldt belongs to a very old and highly aristocratic family, is the only son of a widowed mother, and all that—widowed mother lives on the avenue, in a palace, and has a regular bonanza fortune—therefore, of course, Arteveldt is accounted a good fellow by the men, and a great catch by the women; he is too pretty to suit my taste, and always has a few love affairs on hand. He is fond of drink and fond of cards, too fond of them; he dropped some two thousand, over across the way, only last night; and don't seem much phazed either. The other fellow I don't know so well; he is a newspaper jockey of some sort, always has a 'scheme' on hand, and is Arteveldt's right bower."

When death has laid its cold and relentless hand upon a kind and loving husband, the wife cannot be blamed for asking herself if all her years of devotion and work and helpfulness were worth the while, when it comes so soon to this tragic end.

If men would only take the most common sense precautions against the encroachments of ill-health, there would be fewer houses of mourning, and fewer women left alone almost helpless before the battle of life is half over. A man's liver and stomach are twin machines that work together, either to make or unmake. If they work wrong, they deplete and poison his blood. Impure and impoverished blood mean sickness and death. If they work right, they purify and enrich the blood. A man whose blood is rich and pure, and whose liver is active cannot well be unhealthy. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and costiveness, which men generally disregard, are Nature's warnings that the twin mechanism, stomach and liver, is working against, instead of for him. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine to use under these circumstances. It creates appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver and fills the arteries with rich, red, healthy blood. As an invigorating, restorative tonic, it is far superior to all the malt extracts. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It does not build sickly, flabby fat as cod liver oil does, but the firm, muscular tissues of health.

"For the last nine years," writes William Miller, Esq., of 651 Mulberry Street, Reading, Pa., "I have been very poor in health. I suffered with a running sore leg. I tried many kinds of different medicines, and doctors without relief. Then I used three bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and can say that I am entirely cured. I can now do as good a day's work as the next man."

Unfailable—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for constipation and biliousness.

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

LAXA-LIVER PILLS are a combination of the active principles of the most valuable remedies for diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels. They regulate the Liver, correct the Stomach, and cause natural, regular action of the Bowels. All the effete or waste matter of the system is removed by the perfect action of these pills, so that they prevent, as well as cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Coated Tongue, Biliousness, Bad Breath, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Sallow Complexion, and all deranged conditions of the Stomach. Liver and Bowels. They are small in size, prompt to act, never gripe, weaken nor sicken.

BILIOUS HEADACHE.

MRS. ADDIE THERRIALT, 216 Brussels Street, St. John, N.B., says: "Laxa-Liver Pills cured me of Constipation, Indigestion and Bilious Headaches. They have corrected the irregularities of liver and stomach, and restored my entire system to healthy, natural action."

LIVER TROUBLE.

MRS. C. GRIMES, Hazeldeas, Ont., "I had an attack of liver trouble and indigestion last spring and decided to try Laxa-Liver Pills. They had a more lasting effect than any remedy I ever took. I believe them to be the best medicine for liver trouble that is to be found."

DON'T GRIPE.

MR. NEWTON COSSITT, of the firm of H. N. Cossitt & Bro., Brockville, Ont., says: "I have used Laxa-Liver Pills myself, and my family have also used them. They are the best laxative we have ever used, being free from the griping peculiar to most laxative pills."

Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and suitable goods against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE

From Branch No. 21, E. B. A. to the Widow of the Late Athanase Mercier.

At the regular meeting of Branch 21, E. B. A., held last evening, the following resolution of condolence was passed:

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, to call to his eternal reward our esteemed and respected brother, Athanase Mercier, be it therefore resolved, that we, the members of St. Peter's Branch, No. 21, E. B. A., extend to the widow, orphans and relatives of our late brother, our most sincere sympathy in this the hour of their affliction, and while praying for the eternal repose of his soul, beg also that Almighty God may grant the widow, orphans and relatives of our deceased brother the grace to bear with Christian fortitude their great affliction.

Be it further resolved, that our charter be draped for the space of one month, that a copy of these resolutions be entered on the minutes of our meeting, that a copy be sent to the widow of our late brother, also a copy to the Catholic Record for publication.

ASHBURNHAM POLITICS.

A Hot Time Promised in Municipal Affairs in the Village.

If gossip amounts to anything, there promises to be a lively tussle in Ashburnham on the occasion of the municipal elections.

Rumour has it that the present reeve, Mr. Frank Adams, will have an opponent for that position in the person of Councillor Johnston, who it is said, is being urged by his friends, to offer himself as a candidate for the reeveship.

The members of this year's council will, it is believed, be in the field again, and they feel justified in again asking the confidence of the ratepayers by the fact that their years labour around the council board has been productive of a large amount of good as far as the prosperity of the village is concerned.

But there are other gentlemen in the village seeking municipal honours, and it is understood that Mr. John Smith will offer himself as a candidate for councillor, together with Mr. John Weir and Mr. Allan McCarthy. It is also whispered around the village that Mr. Robert Sheridan will enter the field at the request of a large number of ratepayers.

If Dame Rumour happens to be in line in this matter, the approaching municipal contest in Ashburnham promises to be quite interesting.

After dinner-coffee.

Nothing in the world is so necessary as a fitting termination to a perfectly served dinner.

At no time does the true merit of coffee become so manifest. To produce that delicious, aromatic beverage that delights the hearts of epicures and acts as a delightful conclusion to a well-enjoyed meal, only the finest material should be used. They are represented by

Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand Coffee

Grocers sell it in pound and two-pound tin cans, and the signature of these famous importers, together with their seal, guarantees its matchless excellence.

AN OPEN AIR RINK.

Ashburnham to Have One on the P. A A. A. Grounds.

A number of gentlemen in Ashburnham are considering a scheme for the opening of an open air rink in the village during the winter, and if they receive the necessary encouragement and co-operation of a few others, the matter will assume definite shape before long.

It is proposed to secure the P.A.A.A. grounds for the purpose, and to clear a large circle in the centre sufficient to hold any number of skaters. The grounds will be lighted by electricity, and the management of the rink left in the hands of a competent person.

The water for ice-making purposes will of course be secured from the hydrant at the corner of Elizabeth street and Driscoll Terrace, and if the plans proposed are carried out, the open air rink will boom.

THE CHRISTMAS FEAST FOR THE POOR.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—All public-spirited citizens will approve of the good intentions, with which the Children's Aid Society are actuated in proposing a "tea and entertainment for the benfit of the poor" in Xmas week. But one or two points should, perhaps, be considered before the society takes action.

If it is proposed to provide a free tea no class of our respectable citizens will be willing to be invited directly or indirectly as "the poor." It may be all right in England, but it won't do here. There is too much of a healthy independence in Canada in this respect, and we want the Children's Aid Society to foster this feeling, as they have seemingly tried to do.

Secondly, we must be most careful in this town how to give public help in any form. Peterborough's reputation for public generosity has been steadily attracting useless, helpless, and in other ways, undesirable citizens. The incoming tide should be stayed and not increased; and these spiritless people are the only ones likely to be attracted by a free tea or a distribution of public charity. Again, is there enough destitution to warrant a united effort of this kind. There are indeed cases of genuine poverty scattered through the town. But there seems to be only one appropriate way of offering help or Xmas cheer to these—not publicly or by a relief committee, but quietly and privately through the agency of those who are known and trusted.

Yours, etc.,
X. Y. Z.

COLONIAL REPRESENTATION

Will Be Provided for in Mr. Chamberlain's Imperial Federation Scheme.

London, Dec. 9.—The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, speaking at a Conservative gathering in Wakefield, Yorkshire, last evening, fully discussed home and foreign affairs and the Government's policy in Egypt. In the course of his speech, in defending the boast he had made of Britain's "splendid isolation," by explaining that it meant with her colonies as allies, he said:

"But, if I congratulate you on the development of good feeling between us and a great continental state, still more do I rejoice at the growth of friendly relations between ourselves and our colonies, between ourselves and the United States. Already the United States, as regarded from the standpoint of potential resources, is the greatest of civilized states—with its immense population of intelligent citizens, chiefly Anglo-Saxon, and, if we are assured of the Anglo-Saxon race, whether it abides under the Stars and Stripes or the Union Jack, there is no other combination that can make us afraid."

Replying later to a vote of thanks for his address, Mr. Chamberlain said he hoped ere many years had passed to see a federation of the Empire, with colonial representatives in the Imperial Parliament.

THE SPANIARDS SORE

Over President McKinley's Reference to the Maine.

MADRID GREATLY EXCITED.

"What Cheek!" Exclaims Senor Garnica, of the Spanish Commission, When Speaking of the U. S. Request for a Coaling Station in the Carolines—Imparcial Says Americans Blew Up the Maine.

Paris, Dec. 10.—Senor Garnica of the Spanish peace commission, when asked why the Spaniards refused to grant the United States a coaling station in the Caroline Islands, said: "The Americans could hardly expect that we should agree to discuss matters outside of the protocol, after the lessons we have had from them on this point. When we wished to discuss the Cuban debt they absolutely refused to consider it, and then they asked us for whatever they want. Quelle toupet! (what cheek). Yet the Cuban debt remains an important question for settlement."

In regard to the Spaniards' final protest on the subject of the Maine, Senor Garnica remarked: "That protest now becomes history, as it is embodied in the protocol. We do not wish to remain under an imputation which would perpetuate animosity and hatred against us, and which would be a source of constant irritation in Spain. It is neither loyal nor just that this thing should hang over the reputation of Spain. We cannot submit to it. It must be cleared up in justice to ourselves. There are many other causes to bring hatred between the two nations without the addition of such a one as this. As to the future relations of the two countries, that is one of the things history alone can determine. Many nations which have been deadly enemies are speedily reconciled."

Senor Garnica was then questioned as to the future of the Philippine Islands, and he said: "The United States has inaugurated a policy which will bring it much trouble and many responsibilities. The Americans are not prepared for the work they are about to undertake. Your democratic system must inaugurate an imperialistic and bureaucratic system, and you must increase your army and navy, with the result that there will be constant friction between yourselves and the European powers."

The Americans preserve secrecy regarding terms of the treaty.

SOME HOT LANGUAGE.

Madrid Imparcial Claims That Yankees Blew Up the Maine.

Madrid, Dec. 10.—The Imparcial yesterday published another inflammatory article on the subject of the Maine charges. The paper intimates that the explosion was the outcome of the intense desire "upon the part of certain factions in the United States to see the outbreak of war, which was unpopular with the majority of Americans."

The Imparcial adds: "The partizans of the war realized that something startling was necessary to arouse national sentiment. It was a remarkable chance. Almost all the Maine's officers were on board another ship at the time of the catastrophe. Those who charge the Spaniards with being capable of such a monstrous act are well capable of committing it themselves."

In conclusion the Imparcial says: "Spain cannot remain under such an infamous charge. It would be preferable to give the world the spectacle of national suicide."

EMILE ZOLA'S LIFE IN LONDON.

He Changes His Residence Every Month to Prevent Followers.

London, Dec. 10.—Yves Guyot, Dreyfus' principal partisan among Parisian newspaper men, who has recently been in England, said the other day that Zola is there, and has been all the time since the suspension of his trial. When he first arrived in London he walked the streets for days, seeing the sights. Now he changes his residence every month, notwithstanding which fact Guyot thinks it astonishing that no reporter has ferreted him out. Not long ago Mme. Zola left Paris for a few days to visit her husband, but the newspapers never discovered it.

Zola is not writing a novel based on the Dreyfus case, as was rumored. His new story will be a sort of continuation of the last one. He also means to write a volume of English impressions.

The novelist will not return to France until the Dreyfus affair is settled, for two reasons. He is convinced that if Dreyfus is pronounced innocent he also will be acquitted, whereas if there is a hitch in the revision Zola wishes to make his own suspended trial a fresh demonstration in favor of Dreyfus. He has also been careful for many weeks to say nothing whatever on the Dreyfus matter, holding his pen also in reserve in case another sledgehammer blow should be needed.

Struck for a Pint of Beer Per Hour.

London, Dec. 10.—A remarkable strike occurred in Chatham dockyard, all the coal-heavers employed in coaling a cruiser discontinuing work. They complained that they ought not to be expected to work in stormy weather, such as that which prevailed, and demanded, as a condition of finishing the job, that each man should be given a pint of beer per hour. After some argument, concessions in the matter of refreshments were made, and the coaling was proceeded with.

Ameer May Be Dead.

Moscow, Russia, Dec. 10.—It is by no means certain that the Ameer of Afghanistan is still alive. According to advices received here he has been seriously sick, but the nature of his illness has been concealed, and every effort has been made to keep even the fact that he is not in usual health from being made public.

Sixty Died on the Voyage.

Barcelona, Dec. 10.—The Spanish steamer Buenos Ayres, Captain Grace, from Manila on Nov. 7, arrived here yesterday with repatriated Spanish troops on board. There were 60 deaths on the steamer on her voyage.

The Neva on the Rampage.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 10.—The River Neva suddenly rose nine feet last night, inundating the lower quarters of the city, where communication is now carried on by boats. The inhabitants were panic-stricken and there was a great loss of property, but no loss of life has been reported. The flood is now subsiding.

Sir Edmund Monson's Speech.

Paris, Dec. 10.—An explanation, evidently emanating from the British embassy here, has been published, declaring that the speech recently delivered by the British ambassador, Sir Edmund J. Monson, has been misunderstood, and repudiating any desire to interfere in the internal affairs of France or criticize her policy. Moreover, it is added, the whole attitude of the ambassador contradicts the supposition of malevolent intention.

Butchery by the Boers.

London, Dec. 10.—The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the campaign recently instituted by the Boer Government against Chief Mpeta of the Magatos tribe, in the Zoutensberg district, has proved a complete fiasco. The chief has out-manoeuvred the Boers and is now in the splendidly fortified mountain stronghold. The Boers have been guilty of wholesale butchery of women, children and unarmed natives.

Defends Her Dead Husband.

Paris, Dec. 10.—Mme. Henry, widow of Col. Henry, who committed suicide while under arrest in connection with the Dreyfus affair, has written a letter to the Siecle, declaring that the assertions that her husband lived far beyond his means are absolutely untrue. She says that Col. Henry lived in a particularly modest style, and challenges his detractors to substantiate the statements they have made to the contrary.

C.P.R. Smash-Up.

Owen Sound, Dec. 10.—As the big C. P.R. 100-ton freight engine 696 was about to leave the yards with a special freight last night about 8 o'clock it came in collision with engine 418, returning light from the coal docks. A misplaced switch was responsible for the accident. Engineer Gordon had a couple of ribs broken while jumping and William Brownlee received a sprained ankle and a wrenched side. Engineer Quinr and Fireman Hunter of 696 also jumped, both escaping injury. Brakesman Falls had his shoulder painfully bruised by a fall caused by the shock. The pilot and buffer beams of both engines were smashed.

The People's Faith

Firmly Grounded Upon Real Merit —They Know Hood's Sarsaparilla Absolutely and Permanently Cures When All Others Fail.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is not merely a simple preparation of Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and a little Iodide of Potassium.

Besides these excellent alteratives, it also contains those great anti-bilious and liver remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion. It also contains those great kidney remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries, and Pipsissewa.

Nor are these all. Other very valuable curative agents are harmoniously combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla and it is carefully prepared under the personal supervision of a regularly educated pharmacist.

Knowing these facts, is the abiding faith the people have in Hood's Sarsaparilla a matter of surprise? You can see why Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, when other medicines totally, absolutely fail.

YUKON KICKERS.

The Toronto Word, says the Ottawa Journal, publishes a letter from a Klondyke person, pitching into the Government officials and regulations. The following is one clause :—

"The Canadian Government officials here are the most overbearing lot of cads imaginable. You can't touch them with a 40-foot pole. If a man says in the streets: 'To —— with the Queen,' he is promptly arrested, put in jail and kept in confinement until the lordly officials are pleased to let him out."

The people in the Klondyke who feel like remarking "to —— with the Queen" are just the parties who most object to pay royalty on any gold they may get, and who are making the big kick about it.

But one would soon have occasion to extend condolence to Canucks who went to Colorado or California, yowled there about the law forbidding aliens to locate mining claims at all, and emphasized their discontent by the war-cry "to —— with the president."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It takes a Canuck to come to the top, as well as get at the bottom of things. Lieut. Girouard, the brilliant Canadian engineer, who did such notable work in facilitating Kitchener's operations on the Nile, has perhaps his most remarkable title to fame in his idea of sinking wells in the desert. At a depth of sixty to ninety feet anywhere he found water. For six thousand years civilization had bordered the desert there, and this was not known.

LORD KITCHENER'S proposed Gordon Memorial College at Khartoum was introduced the other day in a speech at Edinburgh in these words: "I ask the people of the United Kingdom, I ask the people in our colonies, I ask the people in that great English-speaking sister-nation of America to help me—(cheers)—to form a worthy Gordon Memorial College at Khartoum." Peterborough might contribute a block of Eagle Mount granite to form part of the Gordon memorial college building.

THE Liberal party of Quebec is justifying its claim to the title by its progressive attitude. The Liberal Government is moving in the direction of simplifying legislation and lessening its expense by the abolition of the Legislative council of Quebec, a provincial synonym for a senate. This will be no experiment, for Ontario by a test of over thirty years, has demonstrated that the best of legislation and administration are possible without a second chamber. The best proof is results. At Confederation Ontario and Quebec started on even terms financially. Now Quebec has a debt of nearly 25 millions of dollars, while Ontario not only has no debt but a surplus of between four and five millions. This is not to say that the existence or absence of a second chamber is responsible for the results mentioned, but it shows that Ontario has flourished greatly without a Legislative council, and that a second chamber has not saved Quebec from being plunged hopelessly into debt.

THE SETTING OF MILK.

Prof. Robertson in his report has the following to say in reference to the setting of milk, in order to obtain the best results:

All milk should be carefully strained immediately after the milking is completed.

When shallow pans are used they should be placed in a room with a pure atmosphere with a temperature as even as possible at between 50 and 60 degrees Fahr.

When deep-setting pails are used the water in the creamer or tank should be below 45 degrees Fahr., or as near 45 degrees Fahr. as possible. It it advantageous to have a supply of ice for use in the water.

When an abundant supply of cold water from a flowing spring is not available, the cooling power of fresh cold water may be applied economically by conveying it in a pipe to the bottom of the tank or creamer, and allowing the warmed water to run off from the top. If the water be scarce the overflow may be carried into a watering trough for the live stock of the farm.

It is advantageous to set the milk as soon as practicable after it is drawn from the cows.

In a test with deep-setting pails, it was found that the quantity of butter fat not recovered in the cream, and consequently left in the skim-milk, was 11.48 per cent. greater when the setting of the milk in ice water was delayed one hour, than when it was set immediately after it was drawn.

There was not much difference in the percentage of butter-fat recovered into the cream, due to the temperature at which the milk was set, when between 88 degrees and 98 degrees Fahr. The loss of butter-fat unrecovered from the skim milk was 2.58 per cent. greater when set at 78 degrees than when set at 98 degrees Fahr.

The milk should be left undisturbed for about twenty-two hours. The quantity of butter-fat not recovered into the cream was 8 per cent. greater when the milk was set for only eleven hours than when it was set for twenty-two hours, in deep setting pails in ice-water.

With ordinary milk, there is no gain from adding water "to thin it" when it is set. There was practically no difference in the percentages of butter-fat not recovered into the cream when, (1) twenty-five per cent. of water at 160 degrees Fahr. added to the milk, (2) twenty-five per cent of water at 60 degrees Fahr. added to the milk, and (3) no water added to the milk, were the differences of treatment in the setting of milk, in deep-setting pails in ice-water.

THE WORKING OF THE BUTTER.

After the butter is salted it should be left for two or three hours, to allow the salt to dissolve. Then, by a second working, the excess of moisture may be expelled, the salt thoroughly mixed, and any streakiness in colour corrected. It is not necessary that butter be put in small prints, or for immediate consumption in a local market, should be worked the second time. The second working makes it drier. Care must be taken that the butter be not overworked and made greasy. This may result from the butter being worked at a temperature either too high or too low. Where practicable, it should be worked at a temperature which leaves it in a waxy condition, causing it to bend about one-half towards the under layer when it is being doubled on the butter worker. A temperature of 50° Fahr. will usually put the butter in the best condition for being worked. Sometimes injury results from a larger quantity being placed on the butter worker than can be handled conveniently.

Glorious News.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I.T. He writes, "Four bottles of Electric Bitters have cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which has caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure was complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates, liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only 50 cents. Sold by all druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

METEORIC DISPLAY.

Unexpected Appearance in the North-Eastern Sky.

The north-eastern sky took on a lurid aspect at intervals the other night about half past eleven, and numbers of citizens wondered as to the reason. It now appears that the display was also seen in Montreal, and Mr. G. R. MacLeod, assistant to Prof. MacLeod, of McGill College, states that the illumination was caused by meteors. He saw one at 11.30 p.m., and which looked like loose gunpowder burning up, then changed into a streak of light appearing in the north eastern sky. It shot downward.

There are many theories regarding meteors; one of the theories most common is that they are fragments of stars which break off planets and in sailing through the air with such immense velocity ultimately become ignited. When it is remembered that fixed stars were so very far away it becomes doubly interesting to have seen a meteor that may have been a part of Alpha Centauri, which is one of the nearest fixed stars, or, as far as astronomers know, from some of those more distant. Astronomers have been more or less puzzled at these meteors. This display, for instance, was quite unexpected.

Another theory is that these meteors are petrified comets and become ignited through the friction caused by flying through a denser portion of the atmosphere. The frequency of these meteoric stones and fireballs had been reduced to percentages; and the following relative monthly frequency is given; for November, 9.71; and December, 6.31. The preponderance of fireballs is given by astronomers to be in November and August.

These meteors, according to the theory of petrified comets, have become reduced to the condition of showers of stones, still traversing the elliptic paths formerly described by them, when existing in the condition of incandescent clouds or comets.

A BRAVE SOLDIER.

Tells How He Contracted Rheumatism on Service.

His Sufferings Were Terrible, and He Could Get no Relief till he Began Using Dodd's Kidney Pills— Then his Cure Came Quickly.

Windsor, Dec. 9—"I have suffered for many years from Chronic Rheumatism," writes Mr. F. G Fenton, of this city. "I have seen active military service on different occasions, indifferent climates, and the hardships I have borne sowed the seeds of the disease in my system, and nourished it, till it had me completely in the toils. I went through the North-West campaign, 1885, and after my return home, I thought I would never be of use again.

"My sufferings were past the power of words to describe. Every joint was a furnace of fiery, burning pain. Every movement seemed to tear my flesh asunder, I used remedy after remedy, but with always the same result—Failure.

"Finally, thank God, I was advised to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did so, and the result is told in three words—THEY CURED ME.

"I have served in the 33rd (British) Regiment, through an Indian campaign, and in No. 2 Co., R.R.C.I., and my comrades in the latter corps can vouch for the truth of these statements."

Mr. Fenton is a man who has earned an honourable record in the service of his Queen and country. He knows whereof he speaks, and his word cannot be doubted. Is not his experience with Dodd's Kidney Pills enough to prove beyond dispute that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one, the only cure on earth for Rheumatism?

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by the Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN QUEBEC.

There is no prospect of Thanksgiving ever becoming an institution of this province. For a long succession of years the Governor-General has invited its people to join in giving thanks for the blessings vouchsafed during the year, and his invitation was ignored by nine-tenths of the population. When, latterly, the Lieut.-Governor endorsed the invitation by issuing a separate proclamation, a change was looked for, but none came. Outside the English-speaking centres the day is entirely disregarded in Quebec.—Huntingdon Gleaner, Dec. 1.

Piles Cured Without The Knife, by Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Geo. Browne, painter, of Woodville, Ont., Victoia Co. says:—"For thirteen years I was a sufferer from bleeding piles and the intense agony which I passed through during those years and relief I obtained by Chase's Ointment prompts me to give this testimonial. My physicians wished me to have an operation but I felt I could be cured without the knife. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment stopped the bleeding and effected a permanent cure."

Boils Banished.

Mr. O. J. Murray, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "About six months ago I was troubled with painful boils and got one bottle of B. B. B. which completely cured me."

There Was Good Cause for the Recent Weak Wheat Markets—The Latest Quotations.

Friday Evening Dec. 9.

No wonder that the Liverpool wheat market has been weak lately. The shipments of flour and wheat from the United States and Canada during the last two weeks, which were consigned to ports in the United Kingdom, amounted to 7,827,000 bushels. This is nearly 1,000,000 bushels more than the fortnight's requirements of foreign wheat, without reckoning on shipments from any other country.

At Liverpool to-day this month's delivery closed ½d and the March option ¼d per cental below yesterday's final figures.

Chicago wheat futures fullied a small fraction of a cent to-day, but the heavy receipts in the west account for the daily declines at Chicago lately. The Duluth Commercial Record reports that up to Wednesday of this week the receipts of wheat at Duluth from this crop have reached the 50,000,000 bushel mark. A like quantity of wheat has never been moved to any primary market in four months, and in only one other market—Minneapolis—has it ever been exceeded in 12 months. In 1892, Chicago received just 50,000,000 bush wheat in 12 months.

Toronto St. Lawrence Market.

Receipts of farm produce were large to-day—4800 bushels of grain, 40 loads of hay, 4 of straw and a large number of hogs.

Wheat easier; 2000 bushels sold as follows: White, 300 bushels at 68c to 69c; red, 800 bushels at 67½c to 68¼c; goose, 600 bushels at 65c to 65½c; spring, 100 bushels at 66c to 67c.

Rye firmer; 100 bushels sold at 52c.

Barley firmer; 1000 bushels sold at 48c to 50½c.

Oats steady; 1500 bushels sold at 30c to 31c.

Peas firmer; 200 bush sold at 59c to 63c.

Hay firmer at $9 to $10 for timothy, and $6 to $7 per ton for clover.

Straw firm; four loads sold at $6.50 to $7.50 per ton.

Dressed Hogs—Deliveries large; prices easy at $5.25 to $5.40 per cwt.

Receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market were not as large as was expected—55 loads all told, composed of 700 cattle, 580 sheep, 30 calves and about 1500 hogs.

Toronto Live Stock.

Considering that it was so near Xmas, any many of the fat stock fairs being over, it was expected that some Christmas cattle would have been offered. But such was not the case, few first-class fat cattle being offered, and prices for these were firmer, while the lower grades of butchers' animals were plentiful, with prices easy at Thursday's quotations.

Trade was fairly active, but would have been better had there been a higher class of cattle on hand.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, Dec. 9.—Cattle—There were two loads on sale, with a fair demand, at steady prices. The feeling was fair for next week. Calves were in moderate supply, light demand and easy. Choice to extra were quotable at $6.75 to $7; good to choice, $6.25 to $6.75.

Sheep and Lambs—The offerings were 43 loads, including 14½ loads of Canadas. The general demand was slow and prices lower, with several loads unsold at the close. Choice to extra were quotable at $5.25 to $5.40; good to choice, $5 to $5.25; common to fair, $3 to $5.25. Sheep, choice to extra, $4.25 to $4.40; good to choice, $4.10 to $4.25; common to fair, $2.50 to $3.50.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

THE NEEDS OF CHINA.

American Diplomat Says the Situation is Critical.

DOWAGER EMPRESS SNUBBED.

Russian Ambassador Would Only Present His Credentials to the Emperor—The Former U. S. Minister to Siam Says Britain and the United States Should Take "Open Door" Action.

Shanghai, Dec. 10.—Mr. John Barrett, formerly United States minister to Siam, has returned here after visiting Pekin and the principal Chinese ports. He says the situation in China is of the most critical nature and that Manchuria is no longer Chinese but Russian territory. He asserts that Niu Chwang, the chief northern port for the movement of American products, is also practically Russian, and is liable to be closed any day.

The only permanent safeguard to the paramount American and British interests, Mr. Barrett says, is immediate and united action by the interested governments to defend the integrity of the Chinese Empire, to enforce reforms in the Government, to prevent further cessions of ports and provinces, and to insist upon the "open door" policy in all ports of China, including the spheres of influence claimed by Russia, Germany and France. Otherwise, Mr. Barrett contends the impending partition of the Chinese Empire will seriously curtail the field of trade by disastrously affecting American and British influence in Asia.

De Giers at Pekin.

Pekin, Dec. 10.—The new Russian Minister, M. de Giers, presented his credentials to the Emperor yesterday. The Dowager Empress was not present. M. de Giers, on his arrival here, refused to present his credentials to the Dowager Empress. The Emperor appeared to be weak and sickly.

ALARMING NEWS.

Khalifa Abdullah Will Raise 100,000 Fanatic Mahdists and Give the British Battle Again.

Cairo, Dec. 10.—The Omdurman mail contains the alarming news that Khalifa Abdullah has left his hiding place in the recesses of the African desert, near Kordofan, and, with a force of Dervishes, has reached Kobe, in Darfur.

This news means that another conflict with the British is imminent.

All along the Khalifa's march great hordes of fanatic Moslems have flocked under his standard, and those who were most sanguine in their belief that the British victory at Omdurman was the final blow to the Khalifa's power now fear that the worst is to come and that the Dervishes are receiving aid and encouragement from anti-British sources.

That England does not regard the Dervish revolt as entirely subdued is shown by the fact that the Sirdar, Lord Kitchener, left England for Egypt Thursday to check the advance of the Khalifa and his followers, who are rushing madly to certain destruction.

Khalifa Abdullah, though no longer the bold and dashing leader who defied the Queen of England, the Sultan and the Khedive, is still a dangerous foe. It is believed that he is able to gather a force of 100,000 Mahdists, who court death with insane fanaticism.

The Khalifa joined his fortunes with the Mahdists 17 years ago, when he was 35 years old. He came from a prominent family in Darfur, and exerted a powerful influence over the Mahdi. He is now 52 years old, fat and a gourmand. Routed at the battle of Omdurman on Sept. 3, he left his force to fight the enemy while he himself fled to Kordofan with 140 men.

ASTHMA

Clarke's Kola Compound Cures the Incipient and Gives Quick Relief to the Most Distressing and Long-Standing Cases—It Cures Permanently.

James Gordon Bennet of The New York Herald, sent Henry M. Stanley to Africa in search of Dr. Livingstone, and little he thought that in searching for the explorer he would find so valuable a medical herb as the Kola plant and prove himself a benefactor to asthma sufferers because out in this flower of the jungle were the ingredients that would heal a disease that had afflicted mankind since science for ages. True the sage-brush had wonderful healing power, but Indian Joe's discovery was the means of the civilized world receiving the benefit of it. Here's a testimonial from the testimony of R. D. Pitt, Kingston, Ont.:—I suffered thirty-five years from asthma. Physicians treated and helped me temporarily, but said I would always be afflicted. I tried Clarke's Kola Compound and got relief almost instantly. Five bottles completely cured me. Sold by Ormond & Walsh, corner George and Simcoe streets, 'phone 146; John Nugent, 399 George street. Two bottles of B. B. B. for Scrofula Impure Blood and Dyspepsia, and was completely restored to health." Price, No. 1, $1 per box; No. 2, 10 degrees stronger, $3 per box. No. 1 or 2 mailed on receipt of price and two 3-cent stamps. The Cook Company, Windsor, Ont. (Nos. 1 and 2 sold and recommended by all responsible Druggists in Canada.

Board of Directors of Humber Cycle Co. Had a Lively Meeting.

London, Dec. 10.—There was considerable excitement at the meeting of the board of directors of the Humber Cycle Company in London yesterday. A demand was made for the appointment of a committee of investigation to enquire into the affairs of the company, and the motion was carried by an overwhelming majority. The chairman, however, demanded a poll of the shareholders on the question, which it was agreed should be taken on Dec. 31.

The directors did not recommend the payment of a dividend. The report showed an all-around decline in the profits of the company, and also charged that Martin D. Rucker, the managing director, had overdrawn the commission account.

Rucker will be remembered as having been connected with the proceedings in bankruptcy against Hooley, the speculator and promoter of companies. On Nov. 8 Rucker was fined $1,000 for contempt of court in having offered Hooley a bribe of £1,000 to falsify his testimony before the Bankruptcy Court.

BRITAIN WILL NOT BUDGE.

May Resume Protectorate Over the Mosquito Coast and Control Canal.

London, Dec. 10.—There is no truth whatever in the statement that the British Government has changed its attitude regarding the exclusive American control of the Nicaragua Canal or in relation to the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. I have made a careful investigation and learn that the British Foreign Office has not receded an inch from Lord Granville's declaration, in 1882, that the United States must strictly comply with the treaty in all respects or both nations must return to the status quo before the treaty was made; which simply means that Great Britain will resume her protectorate of the Mosquito coast and thus control one end of the canal.

There is intense irritation in England over McKinley's plain announcement that the United States must build and control the canal.

Vigor of Justice Hawkins.

London, Dec. 10.—Justice Hawkins, the oldest criminal judge in England, has just broken his own record for endurance. He has been presiding at the Kent Assizes for a fortnight, sitting 12 hours a day. He adjourned court at 11 o'clock last night, after sitting 13 hours, with only 30 minutes' recess.

Picquart Must Be Released.

London, Dec. 10.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says that, as Col. Picquart, owing to the ruling of the Court of Cassation, is now enabled to avoid military jurisdiction, at least until the decision of the Supreme Court is rendered, and it is unknown when the case will be taken up, his release must be immediately ordered.

It will be impossible to keep him in prison indefinitely awaiting a possible trial.

BRITAIN MEANS BUSINESS.

French Shore Matter in Newfoundland Will Have to Be Settled.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 10.—Reliable reports have reached here to the effect that the British Government during the coming session of Parliament will take vigorous action to bring about a speedy settlement of the French shore controversy.

It is said that the leaders of both political parties in the House of Commons have agreed upon united action in upholding the case of Newfoundland, owing to the revelations of French aggression contained in the report of the royal commission recently in Newfoundland for the investigation of the whole subject.

Farewell to Baron Curzon.

London, Dec. 10.—At the Hotel Cecil last evening, a farewell banquet was tendered to Baron Curzon of Kedleston, the new Viceroy of India, and Lady Curzon. At the conclusion of the banquet, Lady Curzon started for Plymouth to join the Peninsular & Oriental steamship Arabia, on which her children embarked yesterday at London. Lord Curzon will join the steamer at Marseilles, where she is due on Dec. 16, en route for Bombay via Brindisi.

Dr. De Szilagyi Resigns.

Buda Pest, Dec. 10.—Dr. D. Szilagyi, president of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet, who formally resigned on Dec. 7, but who was requested to withdraw his resignation, has now definitely resigned office. The resignation was accepted, but it has caused anxiety among the Opposition.

Queen Gives to the Gordon Fund.

London, Dec. 10.—The Queen has given the sum of 250 guineas to General Kitchener's fund for the establishment of a Gordon memorial college at Khartoum. The fund has now reached £90,000.

CORDELIA VIAU'S TRIAL.

Poirier an Honest Man—His Wife and Sam Parslow Were Lovers.

St. Scholastique, Que., Dec. 10.—At the opening of the court yesterday the first witness was Damase Leonard of St. Monique, who swore: "I knew the accused whilst her husband worked at St. Monique. She received some letters from Montreal and addressed some to Sam Parslow in Montreal."

Then came Mr. N. Bouvette, blacksmith, of St. Canute. He was a neighbor of the Poiriers and knew them very well. Poirier was a very honest man, but his wife, the accused, and Sam Parslow were pointed out as lovers.

On Nov. 21 he saw Parslow harnessing Poirier's horse, but he remarked to his wife that he was surprised at not seeing Poirier there also.

The accused then came out, and started in the direction of her father's house. On Monday morning, at the request of the accused, he opened the door of Poirier's house and found Poirier lying on his bed with his throat cut with a butcher knife. The knife was on a pillow near him.

Sam Would Not Answer.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Sam Parslow was put in the witness box, and, after being sworn, refused to answer any questions put to him by the Crown prosecutor. During the ten minutes he stood in the box his only answer was: "I will not answer." All efforts to make him reply were in vain.

The judge then ordered him to be taken out of the court.

The trial proceeded, with Mrs. Meunier as next witness, the wife of the witness heard the day before. She corroborated her husband's evidence in all points.

The second witness was Pacifique Patoin, who saw the accused and Sam Parslow coming on the way from St. Monique to St. Canute at night and alone in a buggy.

Saw Them Kissing.

James Hall, a farmer of St. Canute, said he saw Sam Parslow kissing the accused on the verandah in front of Poirier's house.

Yankee Troops at Havana.

Havana, Dec. 10.—The first United States troops to march through the streets of Havana will be the 22nd New York Regiment, which, with band playing and colors flying, will march to-day from the San Jose wharf, after landing there from the transport Minnewaska, through the heart of Havana, to the Western Railroad station. The line of march will be through the Prado and Central Park. These troops will be sent to Pinar del Rio Province.

The Architects Blamed.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 10.—The coroner's investigation of the cause of the collapse of the Wonderland Theatre, by which a dozen lives were lost, returned a verdict yesterday to the effect that too heavy weight was placed upon the roof, and placing the responsibility for the disaster upon the firm of John Scott & Co., architects of the building.

Globe Loan & Savings Co., cor. of Victoria and Lombard Sts., Toronto.

E. W. Day, Manager Globe Loan & Saving Co., says: "I consider Dr. Chase's Ointment invaluable." We have thousands of testimonials from prominent business men all over the Dominion."

Railroad to Hudson Bay.

Winnipeg, Dec. 10.—It was announced here yesterday that the Dauphin road, at present constructed to a point nearly 200 miles northwest of Winnipeg, will be extended to Hudson Bay within the next four years.

$1,300,000 Paid to Mr. Sage.

New York, Dec. 10.—The Missouri Pacific Railway Company, it was announced yesterday, has paid the amount of its floating debt to Russell Sage. The amount, it is said, was $1,300,000.

Their Finish in Sight.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—North Grey election petition will be dismissed formally at Osgoode Hall on the 23rd inst. The two Ottawas will have their finish at the same time.

A POINTER TO ALL DYSPEPTICS.

Why They Have Dyspepsia—How to Cure It.

A Weak Stomach Causes Imperfect Digestion — Imperfect Digestion Brings on Dyspepsia — Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Positively Cure Them Both.

You've seen a lump of putty that has lain on the shelf till the oil has evaporated out of it, and it has become hard and dry.

To make it fit to use, you must moisten it with oil. Then it becomes soft and workable.

The food in the stomach of a dyspeptic, very much resembles a lump of hard, dry putty.

It should not be hard; it should not be dry. It should be soft and moist.

If it be hard and dry, it cannot be digested. It remains in the stomach, and inflammation of that organ or of the bowels is almost certain to result.

The reason the Dyspeptic's food remains hard and dry in his stomach is because the stomach does not supply oil—in the form of gastric juice—to soften and moisten it.

A healthy stomach supplies sufficient gastric juice to ensure the digestion of the food partaken of. An unhealty, dyspeptic stomach cannot.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are composed of substances that, when dissolved, form the fluid that the stomach is unable to supply, and which is absolutely necessary to digest the food.

Therefore Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets make prompt, perfect digestion of the food certain.

By ensuring prompt, perfect digestion, they banish Dyspepsia and its attendant miseries.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets contain, also, substances that tone and strengthen the stomach, and stimulate the glands that supply the gastric juice. They thus put stomach in a position to carry out its work of digestion, thoroughly. By doing this they prevent Dyspepsia from returning after they have banished it.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50 or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

A PRESENTATION AND A BANQUET.

Mr. W. A. Buchanan Given a Send-off.

A GOLD WATCH IS PRESENTED.

The Members of the Executive of the Hockey Club Appreciated the Services of the Secretary-Treasurer.

A special meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club was called last evening for the purpose of fittingly marking the departure from town of Mr. W. A. Buchanan, whose energetic services as secretary-treasurer of the club last season did much to place the finances of that organization on a firm, substantial footing.

Business was not undertaken last evening, but on the contrary, as soon as the Executive assembled an adjournment was immediately made to Welsh's restaurant, where orders had been previously given for an oyster supper to be prepared. Mr. Buchanan was the guest of the evening and the chair was occupied by President R. J. Fife.

The menu was all that could be desired, and after justice had been done the spread the president called for order and explained that the present occasion would be the last meeting of the Executive with Mr. Buchanan as one of the members, as he proposed leaving town on Monday next. On account of the great interest which he had taken in hockey and the time and trouble which he had so freely given to the affairs of the club during the past season, the Executive desired before speeding him on his way, to give the guest of the evening a souvenir of their appreciation of his services.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner then read the following address, Mr. Fife handing to Mr. Buchanan a handsome gold watch engraved with his monogram, and the inscription: "To W. A. Buchanan from the Executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club, Dec. 8th, 1898."

W. A. Buchanan, Esq:

DEAR SIR,—We, the Executive officers of the Peterborough Hockey Club, having learned of your intended departure from town, have assembled here this evening to bid you farewell. We are very sorry indeed that you are going to sever your connection with us. You as secretary rendered the club such valuable service last year that we would fain have you with us another year. You will be missed by a large circle of friends, by the playing members of the team, among whom you are deservedly so popular; by the rink management, who speak very highly of the manner in which you have conducted business with them; by the local patrons of hockey, who have always found in you an obliging official, and by the officers of the club, with whom you have laboured so harmoniously for the club's best welfare. We wish you a full measure of success in your chosen calling, and as a token of the appreciation we feel for the invaluable services you have rendered the Peterborough Hockey Club, and as a proof of our high estimation of your personal worth, we would ask you to accept this souvenir.

Signed on behalf of the Executive.
H. R. H. KENNER, Ex-President. R. J. FIFE, President.

Mr. Buchanan, who was under the impression that the supper was the extent to which the evening's entertainment would would go, was genuinely surprised when this number on the programme was sprung upon him. He, however, made a most suitable acknowledgement of the presentation, afterwards expressing his sorrow at having to sever his connection with such warm personal friends as he had made during his six years residence in Peterborough. Only the hope of advancement in life could have induced him to leave town and he hoped to be able to renew old acquaintances very often by running down from the city. Although leaving town he would not lose his interests in the welfare of the Hockey Club, but would be ever ready to lend them any assistance which lay in his power.

As the ex-secretary took his seat Mr. Walter Stocker struck up "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the refrain was caught up and sung with vigour by the rest of the guests.

Mr. Alf. Terrill then expressed his wish to add his quota to the general feeling of regret at Mr. Buchanan's approaching departure. He felt the hockeyists were losing a warm supporter of the game, and on personal grounds he was sorry to learn of Mr. Buchanan's intention of leaving town. He assured him that the latch string would always hang on the outside of the door for him.

On behalf of the playing members of the team Messrs. A. A. Hollingshead and Roger Davidson voiced the sorrow of the boys when the fact of Mr. Buchanan's intentions had been made known. Both expressed the opinion that the removal of one of the club's most able officials would have a dampening effect on the aspect for the season, which had up to the present looked so encouraging.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner mentioned his intimate acquaintance with the guest of the evening, whom he considerably eminently qualified to fill the position in connection with the hockey club which he was vacating. He had been most popular with every member of the hockey club, which was imperative, and been thoroughly capable of discharging the, at times, arduous duties attached to the office. Great difficulty would be experienced in selecting a man to fill the position. The speaker then reviewed the club's career during the last year, dwelling on the successful financial ending of the season. In closing he assured Mr. Buchanan of a warm welcome on the occasion of any future visits to Peterborough.

Mr. Walter Stocker then sang "Soldiers of the Queen," and the proceedings were brought to a close by the president assuring Mr. Buchanan that the many expressions of esteem for him voiced during the evening was but the feeling of every citizen who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. He hoped when he visited Peterborough Mr. Buchanan would always consider himself his guest.

All Fruit Should be Washed.

Every grocer in Peterborough can sell cleaned fruit, but they cannot furnish them washed, stemmed and dried, which is so thoroughly done by E. F. Mason's electric process and sold as "Crescent" brand, because water is not allowed to remain on the fruit long enough to injure it in the least. By this means it is much better done than by hand, when it is washed in two or three changes of water, allowing it to soak and spoil its flavor.

THE EAST NORTHUMBERLAND CONTEST.

A Series of Successful Meetings—Addresses by Messrs. Stratton and Blezard.

Campbellford, Dec. 8th—Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., and Mr. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., have been, during the past week, addressing meetings in this riding in the interests of Mr. John Douglas, the Liberal candidate in the East Northumberland bye election, which takes place on Wednday next. The enthusiasm shown throughout the riding on behalf of Mr. Douglas is such as to make his election assured by a good substantial majority. The only element of uncertainty to be reckoned with arises from the over-confidence of his friends and supporters. The meetings addressed by Messrs. Stratton and Blezard at Menie, Trent Bridge, Conolly's school house and the English Line school house, were largely attended, the closest attention was paid to the excellent addresses delivered, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

Hon. Mr. Davis and Mr. Stratton will address the electors to Campbellford on Monday evening. Hon. Mr. Dryden and Mr. McColl, of Cobourg, will give addresses at Hastings on the same evening.

A PAST MASTER'S NIGHT.

A Reunion of the Past Masters of Peterborough Lodge No. 155, A.F. & A.M.

A PASTOR CALLED.

The Congregation of the Murray Street Baptist Church Call Rev. J. Bastow.

At a largely attended meeting of the congregation of the Murray street Baptist church, on Wednesday night, a practically unanimous call to the pastorate of the church, vacant since the resignation of Rev. A. T. Dykeman, was extended to Rev. J. Bastow, of New York City. The reverend gentleman ministered in the church on two Sundays and so favourably impressed the congregation that the call mentioned is the result. He is an Englishman by birth and has been engaged in ministerial work in the United States for the past six years. It is expected that Rev. Mr. Bastow's reply to the call will be received in week or ten days.

Hundreds of people have been attracted by the beautiful picture in the window of A. H. Stratton & Co., Peterborough Bookstore. It is the favourite battle picture of Great Britain, entitled "The Thin Red Line," a scene at the Battle of Balaclava. This picture is given absolutely free to all who become subscribers to that world-renowned paper, "The Family Herald and Weekly Star," of Montreal, acknowledged to be the greatest family newspaper in existence. No wonder that orders are pouring in by thousands. It is the greatest dollar's worth offered. Our readers should have a look at paper and picture. They are magnificent.

The Drawing Card.

No such opportunity has occurred for years to procure dress goods, staple dry goods and millinery of the same quality at such reasonable prices as that afforded by Messrs. R. H. Kells & Co.'s closing-out sale. In fact it is the "drawing card" of the season in this line. An imperative necessity exists for clearing the entire stock without delay on account of the firm deciding to retire from business. Cost price and even lower will not be a barrier to this sale. Holiday gift bargains is also stimulating this sale, and crowds of ladies find much that is appropriate for Christmas presents as well as regular wants. eodw

DEAR MESSRS. STRATTON & CO.:

Just a line by telephone to say that I expect to be at the Peterborough Bookstore Saturday. Have had a splendid journey—the sleighing's so splendid! Beautiful cold weather. My loads were very heavy—but you asked for a bigger stock than ever and you've got it. Tell the police men to have the streets all clear for me, as the deer are very frisky. Won't it be jolly to meet all the dear children in the Grotto again? Put this in the newspapers and let the children know about my reception in the Peterborough Bookstore all next week. Do you think your street cars will frighten my reindeer? "So long" till I see you and all the dear children. So long, so long.

Your faithful old friend,
SANTA.

WHY NOT ORGANIZE?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—The success which has attended Mr. Crane's concerts suggests the question why Peterborough should not have a permanent chorus through the medium of a Choral or Philharmonic Society, in which music could be cultivated for its own sake and not, as is too often the case, for what it will bring in the way of congregations to the church, or money to its coffers.

Probably all your readers will agree with the closing remarks of your report of Thursday night's concert "that it would be a pity if the chorus that has been so splendidly trained should be allowed to disband without having another opportunity of delighting the public."

But why disband at all? Why not make the present chorus, which is, I believe, composed of members of many of the churches, the nucleus of a permanent society?

I hope that others, and, especially, the musical people of the town, will discuss this subject, and would suggest if public opinion would be favourable to the formation of a choral society, a meeting be called for its full consideration, to be followed by immediate organization.

Yours truly,
HERBERT SYMONDS.

AN EARLY SETTLER'S DEATH.

Mrs. William Kingdon Passes Away after Forty-Eight Years Residence in Peterborough.

The death of Mrs. William Kingdon on Friday, 9th inst., at the family residence, 453 Sherbrooke street at the ripe old age of 82 years, removes from our midst one of the first settlers of Peterborough.

The deceased had continued to enjoy her remarkably good health up to about a year ago, since which time she has been confined to her room without any hope of recovery.

Mrs. Kingdon's maiden name was Cornell. She was born in Ireland in the year 1816, her family having been of German descent. Her father's name was Samuel Cornell, who held the position of magistrate in Ireland, and having decided to come to this country, arrived with his family about the time of the Robinson emigration. His family were not included in the Robinson party sent out by the Government, but came out at their own expense as regular passengers.

Mrs. Kingdon was married in Cobourg in 1840 and shortly afterwards removed with her husband to Peterborough, where they have resided ever since. Mr. Kingdon will be 90 years old on Christmas and the aged couple had celebrated their golden wedding in 1889.

One son and six daughters were born to this union. The children are Mrs Henry Owens, town; Mrs Carr, Rochester; Mrs J Madden, Mrs Wm Hill, Mrs Mary White and Miss Alice Kingdon, all of town; and one son, Mr Geo Kingdon, also of Peterborough. Deceased had four sisters and two brothers, all of whom have died, except Mrs Mason, widow of the late Francis Mason, and mother of Frank and David Mason, town.

Deceased was a kind and affectionate mother, and respected by her friends and neighbours for her kindness of heart and consistent character. She was a devoted member of the Methodist church.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 453 Sherbrooke street, at 2 30 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

The men's Canadian Historical evening will be held on Tuesday evening, Dec. 13th, in Y. M. C. A. Hall. Three short and interesting papers will be read on the following subjects: The Explorers of Canada, Mr. W. Salisbury; The Cession of Canada, Mr. J. W. Garvin; The Rebellion of 1837, Mr. S. R. Armstrong. A large audience is expected. The meeting will commence at eight o'clock.

ST. PAUL'S AUXILIARY

Of the Women's Missionary Society Held its Annual Meeting Yesterday Afternoon.

The annual meeting of St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society was held yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in the schoolroom. Miss Dickson, President, was in the chair and ninety-five members were in attendance.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, followed by a short address by the President, in which she pointed out the requisites for successful missionary work.

The annual reports for the Secretary and Treasurer were submitted.

Miss Jane Hall reported for the Fraser Mission Band, showing a successful year with contributions of $60 00.

Miss Allison Hamilton represented the Faithful Workers' Mission Band and reported, showing a good record and increased contributions.

The reports were adopted, on motion of Messrs. Garvin and Mrs. E. H. D. Hall.

A paper on "Christian Giving" was read by Mrs. James A. Hall.

During the offertory Miss Mary Patterson sang "Ye are all Welcome Home." Miss Jane Cameron then read an interesting essay on "Our Responsibilities." This was followed by a paper by Mrs. McPherson on "Prayer and the Holy Scriptures." After the dedicatory prayer by Miss Dickson, greetings were extended by Mrs. (Dr.) Hunter, of the Murray street Baptist church; Mrs. Kendry, of George street church; Mrs. Jory, of Charlotte street, and Mrs. Stewart, of St. Andrew's.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Miss Dickson.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Jas. Dennistoun.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. McPherson.
Secretary—Mrs. A. E. Leek.
Literature Secretary—Miss Aggie Patterson.
Treasurer—Miss Kingan.
Librarian—Miss Bertha Brown.
Executive Committee—Mesdames Madill, Erskine, Richard Hall, Innes, J. A. Hall, E. H. D. Hall, and Misses Roger and Hall.

A PRESENTATION

To Miss Creba by the Pupils of Her Class.

A very pleasing little affair took place at the Central School yesterday afternoon, when the pupils of Miss Creba, the teacher of the Junior III class assembled in their class rooms to show, in a tangible form, at this appropriate Christmas season, their appreciation of their popular teacher. On behalf of the class Jennie Kindred presented Miss Creba with a handsome lamp and a couple of other smaller but tasty souvenirs, while the following address was read by Effie Johnston:

Dear Miss Creba:

As another Christmas tide is about to overtake us, we, the pupils of your class, before departing for the holidays desire to express to you, our beloved and highly esteemed teacher, the respect in which you are held by us.

Your unvaried kindness towards us and your earnest devotion in advancing our education, both mental and moral, have won our deepest gratitude, and we, therefore, ask you to accept this gift as a slight token of our appreciation of your efforts.

We sincerely wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The address was signed by the scholars of the class.

Miss Creba suitably acknowledged the gifts and the address.

PERSONAL

Mr. D. Evans was in Lindsay yesterday.

Mr. W. P. S. Alexander was in Lindsay on a business trip yesterday.

Your Danger Now

Is from the overworked condition of the liver and kidneys which are unable to expel impurities from the blood. This causes rheumatism. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been wonderful successful in curing this disease. It neutralizes the acid in the blood and permanently cures the aches and pains which other medicines fail to relieve. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best winter medicine because it purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood. It gives help just where help is needed. It tones the stomach, stimulates the liver, and arouses and sustains the kidneys. It wards off pneumonia, fevers, bronchitis, colds, coughs and the grip.

WOMEN OFTEN OBJECT

When the husband or son joins a Court in a Society because it takes up one or two nights a month, but when they are bereaved of their helpmeet and receive the Insurance so long worked and planned for by the loved one who has been called hence, opinion changes quickly. There are no stronger friends of the Canadian Order of Foresters than the 3,500 widows and orphans who have been kept from possible want and poverty by the Insurance and Sick Benefit moneys paid by the Society. This is not a charity, the money is fairly earned, and not the least part of the consideration is the self-sacrificing work of the Brethren who attend lodge and conduct the business of the society without fee or price for their services. It is for the benefit of wives, sons and daughters, fathers and mothers, that the C.O.F. carries on its great work, and its noble principles have been amply sustained by Canadian womanhood.

Benefits. Each Court may provide for Sick and Funeral Benefits and the attendance of a skilled physician during illness.

The High Court gives a weekly allowance of from $3 to $5 during illness or disability as provided in the Sick and Funeral Benefit Law, and on the death of a member contributes $30 towards his funeral expenses.

After satisfactory proof of the death of a member in good standing, the wife, children, or designated payees of deceased, receive from the Order the amount of insurance provided for, as named in their Insurance Certificate or Certificates, which may be $500, $1,000, $1,500 or $2,000.

For further particulars enquire of any of the Officers or Members of the Order, or address

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 8.—Cattle—The market was steady, with one load on sale. The weather was very cold and unfavorable to shipping stock of any kind, but the feeling is firm. Calves were in fair demand on the basis of $7.50 for the top grades. Choice to extra were quotable $7 to $7.50; good to choice, $6.50 to $7; heavy steer calves, $4 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs—The market was in a somewhat unsettled state, owing to the difficulty in shipping. The roads would not take them and New York orders were contingent upon certainty of shipping. The close was rather slow. Lambs, choice to extra, were quotable $5.40 to $5.60; good to choice, $5.25 to $5.40; common to fair, $5 to $5.25. Sheep, choice to extra, $4.25 to $4.40; god to choice, $4 to $4.25; common to fair, $2.50 to $3.50. The total offerings were 28 loads, 16 of which were over from yesterday, and about 8 loads of Canada lambs.

THE GAME OF WHOLE HOG.

London Times Kicking Against Gage's Exclusive Maritime Policy.

London, Dec. 9.—The Times yesterday, protesting editorially against Secretary Gage's "exclusive maritime policy," and expressing a hope that Congress will not endorse it, says: "We regard, with the heartiest feelings of sympathy and without a tinge of jealousy, the development of the Imperial spirit in the United States, but it must not be supposed that we are prepared to approve the adoption of an exclusive policy in regions in whose destinies we might have claimed a voice."

Britain Will Give Up Nothing.

London, Dec. 9.—A leading official, having the closest relations with the Central American republics and the Foreign Office, said yesterday: "Newspaper reports that Great Britain is going to waive her rights under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty are directly contrary to the truth. Communications are proceeding between the Foreign Office and Secretary Hay, on British claims. Besides neutrality of the canal the British Foreign Office will demand that the United States undertake not to fortify entrances to the canal."

Why Girouard Was Omitted.

London, Dec. 9.—Here is the official explanation of Lieut. Girouard's omission from the Soudan honors list. It appears that he had already earned and received the greatest honor possible for a lieutenant, namely, the distinguished service order for Dongola, and the promise of a brevet-majorship in his pocket, to take effect when he reaches the rank of captain. Apart from those honors, Lieut. Girouard has the management the Egyptian Railway at a salary of £2,000 a year.

Aguinaldo May Fight.

Paris, Dec. 9.—It is learned that Agoncillo, before leaving Paris, opened communications with Madrid, in which he let it be known that he was inimical to the American occupation of the Philippines. He also cabled to Aguinaldo that there was no hope of obtaining justice at the hands of the Americans.

Kick Against Malietoa.

Auckland, N.Z., Dec. 9.—The following advices were received here yesterday from Samoa: The supporters of Matasafa, having elected him king, certain chiefs lodged a caveat, which the chief justice has decided in their favor. It is now understood that Tamazo will be nominated.

Belgium Wants a Quid Pro Quo.

London, Dec. 9.—According to a special despatch from Paris a telegram has been received there from Brussels, declaring that Belgium cannot oblige the United States in the matter of admitting American preserved meats until the American Government shows a willingness to reciprocate by relaxing the heavy duties it imposes upon Belgium cloth and other wares.

Menelik Is Wroth.

Massowah, Abyssinia, Dec. 9.—King Menelik, upon learning that Italy and England have concluded a convention deciding the northern frontier of the Province of Erythrea, was very wroth. He intimated strongly that Abyssinia would require territorial compensation.

The Gordon Memorial.

London, Dec. 9.—The American Society in London has issued a circular to its members discountenancing Col. Gouraud's attempt to collect funds on behalf of Gen. Lord Kitchener's Gordon memorial college, and advising Americans to subscribe to the object direct.

Wilhelmina's Betrothal.

London, Dec. 9.—Truth announces that the Queen-Mother of the Netherlands has written privately to Queen Victoria, informing Her Majesty of the betrothal of Queen Wilhelmina to Prince William of Wied.

On William's Advice.

London, Dec. 9.—The Daily News' despatch from Odessa says: "It is reported here that the Turkish cavalry will be increased by 35,000 troopers, on the advice of Emperor William."

Stay Ordered in Picquart Case.

Paris, Dec. 9.—The Court of Cassation yesterday afternoon ordered a stay of proceedings in the Picquart court-martial.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as though they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

PRINCE OF WALES COMING.

Visit to the Dominion Depends Alone Upon Her Majesty's Health.

New York, Dec. 10.—A copyrighted London cable to the Journal and Advertiser says that the Prince of Wales has absolutely decided to visit America next summer, with but one condition—the health of the Queen. The despatch continues: "According to present plans, the Prince will go first to Canada about midsummer. He admires Sir Wilfrid Laurier very much, and as far back as Jubilee time half promised to visit the Canadian Premier. It is probable that the voyage across the Atlantic will be made in a warship with a suitable accompanying escort.

"From Canada the Prince will go to the United States, and if Her Majesty retains her present strength and no serious political complications intervene, New York may count on seeing the Prince at the yacht races."

Pure Blood is Life.

Paine's Celery Compound the Only Hope of All Suffering From Blood Diseases.

The Great Medicine Quickly Expels all Poisons and Renews the System.

Scrofula is one of the most terrible and wasting of blood diseases; it usually develops in early life, and in the majority of cases is hereditary. Many medical men contend that scrofula is the parent of consumption.

When the blood is thin, impoverished, impure and foul, its poisoned condition shows up clearly in pimples, sores, tumors, abscesses, blotches, erysipelas, cancer, white swellings, sore eyes, felons, boils, salt rheum, eczema, etc.

Pure blood represents life; foul and poisoned blood means suffering and death. Strength, action and the health of all parts of the human system are dependent upon the blood.

The only true way to cleanse and enrich the blood is to use Paine's Celery Compound. Its vitalising and purifying effect upon the blood of old and young is magical. The most virulent blood diseases quickly yield to its healing and cleansing power. No other medicine known to man has ever achieved the victories over obstinate blood troubles that Paine's Celery Compound has accomplished.

If you have a trace or symptom of blood disease, your life is truly in danger. If you are anxiously seeking for a cure, have a care how you make use of the widely advertised "blood purifiers"; in the great majority of instances they are frauds. Ask your druggist for Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can make your blood and flesh clean, pure and healthy.

Snow Seven Feet Deep.

Elmira, Mich., Dec. 10.—This section is literally buried in snow. For several days a storm has raged and there is now about seven feet on the level. About six miles west of Elmira it is said the snow is so deep that it has filled the River Jordan and teams drive over it without knowing where the river is.

Revolutionary Talk Nonsense.

Montreal, Dec. 10.—Mr. Charles R. Hosmer, general manager of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph, arrived home yesterday from Paris, and expressed the opinion that all the talk about revolution in France is the veriest nonsense.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

THE HIGH JOINT COMMISSION.

There May Be an Adjournment Over the Holidays.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 10.—The meeting of the Canadian-American joint high commission at the Arlington yesterday was followed by a long session of the commissioners at their own quarters. It is now stated that, owing to the unsettled condition of the commission's work, it is impossible to say positively whether or not the commission will adjourn over the holidays.

Canadian SS. Co. Buying Boats.

New York, Dec. 10.—Mr. Gustav H. Schwab of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company yesterday confirmed the report of the sale of the Fulda and Werra, two of the steamers of his line, and added that they had been sold to the Canadian Steamship Company, Limited, of London. The two vessels sailed last Friday for Havana to take Spanish soldiers to Spain. They are sister ships and both are iron single screw steamers. The Fulda registers 4,814 tons gross and the Werra registers 5,419.

The Cuban Tariff.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 10.—The Cabinet yesterday talked over an elaborate tariff measure which is now in preparation here, to go into force, as now planned, contemporaneously with the entire relinquishment of Cuba by the Spanish on Jan. 1. This tariff measure, it is said, will show an average reduction all along the line of about 30 per cent. from the Spanish tariff rates. The understanding now is that there will be no export duties, and that in other ways the burden of taxation will be reduced.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Mr. R. Morrow Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Toronto, Nov. 28—The vast majority of Torontonians know and esteem Mr. R. Morrow, the able and popular general agent for the Toronto Auer Light Co.

For this reason the following statement made in writing by Mr. Morrow, possesses unusual significance.

"Two years ago I was attacked by Lumbago and Urinary trouble which caused me intense suffering. I took several different remedies without any benefit. Then I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and was completely cured by them."

Lumbago is unusually prevalent this fall. All sufferers should know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only known cure for it. They never fail.

Discovered by a Woman

Another great discovery has been made, and that, too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her, and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking the first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. C. Hammick & Co., of Shelby, N.C. Sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

Aluminium as Paper.

Experiments with aluminium as a substitute for paper are now under way in France. It is well known that the paper used today in the manufacture of books is not durable.

It is now possible to roll aluminium into sheets four-thousandths of an inch in thickness, in which form it weighs less than paper. By the adoption of suitable machinery these sheets can be made even thinner still and can be used for book and writing paper. The metal will not oxidize, is practically fire and water proof, and is indestructible by the jaws of worms.

Raised . . . From a Bed of Sickness . . .

SIMCOE, Jan. 18th, 1897.

Messrs. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Gentlemen—For over five months I was confined to my bed, not being able to move. The best medical skill was called in, all treating me for catarrh of the stomach, but to no avail. I could not eat the most simple food without being in dreadful misery, and found no relief until same was vomited up. After spending a large sum in medical advice, I was advised to try a box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I purchased a box from J. Austin and Company, Simcoe, and to my surprise found great relief. Not being able to eat I tried a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; the pains left me the third day. My appetite has been fully restored. I consider myself perfectly cured, and feel as well as when a young woman, although I am 65 years old at present. I was almost a shadow, now I am as fleshy as before my sickness. Have used only three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and two boxes of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. I can do my house work as usual. I am positive that my marvellous cure (which I think it is) is due purely to Dr. Chase's remedies, which I have used. I can honestly recommend the same to any persons suffering from symptoms similar to mine. Wishing you every success,

Yours truly,
MRS. ANN CHURCHILL, Sr.

C. LeGROS
328 George Street.

The Amen! of marriage is always a baby. Without it, wedlock is a summer field that never blooms, a flower that never buds, a night without stars, a sermon without a benediction, a prayer without an Amen.

There never was a husband worthy of the name, who did not aspire to be the father and the grandfather of healthy, capable children to hand down his name and the fortune accumulated by the sweat of his brow, from generation to generation. There never was a wife fit to bear that noble title, who did not wish to wear womanhood's most glorious crown, the sceptre of motherhood. Thousands of wedded couples, otherwise happy, fall short of wedlock's greatest happiness because they are childless. In the majority of cases, this is because the wife, through ignorance or neglect, suffers from weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine. For women who suffer in this way there is one great medicine that does not fail to accomplish its purpose. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned and makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones the shattered nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It quickens and vitalizes the distinctly feminine organism. It banishes the maladies of the expectant months and makes baby's introduction to the world easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-comer's health and nourishment in plenty. It is the best supportive tonic for nursing mothers.

Mrs. Jennie Parks, of Marshall, Spokane Co., Wash., writes: "I am glad to tell of the good results of your great medicine.—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was benefited by your medicine in confinement. It gives me strength. I have no tired feeling and my baby is the picture of health. I feel better than I have in ten years."

In cases of constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used as an adjunct to the "Favorite Prescription," they are extremely simple, perfectly natural and insure prompt and permanent relief.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ing rates of interest which have been obtai able during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

Bathurst beckoned to the waiter, settled their small indebtedness, and the two, passing out through the ladies' entrance, turned their faces toward the elegant hotel known as the Tremont.

They had been sworn friends and allies, as well as brother detectives, these two; friends since the very day that had brought Neil Bathurst, then a mere lad, into favourable notice among the operatives of a certain Eastern agency. One of its officers had picked him up, as it were, a runaway gamin, and had found him so quick-witted, agile, and altogether useful, that he had been retained in the service, and, at the age of fourteen, found himself fully launched as a boy detective.

At that time Rob Jocelyn was a tall young man of twenty-four, and a skilful detective, high in favour among New York officials. From the first he had been much attracted toward the bright youth, and when, three years later, the two were sent to Chicago, to follow up an almost hopeless clue, they became sworn friends, as their work brought them, for the first time, in close, constant companionship.

That was before the great fire, since which Robert Jocelyn had not set foot in Chicago, until the very morning on which our story opens.

So successfully did the two operate together, that on their return to Gotham they were once more sent out to work in unison; they spent two years in ferreting out various "absconders" to the Pacific slope, and again returned to headquarters. A year later Robert Jocelyn was despatched to Europe to operate a case in a foreign port, leaving his friend, then a handsome young fellow of twenty, for an indefinite time.

At twenty, Neil Bathurst had been a slender young man, just a little above the medium height, with short-cropped curly hair, black as darkness, and soft as silk, with dark blue eyes that were capable of as many expressions as the orbs of the veriest coquette, a complexion fair as any girl's, hands white and slender, a firm, red-lipped mouth, shadowed by a small black moustache, and strong, even, white teeth, that were somewhat prominent when the lips parted in a smile. This was Neil Bathurst at twenty. Neil Bathurst at twenty-five was a trifle firmer in build, a trifle browner in complexion, and otherwise, outwardly, unchanged.

When they had gained the privacy of Robert Jocelyn's cosy room, the latter turned towards his young friend, and letting two firm brown hands fall upon his handsome shoulders, surveyed him with a world of honest affection shining from his quaint brown eyes.

"You young dog," he exclaimed, swaying him gently with those powerful hands. "You villain, I'm gladder to see you than if you were my grandmother, or my Sunday sweetheart. There," letting him go suddenly, "sit down, sit down, we will see if your face-reading talent can do me any good."

CHAPTER II.

A WOMAN'S EYE.

"I don't suppose you ever wondered at my not writing, seeing that I never did write a personal letter, to your knowledge?" quoth Mr. Jocelyn, stretching out his limbs to their utmost, leaning as far back as possible in his chair, and puffing lazily at one of his imported weeds.

"No, I can't truthfully say that I did," answered Bathurst, who was perched, boy fashion, upon the arm of a big chair, looking very wide awake and eager. "My only query was, whether you were dead or alive, and you may wager that there was a commotion among the fellows when it was announced that 'Big Jocelyn' had sent back his resignation from some remote corner of France, and was not coming back for the present. After such confounded splendid work as you had just finished, too."

"Well," said Jocelyn, giving an uncommonly strong pull at his cigar, "if you will get off that chair arm, and stop looking so deucedly like a big interrogation point, I will try and make things a little clearer. For be it known, I came to New York just four days ago, fresh from the briny, and I arrived in Chicago this blessed morning for the express purpose of hunting you out."

"Did you, though," queried Bathurst, with an expression, half pathetic, shining in his blue eyes. "But that was good of you—and how lucky that I met you at the 'Tribune.'"

"Yes," laconically; "saved me a hunt in strange places, and I have had about enough of that sort of fun for awhile."

"Well, here we are at all events," said Bathurst, flinging himself at full length upon the sofa, and turning his face toward his companion. "I'm ready to listen, Rob, so blaze away."

"You see," began Jocelyn, in a more subdued tone than he had yet used, "I think the very nature of our business makes everything tame after awhile, and as I was at best fond of a change, an new ground to work over, so when I found my seaport affair winding up so grandly, I began to reflect that I had not begun to see Europe yet, and to look about me for an excuse for remaining longer on the other side of the big pond. Owing to the very nature of my business, I had kept away from Scotland Yard, but I now began to meditate paying a visit to our English contemporaries."

"Yes," put in Neil, eagerly.

"And, in fact, I did visit them eventually."

Neil suddenly reared himself upon his elbow.

"Did you see that fine fellow, Ferrars?" he asked, eagerly.

"No, I didn't."

Neil dropped back with a regretful sigh.

"I'm sorry," he murmured, plaintively; "I never hear of a braver Englishman. I want to know more of him."

"You unearthly enthusiast," said Jocelyn, smiling benignly across at him. "No, I did not see Ferrars, for a good reason. Ferrars was not in London; he was not in England, and nobody knew just where he was; he had been working some private case, and had been dealing directly with his employer. They had not had a report from him for months, that was three years ago. Well, I did not need any assistance from English detectives, and I was just Yankee enough to be glad of it. To abbreviate—at about the time when I sent home my last report, and found my occupation gone, something occurred that stirred up all the police of London, and curdled the blood of the phlegmatic citizens. Of course you heard of it at the time. It was the murder of that old Jew, and his still older sister, by his young wife."

"Yes, I remember something of the event, and that there was a large reward offered by the Crown. Did they ever find her?"

"I should rather think not. My boy, I have ransacked all England, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, Corsica, and the utmost parts of the earth; I have searched three years for that woman, and for once in his life Rob Jocelyn has found his match."

Neil made no comment, but the intensity of his gaze betokened his eager interest.

"The old man was a member of a very strong and wealthy secret order of Jews, and they doubled the reward offered by the Queen. Well, to make a long story short, I negotiated with them. Of course they wanted Ferrars, but as he was out of the question, and my credentials were good, they finally decided to let me handle the case for them; I was to have my expenses, in any case, and two thousand pounds if I succeeded; that is to say, the Jews would bear my expenses, and if I found the woman I would receive one thou' from the Crown—you see the murdered man left a large estate to the Crown—and one from the Jews. I was satisfied with this, for I wanted to see all these countries, and could afford to squander a year or two in this way. So we struck a bargain, and I have been a wandering Jew ever since."

"And your case?"

"Is still a mystery; I can't find the woman."

"Nor any clue?"

"Nor any clue."

"What had you to begin with, Rob?"

"That's the queerest part of it; I had—only one eye."

"Only what!"

"Only one eye, Neil, one painted eye," said Jocelyn, beginning to take things from his pocket with great rapidity. "My boy, there was not one trace of that woman after she had committed the deed; she may have ridden away on a broomstick, for aught I or any one could find out to the contrary. I could not even get an accurate description of her. As for the picture—well, as I said before, I got one eye." He had been searching through a small pocketbook, and now produced something carefully folded away in oil silk, which he removed rapidly, and then leaning forward placed in the hand of the astonished Neil a bit of canvas, evidently cut from a picture, a painted human eye.

"Think of it, Neil!" he said, as Bathurst gazed intently upon that one dismembered organ of vision. "How can a man hope to outwit a woman of barely eighteen, who, with her hand yet red with the blood of her victims, can think so far that she will stop her flight to cut and slash the tell-tale picture which, if left intact, might have brought her to justice long ago. Bah! it only strengthens my belief in the superfine cunning and viciousness of a vicious woman. Men may be good, bad, and indifferent, but women! by the Lord, they are either angels or devils." Then with a sudden drop of the voice, "What do you think of that eye?"

"Why, I think as a clue it's vague," replied Neil, with his own orbs still fixed upon it. "You can't tell by this if it were black or gray."

"True, and no one could tell if it were black or gray."

"It's a handsome eye," pursued Bathurst, "the eye of a passionate, fearless woman, I should think. Tell me all the points you have, Rob. By George, I feel uncommonly interested!"

"Well, my enquiries only served to convince me that she is the very evil one. First: I gathered this general outline: She is below the medium height, petite in fact, and slender almost to fragility; has tiny hands and feet, of course; eyes as you see, for I assured myself that they were both alike; features oval; complexion brunette; mouth small and full-lipped; teeth—and here is a possible point—teeth very even, very white, and more prominent than is exactly in accordance with the rules of beauty; nose straight, small, and thin of nostril; hair black and straight as the hair of a young Indian. Then I went in for details, and here I was puzzled. No one knew her intimately, and no two had formed the same opinion of her character, habits, and personal peculiarities. One old woman avowed that she was always scowling, another had never seen a frown on her face; she seemed a sort of human chameleon, and to have persuaded every one that she was of their favourite colour. From a mass of the most contradictory statements that a man ever listened to, I sifted out about this: She was a fascinating woman, one of these purring, insinuating, soft-mannered felines. And she had certain odd movements of the head and neck, a mixture of birdlike nodding and serpentine twisting—I should think—peculiar to herself. She had, too, a very soft, childlike voice, and could sing like a mavis. She seemed to have an inborn hunger and thirst for masculine admiration and outside adornments, but there was plainly no lover in the case. Madame Elise Schwartz was in love with no mortal, save herself, when she killed her husband and ran away with all his rare jewels."

"Ah! she did take the jewels."

"She did that. The old fellow was a miser as well as usurer; he had hoarded up a fine lot of rare stones, many of them unredeemed pledges, I presume, and she had nearly twenty-four hours the start when the bodies were discovered."

"And the picture; was there no other fragment? Not a single other feature intact?"

"Intact! well I should say not; why, man, it was in chips, little bits of rags, as if chopped with a hash knife."

"And you have been wandering all over the world with only one painted eye and a turn of the head for a clue?"

"Exactly."

"And what brought you back to America, Rob?"

"The belief that the thing I failed in over the water may turn out a success on this side."

"You think this cunning sorceress may have sought fresh fields?"

"I think it quite probable."

"Well—so do I. Of what nationality was she, Rob?"

"Nobody knows; she talked the most perfect French and the purest English."

"That makes her coming to America still more probable. Rob, are you working upon any system, or do you intend to pursue every dark-eyed woman with a twist of the neck, until you find the right one?"

Jocelyn arose and stretched himself before he answered. "Not quite so bad as that, Neil; I have a system, and it will yet run down my game. Now let's talk of yourself."

"All right, Rob, but you must let me study this eye a little; it has one peculiarity."

"Oh, you have found that out, have you? Well that same eye is photographed upon my mental vision. I should know it anywhere."

"So should I," replied Neil Bathurst, thoughtfully; "at least I think so—if it still wore that peculiar, indefinable expression; the brows are very straight, and the lashes very long. Well, take your eye, Rob, I will call for it again some day, perhaps."

The two friends remained together all day, and visited one of the popular theatres in the evening. They made no further mention of the case that was baffling astute Rob Jocelyn, but when at last he was alone, Neil Bathurst found himself thinking busily of the beautiful murderess, and trying to fancy just how the face belonging to that eye would have looked. But he never once gave a thought to the stupid little social party given by an unpretending North Side family, nor of the "pretty girls," who had been so lauded by young Arteveldt—and yet—had he but known it—because of that absence from the Ruthvens' little gathering he was soon to find himself beset with difficulties, and groping blindly for a lost link which that evening at the Ruthvens could have supplied.

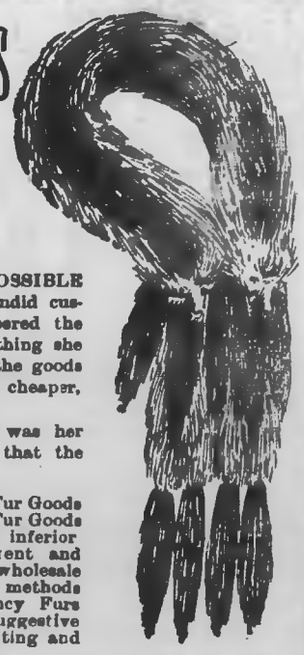
FURS.



Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and s against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

RECEPTION SERVICE.

The Rev Mr. Bridgeman, the New Pastor of the Lakefield Baptist Church Accorded a Hearty Welcome by his Congregation.

On Friday evening last the regular meeting of the Baptist Young People's Society was held in the Lakefield Baptist church. The meeting was of special interest to the members and friends of the congregation, as they were giving a reception service to their new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Bridgeman, formerly of Sunderland.

The meeting was well attended and after the choir had rendered a selection the the chairman, Mr. G. J. Galvin, addressed the meeting and in a few well chosen words, cordially welcomed the new pastor and bespoke for him hearty support. Miss Alice Hunter then favoured the gathering with a well-rendered instrumental.

Mr. S. McKibbin, on behalf of the congregation, read the following address :—

To Rev. Mr. Bridgman.

Dear Sir and Brother,—We have met here this evening to give you and your partner a hearty welcome, which I now tender you in the name of the church, and especially in the name of the young people, praying that the Lord may bless you in your labours as our pastor, and also praying that the members may hold up your hands and assist you in every way they can in the discharge of your duties. We know that if the church is going to do good work for the Master the pastor and the people must work harmoniously together. We hope and pray that this may be the case not only here but with the church at Warsaw, with which we are connected.

Yours, etc. in the name of the Lord,
S. McKIBBIN.

Miss Gertie Wallace, on behalf of the B. Y.P.U., extended to all present a hearty welcome.

Rev. Mr. Edmison was unable to be present but sent a message in which he welcomed Mr. Bridgeman on behalf of the congregation.

Mr. Reeves was then called upon and in his remarks stated that he was pleased to welcome a Christian minister in our midst. During his location in Lakefield, he had had the privilege to know and work among two pastors of that church, and extended on behalf of his congregation a hearty welcome to Mr. Bridgeman. It becomes the duty of the congregation to be loyal to their pastor and support him in every way possible. All were happy to be present, and he trusted that all in the village might enjoy co-operation in Christian work.

A selection was then rendered by the choir.

In reply to the several addresses of welcome Mr. Bridgeman said that the formal welcome tendered him was but a repetition of the welcome he had already received. The citizens had welcomed him as he met them on the street, and he knew that he would enjoy being a citizen of this beautiful town, with its winding sheets of rushing waters and placid lake. The pastors of the other churches had welcomed him, and he would assure them that everything in his power would be done not only to maintain the already existing friendship and sympathy, but if possible to help foster a greater. He felt the depth of the welcome which the congregation had given him, for their beaming faces and the hearty grasp of hands had told of a welcome which was even deeper than words could express. The welcome which the young people tendered him he much appreciated, for he knew the value to some extent of the possibilities that were unfolded and might be unfolded within them. He would be delighted if he were privileged to help enlarge their vision of Christ and to lead them to deeper consecration in His service. Already he had begun to feel that these many welcomes bespoke for him a happy and, he trusted, a successful pastorate.

These present then adjourned to the school room, where the ladies had prepared a sumptuous repast, to which all did full justice. After a pleasant social hour had been spent, the meeting broke up, and each repaired to their separate homes, having spent a pleasant and profitable evening.

Only 25c at any drug store.

WITH THE BOYS.

Last evening at the Boys' Gospel meeting in the Y. M. C. A., Master Fred Hawkins gave an able address on "Joseph making himself known to his brethren."

In the entertainment which followed in the boys' parlour an impromptu debating contest was held in which twenty boys took part in a spirited and entertaining way. The captains were Masters Jno. Laing and C. Kempt, The side of the former won on a score of 51 to 50.

A meeting of the Executive was held at nine o'clock and the standing committees were chosen for the year.

A Lakefield Ordination Service.

An interesting service was held in the Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, at which three members of the congregation were ordained to the sacred office of elders, viz., Messrs. Robt. G. Clifford, Fred D. Armstrong and Thos. Cullen. The pastor, Rev. A. C. Reeves preached a sermon on "The office, character and duty of elders." At the close of the sermon the usual questions were put to the elders elect, and having been satisfactorily answered, they were set apart to their sacred office by prayer, after which they were formally welcomed to the ranks of the session by the other elders present.

Drummers Would Help.

A Belleville gentleman was engaged in conversation with a number of drummers on the train a few days ago and was informed that a movement is on foot to have the officers of the Travellers' Association of America issues a call for an assessment of $1 on each member, the proceeds to go to aid W. H. Ponton in his defence. As there are 9 000 members of the Association his would mean a very large sum.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

THE POIRIER MURDER.

Cordelia Viau's Confession to Detective McCaskill.

DETECTIVE TELLS THE STORY.

Warned Prisoner Repeatedly That What She Said Might Be Used as Evidence Against Her, But She Sent for Him and Told How Sam Parslow Killed Her Husband.

St. Scholastique, Que., Dec. 12.—The greater part of Saturday was taken up with Detective McCaskill's evidence, which was to the same effect as given at the former trial. He arrived at St. Canute about 7 in the morning, made enquiries from the coroner, viewed the evidence that had been produced before the coroner's inquest, and then proceeded to the house of the deceased. He made a thorough examination of the premises and discovered what appeared to be a foot print in the blood on the floor. After he went to Bouvrett's house, where the prisoner was stopping, and she expressed the wish to go to her own place to get some clothing. He went with her and she then expressed a desire to see her husband. They went in the house and, as the stuff she wanted was in the bedroom where her husband was laid out, he opened the door and went in with her. When in the room they got talking of the murder, and after he got the linen for her, the witness gave his opinion as to where the struggle took place. Also he showed her on the wall the imprint of a bloody hand.

Knew She Was Suspected.

After they went out of the room the accused said she knew she was suspected and wanted to know if the case was very strong against her, but he gave her very little satisfaction. After this conversation Coroner Mignault, Mr. Brazeau and the witness decided to adjourn the inquest for eight days and to arrest the prisoner and Sam Parslow. High Constable Brazeau went for Parslow and McCaskill got Mrs. Poirier.

"Then I went into Mrs. Bouvrett's," said the witness, "and I said to Mrs. Poirier that High Constable Brazeau had told me to get her and bring her to St. Scholastique to jail. I told her then she was not obliged to speak and that anything she said might be used in evidence against her. She seemed anxious to know if she was to be locked up, and asked me to get a room in the hotel, but I told her it was impossible. As she got into the sleigh I warned her in French again, and we drove towards St. Scholastique. On her way to the jail we spoke of the murder, but I always told her to tell the truth. While I was downstairs in the Court House the prisoner sent Mr. Brazeau for me, saying she wanted to see me."

Mr. Leduc Objected.

Mr. Leduc, for the defence, objected to this evidence, as illegal, but the judge decided that the court had to follow the decision of the Court of Appeal on that question, and then overruled the objection.

The witness continued: "I went into the cell and said to the accused: 'Madame, you have sent for me; what do you want?'"

"She said: 'Is it so that Sam confessed?'

"I said I did not know."

"She said: 'It was Sam who killed my husband. He often said he would give his head to rid me of my husband. Some time ago he went down to Montreal and bought a revolver to commit the deed, but I told him not to do that, as it would make too much noise. About a week ago he took a knife and had it sharpened, and on the Sunday, when I was to go to my father's, it gave me pain to leave my husband, drunk as he was, but my husband told me to go. Sam told me to kiss him, as it was the last time I would see him alive, but I did not believe it. I then went, and when I saw him the next day he told me: "All is finished." ' Then she said that when she came to the house and saw the curtain down she knew her husband was dead."

The accused repeated this story to the witness a second time in the judge's room, where Coroner Mignault and Constable Brazeau were concealed behind a screen.

McCaskill's evidence was lengthy, but these are the principal facts.

Emile Belanger, who is a reporter of La Patrie, corroborated his former evidence as to the confession that the accused made to him last year, which was the same as Detective McCaskill's.

It is now thought Cordelia Viau's trial will not finish before the 14th inst.

TO SQUEEZE NEW YORKERS.

A $25,000,000 Heat, Power and Light Company to Control the City.

New York, Dec. 12.—A syndicate headed by William C. Whitney has secured control of the electric light, heat and power facilities of New York City. In the history of America few monopolies of such immensity have been known. Mr. Whitney becomes a new king of finance, a rival in power to Rockefeller—another possible billionaire. For six months the syndicate has been working, securing the more important electric companies with franchises for illumination and power, and all the subways and conduits of Manhattan Island. Two months ago a company was incorporated at Albany with a capital of $25,000,000—the New York Gas and Electric Light, Heat and Power Company. The company is the Whitney syndicate.

BRAVERY REWARDED.

Capt. Bartlett of the British Steamer Vedamore Presented With $1,000.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 12.—A purse of $1,000, subscribed by Baltimore shipping merchants, was presented Saturday evening to Captain Bartlett and the officers and crew of the British steamer Vedamore, in recognition of their heroic conduct in saving the lives of 45 survivors of the lost steamer Londonian. The presentation took place at a supper given to the officers by the merchants. Captain Bartlett, in accepting the gift, said his men had only cheerfully performed their duties, which every sailor owed to every other sailor, to help him in distress. Captain Bartlett will also be rewarded with a handsome present from the British Government, and his officers and men will be suitably recognized. The Wilson-Furness-Leyland line of London, to which the lost Londonian belonged, it is said, will also reward every man of the Vedamore from captain to cabin boy for heroic conduct.

ONLY A COMMON ASSAULT

Nowadays for a Watchman to Shoot a Man for Trespass.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Edward Hartnett, a G.T.R. watchman, was placed on trial in the Sessions Saturday, charged with wounding Hugh Sheridan, a man from Indiana, who, with two companions, was stealing a ride on a train near the Don Station on Oct. 7. Hartnett asked the brakeman if the three men were his friends. He said no, and told the two that they were under arrest charged with trespass. The men then started to run away, and Hartnett fired his revolver, the bullet taking effect in Sheridan's back. The injuries laid Sheridan up in the General Hospital for three weeks, after which he was sent to jail for 15 days on a charge of trespass. The shooting was not denied, but the prisoner pleaded justification. The jury returned a verdict of common assault, and Hartnett was allowed out on his own bail to appear for sentence at the end of the Sessions. Mr. T. C. Robinette defended.

John Secord, Q.C., Dead.

Regina, N.W.T., Dec. 12.—John Secord, Q.C., died yesterday of pleurisy, after only three days' illness. Deceased was born near Niagara in 1850. Educated at Brantford High School, he was called to the Ontario bar in 1876. He was for a time town clerk of Tilsonburg, Ont. Mr. Secord was the first town clerk of Regina. He sat in the Northwest Council in 1885, represented South Regina in the Northwest Assembly in 1888-91, and was a member of the board of education. He was Crown prosecutor up to the change of Government.

THE "GOOD ROADS" CAMPAIGN.

Mr. A. W. Campbell will Address the People of Smith Township on Dec. 21st and 22nd at Bridgenorth and Lakefield Respectively.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, C. E., Provincial Good Roads Commissioner, on the invitation of the council of the township of Smith will address the electors of the township at the Town Hall, Bridgenorth, on Wednesday evening, Dec. 21st, at 7.30. He will also address a meeting at Lakefield town hall, on the evening of the 22nd at the same hour.

The general subject of Mr. Campbell's address will be, "Good Roads: Their Importance to the Farm and How Best to Obtain Them." Mr. J. G. Armstrong, reeve of the township, will occupy the chair.

The places at which these meetings are to be held are as central and convenient to the bulk of the residents of Smith as could be chosen and it is hoped that every farmer who can make it possible will be present. Mr. Campbell is a gentleman thoroughly qualified to talk upon the subject of good roads. He is a practical man with a large experience, and at the numerous points in Ontario where he has spoken invariably good results have followed.

No one will gainsay the importance of good roads—especially important to the farmer. In view of the fact that, judging by unsatisfactory results, a large amount of the money and labour expended on highways is wasted, it is of the first importance to the farmer to learn how both money and work can be placed to better advantage. This desirable information will be furnished by Mr. Campbell at the meetings he will address at Bridgenorth and Lakefield on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Dec. 21st and 22nd, respectively. These addresses will be a plain, practical, talk and opportunity will be afforded for discussion and the asking of questions to elicit any specially desired information in regard to the important matter of the improvement of our highways. Let everyone who is able attend these meetings; it will be time well and wisely spent.

THE CONDITION OF THE STREETS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR:—It is fortunate that the craze for gymnastics has prevailed the past few years, else the majority of our citizens would be unable to keep their feet upon the tight rope ridge of snow that is stretched in the middle of the walks. The snowploughs delayed coming out till a path had been beaten in the middle of the walk. The snowplough pushed aside a little snow, leaving a treacherous ridge bristling up like a hog's back. Many falls have occurred, especially at night, by incautiously or unwittingly treading upon this snow sawlog. Why is it that we can get no satisfaction out of the use of our streets? How is it that nothing seems to be done right? It is safe to say that there is not a mile of decently cleared walk in the town. As it seems to be of no use kicking by word of mouth or through the newspaper, how would it do to vary the exercise by operating with sufficiently substantial No. 10 boots in corpore vili of the parties responsible for the condition of our streets. The man selected to do the kicking, if he has to walk about much would be able to do it effectively—his leg muscles would have been developed by the vigourous muscular exercise necessary to maintain a balance on the hog's back, stretched like a gigantic icicle from street's end to street's end.

Yours faithfully,
WEARY RATEPAYER.

SNOW PLOUGHING.

A Lady's Protest Against the Way it is Done.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Why is it that the sidewalks are not attended to? The men engaged in cleaning the streets don't half do their work. Instead of keeping on the sidewalk with the snow plough they turn off in many places, and leaving all the snow piled up in the middle of the sidewalk, which is very dangerous. The citizens would gladly give a few dollars to the tender of applicants for the contract of shovelling the snow and keeping the streets in proper condition. Hoping that in the future they will be looked after, and thanking you Mr. Editor, for a space in your paper, I remain

Yours truly,
O. A. V.

All Fruit Should be Washed.

Every grocer in Peterborough can sell cleaned fruit, but they cannot furnish them washed, stemmed and dried, which is so thoroughly done by E. F. Mason's electric process and sold as "Crescent" brand, because water is not allowed to remain on the fruit long enough to injure it in the least. By this means it is much better done than by hand, when it is washed in two or three changes of water, allowing it to soak and spoil its flavour.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces—Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S.—James R. Murray, a well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

IMMIGRATION.

While we do not get the number of immigrants that we desire, we continue, remarks an exchange, to get a fair number from Europe, generally of a desirable class, and we have this year got a fair sprinkling from the Northwestern States of the American Union. The number who arrived at ocean ports during the ten months ended with October, wos about 19,000, as compared with 17,000 last year. The total arrivals from ocean travel by eastern Canada and from the United States reported at Winnipeg was 26,000. This figure does not represent the total immigration, because in addition to the 22,379 new arrivals from abroad, who are definitely accounted for, probably 5,000 came into the country without having been made the subject of immigration record. Returns of the people passing in and out of Manitoba's territories on railways show a favourable balance of 29,000. It is estimated on the basis of the ten months operations than by the end of the year the returns will show between thirty and thirty-five thousand immigrants settled in the country. Of those reported in Winnipeg, 10,069 settled in Manitoba, 7,070 in the Territories, 5,759 in British Columbia, and in the Yukon, 2,239.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE ordinary expenditure of the Province of Quebec in the two years of Mr. Marchand's rule have decreased over $700,000. So it will be seen that the interests of the Province are improving under Liberal Government.

THE valuation of taxable property in Montreal, according to the returns of the assessors, is this year $143,217,325, an increase of $2,415 000 over the record of 1897. It is worthy of note that over $40,000,000 of this does not pay taxes.

THE London Canadian Gazette says there is no longer any room for doubt as to the working of the preferential tariff, and adds: "The Laurier plan is justifying itself as completely in the final and crucial test of 'business done' as it has already justified itself in its appeal to the reason and the sentiment of patriotic Britons and Canadians. The moral ought not to be missed, either at home or in the rest of Greater Britain." Yet we find querulous Canadian newspapers calling the Liberal Government both unpatriotic and impractical. Deeds count faster than words.

THERE is no end to the bumptiousness and buncombe of our American cousins—they even think that other countries are to be brought to have the same outrageously high opinion of them that they have of themselves. An American Congressman has suggested that the hams of the American hog—the quadrupedal, not the commercial kind—"should be wrapped in the American flag so as to force Europe to respect the flag because they would be sure to like the hams." They had better put the "respect" in the hams themselves, as Canadians do, and they would have no difficulty in selling them.

THE BREEZY BROAD ARROW.

The Broad Arrow, the semi-official mouth-piece of the military authorities in Britain, has been indulging in some breezy comments upon Major-General Hutton's inspections of the soldiers of Canada. After complaining that these inspections were carried out in the cut-and-dried way of the "sixties" in England, the paper in question adds:—"The result is that each regiment considers itself the best in Canada and perhaps in the world, whilst a six-months' German or Austrian conscript or any twelve-months' 'Tommy' knows more about attack, fire discipline, outpost duty or fire control than does the whole Dominion force."

The self-complacent imbecility of this critic of Colonial troops would would be irritating if his dense ignorance was not so over-powering as to provoke amusement. In appearance, physique, intelligence and marksmanship, the Canadian militiaman is fully the equal of his English brother in arms, and it has frequently happened that in matters of drill and discipline he has been found worthy to stand shoulder to shoulder with the best of the Broad Arrow's "Tommies."

If the Broad Arrow will take the trouble to enquire of those who know, it will be found that the half-trained colonist is a bigger, better, brighter, and more useful all-round man than the ordinary English man, trained, as the latter is, thoroughly in some one pursuit. Knowing this to be true, we venture to say that the splenetic outburst of the Broad Arrow displays ignorance equal to the bad taste which dictated such an attack. However, those who know anything of the Canadian militia can testify that, whenever pitted against the Imperial troops at Halifax or Ottawa on the rifle ranges, the former invariably win; the exchanges of companies from the Canadian regulars and the Berkshire Regiment gave colonists no cause to blush for their countrymen; and even at target shooting we have seen Canadia artillerymen defeat their trained brethren of the British service. The Broad Arrow ought to be, and probably is, ashamed of its silly exhibition of ignorance, calculated, as its article is, to create a feeling of annoyance in every mess room and armoury of the Dominion.

THE SIZE OF EGGS.

The grade of egg which is in good demand is one weighing 15 pounds per great hundred, that is 15 pounds per 10 dozens, which is equal to 2 ounces per egg, or 1½ pound per dozen. A small quantity imported into Great Britain from France go as high as 17 pounds per great hundred, For every ½ pound which eggs weigh less than 15 pounds per great hundred, the value is lessened by about one cent per dozen. One egg shipper of great experience in Canada informs me that he has found the albumen in large eggs to be thicker than in small eggs. Another says that in his experience, 90 per cent. of the stale or bad eggs have been small eggs with white shells. Eggs should be graded as to size. A higher value will be obtained for a given quantity of eggs graded into three sizes, large, medium and small, than if they are sent with the sizes mixed promiscuously.

A POPULAR MISTAKE.

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The national disease of Americans is indigestion or, in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common, many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when, as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigourous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid, faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Werthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover this remedy is not a patent medicine, but it is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter), vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these pills will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonials sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

THE MAKERS OF CANADA.

Quarterly Review, London, England.

Canada's position in the Empire is one of which her people may be justly proud; but as Canadians review the past, with its many evidences of devotion to the Empire, of capacity for self-government, of statesmanlike conception and action in the administration of public affairs, they must not forget how much they owe to the men who laid firm and deep the foundations of their national structure. French Catholics and Huguenots, Puritans and Cavaliers of the days of the Stuarts, Scots from the Highlands, the Hebrides and the Lowlands, Scottish Irish Protestants from the North, and Catholic Celts from the south of Ireland, Englishmen from Kent hop gardens and the meadows of Devon, and all parts of that ancient kingdom where the Saxon and Norman have so happily blended in the course of centuries—all these have contributed to form a Canadian people who have planted themselves successfully and firmly over the vast region which stretches, from east to west, to the north of the federal republic. To some of the eminent makers of Canada monuments have been raised, but the vast majority lie in quiet churchyards, where the finger of time has obliterated even their names from the moss-covered stones where once they were rudely chiselled. But though these pioneers may be now forgotten, their spirit still survives in the confidence and energy with which the people of the Dominion are labouring to develop the noble heritage which they possess in America, and in the loyal affection which all nationalities and classes of that people feel for the British Crown and Empire.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as though they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

SWEATING THE POOR PEOPLE.

A $10,000,000 Milk Trust Is Leiter's Latest Scheme.

Chicago, Dec. 12—The milk trust, with a capital stock of $10,000,000, is now an assured fact, and application will be made within ten days for articles of incorporation. Joseph Leiter, who began investigating dairying a few weeks ago, discovered that it was a business in which there was a large profit. L. Z. Leiter and William C. Seipp are the largest stockholders, and each will be interested to the extent of $2,500,000. Milk dealers favor the scheme.

$5,000 for Killing a Man.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 12.—Eli Tucker will have to pay the widow and children of Uriah Johnson $5,000 because he killed Johnson. A jury so decided on Saturday. This case has attracted considerable attention, it being the first of its kind ever tried in a Maryland court. Tucker had had some trouble with Johnson. The quarrel ended in a fight, which resulted in Tucker killing Johnson. Tucker is a prosperous farmer, while Johnson was a vegetable packer.

MISERY ON THE FRENCH SHORE.

A Methodist Minister Details the Wretched Condition of People.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 12.—Rev. Sydney Chancey, a Methodist minister, settled on the French shore, writes to the St. John's papers, detailing the wretched condition of the people living there. He declares that their circumstances are deplorable, that alarming destitution prevails along the whole coast line and that prompt assistance is necessary to prevent wholesale starvation. Scores of families, he says, have not more than two barrels of flour with which to tide over the winter of six months' duration, for which period the coast is blocked by ice floes. He instances cases where families are already existing upon fish and diseased potatoes, having no flour, and urges prompt relief to avert the disastrous consequences which must otherwise ensue.

It Hangs On

If it was only health, we might let it cling.

But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.

And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

loosens the grasp of your cough. The congestion of the throat and lungs is removed; all inflammation is subdued; the parts are put perfectly at rest and the cough drops away. It has no diseased tissues on which to hang.

Catarrh

Japanese Catarrh Cure did for Miss A. Nott of Reichville, Ont., what physicians, specialists and ordinary practitioners and a score of Catarrh remedies failed to do. She was a great sufferer from this distressing and disgusting disease for years; all the painful accompaniments of deep-seated Catarrh were here; her head was so stopped up that she could not breathe through her nostrils, her breath was the foulest, she had constant pain over her eyes, a continual dropping in the throat, but from the first application of this pleasant pomade cure she experienced great relief, and in a very short while after commencing to use it she found her head cleared up, the nasal passages all healed, the breath pure and sweet, and not a pain left in her head; this all happened long enough ago to convince her that that the disease has left her for good and all, and she rejoices at escaping, as she calls it, from a living death.

With every package of Japanese Catarrh Cure there is enclosed a cure guarantee. It is the only guaranteed cure. Pure and harmless and leaves the patient a clear-headed, light-hearted healthy manner woman. 50 cents. Sold by Dodd & Wallbridge or by mail.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00 at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Pinned Down by a Tree.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 12.—To be pinned down by an immense tree while his life's blood ebbed slowly away, enduring excruciating pain and fully conscious of the fact that willing companions were unable to do anything for him, was the terrible experience of a logger named James McLellan on Friday. He is now living in the City Hospital here and strange as it may seem will probably recover. Should he survive his terrible ordeal he will be a cripple for life, for his right leg has been amputated above the knee. McLellan was working at Tait's logging camp.

GARCIA AT REST.

Cuban Patriot Breathed His Last in Washington on Sunday—Pneumonia the Malady—Life's Aim Realized.

Washington, Dec. 11.—General Calixte Garcia, the distinguished Cuban warrior and leader, and the head of the commission elected by the Cuban Assembly to visit this country, died here this morning shortly after 10 o'clock, at the Hotel Raleigh, where the commission has its headquarters. The sudden change from the warm climate of Cuba, with the hardships he had there endured, to the wintry weather of New York and Washington, is responsible for the pneumonia which resulted in his demise. He contracted a slight cold in New York, which did not assume an alarming stage until the early part of last week. On Tuesday night General Garcia, in company with the other members of the commission, attended a dinner given in his honor by General Miles, and it was the exposure that night which culminated in his death. During the twelve hours or more preceding dissolution deceased was unconscious most of the time.

General Garcia, whose name will be ever linked with those of other patriots who have fought against unequal odds for the freedom of his country, has had a most active and varied life, much of which has been spent in fighting for the cause of Cuban liberty, which he had the satisfaction of seeing accomplished so short a time before his death. He was a man of culture and refinement, of splendid education, and came from a distinguished family of Joquani Santiago de Cuba Province.

He was born in Cogquin, Oct. 14, 1839, and was therefore, in the sixtieth year of his age.

BROOKLYN FLOODED.

Water Main, Four Feet in Diameter, Burst With Disastrous Results.

New York, Dec. 12.—For several hours yesterday an area of twenty blocks in the 25th Ward in Brooklyn was inundated by raging waters, which washed out the foundations of houses, tore down trolley and telegraph poles, imprisoned people in their homes and nearly drowned some who were caught by the flood. The damage will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars, the police think $500,000. The great water main at Hobart-street and Central-avenue burst at 5 o'clock in the morning. This main is four feet in diameter, and when the pressure became too great the water shot up eight feet in the air. The flood, which continued for three hours, came so suddenly that several persons were caught and three were rescued by life lines. Every house in the twenty blocks was flooded, and a number of them so badly damaged that they will fall if they are not pulled down. Hundreds of others were damaged so badly that it will be a costly matter to repair them. Ten families were homeless to-night, because the police would not allow them to enter their shaky houses.

AN ADJOURNMENT.

The High Joint Commission Reaches an Agreement on This Point.

Washington, Dec. 12.—It has been agreed by the Joint High Commission of Americans and Canadians, which has been in session here for several weeks, to adjourn at a nearly date. This has not yet been formally announced, but it is understood that the day fixed for adjournment is Dec. 20. On the evening of Dec. 19 the Canadians will give a banquet, to which the Americans will be invited. The understanding is that the session will not be resumed till after March 4 next, when the American commissioners, who are members of the House and Senate, will have leisure to devote to the negotiations. Whether the session swill be resumed at Quebec, where they were begun, or in this city, has not been stated.

CHATHAM MAN KILLS HIMSELF.

Thomas Collop, a Forty Years' Resident, Blows Out His Brains.

Chatham, Dec. 12.—Thomas Collop, a well-known citizen, on Saturday took his own life. He went into the barn, and placing a 38-calibre revolver to his temple, pulled the trigger and died in a few hours. Collop was up to a few months ago a hotelkeeper, having conducted the Park Hotel here for many years. He retired a short time ago, and took up his residence on Murray street, where he ended his existence. He has been a resident of Chatham for over 40 years. No reason can be assigned for the rash deed, but it is known that he has not been in the best of health for some time. Deceased leaves a wife and five children.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Mr. R. Morrow Cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Toronto, Nov. 23—The vast majority of Torontonians know and esteem Mr. R. Morrow, the able and popular general agent for the Toronto Auer Light Co.

For this reason the following statement made in writing by Mr. Morrow, possesses unusual significance.

"Two years ago I was attacked by Lumbago and Urinary trouble which caused me intense suffering. I took several different remedies without any benefit. Then I began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and was completely cured by them."

Lumbago is unusually prevalent this fall. All sufferers should know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only known cure for it. They never fail.

Milburn's Rheumatic Pills are the only reliable and satisfactory remedy for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout and Neuralgia. Price 50c., all druggists.

The Case of Snell of Cornwall.

Parry Sound, Dec. 12.—Enquiry into the case of Snell, whose sudden disappearance under suspicious circumstances was mentioned in a despatch from Brockville a few days ago, leads to the belief that the report was not altogether without foundation. Snell was a brakeman on the Parry Sound Railway, and disappeared about the beginning of this month. A hat and coat supposed to belong to him were found near the railway track about half way between Rose Point and Depot Harbor. This circumstance, together with the fact that the missing man has not drawn two months pay due by the railway company, leads to the belief that something is wrong.

A Handsome Christmas Souvenir.

Mr. T. E. Bodily, up-town C. P. R. ticket agent, is distributing the handsome Christmas souvenir cards of the C. P. R. On either side of a "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year" legend, John Bull dressed as a grenadier Tommy Atkins, is shaking hands with his best girl, Canada, in classic costume, across a globe representing the world, swathed in the old Union Jack, and guarded by a candidate for class 44 in the coming bench show—a "what-we-have-we'll-hold" bull dog. In the back ground is depicted the lines and fleets of the C.P.R. The card is a beauty, both in conception and execution.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

THROUGH THE ICE ON CHEMONG LAKE.

Mr. and Miss Kearney and Mr. L. Fobert in the Water.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.

They Tried to Cross Chemong Lake on Thursday Last, but the Ice was not Strong Enough—All Escaped Fortunately.

On Thursday last Chemong Lake nearly saw its first drowning fatality of the season.

The bridge is in bad condition, being sunken in many places, creating such pitchholes as to make it dangerous for lightly constructed sleighs to cross. Mr. James Kearney and sister, of Ennismore, crossed over it Thursday morning, and not relishing the thought of going back by the same way asked Mr. Louis Fobert's advice as to trying the ice.

Mr. Fobert had been across on the ice to the Ennismore shore and brushed out a road the day previous. He therefore offered to cross with them and the three started out in the cutter.

All went well as long as they followed the road which Mr. Fobert had marked out with bushes, as the ice had been tested all along, but in one place where the road made considerable of a circuit Mr. Fobert decided to cut across the curve and thus shorten the distance. The resolution was an unfortunate one for no sooner had the brushed road been left than the cutter broke through the ice. As it went down Mr. Kearney jumped out and seizing the horse by the head prevented it sinking. Mr. Fobert and Miss Kearney could not free themselves from the robes in time to escape being submerged in the icy waters. The former remained in the water until he succeeded in lifting Miss Kearney up on the ice, when she in turn assisted him out.

By this time a number from the shore had reached the party, and the horse was drawn out on the ice, but was not able to stand for some time, being thoroughly chilled. It was finally gotten up on its feet, however, and taken to the barn at Chemong Hotel.

Last night's frost was sufficient to make the ice perfectly safe, and a number of teams crossed the lake to-day.

THE CHRISTMAS TREAT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—May I mention publicly the following facts relative to the proposed Christmas entertainment to be given under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society.

It may not be generally known that early this fall evening classes for young girls were organized by the officers of the society. Of these classes those for sewing have been particularly successful. The art of dressmaking has been taught by competent instructresses and the girls have spent many happy evenings cutting and making their own garments. Their industry, ability, and the regularity of their attendance have been a matter of surprise—exceeded our most sanguine anticipations and leaving no question in our minds that if cheerful rooms and attractive employment were furnished to young girls there would soon cease to be any ground for talk of a much-needed moral reform among this class of young people in Peterborough. As the Christmas season approached "our girls," very naturally, talked of gifts and how they would like to spend Christmas evening. Numbers took home patches to make quilts for their parents. The idea soon suggested itself to the workers to get up a Christmas tree and entertainment for the girls and their relatives. But there were others—poor women and children—who had received help from the society. They too, claimed consideration. The Board of Management at its last regular meeting took the matter in hand with the result that the proposition is now before the public—to have during Christmas week a Christmas tree and entertainment for all those to whom such would be an unusual and genial enjoyment. A poor women in town who gets her own and her children's living by washing remarked recently:—"I can manage to earn enough for the rent, food and fuel, but it is the clothes, boots and shoes that trouble me. I have kept the boys at school so far, but they will have to stay at home after Christmas. They have no boots to wear." It is in the nature of a suggestion that some liberal-minded citizen hang a pair of boots for each boy on the C. A. Society's Christmas tree.

The town is at present paying for two boys at the Industrial School, Mimico—an outlay of over $200 annually. Perhaps a little assistance in the way of boots and clothing given to poor unfortunate parents on condition that their children became regular and satisfactory day and Sunday school attendants might eventually save the town some expense and make out of the children the C. A. Society have to deal with, good and respectable citizens.

Yours very truly,
M. R. CLARKE,
Sec.-Treas, C. A. Society.

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says:—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

PERSONAL.

Mr. Harry Foote is back from a trip to the Northwest.

Mr. Orville Shortly, of Montreal, spent Sunday in town with his father.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., left to-day to assist in Mr. Douglas' campaign in East Northumberland.

Mr. F. J. Jameson left at noon to-day to attend a meeting of the Executive of the High Court, Canadian Order of Foresters, in Brantford.

Mr. Will Buchanan took the morning train for Toronto, where he will attach himself to the staff of the Evening Telegram. During his residence in Peterborough he made many warm friends, who will sincerely regret his departure.

Miss Isabella Matthews, of Lindsay, and her guest, Miss Lucy Matthews, of England, who have been visiting at the residences of Messrs. Frank and George Matthews, town, returned to Lindsay to-day.

Mr. Walter Phelan has accepted a position with the firm of Fennel & Co. in Berlin and left for that town this morning. Walter's presence on the hockey team will be missed this winter, particularly as he has been in training for the last month and would evidently have been in better shape than ever to play the game. His many friends in Peterborough will learn with pleasure of his success in Western Ontario. Doubtless his name will figure on Berlin's crack hockey team this winter.

THE TWELFTH VICTIM.

Andrew Carey Succumbs to the Injuries he Received.

After three weeks' suffering Andrew Carey died at the Belleville Hospital shortly before midnight last night Thursday night. The deceased was a victim of the unfortunate and disastrous accident which occurred upon the G. T. R. at Murray Hill on November 15th. At first fatal results were not anticipated, but on Sunday last his case assumed a serious aspect, and he failed failed rapidly, death ensuing as above stated. His injuries consisted of a broken shoulder, head and face badly cut, leg lacerated and internal injuries. Deceased was a Prominent citizen of the town of Cobourg and was universally respected. For a number of years he has been engaged in buying cattle, poultry and general farm produce, and was en route to his home after a business transaction in the east when the accident overtook him. Deceased was a widower and leaves a family of four children.

DEAR MESSRS. STRATTON & Co.:

Just a line by telephone to say that I expect to be at the Peterborough Bookstore Saturday. Have had a splendid journey—the sleighing's so splendid! Beautiful cold weather. My loads were very heavy—but you asked for a bigger stock than ever and you've got it. Tell the police men to have the streets all clear for me, as the deer are very frisky. Won't it be jolly to meet all the dear children in the Grotto again? Put this in the newspapers and let the children know about my reception in the Peterborough Bookstore all next week. Do you think your street cars will frighten my reindeer? "So long" till I see you and all the dear children. So long, so long.

Your faithful old friend.

THE PROPHET ISAIAH.

This was the Subject of Rev. Mr. Stevenson's Afternoon Address Yesterday.

The afternoon address to men given yesterday by Rev. E. W. Stevenson in St. John's church to men, centred on the personality of Isaiah.

The close association of Isaiah with Messianic hopes, and their fulfilment in the Gospel of Christ, seems to make him a figure of the Christian era, and not one of an age which antedates it by nearly 750 years.

This will appear more striking when we consider the real age and the circumstances amid which Isaiah moved.

Little is known of the life of Isaiah. In the last year of King Uzziah's reign he is precipitated upon the scene of Judah's ever-changing political complications. He must then have been at least twenty or twenty-one years of age. After an arduous and active life he probably died at the age of seventy. He was married and had two sons. It is probable that he was of noble birth. He probably died in the heathen reactions in the early years of King Manasseh, somewhere about 701, B.C. Tradition ascribes to him the distinction of martyrdom, being slain by the sword.

Popular ideas limit the accomplishments of Isaiah to the work of an inspired prophetic genius. His work was of much wider application. We view him in many capacities. As the fearless and outspoken social reformer, condemning the profligacy and selfishness of the age. As an independent and thoroughly patriotic statesmen, putting forth every effort to guide the ship of state safely through political complications; as a practical and clear sighted theologian, and not less as a prophet. But it is chiefly in reference to his prophesies of Immanuel that we know him best. Others had spoken of hopes for the future, of the perpetuation of the kingdom and of the rule of David. But to Isaiah belongs the distinction of gathering up the vague ideas, enlarging them and applying them to a concrete personality, a living historic being. In Chap. VII He is simply the child to be born of a virgin. This is enlarged again by the addition of wisdom and power. Then again this mysterious being is to be a prince owning the land. Still further he is endowed with divine gifts, and lastly His rule is to be equitable and peaceful, all which waits fulfillment in the life of Jesus Christ.

We cannot be surprised that a man of Isaiah's character met with the fate he did. It is the old, old story, "our fathers kill the prophets and we build their sepulchres." We applaud the Tammany politician or his first cousin wherever we find him, but a true independent fearless political or social prophet, must pay the penalty of his ability. He is a martyr to-day as he ever has been.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Rev. O. C. Elliott is assisting in special services at Cobourg this week.

The Executive meets at the rink to-morrow night to select a secretary-treasurer.

Rodney's anthem, "Calvary," was well rendered by the choir of St. Paul's church last evening.

The players are requested to meet after practice to-night and select their captain for the season.

The lady members of George street choir will meet for rehearsal to-morrow evening in Mr. Waldon's studio.

The morning anthem in the Murray street church was entitled "I was glad when they said unto me."

Rev. W. R. Young, of Port, Hope, will preach educational sermons in the George street church next Sunday.

The Men's Chapter of the Guild of St. Luke's will give a popular concert on next Monday, Dec. 19th. Admission 10c.

As an offertory anthem last evening the Charlotte street choir gave a most harmonious rendering of "Nearer Home."

"Who are These Arrayed in White?" was the title of the harmoniously rendered morning anthem in St. Andrew's church.

Two powerful sermons were delivered yesterday in the Charlotte street church by Prof. McLaughlin, of Victoria University.

"He giveth His beloved Sleep" was the title of the evening anthem in the Murray street church. It was sung in a most pleasing manner.

At last evening's service in George street church Mr. Hamilton, of the Frances Willard Mission, Toronto, delivered a most interesting address.

Mr. A. L. Davis took the solo in good voice last night in the anthem "Saviour when night involves the sky," in the Charlotte street church.

The evening anthem "I Will Arise" was nicely rendered, the solo being taken by Mr. Frank Turner in splendid style, in the George street church yesterday.

"In the anthem "Nearer to Thee" yesterday morning in the Charlotte street church, the solos were well taken by Miss Martha Stephens and Mr. Fred Skitch.

During the offertory a male chorus entitled "Conquered for Christ" was excellently rendered by the gentlemen of the George street church choir. The solo was taken by Mr. Walden.

A very pleasing selection entitled "It is Jesus," was rendered in George street church at the morning service, by Miss Clara Belleghem and the choir. Miss Belleghem took the solo passages in her usual good voice.

Next Sunday the special sermons in St. Luke's will be in the morning, the third in the course on the Holy Communion, and in the evening on "Biblical Instruction in the Public Schools."

Prof. Campbell, of the Arts Department of McMaster University, conducted both services at the Murray street Baptist church yesterday. His evening sermon was based on the text "Abide with me."

Miss Falconer and Mr. Jas. Browne sang "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," as a duet last evening in St. Andrew's church, in a manner which greatly pleased the large congregation present. The choir took the chorus parts.

There was a large congregation present at St. Luke's church last night, when Rev. H. Symonds preached on "The Christian Doctrine of Absolution." It being the second Sunday evening of the month, special music was excellently rendered by a full choir, and Mrs. A. G. Parker gave a beautiful rendering of Mendelssohn's "Hear, O Israel" from the Elijah.

The song service, entitled "Rock of Ages," attracted a very large audience last evening at the Mark street Methodist church, Ashburnham. The pastor, Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph.B., selected for his text Psalm xxxi., 3:—"For Thou art my rock and my fortress; therefore, for Thy name's sake, lead me and guide me." From this the reverend gentlemen preached a strong evangelical sermon. The discourse was crisp and spicy and sparkled with apt illustrations. Mr. Moore sang a couple of solos. The choir, under the leadership of Mr. H. S. Armstrong, did exceedingly well, all their selections being beautiful and appropriate. The next song service will be looked forward to with interest.

The Mark street E.L. of C.E. will hold their literary meeting this evening at 8 o'clock, under the direction of Mrs. (Rev.) Moore, president of the literary department. The public cordially invited.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB.

The men's Canadian Historical evening will be held on Tuesday evening, Dec. 13th, in Y. M. C. A. Hall. Three short and interesting papers will be read on the following subjects: The Explorers of Canada, Mr. W. Salisbury; The Cession of Canada, Mr. J. W. Garvin; The Rebellion of 1837, Mr. S. R. Armstrong. A large audience is expected. The meeting will commence at eight o'clock.

Deafness Cured.

We guarantee every cure that we undertake. 95 per cent. of all cases of Deafness is caused by Catarrh. We will give $500 for any case of Catarrh we can not cure with Dr. Green's Catarrh Specific. Call or address C. E. Green, Room E, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont. eod

Sons of England Banquet.

The preparations for the anniversary banquet of Lansdowne Lodge, S. O. E., which takes place on Tuesday evening, December 13th, at the Morgan House, are now completed. Everything points to the event being most interesting. The tickets are placed at 75c, which ought to be within the reach of the members and friends of the Order. The public are cordially invited. 3teod31

EAST PETERBOROUGH FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

LARGELY ATTENDED GATHERINGS AT WARSAW AND WESTWOOD.

Addresses on Topics of Interest to Agriculturists by Successful Farmers.

The first regular meeting of the East Peterborough Farmers' Institute for 1898-9 was held in the agricultural hall, Warsaw, on Thursday last.

R. Hawthorne, Esq., occupied the chair. The attendance in the afternoon was very good, all the best farmers in the vicinity being present and taking a great interest in the subjects discussed by asking questions. Major Sheppard of Queenstown, spoke on "Country Roads and How to Improve Them." This was a new subject here and there was great interest taken in it. He said that the statute labour system was useful in it day, but he considered its usefulness was gone. He advocated the appointment of County or Township Commissioners. He considered that a man needed some knowledge and experience in road making as well as in any other occupation. He advised the proper grading and then to put on a good covering of gravel or broken stone. He though the road between Peterborough and Warsaw was too narrow.

Mr. A. R. Kidd gave his experience in raising corn and building a silo.

Mr. T. G. Raynor spoke on "Milk Producing Foods," which elicited a lengthy discussion, and will doubtless be of great benefit to those who were present.

The evening meeting was very large. The admission fee did not keep away any that would derive any benefit from attending and made it much easier to keep order. Mr. E. Hawthorne was chairman. His address was very short but appropriate. The first piece on the programme was a violin solo, well rendered by Messrs Clysdale and McDonald. Then instrumental music by the Misses Eva and Laura Edwards. Next an address, "The Ontario Agricultural College," by T. G. Raynor, B S A., of Rosehall, telling of the advantages of this institution to young men who intend making farming their occupation. Next a recitation by Miss E. Kelly, which showed ability and training. This was followed by instrumental music by Misses Jennie and Effie Gow, which was well rendered. An address, "Three Historical Days on the Niagara River," by Major Sheppard was next on the programme and was listened to with great interest. A comic song by W. J. Kidd, entitled "They get there all the same," elicited much applause, as did also a recitation, "David and Goliath," by Mr. Wallace Anderson. A duet by Misses Jennie and Effie Gow was well received, "God Save the Queen" brought to a close a very successful meeting, one that will be remembered with pleasure and profit by those who had the privilege of being present.

At Westwood.

The meetings at Westwood on Friday were also well attended. F. Birdsall, Esq., president of the Institute, occupied the chair, and in opening the afternoon session made the following remarks:

In looking back over the past year I am glad to say that, as farmers, we have had a fairly prosperous year in this section. Our fall wheat and has has been exceptionally good. Other crops—peas, oats, barley, &c.—a fair average crop.

But in most cases potatoes have yielded a very poor return. The returns from the cheese factories will hardly be up to last year's.

I am glad to say that there is a move in the direction of putting into many of the factories, a plant for making butter, and as soon as that gets fully into working order, the patrons will have a market for their milk all the year, and it will ease the drudgery of making and marketing butter at home, thus lessening the home work and making a larger profit from each cow. Te cows will be better kept. The skim milk will be returned for the feeding of calves, pigs, &c.

I am sorry to see that so many of the farmers neglect to attend these meetings and become members of the Institute, so that they can at once become acquainted with any new mode or change for the better that is being made by the most progressive farmers, for farming is not to-day what it was 25 years ago. Competition in the world's markets is now a great struggle and while there is always a good paying market for the best articles of all kinds, for the medium grades the market will hardly pay for the cost of producing and the culls sell not for half what they have cost, and I am sorry to see in many parts of the country the cattle, horses and sheep I have seen are only culls, and are every day they are kept only a loss to their owners.

You may say how can they help this? My answer is join the Farmer's Institute and read all the reports that are sent to them free by the Government. Of course they must be read carefully and kept so that they can be referred to again when wanted.

Just to show how the Institute and other associations can and do benefit the farmers, I will refer to what has been accomplished by the Dominion Cattle Breeders' Association last year in having the railroad freight charges in shipping cattle reduced 50 per cent. (Mr. Birdsall here read an extract from the report of the Cattle Breeders' Association.) Now, this reduction in rates in shipping cattle has opened the trade to all breeders of pure-bred stock to the whole of the Dominion

The wolf of starvation howls at the doors of thousands of men who are well to do and surrounded by plenty. Ill-health, in the majority of cases, is starvation, pure and simple. It means that body, brain, nerve, bone and sinew are improperly or insufficiently nourished. Improper, insufficient nourishment is starvation.

When a man's head aches it is because the tissues of the brain do not receive sufficient nourishment from the blood, or receive impure and unhealthy nourishment. When a man gets nervous and sleepless, it means that the blood is not properly nourishing the nerves. When his skin breaks out with blotches and pimples and eruptions, it means that the skin is being fed upon the impurities of the blood. Almost every known disease is primarily due to improper nourishment through the blood, which is the life-stream. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest of all blood-makers and purifiers. It gives edge to the appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect, invigorates the liver, promotes secretion and excretion, and vitalizes the whole body. It makes firm, muscular flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and kindred affections, which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. It is the best of all nerve tonics and restoratives. Kept by all medicine dealers.

"I was taken ill in February, 1892, with headache and pain in my back," writes H. Gaddis, Esq., of 313 South J Street, Tacoma, Wash. "I called in a doctor and he came three times. He said I was bilious but I kept getting worse; I took a cough so that I could not sleep, only by being propped up in bed. My lungs hurt me, and I got so poor that I was just skin and bone. I thought I was going to die. I used two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it made me sound and well. It saved my life."

No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectively as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They never gripe.

WAGNER'S METHOD.

When Possessed With a Poetic Idea, He Wrote It In Music.

"In one of his writings Wagner tells us that he never felt any musical inspiration unless a dramatic idea had taken complete possession of him," writes Houston Stewart Chamberlain on "How Richard Wagner Wrote His Operas," in The Ladies' Home Journal. "When this was the case, the different personages would, one after another, obtrude upon his fancy, gaining gradually in bodily consistency. Then, all of a sudden, in the dusk of evening, one of these creatures of his fancy would rise up before him, gazing at him with eyes wide open. Fascinated and almost trembling, Wagner would remain with eyes fixed on those of his guest from dreamland. But, lo, the shadow's lips tremble and open! What issues from them is neither words nor song. It is a superhuman language, but the poet understands it, and it remains ringing in his ears when the apparition has vanished. This is the precise moment of inspiration. All that follows is more or less mechanical, more or less fortuitous. Whether a work be written out and completed sooner or later will depend upon all sorts of circumstances—time, health, etc.

"This, then, is the essential thing to remember—that Wagner never could compose unless driven to do so by a poetical idea peremptorily demanding the language of music for its full and adequate expression, and that, once this poetical and dramatic idea clearly and permanently ingrafted in his mind, it 'included'—if I may so say—the music, which came of itself whenever the author could find time for the business of writing out the score."

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

Deserved It.

THEY HANGED HIM TWICE.

John Anderson Suffers the Extreme Penalty of Killing Olive Pecker's Captain.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 10.—John Anderson was hanged yesterday for the murder of the captain of the schooner Olive Pecker. He was calm when the death warrant was read in the forenoon and said that he was ready to go. "I shall die and go into the presence of God without blot or blemish of guilt on my soul," he solemnly declared. Anderson killed the captain of the schooner Olive Pecker, shot the mate four times and ordered him to be thrown overboard, quieting the protest of the crew that he was not dead by saying he "was dead enough."

Then, at the point of a revolver, the crew threw the captain's body overboard. Anderson directed that oil be thrown over the lumber, and then setting the oil-soaked ship afire, the murderous crew took to the boats. Anderson was apprehended at Bahia, Brazil, and sent north on the United States gunboat Lancaster.

Hanged Him Twice.

At 8.06 the trap was sprung and Anderson's body shot downward. The rope parted just inside the knot and his body fell to the cobblestones. A thrill of horror ran through the crowd.

Preparations for re-hanging him were hurriedly made. The other end of the rope was adjusted around his neck. He was raised to a standing posture and the straps again placed upon his limbs. While being supported by the officers the trap was again sprung. In 28 minutes life was pronounced extinct. Nine minutes elapsed between the first and second drops.

Caught by Jack Frost.

Port Colborne, Ont., Dec. 10.—The steamers P. J. Ralph and Harold arrived here yesterday, grain laden, from Chicago to Prescott. They are waiting for orders from their owners as to whether it would be advisable to proceed down the canal owing to the heavy ice which is reported to be three inches thick in the locks, and the boats would have some trouble in trying to force a passage. It is probable they will be laid up here for the winter. The steamer Iona, from Buffalo to Cleveland, light, came into the harbor for shelter also.

Parallel to the Zola Sensation.

Paris, Dec. 10.—Paris is now looking forward to a trial which may equal in interest and sensation that of Zola. M. Gohier must answer for his book, "The Army Against the Nation," in which he alleged rottenness and corruption permeated the army from the general staff down to the barracks. Gohier will be defended by Jaures, the famous Socialist Deputy, who was one of the witnesses at the Zola trial.

Amid the gath'ring thunderclouds,
Deep in an awesome wood,
Unsheltered from the blust'ring winds,
A tiny maiden stood;

Her face all tear decked and distraught,
Her bosom racked with throbs,
Her clothing by the brambles caught,
Her utt'rance choked with sobs.

English as Written in Norway.

Here is a good specimen of English as she is written abroad. We find it in St. Martin's-le-Grand, the postoffice magazine:

"The hotel for tourists on Turtegro (owner, Mr. Igar Oiene), is laying by the foot of the eminent 'Skagastolstinder,' the largest field in Jotunheimen for topmounters. The best leaders are to be had. It is the best place for country layers. Different interesting places for summer trips. Nearest stopping place for steamers—Skjolden. Recommands as station for passage to Lom—Gudbrandsdalen."

RHEUMATISM

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Slightly Bewildered.

Our town of Pawpaw-on-the-Crick set out to stir the nation
By celebratin peace. We planned a monster demonstration,
But presently black eyes was scattered through the hull committee
Because the chairman made remarks that wan't exackly pretty.
Wives sided with their husbands, as they'll do in outside matters;
School children took it up, tore one another's books to tatters,
The neighborin townships all mixed in, the row's been gettin thicker
Till life insurance comp'nies dodge a Pawpaw-on-the-Cricker.

It's what he calls a paradox, m. friend, the wise perfesser.
I take his word fur it, 'cause he's a most accomplished guesser.
It's jes' the same way with the czar. He starts a peace petition,
An all the world gits up an says the aimiable condition
Which he suggests is what we need, an then the bayonets rattle,
An all the monarchs put themselves in readiness fur battle.
It beats my time to see the funny way that things'll happen,
With everybody yellin "Peace!" an everybody scrappin!

How It Helps Business.

"I found your location by reading the sign on your front window," said the bill collector, entering one of the front rooms on the fourteenth floor. "But it gave me a crick in the neck."

"Ah!" pleasantly observed Dr. Rybold, the celebrated patent medicinal compounder. "You have come to the right place. This little mixture will cure that, my friend, or the money will be cheerfully refunded. Only 25 cents. Take according to instructions on the bottle. Thanks."

And he bowed the astonished young man out.

THE SIX HUNDRED.

Some Incidents of That Mad Ride to Death at Balaklava.

Of that mad but heroic charge a hundred incidents are preserved—thrilling, humorous, shocking. The Cornhill Magazine tells of a man of the Seventeenth lancers who was heard to shout, just as they raced in upon the guns, a quotation from Shakespeare, "Who is there here would ask more men from England?"

The regimental butcher of the Seventeenth lancers was engaged in killing a sheep when he heard the trumpets sound for the charge. He leaped on a horse. In shirt sleeves, with bare arms and pipe in mouth, he rode through the whole charge, slew, it is said, six men with his own hand, and came back again, pipe still in mouth!

A private of the Eleventh was under arrest for drunkenness when the charge began, but he broke out, followed his troop on a spare horse, picked up a sword as he rode, and shared in the rapture and perils of the charge. The charge lasted 20 minutes, and was over before such daring or such suffering packed into a space so brief? The squadrons rode into the fight numbering 673 horsemen; their mounted strength when the fight was over was exactly 195.

It was all a blunder, but it evoked a heroism which made the blunder itself magnificent. And as long as brave deeds can thrill the imagination of men the story will be remembered of how—

Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well
Into the jaws of death,
Into the mouth of hell—
Noble six hundred!

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

ANOTHER PERMANENT CURE.

THIS TIME OF A

RUNNING SORE.

B. B. B. Cures Mr. D. Burch of Renton, Ont., of a Bad Sore on the Leg in 1892.

IT HAS NEVER BROKEN OUT SINCE.

Look around you and see if you can find any other remedy with such a record of permanent cures to its credit as Burdock Blood Bitters.

Not a little patching and mending up of the system to last a short time, but a thorough renovation, whereby disease is uprooted completely and health permanently restored.

Take the case of Chronic Sores of all kinds, which everyone knows are hard to heal with ordinary remedies.

To make a thorough and permanent cure the blood must be cleansed so that pure nutritious blood shall be supplied to the affected part, and supplant the decaying tissues with healthy flesh.

Sores or ulcers, no matter how large or how long standing, heal up readily when Burdock Blood Bitters is applied externally and taken internally according to directions.

The statements of Mr. D. Burch of Renton, Ont., given below prove this, and again establish the claim made for B. B. B. that it is the greatest remedy in existence for not only giving temporary relief, but making permanent cures.

This is the letter written by him, dated February 8th, 1894:

"In the year 1888 I was taken ill with Typhoid Fever. When I had recovered from the fever I got what the doctors called Phlebitus, which left my ankles a very dusky color, and my leg was swollen to the knee all the time until the spring of 1892 when it broke out half way between my knee and the ankle joint.

"I went to the doctors and they prescribed for me but to no effect. I quit taking any medicine for a while when I was persuaded by some friends to try Burdock Blood Bitters.

"I had not much faith that it would do me any good, but after using it for three days I could see that my leg had started to heal up.

"I kept on using the B.B.B. until I had taken five bottles in all, when my leg was healed up completely, and as sound as ever it was. If any one wants more particulars let them write to me enclosing a three-cent stamp for return postage and I will gladly answer them."

(Sgd.) D. BURCH.

The following letter, written June 30t., 1898, shows how permanent the cure made in 1892 has been:

"Burdock Blood Bitters, made a permanent cure in my case and I have the greatest regard for that remedy. It healed the sore on my leg in 1892 after doctors failed, and there has been no sign of it breaking out since.

"I never fail to recommend B.B.B. to persons suffering from any similar trouble and believe it to be the best remedy for purifying the blood. If there is any way I can be of service in making known the merits of B. B. B. I shall only be too pleased to do so."

(Sgd.) D. BURCH.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me vis.:

Cash value	$1,564 96

CHAPTER III.

LENORE.

While Messrs. Jocelyn and Bathurst were discussing their beer at the "Tivoli Garden," a heavily laden passenger and mail train was disgorging itself at the Michigan Central depot.

People with anxious faces were hurrying to and fro, others were lounging in listless attitudes, "seeing what they could see," or waiting for expected friends, or victims. Streams of passengers were hurrying down the long platforms and pouring out from the various entrances, and industrious porters and enterprising hackmen were waylaying them after the usual fashion; runners were crying their various hotels, apple women, and pop-corn vendors were clamoring for a hearing. In short, there was the usual scramble and push, the noise and confusion of a monster city depot.

Into this Babel of tongue and sounds, there stepped—among the last of the passengers—a young lady. She was quite alone, and one glance would have sufficed to assure the observer that she was entering the city for the first time.

She was dressed in an unpretending, yet jaunty suit of buff linen, and on her head was perched a hat of coarse white straw, with bands of black velvet, one side of the brim drooping over her face, the other turned up and ornamented by a curling ostrich plume, which curved defiantly above the crown, giving a piquant look to the fair face.

It was a fair face. Hair of a deep chestnut colour—that would lighten to perfect bronze in the sunlight—was drawn off the forehead, and clinging close to the head in rippling waves, was twisted into a careless knot at the nape of the white neck; a rounded, but nevertheless firm chin, that had one tiny dimple in it; mouth small and red, with a beautifully curved upper lip, and a full pouting under one; teeth small, white, and regular; nose, neither Roman nor Grecian, but small, slightly retrousse, and altogether piquant; eyes that must in some moods have seemed oddly at variance with the little nose—large eyes, dark hazel in colour, with strange lights and shadows lurking in their depths; beautiful eyes, with long dark lashes and delicately pencilled brows that were almost straight; a low broad forehead; a complexion that was almost colourless, save for the light bewitching lips, yet with no unhealthy palor. She was small in stature, with plump little hands, dainty feet, and gracefully sloping shoulders.

As she stepped lightly down from the Pullman platform, holding in one little grey-gloved hand a small traveling bag, she paused, and, while others hurried on, gazed about with a look of fearless enquiry. Then she began to move slowly onward in the direction taken by the crowd, casting sharp glances at each lady whom she met, and never once looking at the men.

Finally she stepped in at the open door of the ladies' waiting-room, and looked about her eagerly, then she turned away, looking a trifle disappointed, and quite at a loss what to do next.

At this moment a small figure, clad in navy blue cambric, entered at the upper door, and hurried towards her.

"Oh! Nora!" panted she as she gained the side of the young traveller, and seized her hand. "Have you really come? I am so glad. And I thought I would never get here, for the bridge was turned—"

"Turned!"

"Yes, turned for the boats, you know."

"To be sure! What a stupid thing I am. Kate, it's high time I came to the city, don't you think so?"

"Of course I do," laughed the little lady; "so come along now. No need to ask how you are; you never looked better."

"Same to you, Katie; but I did begin to feel like a lost lamb, I assure you, when I did not see you anywhere."

"Well I'm here now, hand over your checks, country girl, we will have your your baggage sent straight up, and then take a car."

"Good! I'm so glad you are not an aristocrat, who rides in a carriage; that would not be quite a novelty, but—this will be my first ride in a street car."

"The idea!"

"Well!" laughed the brown-eyed country girl; "I don't see that it's very absurd, since all of my life that has not been spent at a university has been passed in a village of a few hundred inhabitants, where my two little rats of ponies, and my basket phaeton, are reckoned very grand, and where the sound of the locomotive is only heard from afar. As they say in the play-bills, 'this is positively my first appearance in any city.'"

"And you won't disappear for an age, will you, Nora?"

Suddenly the laughing eyes became clouded, and the girl thus appealed to turned her face away from her companion to conceal a strange, half-scared expression that rested upon it.

"I don't know, Katie," she finally said, in an oddly-constrained manner. "Now that I am left alone in the world, I may fancy becoming a feminine wandering Jew; but," with a little rippling laugh, and suddenly recovering her composure, "I promise, if I ever do disappear, that I will come back and haunt you."

"I think you are the oddest girl I ever saw," said Katie Seaton, half petulantly, as they entered the baggage-room and began to negotiate with burly porters for the conveyance of the luggage of the fair arrival.

Lenore Armyn stood gazing unconsciously up Lake street, as her friend closed her bargain with an expressman, and gazing, she murmured under her breath, "This is chaos. I could 'disappear' here, I think. It surely must be easy to lose one's self in this great Babel. But oh! I pray Heaven the necessity for so disappearing may never come."

Are there such things as forewarnings? All day long, and often through the gay evening, that word "disappear" seemed sounding in the ears of Lenore Armyn; and even then, as she stood gazing out on busy Lake street, the shadow was upon her. The shadow of a fate that was to make her a being doubly accused, doubly hunted, for weeks and months.

At nine o'clock on that same evening Clarence Arteveldt stood ringing at the door of an unpretending "two-storey and basement" brick, situated not far from Lincoln park on the "north side" of the city.

He was speedily admitted by a tidy housemaid, for Mr. Charles Ruthven, the master of the house, was only a bookkeeper in a down-town wholesale house, who, upon a salary of two thousand a year, supported a wife and sister-in-law, not to mention a small Ruthven, and at present, a half-sister of his own.

The housemaid and a small bond slave, whose especial duty it was to minister unto the stentorian-lunged young Ruthven before mentioned, comprised his retinue of servants. But the Ruthven parlours were always bright and cheerful, and Mrs. Ruthven was one of those charming informal little hostesses that are the especial delight of society young men, who love to lounge in a friend's parlour, where they can throw off restraint, and feel at home among the pretty women of the little household clique.

The occasion of this present gathering was a double one; first, the arrival of Miss Armyn, the beloved school friend of Mrs. Ruthven's sister, Kate; and second, and of equal interest, the birthday of Mrs. Ruthven herself.

It was not a party—the Ruthvens never gave parties—it was just one of those pleasant, every-evening affairs, where every guest, if a stranger, has ample time to form the acquaintance of every other, so few are the invitations, and where music, cards, social games, and waltzing in the back parlour, form the chief amusements.

When young Arteveldt entered the large front parlour, he found himself the latest of the guests. There was a little group assembled around the piano, another gathered about little Mrs. Ruthven, apparently bent upon devising some new scheme for the amusement of the company; a third indulging in what seemed a very lively game of cards; and last and farthest away, Miss Lenore Armyn, seated opposite a grave-looking young man, and fighting her way inch by inch through a game of chess.

Seeing his entrance Mrs. Ruthven hastened to welcome him, and by this means dispersed her little knot of conspirators. Almost at the same instant Kate Seaton deserted the group of music-lovers and came to his side.

During the light and ordinary exchange of civilities which ensued, and while, later, he was exchanging badinage with the young people at the piano, Clarence Arteveldt was noting carefully the faces of the few ladies of the party who were strangers to him.

At last he singled out Miss Armyn as the especial object of his attention, and leaning lazily upon the piano, gradually dropped out of the conversation going on about him.

"Ah, I have caught you, sir," cried Miss Seaton, moving nearer him. "You are looking at my friend, Miss Armyn, and you have not been introduced. Come," laying a light hand upon his arm.

But the young man drew back, saying, as he looked down at the frank face upturned to his, with one of his irresistible smiles:

"Not yet, Miss Seaton; don't be in such haste to get me off your hands; your friend is playing chess; see how intent she is. If you should present me now, she would not know me from one of her pawns when the game is done, besides—"

"Oh! besides what, sir?"

"Besides"—with a half laugh, as he turned away from the piano and led her toward a tete-a-tete in the bay window—"I would rather talk with you; sit down here and let us gossip. You shall tell me about the ladies. I don't know, and I will make awful comments."

"I dare say you will," laughed Kate Seaton, not at all averse to a chat with this handsome young fellow, with the weak reputation and strong financial vouchers. "Well, sir, whom shall we dissect first?"

"Why, your dearest friend, of course," laughed the young man; "that is the way all gossips do, is it not?"

"Just as if you did not know that Lenore Armyn is my dearest friend. You artful fellow."

"Is she?" carelessly. "Then you can introduce her at a distance. Who is Miss Armyn?"

"My dearest friend, I tell you. My most intimate school friend."

"Oh!" in a tone of convert sarcasm. "But that is not all you can say about her?"

"I should think not," indignantly; "she is the loveliest, best, bravest, brightest girl in the world."

"Really!" elevating his eyebrows; then with a glance at the young lady in question, "well, she is certainly a beauty, Miss Kate—I don't know about the other qualities."

"Well, I do. I know she is good, and I know she is brave, and when you know Lenore Armyn you will not need to be told that she is not a fool."

There came a time when Clarence found good reason for recalling these words of Kate Seaton—"When you know Lenore Armyn you will not need to be told that she is not a fool."

"She is brave," continued Kate, now fairly launched, and determined to do her friend justice, "and at school she used to do and say the most independent things; she is a true friend, I can tell you, but—I would not want her for an enemy. I shall not forget how she exposed one of our teachers who had been ill-using some of the younger pupils, and committing no end of abominations on the sly. Lenore said never a word until she found evidence enough to insure her discharge twice over, and then she exposed her in the presence of the whole school. And oh, but didn't she talk to her, and to the other teachers. Lenore hates deceit."

"Does she?" glancing at the fair absorbed face, bending above the chess board. "Where is her home—does she reside here?"

"Why, no! she is an orphan, and can't exactly be said to have a home now, since her mother's death. Her mother died six months ago."

"Six months! Why she wears no mourning!" said he, surprised.

"No. It was her mother's wish that Lenore should not wear black. I don't exactly understand why. I never saw Mrs. Armyn."

"Indeed."

"Yes, indeed. Lenore and I were together at school for nearly four years, but I never visited her, nor she me, until now. Mrs. Armyn must have been fond of the country, for she lived in a wee little village away up in Michigan. Lenore spent all her vacations alone with her mother, who was always something of an invalid, and I, of course, passed mine here. We have always been correspondents, and now, since her mother is dead, I hope we shall be companions, for Lenore does not intend to live longer in Fairlie. In fact her mother wished her to sell their home, and leave the village."

"A strange mother, I should say."

"So I thought. But Lenore does not want to live there; she has some money, and is not compelled to work, but she wants very much to find an occupation."

"Am I to understand that Miss Armyn is paying her first visit to this city?"

"She is paying her first visit to any city."

"Um-m—she looks very self-possessed for a—rustic."

"She is self-possessed, it is her nature; but come, the game of chess is at an end, let us go to Lenore."

They are the Great Feeders of our Bodies

The Purity of the Blood is Dependent on their Cleansing Powers

There's a time to all, old and young, man or woman, when poor health brings trouble, anxiety, and burdens hard to stand up under, and one's efforts to rid himself or herself seem only to be baffled at every turn, and we are prone to grow discouraged.

That is not the time to give up—but the time for action, the time to seek out the seat of the trouble, and act as your best judgment and the experience of others will help you, guarding against mistakes in the treatment adopted for your particular ailment.

MR. GEORGE BENNER,
WIARTON, ONTARIO, says:—

As a life saver to mankind, I hereby state what Dr. A. W. Chase's K.-L. Pills did for me. For nearly four years I was greatly troubled with Constipation and general weakness in the Kidneys, and in my perilous position was strongly advised to use Chase's Pills, and to-day I can safely and truthfully state that they have saved my life.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

SLATER SHOE
Business Moods.
When a good man swears on a wet day it's more than likely the profanity comes from his feet.
The shoe that pinches spoils the temper, irritates the nerves, impairs digestion, and obscures the merry sunshine of life.
Success or failure in life oft hinges upon a man's mood at critical moments, and the way his feet feel sometimes sways destiny.
It had to fit the shoe.
A pair of "Slater Shoes" may unconsciously save a fortune, but can't cost more than $5.00.
It's cheaper to throw away a shoe that hurts than to keep it, and mark this—new "Slater Shoes" need no breaking in.
A tag on each pair tells just what leather it is made of—how it will affect the feet—and the wear it will, or will not give, according to use.

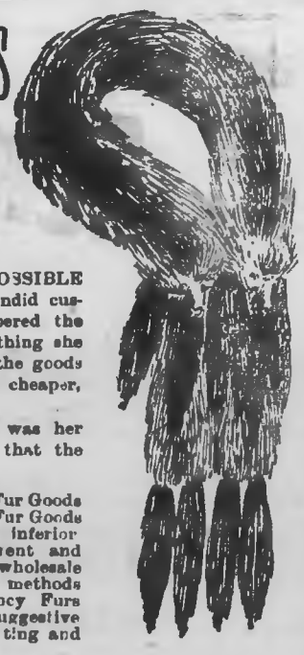
FURS.



Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and a against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

J.W.T. FAIRWEATHER & CO.

TORONTO. PETERBOROUGH.

EAST PETERBOROUGH FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

of Canada—while before each had only a local market around home which was easily supplied and soon filled up. Now if you had a hundred good pure bred bull calves you could sell them without any trouble. I seen it stated in some of the reports I was reading the other day that there was wanted in the Northwest for this year, 18,000 bulls, and that the demand was likely to be kept up for years, as they cannot raise them as well in the Northwest as they can in Ontario. Now I will not detain you any longer as there are quite a number of speakers to address you.

I would wish all or any of you to ask any questions that you like for more information from any speaker, as often the greatest information comes out in the discussion

There will be an opportunity given to give your names to join the Institute during the meeting. We should have 500 members in this county instead of 100.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Raynor, whose subject was "Milk Producing Foods." He first dwelt upon the value of milk producing foods, recommending clover hay, corn, peas, or a mixture of peas and oats. For the production of milk clover should be cut when in full bloom or not later than when one-third of the heads have turned brown. If left later the hay is not so rich. It is turning to seed.

Peas and oats should also be cut on the green side, when they are in the most succulent condition. He advised sowing peas about four days before oats, so that they would come up together. Corn is one of the best and cheapest foods for the dairy cow. It should be cut when in the glazed condition. Turnips should be fed judiciously. He would consider 30 lbs. per day a judicious amount of turnips. He did not believed in the theory that turnips fed after milking would not flavour the butter.

A great deal of interest was taken in this subject and many good points were brought out.

Mr. Sheppard spoke on "Grafting and Budding," and gave effect to his remarks by practical illustrations, making the different processes very plain to all present. He also explained how to trim a tree, warning those present against cutting the limbs off too close, rather leave a little projection; in any case never cut so close as to cut the swell around the limb. Never plant a tree with a crotch, make up your mind which half of the top must go and cut it off. Or if you have already planted one lose no time in cutting off part of it. A man should trim an orchard annually. Butchering trees once in five years, he pointed out, resulted in wood growing and not in fruit bearing.

In grafting cut your scions from good bearing trees on a soft day in February or March and put them away in sawdust in the cellar until time for grafting, which must be done between the time when the sap starts and the buds burst. Never use the end of a twig for a scion as the buds are poorly developed. Plums should be grafted very early. Cherries can be grafted but do not often succeed. Budding should be done in the summer when trees are growing most thrifty. In making grafting wax he used one part beeswax, two parts resin, and four parts tallow. If too clammy add more tallow, or if too stiff add more resin. Strips of cotton dipped in linseed oil is a good substitute for grafting wax, and he always used it in whip grafting.

Mr. R. Honey gave his experience in the "Selection and Care of a Brood Sow and Young Pigs." This was a splendid address and contained many valuable hints to those present.

At the evening meeting the hall was crowded, there being a good representation of ladies. In addition to the addresses by the delegates the local committee had provided an excellent programme of music and recitations.

The President, Mr. Birdsall, occupied the chair, and called upon Mr. T. Blezard, M. P. P., who made a short but pleasing and appropriate opening speech.

After a song by Mr. F. C. Warr, which was loudly applauded, Mr. Stonehouse, who is at present in charge of the creamery at Westwood, read a well prepared paper on "Winter Dairying."

It was followed by an instrumental selection by the Messrs. and Miss Comstock.

After they had responded to an encore Mr. Raynor gave an address on "Evolution in Agriculture." He referred to the evolution that had taken place in the taking off a crop—from sickle to the self-binder—in dairying, butter-making and cheese-making, in apple-culture, in tilling the soil, etc.

A solo by Miss Blezard was well received and she was recalled and rendered another popular selection.

Mr. Honey then gave an address on "Why farmers complain of hard times."

A recitation by Miss Aggie McGrath called forth hearty applause and cries of "encore."

Major Sheppard was introduced and gave an address on "Three historical days on the Niagara River." The speaker resides at Queenston, and his address was of a historical and patriotic character and very interesting. He sketched incidents of the war of 1812, giving graphic descriptions of the battle of Queenston Heights, Beaver Dam, and Lundy's Lane, which marked the three historical days on the Niagara River. The Major's lecture held the closest attention of the audience.

It was followed by a song by Mr. Ed. Christie, which was much appreciated.

A vote of thanks to the speakers and those who took part in the programme, and the singing of the national anthem brought the meeting to a close.

As a result of this series of meetings over seventy persons became members of the Institute. The receipts, in addition to members fees amounted to $21 35. The fee of 10c. had the effect of increasing the membership and kept any who had no interest in the meetings other than to make disturbance away.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

HOCKEY.

On Saturday afternoon a number of the young ladies who took so much enjoyment out of hockey last year, assembled in the rink parlours and formally organized for the season. The colours of the club will be black and white, and the hours for practice will be between five and six o'clock on Fridays.

At the meeting of the Canadian Hockey Association the Quebec goal scheme is not meeting with a great deal of favour, but there is a general disposition to wait and see what points the originators have to claim as advantages. None of the Montreal players has a kind word for the new goal. The goalkeepers say that it will make their work more difficult, and the forward men say that it will make the playing space longer and make the games rougher, on account of work at the end of the rinks. There is another point, unless Quebec has some means of overcoming this drawback, the goalkeeper will be too near the crowd and it would be a very easy matter in an exciting match for some enthusiast to lean over and push him out of the way when a shot was coming in. Of course the originators of the idea may have some means of preventing this.

Then again, it will be an easy matter to body a goalkeeper into the net, and a serious injury might follow. If the puck went past the goals an inch or so and the goalkeeper scooped it out again, who could tell whether a game had been scored or not? One player suggests that the goal be left in the present position, and a black mark be made from post to post, showing clearly where the goal line is. This, he considers, would be of great benefit to an umpire at all times. It would clearly show when the puck had passed the posts and help the umpire out.

CURLIANA.

The rink opens this evening for curling, and doubtless the Thistles will be out in force.

THE KENNEL.

Messrs. Hiram Walker & Sons, of Walkerville, with their usual generosity have donated a cheque of ten dollars towards the prize list for the Bench Show.

Mr. C. B. McAllister, President of the Kennel Club, will donate a handsome silver medal to the list of special prizes offered at the Bench Show.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 8—Poison caused the death on Saturday in San Francisco of the most famous Irish setter dog in the United States, champion Dick Swiveler, owned by A. B. Truman. The dog was found dead and an examination revealed unmistakeable evidence of poisoning. The identity of the person or persons responsible for the destruction of the animal is unknown.

Champion Dick Swiveler, as a bench show dog, was the most famous of his breed ever shown in this country. He was by Champion Bruce, out of Leigh Doane II, and had won first prizes wherever shown. He was whelped on August 5th, 1893. Truman bought Swiveler in the East some years ago, and in bench shows on the west coast the dog repeated without difficulty his many winnings in the East.

Don't chain your dog.
Don't feed your dog small bones.
Don't let your dog suffer with fleas.
Don't kick your dog if you wish him to obey you.
Don't give raw milk to puppies; always boil or scald it.
Don't feed a dog candy or sweets. It often produces fits.
Don't forget that flies annoy your dog as much as they do you.
Don't allow your dog to roam the streets because he has a license.
Don't allow stale water to go down the dog's throat while in confinement.
Don't fail to have a regular time for exercising, feeding and caring for your dog.
Don't fail to see that your dog has sufficient bedding to keep himself warm and that it is clean.
Don't allow your dog to bark and howl at night. He can be broken of the habit easily and quickly.
Don't fail to give your dog a bath, but be sure his coat is thoroughly dried before exposing him to the cold air.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

ENGLAND IN EARNEST

Emperor William Thinks Britain Is Showing Unusual Tenacity.

SCENE IN FRENCH CHAMBER.

Deputies Rose During a Dreyfus Interpellation and Rushed at One Another—Protest of the Premier—Picquart Riots in the City—Comte Esterhazy Willing to Testify—Cable News.

London, Dec. 13.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says: "I have not been able to procure an authentic record of Emperor William's conversation with the Reichstag officials, but I have reason to believe that it covered a large field in foreign politics. The Emperor, I understand, discussed the eventuality of a serious Anglo-French conflict, expressing the opinion that England was in earnest and was pursuing her political objects with unusual tenacity, as the United States did before the late war."

HOT TIME IN PARIS.

A Violent Uproar in the French Chamber of Deputies—The Premier Called From the Tribune.

Paris, Dec. 13.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, M. Grousset, Radical Socialist, interpellated the Government on the directions of the general staff in the Dreyfus affair. He read extracts from newspaper articles, which are alleged to have emanated from members of the general staff, which caused a violent uproar, during which the Deputies rose and rushed at one another and engaged in a series of fist fights.

M. Grousett continued his remarks in the midst of this tumult, and recalled an article in the Intransigeant, referring to letters from Emperor William and an interview between Count von Munster, the German ambassador at Paris, and M. Cassimir Perrier, the former President of the Republic.

The Premier Protested.

The Premier, M. Dupuy, said that, as head of the Government, he protested with the utmost energy against the language of the speaker, who, he added, had not measured its possible effect. (Great applause.)

M. Deroulede, revisionist, shouted, "Come off the Tribune!"

This caused a redoublement of the uproar.

When semi-quiet had been restored, M. Grousset said the centre of resistance to the revision of the Dreyfus case was no longer the Ministry of War. It was elsewhere. As to the secret documents in the case, he pointed out that they had been ridiculed by Emperor William himself. Russia and Austria were also mixed up in the affair.

The Minister of War, M. de Freycinet, repudiated M. Grousset's allegations.

M. Dupuy asked the Chamber to close the discussion and adopt the order of the day, which was done by a vote of 463 to 78.

The House then adjourned.

"Spit Upon Picquart."

Paris, Dec. 13.—M. Millevoye and the Comte de Ramel, both members of the Chamber of Deputies, headed an anti-Dreyfus demonstration yesterday afternoon. They marched to the Cherche Midi Prison, where Col. Picquart is confined. On the police interfering, they said they had achieved their object, of being able to shout "Spit upon Picquart!" who could hear them from the window of the prison.

Troops Under Arms.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The city is greatly excited, and the troops are under arms. Col. Picquart's release is still delayed, owing to the judicial quibbles between the civil and military authorities.

Esterhazy Will Testify.

Paris, Dec. 13.—Comte Esterhazy has written M. Mateau, president of the Court of Cassation, declaring his readiness, if granted a safe conduct, to appear before the court, to be confronted with all the witnesses, and to defend his own honor and that of the late Col. Henry.

SCANDINAVIAN FRICTION.

The Trouble Between Norway and Sweden Seems to Be Growing.

Stockholm, Dec. 13.—Dagens Nyheter says that at a meeting of the Norwegian Cabinet, held Sunday, it was resolved to ask the King to sign a decree legalizing the decision of the Storthing, establishing a separate Norwegian flag. The paper adds that if the King does not accede to this request the Ministers will resign.

The Bitterness Increasing.

Christiana, Dec. 13.—The feeling between Sweden and Norway keeps increasing at a dangerous rate. At the bottom of the quarrel is the Norwegian sentiment that Sweden has the best of the union and all the benefits, while Norwegian independence is curtailed.

The Swedish army consists of 105,000 men. The Norwegian army consists of only 43,000. Sweden has six battleships and Norway two; Sweden four cruisers and Norway one, with a similar disparity in other vessels; yet, notwithstanding how absurdly unequal a struggle would be, war is actually discussed.

To any other alternative except that of continuing the present conditions, namely, the peaceful severance of the Scandinavian union, Sweden will not consent. Measures are talked of, on King Oscar's instigation, which will make his Norwegian subjects more contented.

Blow to Anglo-American Trade.

Antwerp, Dec. 13.—The Government has proposed in Parliament a bill abolishing the customs pre-emption system applied in the case of disputed ad valorem declarations—a system which is the importer's only safeguard. The Anglo-American Chamber of Commerce considers that trade between England and America and Belgium is seriously threatened, importers under the proposed law being exposed to official caprice, and has petitioned Lord Salisbury to intervene.

A Marvellous Change.

London, Dec. 13.—The Pekin correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "An Imperial rescript, just issued, sentences to death a Chinese litterateur who wrote threatening letters to a foreign missionary in Kiang Si, and confers high Chinese honors on the missionary for his tact and forbearance in the matter. The idiot astonished the Chinese, and the action of the Empress Dowager is likely to have salutary effect."

Sir William Jenner Dead.

London, Dec. 13.—Sir William Jenner, the distinguished pathologist and physician-in-ordinary to the Queen and the Prince of Wales, died yesterday.

The late Sir William Jenner was born at Chatham in 1815, and who was president of the Royal College of Physicians from 1881 to 1889, when he retired from the practice of his profession. He was the first to establish beyond dispute the difference in kind between typhus and typhoid fevers.

Keats' Grave in Rome.

London, Dec. 13.—In consequence of information having been received from Rome that the grave of Keats, in the outskirts of that city, may be destroyed in order to construct a new road, representations are to be made to the municipal authorities to prevent any desecration. Failing this, some of the poet's admirers are considering the suggestion that his ashes should be brought home to England for interment.

Want the Term Extended.

Cairo, Dec. 13.—The Egyptian Government is about to send a circular to the powers proposing that the terms of the mixed tribunals, which end on Feb. 1, be prolonged for a year. The mixed tribunals were instituted in 1875 to deal with civil actions between persons of different nationalities and with crimes committed by foreigners.

A CRISIS AT HAND.

The G. T. R. Company and Its Telegraph Operators.

COMPANY STATES ITS CASE.

General Manager Hays Says He Wants to Know Definitely With Whom He Is Dealing—Graud Chief, W. V. Powell, Arrives in Montreal—Agree to Mr. Hays' Demand.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—Mr. Charles M. Hays, general manager of the G.T.R. system, has given out the following:

"As there have recently appeared in the daily press a number of statements relative to the position of the company towards its agents and operators calculated to mislead, it is thought desirable to make a plain statement of the existing situation. While preferring to deal directly with the employes engaged in the Grand Trunk service, rather than through the medium of outside organizations, the present management has never declined to receive and hear properly constituted committees representing the various classes of its employes upon matters in connection with its rules, regulations, etc. It does not decline to do so in this instance, but, having received the assurance of a large number of its agents and operators that the committee now presenting a schedule of rules and regulations which they propose should be adopted for the governance of these employes, does not represent them and is not authorized to speak for them, it does not appear improper to require that some definite evidence of the authority which they claim should be produced before proceeding to the consideration of the schedule of rules and regulations desired. The management is making inquiry of all its agents and operators as to whether or not the committees are authorized and have the power to represent them and act for them, and upon receiving satisfactory assurance such is the case it will be quite willing to give the schedule presented by the committee further consideration.

"All the management desire is to be satisfied that any understanding arrived at with the committee will be fully observed by the agents and operators in its employ."

Mr. W. V. Powell, Grand Chief of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, who arrived in the city yesterday morning, attend at once a meeting of the committee of Grand Trunk employes which has been endeavoring to secure redress of the grievances of the telegraphers. The meeting was called on Mr. Powell's arrival and remained in session all morning.

Mr. Powell, being interviewed, said: "As Grand Chief of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, I am opposed to strikes, except as a last resort. There seems to be a general impression that my arrival in the city is to be signal for a strike among the employes of the Grand Trunk. This is altogether a wrong impression. The order is always willing to do anything in its power to avert a strike. I regard it as my first duty to try and arrange a meeting with Mr. Hays, general manager of the Grand Trunk, and make every effort to secure a settlement of this difficulty before resort to extreme measures is even mooted."

"But has not Mr. Hays refused to recognize the committee in its representative capacity"

"I understand that Mr. Hays has taken that ground," said Mr. Powell, "but the question of credential was only raised by Mr. Hays a week or ten days ago. He did not take that ground two months ago when the committee arrived here. He then referred the committee to Mr. McGuigan, the general superintendent. If he could not admit the credentials of the committee he should have made that objection a month ago. The delay which has taken place has been due to the dilatory tactics of the management of the Grand Trunk."

"Has not Mr. Hays absolutely refused to recognize or discuss this matter with the representatives of the Order of Railway Telegraphers?"

"Yes, he has so far, I understand, but I hope that he will not persist in maintaining that position. We do not want to see a strike on the Grand Trunk, and if one does become necessary it will only be after every means of securing redress has been exhausted. The responsibility for a strike, if one does take place, will not rest with us, but with the management of the Grand Trunk. The arbitrary action of the officials in refusing to discuss the grievances of the men would of course necessitate recourse to extreme measures, but you can rest assured that every means in our power will be exhausted before any decision to strike will be arrived at. My first business in Montreal, after I have conferred with the committee, will be to make an effort to secure a meeting with Mr. Hays in order to discuss the whole question with him."

Mr. Hays' Terms Accepted.

Later.—Late yesterday afternoon the Telegraphers' Committee, with Mr. Powell at their head, had an interview with Mr. Hays, agreeing to abide by the general manager's decision, and to bring evidence of their authority to represent the operators in the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway.

Niblock Gets Three Years.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—John T. Niblock, local superintendent of the London Insurance Company, who admitted several charges of forgery, was yesterday morning sentenced by Magistrate O'Gara to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

Emigrants From Minnesota.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 13.—Four delegates who returned to Minnesota yesterday say that fully 200 families will move to the Northwest from Minnesota and Wisconsin next spring and locate near Edmonton.

Suicided at Whitewood.

Winnipeg, Dec. 13.—John T. Nelson, an ex-bank cashier of London, England, and son of the late Joseph Nelson, Hudson Bay Railway promoter, suicided on his farm at Whitewood, Assiniboia, by taking strychnine.

Perfectly Cured

Weak and Low Spirited—Nervous Prostration—Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments." G. A CUSTOM REVENUE OF $35,000,000.

A total customs revenue of $35,000,000 is something that Canada has never yet experienced, but at the present rate of trade expansion, and in spite of the substantial reductions that have been made in the tariff there is every indication that the present fiscal year will net this amount. So far the monthly average since July 1st, has been $2,113,927, the five months receipts exceeding those of 1894-95 by $3,340,650, the monthly collections in that year only averaging $1,445,789; the total receipts for the five month periods in the last five years are as follows: 1894-95. $7,228,946; 1895-96, $8,404,308; 1896-97, $8,088,105; 1897-98, $8,480,481; 1898-99, $10,569,006. So that the revenue of the present year exceeds that of 1896-97 by $2,481,500. and the previous year by $2,165,300.

THE NEW IMPERIAL POSTAGE STAMP.

Owing to the interest which has been created over the new Imperial penny postage stamp now in course of manufacture, and the urgency of the demand for its immediate issuance, the Postmaster General has decided to place it on sale just as soon as the contractors can run out a supply. Originally it was intended to be first used on Christmas Day, when the Imperial penny postage rate will come into operation, but this latest decision of the Department will result in its appearance right away, though of course the two cents rate through the Empire will not become operative before Christmas Day. As soon as issued the new stamp can be used at its face value for all purposes.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

OTTAWA is moving. At last Monday's meeting of the city council that body by a large majority voted to reduce the number of aldermen to two for each ward.

THE pursuit of Mr. Sifton by the Opposition has, says the Regina Leader, become so venomous and unfair that instead of doing him harm it is doing him good. Lies may injure a man for a little while, but never permanently.

SIR HIBBERT TUPPER urges inquiry into the "Yukon charges" by a Parliamentary or Royal Commission. Sir Hibbert knows he is talking buncombe so long as no specific charge of wrong-doing is brought against any Dominion official in the Yukon. Somebody robs a bank, but the courts can hardly take action on such a general statement. Somebody must be accused. Let Sir Hibbert bring some defined charge, and he will find the Government as ready to meet it as he is to bring it.

JUST A WORD FOR MOTHER.

As the season of cheer draws near, it behooves the wandering boy to recall the days of his childhood, and think of his best friend on earth—his mother. It is two weeks before Santa Claus swoops down upon us; a trifle laid aside every day till then will buy a present for mother that will make her eyes rain. Most of us owe more to mother than we have courage to admit, yet we wander away from home, meet and mix with new friends, and but seldom cast a thought back to the one whose prayers always go up for us, no matter how unworthy we may be. Forget that new-found and untried friend and spend your money on a present for mother If you have not the money, buy a stamp, and write home and say:—"Mother, I love you still." If you can get home, go; for another Christmas may find you mourning for your mother. Anyhow, anyhow, let your mother have the best you have this Christmas.

THE BUTTER TRADE.

One of the most encouraging features of Canadian trade with Great Britain is the rapidity with which our shipments of butter are increasing, as also the high position which the Canadian article now holds in the British market. The portion of the trade which we enjoy is still very small relatively, only some $2 000,000 worth out of $77,000,000, but in the near future we are destined to secure a very much larger share. This will be seen from the following statement of exports from Montreal from May 1 to the week ending November 19:—

	Packages of Butter.
1897	216,458
1898	263,603
Increase. 17,145.

The following figures showing the exports from Montreal during the season of navigation are even more striking:

	Packages of Butter.
1894	32,065
1895	64,054
1896	107,321
1897	220,300
1898	263,603

'To Nov. 19.

Even more satisfactory are the market quotations, which show that Canadian creamery is now quoted at same prices as finest Danish butter. This statement the following quotations amply bear out:

MARKET REPORTS.
Hodgson Bros., Montreal.
AUGUST, 1898.

Finest Danish	100 to 105
Canadian Creamery	72 to 85

AUGUST, 1898.

Finest Danish	84 to 92
Canadian Creamery	76 to 85

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN REPORT.
AUGUST, 1898.

London Market, Canadian	86 to 94
London Market, Danish	76 to 94

Little Denmark has hitherto supplied about one-half the butter imported by Great Britain, but Canada, it is safe to assume, will insist for the future on a much more equitable division of the trade.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Mrs. W. Rowe, of Woodstock, Tells a Thrilling Story.

Prostrated by Female Weaknesses. Kidney and Liver Troubles—Her Doctors Gave Her up to Die—Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, Ont. Dec. 12—Mrs. W. Rowe, who keeps a grocery store at No. 311 Dundas street, here, and who is known to and respected by, a very large number of people in the town, had a very narrow escape from an untimely death, recently.

To our reporter, who called on the lady, and asked for particulars of the incident, Mrs. Rowe said:

"I have had an experience such as fall to the lot of very few women. Twelve years of my life were made almost unendurable by 'Female Weakness,' together with Kidney and Liver Complaints.

"My physicians did all they could for me, but they could not give me either relief or cure. They finally announced to me that I could never get better.

"Then I began to try what the various proprietory medicines that were advertised in the papers, would do for me. I took a good many bottles of one remedy and another, but my case continually grew worse.

"One day I was advised by a friend to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. 'They will cure you, I know, for they saved my daughter's life, and she was worse than you are.'

"Well, I took her advice. In two days a wonderful change for the better had occurred. I felt myself growing stronger daily. My appetite returned, the dull, heavy, weary ache went out of my back; the terrible leaden weight from my legs, my headaches vanished, my sleep became sound and refreshing. To-day I am healthier, stronger and better every way than I have been for twenty years.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine on earth for weak, sickly and suffering women."

COLLISON WAS WITH SNELL.

Ottawa Man's Story of Last Time He Saw the Cornwall Man.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—James A. Collison, who was with Donald Snell of Brockville at Rose Point the night of his disappearance, is a resident of Ottawa. Mr. Collison returned to Ottawa some days ago. His story of the night of the disappearance is as follows:

Snell's disappearance dates from the night of Nov. 2. Four brakeman left Depot Harbor to go to Rose Point, three miles distant. William Morgan, James Collison, Charles Dickson and Donald Snell composed the party. Dickson came as far as Rose Point and then returned, as he had to go out on a train that night. The other three men had been drinking, and Snell was in a badly intoxicated condition. At Rose Point they had a scuffle, and afterwards Snell started to return to Depot Harbor. Morgan and Collison intended sleeping in the flag station, and Mr. Collison says the last he saw of Snell was when Snell was reeling along the track towards the bridge across the channel. In the morning Morgan went out and found Snell's coat lying near the station, and on the bridge Collison found Snell's hat. Snell had left the party about 12 o'clock at night, and his hat was found at 6.30 a.m.

Mr. Collison says a man answering Snell's description was seen next morning walking without a coat. A squaw is said to have seen Snell during the next day. Mr. Collison offers no solution for the disappearance, but says he is certain that the last he saw of Snell was when the latter reeled toward the bridge across the channel.

Almost every man in America has some digestive trouble. When men meet the greeting usually is, "Well how are you?" That develops health talk. The man who has no stomach or bowel trouble is almost a curiosity. Trouble is men take no care of themselves. They eat as though they had copper stomachs and bowels of brass. By and by overworked nature rebels. Then come headaches, nervousness, bad blood, liver and kidney troubles. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets furnish help for constipation and torpid liver, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, sour stomach, loss of appetite, indigestion or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Accept no substitute.

LIBERAL VICTORY SURE.

Three Ministers Address Meetings in East Northumberland—The Voting Will Be on Wednesday.

Colborne, Dec. 13.—The bye-election campaign in the riding of East Northumberland is drawing to a close, and unless all signs fail the voting of to-morrow will add another to the unbroken array of Liberal victories which have resulted from the bye-elections so far held. Seven Liberal meetings were held in the riding last night. Three of these, Colborne, Campbellford and Hastings, were addressed by members of the Government—Hon. Richard Harcourt at this place, Hon. E. J. Davis at Campbellford, and Hon. John Dryden at Hastings. The campaign will close to-night with the following Liberal meetings: Castleton, Hon. E. J. Davis and Mr. S. Clarke, M.P.P.; Cobourg Road, Mr. Thomas Blezard, M.P.P., and Mr. L. F. Clarry; Hilton, Mr. E. C. S. Huycke, Cobourg, and Dr. Symmons, Frankford; Hart's Corners, Messrs. Frank Webb and George White of Trenton; Brighton, Messrs. George Graham, M.P.P., and W. F. Kerr of Cobourg. The Conservatives are apathetic, and seemingly hopeless.

MARKET WEAKER.

The Wheat Markets Went on the Decline—A Good-Sized Increase of the Visible—The Prices.

Monday Evening, Dec. 12.

Liverpool wheat futures to-day closed about unchanged from Saturday's final figures. Paris wheat eased off 20 to 25 centimes to-day.

Chicago wheat futures evinced a rallying inclination early to-day, but closed ⅛c to ¼c per bushel lower than Saturday's last quotations.

Visible and Afloat.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has increased 2,623,000 bushels; that of corn has decreased 2,518,000 bushels, and that of oats has decreased 183,000 bushels. To recapitulate, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 54,178,000 bushels, against 50,187,000 bushels a week ago and 68,584,000 bushels a year ago.

Toronto St. Lawrence Market.

Receipts of farm produce were very light to-day—700 bushels of grain and 25 loads of hay being the bulk of deliveries.

Wheat steady; 100 bushels sold at 67c for red, and 65c for goose.

Barley easy; 150 bushels sold at 49c to 50c.

Oats easier, 400 bushels selling at 30½c.

Hay steady, 25 loads selling at $9 to $10 per ton for timothy, and $6 to $8 for clover.

Straw unchanged, being worth from $7 to $8 per ton.

Montreal Live Stock.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—The receipts of cattle at the East End Abattoir this morning were 600 head of cattle, 60 calves and 700 sheep and lambs, 50 hogs. The demand was very good, and the following prices were firmly maintained: Good cattle sold at from 4c to 4½c per lb; lower grades from 2½c to 3½c per lb. Calves brought from $2 to $8 as to size. Sheep were sold from 3c to 3½c per lb, for choice and culls from 2½c to 3c per lb. Lambs sold at from 4c to 4½c per lb. Hogs, selected, sold at $4.50, heavy fat $4.25, light stockers $4.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, Dec. 12.—Cattle—Prices of all desirable kinds ruled steady and under grades easy. The total offerings were 190 loads. There were 21 loads of Canada stockers on the market, and a rather light demand, at barely steady prices. Calves opened on the basis of $7, but declined on the close to $6.50. The close was easy. Choice to fancy Christmas steers, $5.50 to $6.20; good to best smooth, fat export cattle, $5.25 to $5.50; good to best, $5 to $5.25; export bulls, $4; good to choice butcher steers, $4.75 to $5; good to best fat heifers, $4 to $4.25; fair to good heifers, $3.60 to $4; stockers, choice to extra quality, $3.75 to $4; common to good do., $3.60 to $3.85; stock heifers, $3; feeders, good to extra, $3.75 to $4.20; common to good, $3.50 to $3.60.

Sheep and Lambs—There were too many lambs on sale for the prevailing conditions of the market to-day. There was a heavy fall of snow and much of the stock delayed, and 92 loads on sale, including 18 loads of Canada lambs, which sold at $4.20 to $4.30. The basis of choice to extra western lamb prices was $5.25 to $5.35, or 15c to 25c lower than on Saturday. Choice to extra were quotable at $5.25 to $5.35; good to choice, $5 to $5.25; common to good, $4.75 to $5. Sheep, choice to extra, $4 to $4.25; good to choice, $3.75 to $4; common to good, $2.80 to $3.50; feeder lambs, $5 to $5.15. At the close there were several loads left over.

British Markets.

Liverpool, Dec. 12.—(12.30.)—No. 1 Cal., 6s 10d to 6s 10½d; red winter, 6s 2d; No. 1 Northern, spring, 6s 0½d; corn, 3s 8½d; peas, 5s 10½d; pork, 50s; lard, 28s; tallow, 19s 9d; bacon, heavy, l.c., 20s; light, 28s; short cut, 29s 6d; cheese, white, 47s; colored, 48s.

Liverpool—Close—Spot wheat steady, with No. 1 Northern at 6s 0½d; red winter futures, 5s 9½d for Dec., nominal for Jan. and Feb. and 5s 8¾d for March. Spot maize quiet at 3s 8¼d. Futures quiet at 3s 6½d for Dec. and 3s 6¾d for March. Flour, 19s.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

It Hangs On

If it was only health, we might let it cling.

But it is a cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time.

And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption with the long sickness, and life trembling in the balance.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

THE SHIP CANAL.

The Senate Discusses the Nicaraguan Question—A Momentous Bill Introduced in the House.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 13.—In the Senate yesterday afternoon Mr. Morgan called up the Nicaraguan Canal bill and spoke at length in approval of it. He said the question of British intervention was very remote. It was only conjured in the minds of those who doubted the wisdom of a canal.

Mr. Hoar differed from Mr. Morgan, and suggested that the clause relating to the neutrality of the canal be amended so as to read: "Except to nations at war with the United States."

Mr. Morgan said he would accept the amendment. No Senator should vote against the bill on this account.

In reply to a question, Mr. Morgan said that he didn't believe it would be competent for the United States, independent of any corporation, to proceed to the construction of the canal under the treaty of 1867.

Representative Hepburn of Iowa introduced in the House yesterday a bill authorizing the President to acquire by purchase from the States of Costa Rica and Nicaragua full ownership, jurisdiction and sovereignty of such land as may be desirable and necessary to construct and defend a ship canal. The President is also directed to construct such a canal and appropriate $140,000,000 to complete it.

SAM WOULD TELL NOTHING.

Parslow as a Crown Witness Was a Dead Failure.

St. Scholastique, Que., Dec. 13.—Attendance at court was very small yesterday. The first witnesses called were Coroner Mignault and High Constable Brazeau, who heard the confession of the prisoner in the judge's room. They were behind a screen and heard everything. They both corroborated Detective McCaskill's evidence.

Sam Parslow was again put in the box in the afternoon as a witness of the Crown, who had been served with a notice to produce some letters that he may have received from the accused. He maintained his same position, and his only answer to all questions was: "I have nothing; I will not answer." All efforts to make him reply being in vain, he was conducted to his cell.

Parslow's mother, who is 80 years of age, was present when her son was in the witness box. She was greatly moved and shed abundant tears.

The reading of the depositions is now finished.

Two new witnesses were called, but told nothing of importance, and the court adjourned for the day.

IRISHMEN OPPOSE IT.

Justin McCarthy Lectured and Spoke in Favor of an Anglo-American Alliance—What He Said.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 13.—Justin McCarthy, who is in America lecturing in the interests of Ireland, and who spoke in Atlanta on the "Victorian Age of English Literature," has been snubbed and criticized by Atlanta Irishmen because of his views favoring an Anglo-American alliance, as expressed in a lecture Saturday night. He declares himself in favor of such an alliance, and many leading Irishmen of this city are severely criticizing the visitor.

It was proposed to honor Mr. McCarthy at a banquet in Atlanta, but Irishmen put on the committee of arrangements decline to serve, giving as a reason that no true friends of Ireland can favor an English alliance with the United States. The dissatisfaction resulted in the banquet and other entertainments contemplated being called off. The incident has stirred the Atlanta Irish colony to the greatest pitch.

Mr. McCarthy addressed an immense audience at the Grand Opera House, where his utterances were enthusiastically received by Americans, but coldly listened to by many Irish people in the house. Among other things he said: "I am an advocate of a close friendship and an understanding between the two great English-speaking countries of the world. The people of England are friendly toward the United States. Even the war of the American Revolution was a war of ministry and not of a people against the colonies. The Earl of Chatham and his associates represented the feelings of England at that time, and it was the stubbornness and madness of the King and his closest advisers which led England into war with her colonies.

"If the two countries form an alliance they will shape the destiny of the world. The influences of American free institutions will be felt in England and will aid Home Rule for Ireland."

It is this language to which the Atlanta Irish object. James Gillespie, who is among those who refused to serve on the banquet committee, said: "It is true I was one of the committee to entertain Mr. McCarthy. On account of his views on the proposed English-American alliance, the committee declined to act. The Irishmen of this country are a unit against the much-talked-of alliance. They see that England is on her knees begging for an alliance, and it has always been the motto of patriotic sons of Ireland that England's difficulty is Ireland's opportunity. The hope of all Irishmen is to see America steer clear of entangling alliances with England."

Old England's Flag vs. Dr. A. W. Chase.

The virtues of D. Chase's remedies are known the world over and like old England's Flag the sun on them never sets.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, Kidney-Liver Pills, Catarrh Cure, Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and Liver Cure enjoy the confidence of everybody. They have won their way into the public favor on merit. Their stirling qualities and high standing and purity have made them the household word all around the world. All dealers sell and recommend them.

Muscular Rheumatism.

Mr. H. Wilkinson, Stratford, Ont., writes: "I experienced great relief from muscular rheumatism by using two bottles of Milburn's Rheumatism Pills. They are a splendid remedy." Price 50c., all druggists

The Midgets

The world's greatest Midgets are coming to Peterborough next week and will be on exhibition at Grafton & Co.'s Clothing Store. If you never saw Tom Thumb, be sure and see these two Lilliputians: Major Winner, age 29, height, 36 inches, weight 42 lbs.; and Mrs. Winner, aged 21 years, height 35 inches, weight 40 lbs. Messrs. Grafton & Co. are treating you to this rare and interesting exhibition free of charge. Watch for them next Monday.

The Drawing Card.

No such opportunity has occurred for years to procure dress goods, staple dry goods and millinery of the same quality at such reasonable prices as that afforded by Messrs. R. H. Kells & Co.'s closing-out sale. In fact it is the "drawing card" of the season in this line. An imperative necessity exists for clearing the entire stock without delay on account of the firm deciding to retire from business. Cost price and even lower will not be a barrier to this sale. Holiday gift bargains is also stimulating this sale, and crowds of ladies find much that is appropriate for Christmas presents as well as regular wants. eodw

All Fruit Should be Washed.

Every grocer in Peterborough can sell cleaned fruit, but they cannot furnish them washed, stemmed and dried, which is so thoroughly done by E. F. Mason's electric process and sold as "Crescent" brand, because water is not allowed to remain on the fruit long enough to injure it in the least. By this means it is much better done than by hand, when it is washed in two or three changes of water, allowing it to soak and spoil its flavour

OTONABEE LODGE'S 18TH ANNIVERSARY.

It Was Observed Last Evening In the Lodge Rooms.

MEMBERS AT HOME TO FRIENDS.

An Excellent Programme Furnished—The Rooms Were Crowded—Refreshments Served—Afterwards an Informal Hop Was Held.

The sixteenth anniversary of the resuscitation of Otonabee Lodge of Independent Oddfellows was observed last evening, when the members were "at home" to large number of their friends in the spacious apartments of the Lodge on George street.

The entertainments of this nature given in former years by Otonabee Lodge have always proven so enjoyable that an early hour last evening the rooms were crowded. A programme of unusual merit was provided and was introduced by Dr. Bell, a Past Grand of the Lodge, who occupied the chair, and accorded a hearty welcome to those present in a few well chosen words.

An orchestra composed of seven pieces was present and opened the programme with a very finely executed selection. The orchestra was composed of Miss McCabe, piano; Miss Bell, violin; W. E. Loch, violin; J. Butcher, flute; Prof. Gliddon, cornet, and E. Hodgson, clarionet. Mr. Walden then led a chorus in the rendering of "The Maple Leaf," after which Strelitzki's instrumental, "Happy Days," was most pleasingly given by a trio composed of Prof. Gliddon, W. Loch and J. Butcher. Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., followed with one of his very amusing comic songs and Mr. J. Wesley Miller recited the selection "She Wakes" in a most impressive manner. A vocal number contributed by Mr. Walden was a most attractive addition to the programme, as were several humourous selections given during the evening by Mr. George H. Adams, with guitar accompaniment. Amongst thes were "A Steamer in the T.V.C.," "The Undertaker has Him Now," "Wet Grass County" and "The Hungry Man from Millbrook." A very fine exhibition of Indian club swinging was given by Mr. Andrews.

Mr. Butcher's well executed flute solo was fully appreciated, as were Mr. James Dawson's vocal solos. Mr. Garvin's reading commanded the close attention of the audience, which it merited, and Mr. D. Walker's selection from James Russell Lowell was also well received.

At the conclusion of the musical portion of the programme refreshments were served the guests and afterwards adjournment was made to the dancing hall, where, for a couple of hours, the younger guests amused themselves in paying tribute to Terpischore.

THEY ARE WINNERS.

And Can be Seen for a Few Days at Grafton & Co.'s.

Mr. Conway, local manager for Grafton & Co., received the following original letter yesterday apologising for the non-appearance of "the Winners":

OWEN SOUND, ONT., Dec. 12th, 1898.

Manager Grafton & Co's Clothing Store, Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I suppose you have heard about us to be at your store next week. I drop you these lines to let you know that we cannot get there until monday evening the way the trains run. So anyone comming to the store looking for us you can tell them we shall be there tuesday morning.

Resp. yours,
N. G. W. WINNER.

The Hamilton Herald speaks as follows of the little pair:

"Major G. N. Winner and wife, of Montecello, Iowa, registered at one of the leading hotels yesterday. There was nothing strange about this fact, had it not been that Mr. Winner had to call for a chair on which to stand before he could indite his name on the hotel register. Major Winner is just 36 inches tall, or about the height of an ordinary three-year-old baby. He is a dapper little gentleman and a native of Michigan. Mrs. Winner is 35 inches tall, and like her husband is just what her name suggests.

"When Mr. Winner was given a room at his hotel last night a difficulty arose: it was found that the gas jet was beyond Mr. Winner's reach, and it was necessary to call in the porter and a lamp. The lamp was placed on the floor, where Mr. Winner douced it without over-reaching himself.

"The couple are now in Hamilton and are engaged at Grafton & Co's large clothing store advertising their wonderful values in all kinds of suits and overcoats."

A SOUTH END CLUB.

The "Grosvenor" has Reorganised for the Season.

The Grosvenor Club in the South End is cosily located on Lansdowne street this year and under the skilful management of Mr. W. Meagher a successful season this year is assured. A number of glove contests and other amusements are being arranged for the season.

The following officers have been elected;
President—M. Carrol.
Vice Pres.—W. O'Keefe.
Sec.-Treas.—W. Grady.

BIG PRICES FOR APPLES.

May Reach Five Dollars a Barrel in Winter—Sales at Ottawa Saturday.

According to Ottawa fruit dealers, who are well posted, the price of apples will reach $4 per barrel for the best grades before the new year. There is every probability also of the price going up to $5 before the season is closed. There is no stock arriving in the city and the retailers who have any are likely to hold out for the best prices. At the Ottawa Fruit Auction Co.' sale Saturday apples sold from $1.55 to $3.10 per barrel. The grades were not of the best.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

COUNTY COURT.

The Grand Jury is Now Out in Connection With the Ross Forgery Case.

The County Court and General Sessions of the Peace opened this afternoon at one o'clock before Judge Weller. The only criminal case on the docket was that of the Queen vs. Wm. Ross, who was committed last week for trial on a charge of forgery, having had a preliminary hearing before Police Magistrate Dumble.

The Grand Jury is composed as follows: Wm L Allen, Peterborough; Thos Howson, Dummer; Adam Humphries, (foreman); P McNulty, Asphodel; S R Price, John Rahally, Alex Stewart, Jas Wilson, Otonabee; Galvin Preston, M F Sanderson, Smith; and Jas Robson, Belmont.

After the grand jury had retired the first case taken up was that of Mrs. Seawright vs. the Queen—an appeal from a conviction by Magistrate Dumble.

Mr. E. B. Stone appears for the appellant, and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun for the respondent, Mr. F. W. Miller, who laid the information on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

COURSE IN BIBLE STUDY.

Which Will be Conducted by Rev. Mr. Symonds This Winter.

Rev. Mr. Symonds has kindly consented to take charge of a course in Bible study this winter under the auspices of the National Home Reading Union.

This class will be formed early in the new year and will be held on Saturday afternoons. It is intended to make it open to all who care to join and it is hoped that a large number will reserve this afternoon in making their arrangements for the winter months.

As Mr. Symonds has had a great deal of experience in these lines while in connection with Trinity University, the Reading Union is most fortunate in securing his services.

CHARITY BOARD.

A Largely Attended Meeting Held Last Evening in the Town Clerk's Office.

At a meeting of the Charity Board held last evening there were present Messrs. Robt. Innes, chairman, J. J. McBain, —— Barrie, J. H. Cobb, W. Yelland, F. Miller, Rev. Father Casey, P. Campbell, W. B. Bamford, T. H. Best, Jas. Fowler and Jos. Batten.

In regard to the matter of placing an old gentleman in the Peterborough Protestant Home, the chairman reported that there was no opening there.

On motion a cheque for $300 will be issued for the balance of the loan made by the town to the Board for the purchase of wood.

The Board adjourned until Friday, Dec. 30th.

DAILY TEMPERATURE RECORD

The following are readings of the official thermometers for this morning, as well as the highest and lowest yesterday—shade temperature:—

To-day, 7 a. m..... 8° below

	Highest.	Lowest.
Yesterday.....	12°	11°

At nine o'clock last night we had our first introduction to zero for this winter, and during the night the temperature sank to 10 below. About daylight it dropped another degree, and stood at 11 degrees below, being as low as any day of last December. At the noon hour the weather had moderated somewhat, but still marked 2 below. Prospects for a still lower reading to-night.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—The suggestion of Rev. Mr. Symonds in Saturday's EXAMINER in the matter of a Philharmonic Society or something of that kind is, I believe, a step in the right direction. From what can be judged from a short sojourn here, there is, or has been lately, a revival of musical life for which the town was once noted, and certainly their is from time to time an illustration given us of real musical talent—latent as yet, but which should be cultivated and brought into more publicity.

Opportunities for the public exercise of the musical talent under the best circumstances are not often afforded, and a society under a judicious management would, I believe, be of untold benefit in this direction. Surely some of the musical lights will not let this general feeling for advance—this splendid opportunity—slip by. One great difficulty is the lack of a music hall or suitable building for such an organization, but would not even that be overcome in answer to pressing demand? And, Mr. Editor, can you explain why there is not vocal culture continued in the schools? I say continued, because I understand it was once taught in all the rooms and is now taught in the Kindergartens, but ceases when the little ones graduate therefrom.

I believe most city schools have it, and yet we wonder at the high standard of musical talent displayed throughout the cities. And possibly it is found more useful than some of the many studies now gone through in monotonous drudgery. It brightens the other hours of study and cultivates the finer nature. No one can dispute the advantages it gives to all in after life.

Yours, etc.,
W. L. ARMITAGE.

Santa Claus has just been heard from. For the information of the Old Folks as well as the Young Folks we are at liberty to publish the following:—

DEAR MESSRS. STRATTON & CO.:

Just a line by telephone to say that I expect to be at the Peterborough Bookstore Saturday. Have had a splendid journey—the sleighing's so splendid! Beautiful cold weather. My loads were very heavy—but you asked for a bigger stock than ever and you've got it. Tell the police men to have the streets all clear for me, as the deer are very frisky. Won't it be jolly to meet all the dear children in the Grotto again! Put this in the newspapers and let the children knew about my reception in the Peterborough Bookstore all next week. Do you think your street cars will frighten my reindeer? "So long" till I see you and all the dear children. So long, so long.

Your faithful old friend,
SANTA.

THE THRILLING SEQUEL

TO THE ELOPEMENT WHICH TOOK PLACE TUESDAY.

George Doig and Wm. Hull in the Cells—The Husband Nails the Man Whom He Thinks Has His Wife.

The sequel to the alleged elopement, last week, took place to-day, when the deserted husband spied the gay Lothario whom he charges with having decoyed his bride away.

The denouement took place in a hotel yard, where William Hull was suddely pulled from his sleigh by George Doig and charged with having run awsy with the latter's wife.

There wasn't much time lost in exchanging words and the men fell upon one another like tigers. Before the police arrived both contestants were covered with gore and a big crowd followed them to the lockup.

Doig claims that since his wife left him last Tuesday he has traced her step by step out to Emily where Hull is cutting wood. He is sure she is there living with Hull and says that he can prove the plot was made on the market a week ago Saturday. Also that another meeting followed on Sunday.

Hull says he is innocent of the whole affair. That the wife is not with him in Emily and he doesn't want her.

The matter will be ventilated in the police court to-morrow morning.

HOCKEY.

W. J. Meagher, Napanee's star defence player, has taken up residence in Peterborough, being in the employ of Gough Bros.

The lacrosse boys will turn on the Ashburnham rink and see what material they can develop.

Every man on the Peterboroughs should attend the practices which are being held regularly on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

The players did not hold their meeting last evening for the purpose of selecting a captain.

The executive will hold a session this evening and select a secretary-treasurer. It is proposed to divide the offices again.

CURLIANA.

The Thistle skips and vice-skips met Wednesday evening at the rink to select their players for the season. The nature of the meeting is such that it is imperative for all to be present.

Work has not yet begun on the new glass room for spectators which is to be erected across the end of the east rinks.

A water tap is much needed in the ladies' dressing room.

The season was formally opened last evening when Mr. McIntosh announced that the ice was fit for use. The news did not get to the ears of many, but one rink filled and a game was played with the following result:

F Ritchie,	H Ritchie,
Geo Kerr,	A Terrill,
Geo Giroux,	R Kerr,
W L Allen,	Sam Ray,
T Ferguson, skip....15	C N Brown, skip....12

GAME CLUB WANTED.

Ontario would do well to take the example of Quebec and form a game and fish association. In Ontario, no matter what criticism may be offered, the game department is quite efficient. But with a society of high class sportsmen to assist, illegal hunting and fishing could be pretty well abolished.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

C. P. Moore, a Hamilton Manufacturer, Dies at the Brunswick.

The Ottawa Free Press contains the following in reference to the death of a traveller, who is well known in Peterborough and was in town last week:

Mr. C. P. Moore, a commercial traveller from Hamilton, was found dead in his bed in the Brunswick Hotel yesterday afternoon, shortly after five o'clock.

Mr. Moore arrived in the city on the early morning train and registered at the Brunswick Hotel shortly after seven o'clock, and as he expressed a wish for a quiet room, away from the noise of the street, he was assigned one on the second floor, in the rear of the building. He asked to be called at noon.

At the time indicated his door was rapped on, and no response was received. It was thought that as he had travelled during the night and was tired he wished to sleep more, and the room was not visited until five o'clock. At this hour another attempt was made to arouse him, but no response being forthcoming, Mr. Huckell was summoned, and in the presence of a policeman the door was burst open and the man was found dead in bed. Coroner Dr. Freeland was called, and after examination declared death was due to heart failure. Death had evidently been a painless one, as the condition of the clothes on the bed plainly showed. The coverings were not disturbed, but covered the body from feet to head. The overcoat which he had thrown across the foot of the bed was also undisturbed. The body was lying on the face with the nose and mouth buried in the pillow. The mouth was wide open. The appearence of the room indicated that Mr. Moore had intended to get up Sunday, as his razor was on the bureau in preparation for shaving, and his clothes were neatly folded. On the table were several circulars and statements bearing the name of R. Spence & Co., Hamilton. It was at first thought he was travelling for this firm, but it has since been learned that he was a file manufacturer, and was on a business trip. His relatives were notified, and will have the remains removed to Hamilton for interment.

A Fine Christmas Card.

THE EXAMINER has to thank the Grand Trunk Railway for a handsome and seasonable reminder of the Christmastide. It is a tidy card representing a sweet home scene. The old father and mother sit in front of the roaring fire. The table is set with the Christmas feast. The father is looking up from the Grand Trunk time table he has been studying to the glad face of the mother, who, through the window, has sighted the Grand Trunk express ploughing through the snow to the station with the loved ones on board—the children coming home for the annual Christmas re-union. On the obverse side the holiday rates, which permit the young folk to travel at single fare, are annexed. The card is homely and suggestive and at the same time a beautiful picture of the delights of the Christmas season and the boon offered by the Grand Trunk in its splendid facilities for gathering the wanderers home from every part of the continent.

H. P. KENNEDY'S MEAT MARKET BUSINESS FOR SALE.

have decided to offer for sale my well established Meat Market business at No. 340 George Street. This should be a good chance for a live man, as the stand, store nd fixtures are all first-class and a first-class patronage has been established. Further particulars next week. Apply to H. P. Kennedy, on the premises, or P.O. Box 313 Peterborough.

Thousands of sick and suffering people are like the poor cripple in the Bible, who had no one to help him down to the life-giving pool before some one else slipped in ahead of him. So many sufferers feel that if they could only get a little help to overcome their extreme weakness they would then be able to regain their coveted health and strength.

It is just these people that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is designed to aid. It is the strong, helping hand for those who are in the extreme of bodily weakness and nervous exhaustion. It promptly tones, nourishes and builds up the entire system. It gives keen appetite, good digestion, pure blood, muscular strength, nerve-force and renewed activity.

"When I first wrote you I was completely discouraged," says Mrs. W. M. Satterly, living at Richford, Tioga Co., N. Y. (P. O. Box 40), in a letter to Dr. Pierce. "I was in pain all the time, could not lie in bed on account of severe, sharp cutting pains in my back and right hip. Had pain all through the lower part of my body and my elbows hurt me so much I could scarcely lift my baby. My skin was dry, harsh and scaly and hung like sacks on my arms. My husband called the doctor, and he said it was weakness, and my age. His medicine did me no good. I kept getting worse and weaker. It seemed I should go crazy. One day I wrote you and received advice. I have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, his 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and now I can lie in bed with some comfort and can do a good day's work."

The most valuable book for both men and women is Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A splendid 1008-page volume, with engravings and colored plates. A copy, paper-covered, will be sent to anyone sending 31 one-cent stamps, to pay cost of customs and mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Cloth-bound, 50 stamps.

THE TREATY SIGNED.

The Spanish-American Treaty of Peace Contains 17 Articles.

TWO COPIES WERE SIGNED.

No Controversy Took Place on the Wording as It Had Been Previously Approved—English and Spanish Texts in Parallel Columns—Lurid Despatch From Paris—Other Cable News.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The treaty of peace was signed at 3.45 on Saturday evening.

The treaty as signed consists of 17 articles, it having been found advisable to subdivide two or three of the articles in the draft agreed upon at the last meeting. The commissioners of the two nations wrote their signatures on two copies of the treaty, one copy being for the archives.

The document was prepared by Secretary Moore in behalf of the United States commission, and by Senor Villarutia for Spain, on account of the continued illness of Secretary Ojeda of the Spanish commission.

Each copy contained the English and Spanish texts of the treaty in parallel columns. The wording had been approved previously by the commission without a joint meeting, so there was no controversy on this subject.

WILLIAM BLACK IS DEAD.

The Novelist Whose Writings Have Entertained Many Thousands.

London, Dec. 12.—The death is announced of William Black, the novelist.

William Black was born at Glasgow in 1841. He commenced his career as a journalist and was successively connected with the London Morning Star (acting as special correspondent during the war between Prussia and Austria in 1866) and the Daily News, of which he was assistant editor. His first book was "Love or Marriage," published in 1867, but his reputation was made by "A Daughter of Heth," 1871, after which came "A Princess of Thule," "Madcap Violet," "Adventures of a House Boat," 1888; "Yolande," "White Heather," "In Far Lochaber," "The Pennance of John Logan," 1889; and "The New Prince Fortunatus." Mr. Black's recent novels are "Stand Fast, Craig Royston," "Donald Ross of Heimra," "The Magic Ink and Other Tales," "Wolfenberg," 1893; "The Handsome Humes," 1893; "Highland Cousins," 1894; and "Briseis," 1896.

Has an Interesting Chat about

His suffering from Ulcerating Piles Cured.

He says:—I was troubled with itching piles for five years, and was badly ulcerated. They were very painful, so much so that I could not sleep. I tried almost every remedy heard of, and was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box, and from the first application got such relief that I was satisfied a cure would be made. I used in all two boxes, and am now completely cured.

Every remedy given by Dr. Chase cost years of study and research, and with an eye single to its adaptation for the ailments for which it was intended. Dr. Chase detested cure-alls, and it has been proven ten thousand times that not one of his formulas leave a bad after-effect. Dr. Chase's Ointment is based on lanoline, and the best physicians prescribe it.

Sold by all dealers. Dr. Chase's Cloth Bound Recipe Book 1,000 pages, sent to any address in Canada, price 50 cents. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

and the officials being mystified regarding the object of the warship's visit to that port refused to allow her officers to land until Aguinaldo had been communicated with. When permission to land had been granted, the Americans were closely watched. Officers who strolled about the place alone were escorted back to the palace by soldiers. Several visits were exchanged, and there was apparent good will in the reception tendered the Americans. The Raleigh reports that the insurgents are armed with Mauser rifles, are well drilled and uniformed, and they claim that they have 40,000 Spanish prisoners, who are compelled to work on the roads, but who are well treated.

Vaccination in England.

London, Dec. 12.—The Vaccination Act passed by Parliament last season has brought about curious results. The conscientious objector to vaccination, who can absolve himself from the operation by going before a magistrate and swearing to his scruples, has lately blocked many courts. This has been something like a competition between the judges as to which could sweat off the greatest number of objectors in a given time, and some learned gentlemen made remarkable records.

The latest phase of the question is similar to a strike of the public vaccinators, who complain that, owing to the new Act, their occupation is virtually gone. They have demanded an increase in the fees from the public guardians to make up the deficits in their incomes, but they have not been very successful so far.

Dreyfus Will Return.

Paris, Dec. 12.—Le Soir last evening announced the return of Dreyfus at an early date. It asserts that the Government has formally decided upon this course and has ordered a body of soldiers to be in readiness to escort him from the port of landing to Paris.

La Liberte says that the temporary release of Col. Picquart has already been ordered.

Contributions Were $14,841.80.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—At both services at St. James' Methodist Church yesterday the contributions amounted to $14,841.80, a friend of the cause sending a cheque for $10,000. This brings the sum contributed so far up to $84,000. Rev. Dr. Potts preached at both morning and evening services.

The £100,000 Is Raised.

London, Dec. 12.—General Lord Kitchener takes back to the Soudan the assurance that the Gordon memorial college, for the establishment of which he has worked very hard, will be a success, so far as money can make it. The £100,000 for which he asked have been fully subscribed, and subscriptions are still coming in.

Zurich, Dec. 12.—General Booth is leading the Salvation Army campaign here. The Swiss Staenderath seeks to facilitate citizenship requirements, as 10 per cent. of the inhabitants are foreigners.

Lieut. Wark Reprieved.

London, Dec. 12.—Lieut. Wark of the Royal Artillery, who on Thursday last was sentenced to death on the charge of murdering Miss Jane Yates of Liverpool, a girl of good family, by conspiring with her to procure an illegal operation, which resulted in her death, has been reprieved.

A LURID DESPATCH.

France Bound to Go to War With England, Seeks to Put the Bad Man on the Britou.

Paris, Dec. 12.—The correspondent here of the New York Herald, in his cable to his paper, refers at great length yesterday to the storm aroused in France over the speech of Sir Edmund Monson. In part he says: Slowly but steadily the conviction is gaining ground here that war with England is inevitable. Paul De Cassagnac's paper, The Autorite, even goes so far as to declare it imminent, and suggests the probability of an alliance with Germany rather than to see France share the fate of Spain.

This is no alarmist opinion. It is one shared by people in diplomatic, parliamentary, naval, military and commercial circles alike. That there is no recklessness in it even the firebrands among French public men realize.

They recognize that war with their transchannel neighbors means almost certain defeat for France, yet at the same time they ask, What are we to do? How is war to be prevented? England seems determined, they say, to force France's back to the wall. The moment must come when further retreat will be impossible. No people can possibly swallow affront after affront without sinking to the condition of what Lord Salisbury recently defined as a decaying nation.

France, according to public opinion here, has given way before England only to be met after every concession with heavier demands.

GOT INTO THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

The Unusual Occurrence Which Startled London on Saturday.

London, Dec. 12.—A wretched, middle-aged, wild-looking man was discovered at 11 o'clock Saturday night in the Bank of England, to which he had managed to gain admission in some unknown manner. He offered as an excuse for his presence in the bank that he wanted to cash a cheque, and made a frantic resistance when taken into custody. In his pockets were found a loaded revolver, a dozen silver and gold coins and some jewelry. It is suspected that he is an Anarchist. When questioned he refused to give his name or to say how he entered the bank. The news of the discovery spread rapidly through the neighborhood, and a crowd quickly gathered around the entrance to the bank.

Another account says that the man rang the bell at the main entrance of the bank and that when the janitor opened the door the man rushed in and drew a revolver, which he was prevented from using by the military guard, with fixed bayonets, closing around him.

At the police station he gave the name of George Taylor. He was examined by a doctor, who ordered his removal to the Bow Infirmary.

Hanover to Train Artisans.

Hanover, Dec. 12.—A most important conference was held in Hanover on Saturday at the instance of the Prussian Trade Minister. The deputies present represented the state, province and city, and the local industrial unions. Count Stolberg Wernelgerode presided, and resolutions were adopted to the effect that Hanover shall afford her artisans supplemental training courses as locksmiths, cabinetmakers, shoemakers and tailors. The state shares the expense with the students. The conference encouraged the co-operative buying of raw stuffs and the selling of finished products.

ERN REFORM RAZOR

BEST IN THE MARKET.

THE SHAVERS' IDEAL

BALANCED HANDLES. FAULTLESS GRINDING.

TONS AND TONS OF GOLD.

Twelve Hundred Miles of Enormously Rich Territory.

If a pin be placed at Denver on the map, and another at Stockton, Cal., and a string be drawn from one to the other, an air line will be marked passing through the heart of a wonderful gold territory. Slightly to the north of Denver in Central City, and southwest of that city is Cripple Creek. About 30 miles to the north of the string Leadville will be found. In the southwest corner of Colorado will appear Telluride, Rico and other points where gold is mined. Marysvale, in Utah, almost due south of Salt Lake City, will appear to the south of the string. Fifty miles to the north of it, near the line between Utah and Nevada, will appear Osceola. Deep Creek lies north of Osceola and on the southern edge of the great desert west of Salt lake. Detroit and several other rich gold camps are almost due east of Osceola. Pioche lies 100 miles south of the string, and the wonderfully rich gold territory of the Monkey Wrench district lies southwest of Pioche.

Now, north and south of the string will appear dotted on the map of Nevada the gold camps of Grant, Frenchy, Reveille, Kawich Valley, San Antonio, Gold Peak, Hot Springs, Belleville, Candelara and numerous others. Almost under the string, in California, we find Bodie, and to the north of it Markleville and other points—all on the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains. On the western slope of the great sierras the string will be almost on the Utica mine, which is located between San Andreas and Sonora. North and south of the Utica mine are hundreds of rich gold mines in profitable operation.

The distance from Denver to Stockton is about 1,200 miles. On no portion of the habitable globe is there a region so continuously and enormously rich in gold as the territory described, and yet, notwithstanding this fact, the progressive Yankee has scarcely made a start in opening and developing these riches, which have been entombed for millions of years, and which will remain so sepulchered until we awaken to an appreciation of the fact that the states of Colorado, Utah, Nevada and California bear within their bosoms more wealth than ever was dreamed of by Croesus.—Forum.

DECAPITATION.

Life Said to Remain Long After the Head Is Severed.

"The executions in Paris during recent years have revived the old question whether death instantaneously follows upon the severance of the head from the body," says the Massachusetts Medical Journal. "Dr. Ciuel asserts that decapitation does not immediately affect the brain. He says that the blood which flows after decapitation comes from the large vessels of the neck, and there is hardly any call upon the circulation of the cranium. The brain remains intact, nourishing itself with the blood retained by the pressure of the air.

"When the blood remaining in the head at the moment of separation is exhausted, there commences a state, not of death, but of inertia, which lasts up to the moment when the organ, no longer fed, ceases to exist. Dr. Ciuel estimates that the brain finds nourishment in the residuary blood for about an hour after decapitation. The period of inertia would last for about two hours, he thinks, and absolute death would not ensue till after the space of three hours altogether.

"If, he adds, a bodiless head indicates by no movement the horrors of its situation, it is because it is physically impossible that it should do so, all the nerves—which serve for the transmission of orders from the brain to the trunk being severed; but there remains the nerves of hearing, of smell and sight, and he concludes that the guillotine does not cause instant death. If this be true, could any other form of death be more merciless?"

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

PUT YOUR FINGER ON YOUR PULSE.

If It is Weak or Irregular don't Hesitate to Start the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at once.

The way the heart beats is an index of how the whole machinery of the body is going. With a strong, steady, regular pulse we may expect vigorous health.

With a weak, irregular, intermittent pulse we can tell at once the vitality is low—that Dizzy and Faint Spells, Smothering and Sinking Sensations, Nervousness and Sleeplessness and similar conditions are bound to ensue.

By their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat, toning the nerves and enriching the blood, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills relieve and cure all those distressing conditions just enumerated, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. E. Croft, residing on Waterloo Street, St. John, N.B., relates her experience with this remedy as follows:

"For some time past I have suffered from pallor, weakness and nervous prostration, I had palpitation and irregular beating of the heart so severe as to cause me great alarm. I was treated by physicians, but got no permanent relief.

"Finally I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am glad to say that from them I derived the first real benefit that I ever got from any medicine. My appetite is improved, my entire system toned up, and I can do no less than cheerfully recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to all requiring a reliable heart and nerve tonic."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box, or 3 for $1.25, at all druggists. T. MILBURN & CO., Toronto, Ont.

Miss Mary E. Hicks, South Bay, Ont., says that Laxa-Liver Pills cured her of Sick Headache, from which she had suffered for more than a year.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

And they sauntered toward the chess table where Lenore now stood, talking lightly with her late opponent, and fingering the chessmen carelessly.

The ceremony of introduction having been performed, Kate Seaton slipped her hand from the arm of young Arteveldt, and turning toward the gentleman who had lately risen from the chess table, said:

"Mr. Fenno, those good people about the piano have been waiting for you; they want a tenor, and can't sing a quartette without one, so surrender, you are my prisoner."

And laughing lightly she led him away captive.

Left alone, Clarence Arteveldt turned toward the beatiful girl who stood before him quite at ease, and with smiling face. There was nothing to criticize in the manner of this young lady he had just denominated "rustic;" she knew just what to do, and did it with perfect grace; she conversed with a fearless frankness, a raciness, and skill at repartee which was as refreshing as it was surprising to this worldly-wise young dandy. She seemed unconscious of either admiration or criticism, and entered into all the gayeties of the evening with a zest and abandon most charming.

When the evening was at an end, Lenore Armyn gave her hand to Clarence Arteveldt with a smile and a jest, and never dreamed of the shadow he would cast over her young life, while he took his way home, mentally vowing her the loveliest girl he had ever met, and little guessing that, because of her, his days were numbered.

CHAPTER IV.

THE DURAND ROBBERY.

At noon, on the day following that of the meeting between the two detectives, Neil Bathurst sat lunching in solitude at his favourite restaurant. He was sipping his coffee in a preoccupied manner, and, now and then, would knit his brows, and seem to forget the viands before him.

"Strange," he muttered to himself. "It's incomprehensible to me! Rob can't have fallen so suddenly upon the trail of his fair murderess, and yet what else can have caused him to quit the Tremont so suddenly? And to leave no word for me! He is on a trail of some sort, of that I am sure; and I wanted his help so much just now."

Just here his meditations were interrupted. A hand fell lightly upon his shoulder, and a familiar voice said in his ear:

"Bathurst, old fellow, you are the man I am after, your professional services are wanted; have you finished this?" meaning the luncheon, as yet almost untasted.

Neil Bathurst shook off the hand, and looked up rather ungraciously at the speaker.

"Hang it, Arteveldt," he said impatiently, "what do you want, and why will you persist in talking about my profession?"

Arteveldt dropped down upon the the seat nearest Bathurst, and, leaning toward him with his elbows on the table, said:

"Don't go off at a tangent, Bath,—you know blamed well that I have not given you away, and don't mean to. None of the boys to whom I have introduced you know that you are not a 'heavy swell.' Some friends of mine have been robbed, and they want a shrewd detective; they sent me for one, and I came straight here in the hopes of finding you, just as I have, only not quite so glum. I have a carriage outside, will you come?"

"If it's a case, of course," replied Neil, rising quickly, and beckoning a waiter. "Bring my bill, Charlie. Arteveldt, I beg your pardon for my rudeness, I have been a little upset this morning."

He paid his score; then they hurried out, and were driven rapidly away.

"What is your case?" asked the detective, in a low voice, as they rattled over the stone pavement.

"They are family friends," replied Arteveldt, flushing slightly, and unperceived by Bathurst. "Old lady an intimate friend of my mother's, and all that. Well, the old man is rich as a Jew, and not over cautious. Yesterday, quite late, he negotiated the sale of some real estate on the West Side, and received in payment something like twenty-five thousand dollars. Well, last night it was stolen, and the thing was done so neatly that they did not discover the loss until a short time ago, when old Durand went to get the money to deposit with his bankers."

"Durand!" repeated Bathurst reflectively, "is that not the name of the heiress Fordham was chaffing you about a few days ago?"

"Well, yes," admitted Arteveldt with an uneasy laugh, that was noted by his companion, "Miss Durand is one of my lady friends, but it's the old gentleman who wants you!"

"Which means that I am not to cast any languishing glances towards the heiress, eh?" sarcastically.

"Pshaw," ejaculated Clarence Arteveldt, contemptuously, "my affair with Miss Durand is old, and never was serious. You can 'languish' after her as much as you please." Then, with sudden animation, "By the powers, Bathurst, but you should have been with me last night. I met the loveliest girl that Chicabo sun ever shone on."

"I should say you had made that statement twenty times in as many months, concerning as many ladies."

"Well, I'm in earnest this time."

"But I thought you expected to meet several strange beauties?"

"Well! and so I did. There was Mrs. Warren, a blonde, pussy-cat sort of widow, and a Miss Van something from Washington, but this one, Miss Armyn, is fresh from the country, as innocent of city wickedness and folly as a very babe, and as sweet as—as—"

"Your last love at first sight," finished Bathurst, dryly.

"Oh! you may laugh. I am in earnest this time."

"You are in earnest every time," carelessly; "but let us change the subject. How came you on hand at the scene of the robbery?"

"Why—the fact is," with sudden embarrassment, "I had a sort of half engagement with Miss Au—Miss Durand, for last evening, which I quite overlooked in going to the Ruthven blow-out, and I called to make that right."

"Oh! Well, mark my words, Arteveldt, you will yet come to grief because of your too frequent changing of sweethearts."

Without knowing it, Neil Bathurst had uttered a prophecy.

"Bah!" cried Arteveldt, snapping his fingers at an imaginary Nemesis, "you are a modern raven, but here is Michigan avenue, and here we are."

At that moment the carriage drew up before a stately residence fronting the lake, and Neil Bathurst followed his guide up a flight of marble steps, through a magnificent vestibule, the door of which swung open at their approach, across a wide hall, and then into a magnificent library, hung with forest green, and rich with volumes of merit in costly bindings, with statuettes and bronzes, antique tables, cavernouh, ease-inviting, satin and velvet-cushioned chairs, and all that could beautify and adorn the library of a luxury-loving man of wealth.

At a word from Clarence Arteveldt the liveried servant who had ushered them in disappeared, and in a very few moments the rosewood door swung inward and James Durand, the master of the dwelling, appeared upon the threshold.

As he moved toward them, young Arteveldt advanced to meet him, saying:—

"Mr. Durand, this is Mr. Neil Bathurst, late of the New York detective force; if any one can help you in this matter, he is the man."

The old gentleman extended his hand to Bathurst, in a hearty manner that won that young man's admiration straightway, and said, kindly:—

"Glad to see you, sir; very glad! have heard of your skill in several cases. I will be glad to get your theory on the subject of this robbery."

"Then, sir," said the young detective, bowing respectfully, "will you allow me to examine the receptacle from which the money was taken, as well as the surroundings, before I listen to anything about the case."

"Certainly. The money was taken from a desk in my sleeping-room, and that, as well as every door, was closed, and locked again. It was a cunningly devised robbery, sir."

"See," continued Mr. Durand, as he led the way upstairs, "suppose that they came in at the front, there would be two doors, locked and bolted; then here," throwing open a door leading from the hall on the second floor, "there is the dressing-room door, then the chamber door, and last, the triple lock of my desk."

Neil Bathurst paused at the outer door and examined the lock in silence, then he entered the dressing-room, and began a grave scrutiny of its contents. It was richly upholstered in bronze velvet, the two opposite sides being filled by two enormous wardrobe dressing cases, with great mirror doors, and pearl-handled drawers and lower openings. Opposite the entrance door was one leading into the bedchamber; in the niches on either side this door were lace-draped toilet tables; opposite these, on either side the outer door, were two splendid full-length mirrors; in the centre of the room stood two great dressing chairs, and this was all.

After a brief examination of the dressing cases, the detective turned his attention to the lock of the inner door; then he entered the chamber and carefully scrutinized the desk, examined the windows, to assure himself that they were not accessible; peered behind the hangings and two tall cabinets, to see if there were other doors opening from the room, and then went back to the dressing room, where Mr. Durand and young Arteveldt were conversing, threw himself down in one of the big chairs, dropped his chin upon his breast, and thought.

After a long silence he lifted up his head and asked, gravely:—

"How many servants have you, Mr. Durand?"

"Seven," replied the old gentleman, looking somewhat surprised at the question.

"And members of the family?"

"Myself, wife, daughter, and daughter's companion."

"At what hour did you receive the money from your purchase?"

"Early in the evening. At about six o'clock."

"And you locked it away immediately."

"As soon as my visitor had gone."

"Yes. Where was the business transacted?"

"Downstairs. In the library."

"Who saw you conceal the money?"

"No one."

"Not your wife?"

"No, sir. I was alone in the room."

"And who saw you receive the money?"

"The papers were all drawn up. There were no witnesses."

"Did you mention to any member of your household that you had received this money?"

"Let me see—I did say at the dinner-table—we dine at half-past six—that I had sold the Fulton street house, and received the money; but not in the presence of any servant, I distinctly remember that."

"Then only your wife and daughter heard the statement?"

"And my daughter's companion."

"Yes," absently; then, after a moment's silence and moving nearer to the old man:—

"Mr. Durand, if you desire me to find your robber, you must allow me to proceed in my own way."

"Certainly, sir. I do desire you to find the thief, not so much because of the money lost as from principle. No citizen does his duty who leaves a stone unturned in a case like this. It was no ordinary thief who entered my house last night. Is not that your belief?"

"I will scarcely venture an opinion yet," replied Bathurst, with a slight smile. "I have hardly taken a look at the grounds. Do any of the members of your family, or any of your servants, know the nature of my business here?"

"I think not, sir. Miss Aura is not yet out of her room, and my wife is quite ill from the fright caused by the idea of a burglar so near her. Mrs. Durand is excessively nervous."

Neil Bathurst took his hat up suddenly, and turned toward the door.

"Then I will leave the house before this visit becomes known, and Mr. Durand, I must impose myself upon you as a guest this evening. Can you manage it?"

"Oh, easily! You and Arteveldt can come together."

"Then will you announce to your family that Mr. Arteveldt will come, bringing a friend with him?"

"Certainly, sir," looking puzzled. "But may I ask—"

"Ask no questions now, sir. Let me do my work in my own way. As soon as we are well out of the house, you will please announce to your servants and all of your family, that you are every moment expecting a detective to investigate the robbery."

"But, sir—"

"Within an hour's time a man will come who will wish to go over the entire premises, perhaps to interview every member of your family. Let him do whatever he wishes, and ask him no questions. At six o'clock I will be with you as a guest. You can then assist me by talking of this affair whenever one of your servants happens within hearing."

"But you surely don't—"

"Above all, don't confide to your wife or daughter anything that I have said, and am saying to you."

"Upon my word," ejaculated Mr. Durand, in undisguised astonishment. "I am all in a fog as to your meaning, but I'll follow your directions to the letter. For, by my soul, I believe you know what you are about."

"I hope I do, sir," answered the young detective, gravely. "Come Arteveldt."

And bowing to his employer, he hurried from the house, followed by the silent, but admiring young man of pleasure.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Carloads of Overcoats!
Carloads of Suits!
Carloads of Hats!
Carloads of Boots, etc.!
Carloads of Neckwear!
Carloads of Underwear!
Carloads of Furnishings!

You see our predicament! The inevitable must be faced. Heaps upon heaps of Christmas Boxes and New Year's gifts for every man woman and child right here—early in the winter, when merchants are looking for profits—we throw off all restraint, and Cut Our Prices Square in Two.

Gough Bros. Lease of the OAK HALL STORE expires in January—we've got to dispose of the stock by that time. It's easier to move in segments than by cartloads. Will you help us? With the alternative of moving or selling the stock staring us in the face, we do the daring act of SPLITTING THE FIGURES IN TWO. We go further, we throw into the Sacrifice the combined stocks of our other TWO BIG STORES on George Street. We must unload—all the Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Neckwear and Underwear—the pyramids of Holiday Gifts—and give you pick and choice on same terms as our Oak Hall Stock. Come with great expectations and they will be more than realized.

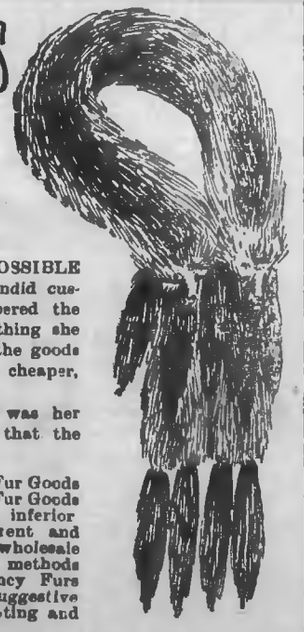
FURS.



Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and s against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

Fur Collarettes $5.00 to $50.00.
Fur Muffs $1.00 to $15.00.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT

In Connection With the Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Auxiliary.

In connection with the annual meeting of St. Paul's church Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society, a report of which appeared in Saturday's issue, the following statement of the year's progress was read by the secretary, Mrs. A. E. Leoh:

Annual Report of St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society for 1898:

The past year has been one of well-sustained interest in our Auxiliary work. The meetings have been bright and interesting and, we believe, not unfruitful in strengthening and deepening the sympathies of our members in the missionary cause.

The average attendance has been slowly but steadily increasing for some years. This year it was forty-nine, an increase of fourteen over last year. A meeting has been held once a month, with the exception of August. The first meeting of the year was a special praise meeting. The number of members is 89; of these — are members of the general society, and 13 are life members.

During the year several of our members removed from town, and one, Mrs. Mack, who became a member when the Auxiliary was first formed, twenty-two years ago, has gone to her eternal rest. Thus distance and death part us, but we look for an eternal reunion in the "city whose Maker and Builder is God."

The amount contributed this year was $316.56. This sum is not as large a one as we had last year, but it represents as good a rate of contributing. Last year a life member was added, which means $25 in the treasury; this year there was none. Besides, this time the Mission Bands have contributed a greater sum than last year, so that the total amount will be as great, if not greater, than the previous year.

We have again to thank the Stewart Settlement Sunday school for a very welcome contribution of four dollars.

In August a box was sent to the Indian school at Alberni, B.C., it contained a quantity of new clothing for the Indian children, quilts and other useful articles. The value was fifty-two dollars and fifty-three cents.

The subscription for the "Interior" was again renewed for the benefit of our lady misdonaries in Central India; and the "Missionary Review" was again subscribed for, for the use of the Auxiliary members. Quite a number of our library books have been read and enjoyed by the members, and we hope in the future that the Mission Bands will also make use of them. This, the first year the library has been formed, has proved a very satisfactory one. The Library Committee intend adding to the stock of books from time to time, so that there will always be something new to read. There are one hundred and twenty-five subscribers for the "Foreign Missionary Tidings" in the congregation, and we would be glad to have the number doubled. The "Tidings" costs only twelve cents a year and contains much interesting information from our lady missionaries that is not to be found elsewhere.

In September Dr. Margaret O'Hara, who has since returned to India, addressed a union meeting of this and St. Andrew's Auxiliary, when she gave a touching account of her work among the suffering and benighted daughters of India.

The annual thanksgiving meeting was held in October. This is always a large and interesting meeting; many attend that come to no other meeting in the year. The thanksgiving was $134.80.

And now, as a last word at the last of the year, we give a heartfelt welcome to all the women of the congregation to join the Auxiliary and add their prayers and their influence to the force whose object and motto is—"The World for Christ."

Secretary.

SPRINGVILLE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Our enterprising blacksmith, Mr. Albert Walton, has purchased the house belonging to Mr. Clark, and lately occupied by Mr. Roberts. He intends moving it up to enlarge his shop to keep pace with the growing trade he has worked up since coming here.

Quite a stir was caused last Tuesday evening on account of a collision on the C.P.R. near here, when four cars—two loaded with oats—were burned. The flames shone bright for miles around, which caused a large crowd to gather, although a fierce storm was raging at the time.

The local court of Foresters intend holding an open meeting next week, which will be addressed by Mr. Leggatt. Quite a number have given their names to become members of this benevolent society.

Mr. James Brown, of Bridgenorth, intends moving into this neighbourhood, to the farm at present occupied by Mr. Isaac Clark, who intends moving to Whitby township.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Smith were called to Oak Hill last week to attend the funeral of Mr. Smith's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hogg, of Westwood, were visiting at Mr. John Cathcart's and renewing old acquaintances last week.

Miss Violet Watt, of Peterborough, was visiting her cousin, Miss Bertha Hetherington, last Sunday.

We are glad to be able to state that Mr. George Raper, who was severely attacked by asthma, is able to be around again.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00 at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Clear as a crystal and delightful in its invigorating and aromatic odor is the coffee that comes to you in pound and two-pound tin cans from the famous tea and coffee importers, of Boston, its purity and its strength being guaranteed by their seal.

Chase & Sanborn

Its supreme merit has been proved and is acknowledged by thousands of the most fastidious coffee consumers throughout the land. Grocers everywhere sell it.

THE CANADIAN ALMANAC.

To almost every Canadian who in years has passed the half century mark, the Canadian Almanac is familiar as household words, and the EXAMINER has to thank the Copp, Clark Co. (Limited), of Toronto, for a copy of the handsome edition for '99.

It was in the year 1847 that the first issue of the Canadian Almanac was published, and every year since then for more than half a century it has regularly made its appearance, and been welcomed by business and literary men alike as an invaluable assistant and store of information. On turning over the pages of the issue for 1899, now before us, one is struck by the evidences of the growth and prosperity of our country shown by the increase in size of the Almanac, which has grown from a pamphlet of 100 pages to a handsome book of 376 pages.

Among the contents of the book which are especially valuable are: the Customs Tariff, Post Office Guide, and Directories of various persons and officials, all of which are brought up to date, while the articles on the British Army and Navy, and Forms of Government throughout the world are interesting and reliable. A feature that appeals particularly to all who are interested in the current history of the world is the Historical Diary, which is carefully prepared each year, and gives an excellent resume of the year's history. Altogether we think the publishers are to be congratulated upon the appearance of the 52nd issue of the Canadian Almanac. Price, 25 cents, on sale at the Peterborough Bookstore.

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says:—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take. Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by all Druggists.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

PROOFS ARE PLENTY.

HARCOURT RESIGNS.

The Liberal Leadership Is Now Left Open.

LORD ROSEBERY MAY SUCCEED.

Sensational Letter to Mr. John Morley—Mr. Morley Sympathizes With Sir William in His Difficulties, Who States Why He Takes This Course — The Papers in London Nonplussed.

London, Dec. 14.—The Right Hon. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, member of Parliament for West Monmouthshire, and, since the resignation of the late Mr. Gladstone, the official leader of the Liberal party in the House of Commons, has addressed a letter to Mr. John Morley, Liberal member of Montrose, announcing his resignation of the leadership. He says:

"The Liberal party, rent by sectional disputes and personal interests, is one which no man can consent to lead, either with credit to himself or advantage to the country."

Mr. Morley, in his reply, expresses sympathy with Sir William Vernon Harcourt and says he is not surprised at the latter's decision.

It is understood that Harcourt will retain his seat in the House of Commons.

Rosebery the Probable Successor.

Lord Rosebery will inevitably be indicated as the leader of the entire Liberal party. His brilliant speech on the Fashoda incident has settled that. As for the Liberal leadership in the House of Commons everything points to Mr. Herbert Henry Asquith, member for East Fife, and Secretary of State for the Home Department in the Gladstone-Rosebery Government, which began with Mr. Gladstone's Premiership in 1892, and ended under Lord Rosebery in 1895.

The affair lends unusual interest to the conference of the National Liberal Federation at Birmingham next Friday.

The Party Nonplussed.

London, Dec. 14.—The suddenness of the crisis brought on by Sir William Vernon Harcourt's announcement yesterday to retire from the Liberal leadership, has nonplussed the party. The Liberal organs this morning have nothing to say except to advise the party carefully to weigh all the circumstances before coming to a decision.

THAT COFFIN-OPENING.

Disinterment of Remains of Alleged Duke of Portland Causing Excitement.

London, Dec. 14.—Intense excitement prevails here over the approaching opening of the Druce coffin in Highgate Cemetery.

Mrs. Druce has finally overcome the legal obstacles raised by the Duke of Portland, and has now obtained from the Chancellor of the Diocese of London a faculty (authority) permitting investigation of the coffin's contents, which, she said yesterday, she believed consisted merely of an effigy, with wax head and hands, and a roll of lead for the body.

The Druce vault in Highgate Cemetery has been surrounded by a strong stockade to keep the public away. The day and hour set for the opening of the coffin are kept strictly secret. No one will be permitted to be present except medical and legal representatives of the Duke of Portland and Mrs. Druce.

The Duke of Portland has arranged for a private telegraph office at his seat at Welbeck Abbey, to be kept open all night, in order that he may get the earliest possible tidings. He and the Duchess are very anxious as the moment arrives when his right to a great title and vast estates and wealth is to be decided.

ANOTHER NAPOLEON WANTED.

French Imperialists Claim That Is the Only Way to Save France.

Marseilles, Dec. 14.—At a meeting of French Imperialists here yesterday a letter was read from Prince Victor Napoleon, in which he reminded his hearers that the day was the 50th anniversary of the accession of Louis Napoleon to the throne of France. He said a similar Bonapartist triumph now would alone put an end to anarchy and restore order to France.

Numerous speakers at the meeting denounced the present form of Government for its laxity and clamored for another Napoleon.

Reign of Terror at Pekin.

Moscow, Dec. 14.—The Moscow Board of Tea Merchants has received a cablegram from its correspondents in China telling of the reign of terror in Pekin. Arrests are of daily occurrence, and suspected sympathizers with the Emperor's reform ideas are banished when they are not summarily executed. According to this despatch Kuang Hsu, though de facto Emperor, is ailing and it is thought is suffering from the administration of some slow-acting poison. The representatives of the powers thus far have been unable to check the cruelties of the Empress Dowager or to mitigate her misrule.

Startling News From Paris.

London, Dec. 14.—The Daily News publishes a startling story of an alleged plot of the French League of Patriots, numbering 300,000, under the notorious anti-revisionist, M. Paul de Roulede, to prevent Dreyfus reaching Paris.

M. de Freycinet, the French Minister of War, has decided, says the informant of the Daily News, upon vigorous measures to suppress any such attempt, and, if necessary, a state of siege will be proclaimed in Paris, in which event General Zurlinden, the Military Governor, will not have the command.

More Wireless Telegraphy.

Vienna, Dec. 14.—Prof. Zickler of the Technical Academy of Brunn, has just demonstrated before the Vienna Industrial Association his contrivance for transmitting telegraphic despatches without wires. By means of Zickler's apparatus telegrams were despatched one and one-half kilometers (about one mile) without the use of wires. The advantage claimed for the apparatus over Marconi's invention is the impossibility of intercepting a message in transmission.

Patti's Marriage.

Manchester, Eng., Dec. 14.—The Manchester Courier says that Feb. 25 is the date fixed for the marriage of Mme. Patti to Baron von Cederstrom, which will take place at Neath, Wales.

It Is Not All Settled Yet.

Madrid, Dec. 14.—It is asserted here that the Premier, Senor Sagasta, will obtain a royal decree dissolving the chambers before the ratification of the peace treaty. The semi-official Correo announces that Senor Sagasta, before asking the Cortes to ratify the treaty, will confer with Senor Montero Rios, president of the Spanish commission. It is further asserted that, owing to the existence of opposition to the treaty, the United States Senate will not confirm it.

How Russia Can Squeeze Japan.

London, Dec. 14.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says: "By influencing China to delay the payment of the war indemnity to Japan, the Russian Government will be enabled to acquire several Japanese warships now building abroad, which Japan will be unable to pay for at the stipulated time.

Dewey Wants to Come Home.

Manila, Dec. 14.—Admiral Dewey desires to return to America on account of his health, which begins to show the effect of a long period of work and worry in a hot country. For several days he has been under the treatment of the fleet surgeon, who thinks the Admiral should go to a colder climate.

Belgians Cannibalized in Africa.

Antwerp, Dec. 14.—The steamer Leopoldville, which has just arrived here from Africa, with Congo advices, reports that four Belgian traders have been killed and eaten by natives of Upper Ubanghi. A punitive force, it is also said, has been despatched to that district.

The Czar Has His Arabs.

Moscow, Dec. 14.—The Sultan's present to the Czar, announced almost two months ago, has at last arrived at Livadia. The gift—four magnificent Arabian trotting horses, valued at 60,000 roubles—was conveyed from Constantinople by steamer.

Spanish Gunboat Raised.

Manila, Dec. 14.—The Spanish gunboat Isla de Cuba, sunk in the engagement of May 1, and recently raised, sailed for Hong Kong yesterday. It is expected that the Isla de Luzon and Don Juan de Austria will be ready for service soon.

Strathcona Gives a Million.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Lord Strathcona, chancellor of McGill University, has endowed the new Royal Victoria College for women, which will shortly be opened, with a million dollar fund, and the governors of McGill have subscribed $180,000 to meet the deficit on the college.

The candidates for mayor in Winnipeg are A. J. Andrews and G. F. Carruthers.

DIED IN CALIFORNIA.

Death by a Mine Accident of Mr. Geo. A. Paton, Son of Mr. Geo. Paton.

Mrs. George Paton, Brock street, will receive the sympathy of a very wide circle of friends in the severe affliction she is passing through. Her husband, Mr. Geo. Paton, has been for some time seriously ill and is now lying at the point of death. Yesterday Mrs. Paton received the sad intelligence, which confirmed previous reports, of the death of the third son of the family, Mr. George Anderson Paton, who died at Tesla, Alameda County, California, from the effects of an accident in the mine in which he was employed. The accident occurred about the end of September, and shortly after Mr. Paton's wife and one child had gone on a visit to relatives in Iowa, and it was through her that Mrs. Paton heard indirectly of the death of her son. From the fact of the deceased, who died about twelve days after the accident, leaving no papers to trace his friends, and on account of the absence of his wife, it was difficult to get any definite information. However, in answer to a letter from Mrs. Paton, the Postmaster at Tesla sent the news received yesterday with a promise to send all possible details later.

The deceased was 42 years of age and went to California at the age of 14 years in company with his eldest sister, Mrs. Condon, of Thomasville, Georgia, who is now in attendance at her father's bedside. He visited Peterborough for a few days about eight years ago. He leaves behind a wife and one child, who are at present with relatives in Iowa.

A PRESENTATION

To Mr. David O'Brien Last Evening in the C. P. R. Hotel Parlours.

Last evening a number of the men who have been employed on Mr. Jas. Bogue's sewer contract during the summer, assembled at the C. P. R. Hotel and being assigned to one of the parlours, spent a very social evening at the close of the season's work.

Mr. David O'Brien, Mr. Bogue's superintendent, was taken greatly by surprise when Mr. Louis Guerin read the following address:

David O'Brien, Esq., Peterborough:

DEAR SIR,—We, the employees of Mr. James Bogue on sewer contract No. 6, cannot allow the season's work to close without expressing our appreciation of you as foreman during the summer.

We recognize in you a man under whom it is a pleasure to work and whose kind words and praiseworthy example has encouraged us to our best efforts. To you, creed, nationality or previous record was never a consideration. A fair day's work for a fair day's pay was all you demanded and every man was given a chance to show of what material he was made.

Under such circumstances our mutual relations could not but help being of a most pleasant nature and we desire your acceptance of these gifts as an evidence of the very high place which you enjoy in our esteem.

No needless abuse was ever directed to us from you and our sincere wish is that we may be again associated in next season's work, and that you may have a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the employees,
LOUIS GUERIN,
L. MOONEY,
J. KENNEALLY.

Mr. Luke Mooney then stepped forward and presented Mr. O'Brien with a clock and a purse containing a neat sum.

BRANCH 30, C. M. B. A.

Annual Election of Officers—Mr. Gus. Gough President by Acclamation—A Little Supper at Potvin's.

The regular meeting of the C. M. B. A., Branch 30, was held last night. There was a large attendance, attracted doubtless by the annual election of officers. Mr. T. Cahill, President, occupied the chair. After routine business the election of officers for the incoming year was held and resulted as follows:

V Rev Archdeacon Casey ... Spiritual Adviser
T Cahill ... Chancellor
A J Gough (acclamation) ... President
T J Henry ... 1st Vice-President
Harry Phelan (acclamation) 2nd Vice-President
W F Morrow (re-elected, acc) ... Rec Sec
Geo Giroux ... Asst Sec
M H Quinlan (re-elected, acc) ... Fin Sec
H Carveth (re-elected) ... Treasurer
Geo Bali ... Marshall
John McCormack ... Guard
T J Doris Jas Bogue, Jas O'Brien W. J Devlin and John Kelly—Trustees.

At the conclusion of the election the President elect, Mr. A. J. Gough, entertained all the brethren at Bro. Potvin's restaurant. After the excellent repast, Mr. T. Cahill in a neat and complimentary speech, proposed the health of the newly elected President. Mr. A. J. Gough, who, in the course of his reply, thanked the Branch for his flattering election to the honourable position of president. In conclusion he proposed the health of the retiring president, Mr. T. Cahill, who responded in one of his characteristically happy speeches. The toasts, which were drunk in pure cold water, were very heartily received. During the evening there were songs by Messrs. Harry Phelan and L. M. Hayes, and short speeches by Messrs. T. J. Henry, M. H. Quinlan and others. A most enjoyable evening was spent. The local Branch, which now has 90 members on its list, is in a flourishing and prosperous condition.

WONDERFUL ASTHMA RECOVERIES.

Clarke's Kola Compound Officially Tested by the British Columbia Government, at the Home for Incurables, Kamloops, B C—The Medical superintendent Pronounced Long Standing Cases Cured

Many temporary relief asthma remedies have, during the past few years, been placed before the public, but until the introduction to the medical profession of Clarke's Kola Compound, nothing has been found to have any effect on preventing future attacks. The Medical Superintendent for the Home for Incurables in Kamloops, B.C., has had probably the best chance in Canada to thoroughly test this wonderful remedy for asthma. He reports that on the three cases of asthma where Clarke's Kola Compound has been tried, in not a single instance did it fail to cure, and on one particular case a lady had been confined to her bed most of the time for nearly a year previous to taking this remedy, and less than three bottles have completely cured her. Over one year has now passed, and there has not been the slightest indication of asthma returning. Three bottles of Clarke's Kola Compound are guaranteed to cure any case of asthma. Over 500 cases have already been cured in Canada alone by this remedy. Sold by Ormond & Walsh. Price $2; three bottles with cure guaranteed, for five dollars. Acute Rheumatism

Pains in the Foot and Limb—A Complete Cure Accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For a number of years I was afflicted with acute rheumatism in my left side and all the way down my limb into my foot. I live five blocks from my work and had to stop and rest several times in going and coming. I could get no relief from my trouble and was on the point of giving up my job when I happened to hear of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I purchased a bottle of this medicine and a vial of Hood's Pills and began taking them. Before I had half finished them I was relieved and it was not long before I was completely cured. I never lose an opportunity to praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for my cure meant a great deal to me, as I have a family and must always be at my post." EDITORIAL NOTES.

In the East Northumberland bye-election to-day the candidates are the same as in the general election of March, when Mr. J. H. Douglas, the Liberal candidate, defeated Dr. Willoughby by a majority of 421. Judging by the results of recent election contests there is not a very serious probability of Dr. Willoughby being able to overcome these figures to-day. With even an experienced turfman as the doctor, 421 votes is rather too much of a handicap to permit him to get his nose first under the wire.

FIVE to zero is the record in the bye-elections and Mr. Whitney's hopes, once so bright for scoring several points in the bye-elections, are several points below zero and still going down in sympathy with the thermometer.

NICARAGUA CANAL BILL.

Senator Morgan's Measure Will Make a Great Deal of Discussion.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Mr. Barry gave notice in the Senate yesterday of an amendment he will offer to the Nicaragua Canal bill, providing for the direct appropriation of money for the construction of the canal, and limiting the cost to $115,000,000. The amendment provides for the construction of the canal by the Maritime Canal Company, and gives the Government a lien upon the property to be foreclosed under circumstances fully enumerated.

Mr. Barry stated the object of the amendment to be to eliminate the bond feature of the bill, which Mr. Morgan did not oppose.

Another was to deprive the Maritime Canal Company of the stock, as in the present bill, leaving the United States, Nicaragua and Costa Rica the only stockholders.

Mr. Rawlins also gave notice of an amendment to the Nicaragua bill providing that the Act shall not go into effect until the United States should secure by treaty the right to fortify and garrison the canal, to send armed vessels and munitions of war through it in time of war, and to close it against any other nation with whom the United States may be at war.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easiest work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, [illegible] fills out the hollows and rests with good solid flesh. [illegible]

ALL HEADACHES

CANADA'S TEN YEARS OF AGRICULTURAL PROGRESS.

WHAT SAYS DR. SAUNDERS OF THE EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

A Gratifying Record—Wonderful Progress in the Foundation Industry of the Country.

In a recent interview with the London Advertiser, Dr. Saunders, of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, said that ten years ago the average farmer was not as intelligent and wide-awake as he is to-day. At that time farming was looked upon as a sort of drudgery, well suited to the dull and slow-going; but as offering no suitable field for the higher intelligence of more cultivated minds. Now, farming is recognized as a skilled calling, which gives ample scope for the exercise of the most active and earnest minds and one in which information of almost every sort may be turned to practical account.

In the Maritime Provinces considerable progress has been made in improved methods of farming for the raising of cereals and fodder crops; in the increased production of cattle, sheep, swine and poultry, and a large output of dairy products, eggs and fruit.

In the Province of Quebec much progress has been made along similar lines More of the crude products of the farm are now consumed at home; and in converting these fodders and coarse grains into more concentrated animal products, the farmer has the great advantage of retaining the fertilizing materials so produced for the enrichment of his land. Dairying has made rapid strides in Quebec More stock is kept, giving increased material for home trade and export. Agricultural circles have been organized in all parts of that Province, where farmers meet together from time to time to discuss the difficulties they meet with in their work, and to help each other to a better understanding of their business.

In Ontario, said Dr. Saunders, the progress has been wonderful. Favoured with large areas of fertile land, and an excellent climate, the farmers of this Province have advantages which they are making good use of, and the exports of the products of their labour and skill have reached magnificent proportions. The sale to other countries of such coarse grains as barley and oats, formerly so much in vogue, has now almost ceased, and in their place food in more concentrated and finished forms makes up the bulk of the exports. The fine quality of the cheese and butter, the excellence of the beef, mutton and pork, and the high flavour of the fruits of Ontario, are all helping to gain for this Province a high reputation.

In Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, where the fertility of the soil is almost inexhaustible, the production of cereals is progressing by leaps and bounds, and the far-famed No. 1 hard wheat from the Canadian Northwest (many million bushels of which now find their way to Europe, either in the crude state or as flour), is gaining for Canada an enviable reputation. The production of cattle and swine in the Northwest country is also largely on the increase.

In British Columbia, cattle ranching is a prominent and profitable industry. Hay, coarse, grains, fruit and vegetables are now produced in large quantities to supply the needs of the population in the mining districts, which is increasing rapidly as the mineral resources of the Province are developed. The growing of the fruit for shipment to the Northwest plains is also assuming large proportions, and under the encouragement of reduced rates of carriage, has already become an important industry. With a large area of land adapted for fruit-growing and a climate unsurpassed for the production of apples, pears, plums and cherries, there seems no limit to the bounds to which this industry may be carried.

Throughout the whole extent of our country, farmers are paying much more attention than formerly to the proper preparation of their land; to the selection of the most productive and best varieties of grain for seed, and to the proper time for sowing. Greater efforts are also made towards maintaining the fertility of the land, and especially to the better care and most economical methods of using that important farm product, barn-yard manure.

With the manifest improvement already made, and the growing intelligence of Canadian farmers, still greater progress may be anticipated. The more careful selection of the best strains of cereal products; of the most profitable sorts of cattle for dairying and beef; the feeding of those forms of swine which make the finest quality of bacon; the raising in abundance of the most desirable sorts of poultry for the table, as well as those which give the largest quantity of eggs; the production of the finest varieties of fruit, skillfully graded and selected, and carefully packed; and the exercise of care and skill in all other branches of farm work—with these things, Canada must make rapid advancement and soon gain the reputation of being one of the finest food-producing countries on the globe.

Along all these lines the progress made has received a notable impulse from the careful work done by the Dominion Experimental Farms. The information gained by the many experiments conducted at these useful institutions, under many different conditions of climate and soil, and widely disseminated by the reports and bulletins, has been a great help. The persistent efforts also which have been made to improve the quality and increase the production of cereals in Canada by the distribution of the choicest varieties and the vast amount of information which has been disseminated through a large correspondence relating to all branches of farm work, have been greatly appreciated.

While great good has been done by Provincial institutions, farmers' institutes and agricultural press, the Experimental Farms under the direction of Dr. Saunders, are justly entitled to a very considerable share of the credit for the wonderful progress which has been made during the past ten years in agricultural pursuits.

The Advertiser then said:—"Dr. Saunders, you are in touch, through reading, observation and correspondence, with agricultural conditions and progress throughout the world. Tell us, candidly how you consider Ontario, for example, compares, in regard to intelligent farming methods and reception of progressive ideas, with other parts of the world."

Dr. Saunders replied: "I do not think any other part of the world can now, on the whole, compare with Ontario in the respects you mention. In Scotland you will find individual farms with which Ontario has no individual farms to compars; but speaking broadly, and as to the whole body of farmers and farming in all countries, I candidly consider that Ontario to-day distinctly takes the lead—a lead that will be more and more marked in the future."

No one can take in the above bird's-eye view of agriculture development of Canada during the past ten years, without being thankful that Canada's great future is so rapidly and grandly beginning to be fulfilled. It will be found that the ratio of progress in the past is but small compared with the ratio of progress which shall be in the near future.

MAY NOT ANSWER.

G.T.R. Sends Out a Circular to Its Telegraphers With a Series of Questions to Be Answered.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—From the following it will be seen that Mr. Powell and the Grand Trunk management may clash from the very start. It is not thought, however, that a strike will be ordered in the midst of a Canadian winter, even if they do fail to agree. Yesterday the Grand Trunk sent out the following circular to its employes:

1. Are you a member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers?
2. Was the member of the committee claiming to represent you on the division on which you are employed selected by you for such purpose?
3. Do the committee, therefore, represent your interests in connection with the schedule presented to the company?
4. Are you willing to be bound by any arrangement made by the company which may affect you so far as the schedule rules, regulations or compensation are concerned?

Mr. Powell, Grand Chief of the Order, being interviewed on the above questions, said: "I was told by Mr. Hays when the committee and myself saw him yesterday afternoon that it was his intention to issue this circular. I then told him that I did not think he would receive answers to the questions contained in it from the telegraphers in the employ of the company."

"What would happen if the company insisted upon its telegraphers answering the questions?"

"The members of the order in the employ of the company have been instructed to refuse to answer questions contained in this circular. If Mr. Hays tries to coerce the men it will be the same as using intimidation at the ballot box. If any of the company's telegraphers are discharged for refusing to answer those questions it will only tend to hasten the end. The committee and myself will see Mr. Hays again on Friday, when we expect that the merits of the difficulty will be discussed."

Mr. Powell states that he has assurance from the home office in Peoria, Ill., that Mr. H. E. Thomas, who claims to represent the International Order of Telegraphers, is not what he claims to be. Mr. Thomas offered to supply the Grand Trunk with telegraphers in case of a strike.

MARSH GETS TWELVE YEARS.

Former President of the Keystone National Bank, and Wrecked It.

Philadelphia, Dec. 14. — Gideon W. Marsh, former president of the wrecked Keystone National Bank, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Butler in the United States District Court to an imprisonment of 12 years and three months, and to pay a fine of $500.

The Keystone Bank failed in March, 1891, and President Marsh and Cashier Lawrence were placed under arrest charged with conspiracy in making false entries in the books and issuing false reports to the Comptroller of the Currency. The cashier stood trial and was convicted and imprisoned, but Marsh disappeared, and his bail of $20,000 was forfeited. After wandering over the world for seven and a half years, the fugitive president returned on Nov. 8 last, and surrendered to the authorities. He pleaded guilty when arraigned for trial.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

Good Blood!

Your heart beats over one hundred thousand times each day. One hundred thousand supplies of good or bad blood to your brain.

Which is it?

If bad, impure blood, then your brain aches. You are troubled with drowsiness yet cannot sleep. You are as tired in the morning as at night. You have no nerve power. Your food does you but little good.

Stimulants, tonics, headache powders, cannot cure you; but will. It makes the liver, kidneys, skin and bowels perform their proper work. It removes all impurities from the blood. And it makes the blood rich in its life-giving properties.

To Hasten Recovery.

You will be more rapidly cured if you will take a laxative dose of Ayer's pills each night. They arouse the sluggish liver and thus cure biliousness.

Write to our Doctors.

We have the exclusive services of some of the most eminent physicians in the United States. Write freely all the particulars in your case.

VESSELS CAUGHT BY JACK FROST.

A Large Number of Boats Icebound in Lake Erie.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 14.—Ice extends from St. Clair Cut down through the Detroit River, and for about 40 miles out into Lake Erie in such depth as to badly block the progress of and endanger vessels.

The steamer Curry and three unknown craft are fast off Pelee Island, Lake Erie, and the following are also stuck at that island. Empire City, Carnegie, Northern Queen, Thompson and two consorts, Rockefeller, Republica, Holden, Black, North Wind, Northern Light, Armour, St Paul, Nebraska and Schuck and barge Aurania. Of these the Northern Queen has been heard from. She is out into by the ice, her forward compartments are full of water and her wheel is broken. She has a cargo of grain and package freight for Buffalo.

The steamer George Stone was yesterday flying distress signals off Kingville, Ont. Her first mate and two sailors, who walked ashore on the ice, report that the vessel is out of fuel and provisions. A POPULAR MISTAKE.

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The national disease of Americans is indigestion or, in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common, many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when, as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigourous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid, faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Werthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover this remedy is not a patent medicine, but it is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter), vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, as for indigestion or any stomach trouble, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these pills will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonial sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

A COLLAPSED TANK.

8,000,000 Gallons of Water Flood Streets in New York, and Carry Death and Widespread Destruction.

New York, Dec. 14.—The great steel gas tank of the Consolidated Gas Company at Avenue A and 20th street, the largest of its kind in the world, collapsed at 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It went down with a crash and a roar like a great explosion. Masonry of granite blocks and bricks to the height of 50 feet fell like a child's toy house of blocks, and 8,000,000 gallons of water, loosened from bondage, deluged the streets, and in a 10-foot tidal wave carried death and destruction through the surrounding neighborhood. It is not yet known how many were killed and injured, but the list will be a long one. Already the bodies of Andrew Wends, a workingman, and Pious Baum, an engineer in an adjacent factory, have been recovered.

About 25 people were injured, more or less severely, or almost drowned. All of the more severely injured were taken to Bellevue Hospital by a number of ambulances that came to the scene of the disaster in answer to a general call.

James O'Connor, foreman in Fuldner's factory, adjoining, and believed to have been in the basement with Engineer Baum, who was killed, is missing.

Many people were caught in the streets by the rushing waters and were hurled hither and thither, receiving injuries of various kinds.

W. J. Logan of the Logan Iron Works of Greenpoint, L.I., the contractor who was building the tank, arrived on the scene within a few minutes after the collapse and was at once placed under arrest.

William H. Bradley, the chief engineer of the Consolidated Gas Company, and said to be jointly responsible for the work with Contractor Logan, was also placed under arrest.

The plant of the Consolidated Gas Company occupies several blocks. Back of Avenue A and 20th street tenements was the great steel tank, 175 feet in diameter, and 160 feet high. Rising out of the ground and to a height of 50 feet was built a great circular wall of granite and brick and many feet in thickness. This was filled with 8,000,000 gallons of water. The tank was supported by eight great steel uprights, 212 feet high. The water in the pit fitting against the tank made it "gas tight." A gang of men were at work under a foreman filling the pit with water to make the first "water test." The great tank, with a gas capacity of 8,000,000 cubic feet, and costing $300,000, seemed to withstand the test well. The representatives of the company and the foreman in charge were congratulating themselves upon the success of the work. Then, suddenly, and without a moment's warning, came an awful crash. The men below had scarcely time to fly from beneath the falling walls ere they were picked up by the mass of rolling water and hurled hundreds of feet away. Into the basement, the first and second floors of factories and tenements rushed the angry floods, and with them went death and destruction.

Workmen were shot out of the factory windows, and carried a block or more as if mere straws on the crest of the flood. Women were washed out of the flats from the first floors and almost drowned.

To make the scene more terrible, the rushing waters tore up gas mains and destroyed electric light conduits, causing almost complete darkness. This latter was partially remedied, but the gas supply below Grand street was almost totally shut off for the night.

A Second Collapse.

After the masonry of the tank collapsed, the tank proper careened and fell in a battered heap to one side. The giant uprights were bent as if made of paper, the whole making one great mass of scrap-iron. The loss of the tank is said to be complete—$300,000. It is impossible to make an estimate of damage to contiguous property.

FORTNIGHTLY CLUB'S HISTORICAL EVENING.

THREE INTERESTING PAPERS ON CANADIAN HISTORY.

The Notable Epochs in the History of Canada Interestingly Dealt With —An Instructive and Entertaining Discussion.

At the regular meeting of the Fortnightly Club in the Y. M. C. A. parlours last evening, there was a fair attendance of the members and the general public. Sheriff Hall, the President, occupied the chair.

The papers read upon the subjects designated by the headings below, were cleverly prepared, and contained a large amount of interesting information, much of which had to be omitted by condensation. Mr. Garvin's paper came into the hands of the reporter at so late an hour that a rigidity of condensation inconsistent with its merits, was imperative.

"THE EXPLORERS OF CANADA."

Mr. W. Salisbury read a paper of much interest upon "The Explorers of Canada." After emphasizing the importance of the study of history, the writer pointed out that the existence of this continent was strongly suspected by some of the residents of the old world long before its actual discovery—as far back as the beginning of the Christian era. There is evidence to show that long before Cabot and Columbus, the dwellers of North-western Asia had found a place on this continent. Before King Arthur and his round table were, there were Norse legends respecting the visit of Red Eric to Greenland, and the subsequent landing of his son on the main land. Recently discovered documents go to show that the stories of Erickson's landing in America were authentic, and that the existence of the western hemisphere was known to the Roman Catholic church long before the time of Columbus. Although Columbus was not the first European to land in America, to him must be given the credit of making practical use of the knowledge of the existence of America. The paper went on to relate the visits of the Cabots, father and son, and later of Jacques Cartier, the true discoverer of Canada, with interesting details of his discoveries. Champlain was the first to establish a permanent settlement. The leading motive of expeditionary movements was ostensibly to extend the true religion and to minister to the glory of God. The paper referred eloquently to the history of the aboriginal Indian on this continent as the saddest chapter of history. His possessions have passed out of his hands and his very existence is reduced to a mere handful. Detailed reference was made to the still existing evidences of the occupation of America by prehistoric races, more numerous, powerful and civilized than the present race of Indians in their palmiest days. The paper traced the effect of the discovery of America upon the world—it brought the people to the front, and to this is to be traced the dawn of the later civilization, in which the will of the people was to be the ruling influence. The oppressed people of the old world found homes in the new under more congenial conditions. Reference was made to the obstacles presented to new world progress in Canada by the establishment of restrictive and oppressive feudalism, whose conditions were brought to bear to make the colony minister to the power and wealth of the state, regardless of the rights of the colonists. The military dominance that had obtained in New France, ceased the day the French armies were withdrawn, and Canada became a province of British America. This interesting paper closed with reference to the coincidence existing in the recent annihilation of the Spanish fleet almost in the very waters from which Columbus sighted the new world.

THE CESSION OF CANADA.

Mr. J. W. Garvin's paper on the cession of Canada began by outlining the events that preceded it, including interesting details of the expeditionary military operations up to the time of the siege and capture of Quebec, which was the end of the conflict and was followed by the treaty of Paris, by which France renounced all pretensions to Canadian territory and ceded to Great Britain, Canada with all its dependencies, as well as the Island of Cape Breton and all the other islands and coasts on the Gulf of Lawrence and in general everything that depends on the said countries, in the most ample form and without restriction. On Great Britain's side it was agreed to grant the liberty of the Catholic religion to the inhabitants of Canada. The conditions in regard to Newfoundland had special significance at the present time, such as the renunciation of the right to fortify any place on the Island of Newfoundland, and the conditions as to coast fishing rights to the French. The paper stated that the settlement of Champlain might be regarded as the starting point in Canadian history, and concluded with an analysis of the character of the French Canadian people, and a statement that at the time of the conquest the population was not more than 1,500 between the ages of 16 and 60, who were specially guaranteed religious liberty, and the benefits of the freedom guaranteed by the British Constitution.

THE REBELLION OF 1837.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong's interesting paper on this subject contained an interesting summary of the political condition of the country from 1791, when an Imperial Act of Parliament divided this country into the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, each with a separate system of government. In Upper Canada there were practically no political parties prior to the war of 1812-15. Previous to this time the people of the provinces had grievances which demanded redress. There was no organized Opposition party. Shortly after the war the Crown lands management was attacked, led by Robert Gourlay. The agitation he set on foot resulted in the remedying of the grievances. Another source of irritation was the law as to aliens, which injuriously affected the property of, especially immigrants from the United States. These laws were amended, but the accompanying agitation aroused public interest in political matters. The Executive Council was responsible only so the Crown and the Legislative Assembly had only a nominal power—with no authority over departmental administration, and could enact no law except under concurrence of the Legislative Council, itself subject to executive dictation. Even officials had seats in the legislature, thus adding to the power of the Executive Council, which held its place without time limit, and was in a position and did monopolise the appointment of officials, and earned the name of the Family Compact. The paper detailed clearly the several political questions which brought the Executive in conflict with the Assembly and the friction with the Legislative Council, which went to such an extent that in 1830 forty bills were vetoed. Petition to the Home Government removed many of the causes of complaint. In 1830 the Government party's success in the elections was used in such a way as to embitter the leading reformers, and later the leader of the rebellion, William Lyon Mackenzie, who was pursued with great zeal and several times the representative of York, was expelled from the House. All this added to his popularity and placed him in the position of a political martyr. The success of the Reformers in 1834 added to the bitterness of political feeling and then were first-heard complaints against the tyranny of the Mother country, and then, in some cases unjustly, suspicion was engendered of the loyalty of the reformers. After referring to the trouble in Lower Canada, the paper spoke of the appointment in 1836 of Sir Francis Bond Head as a man unacquainted with the art of governing and incapable of learning, entirely unacquainted with the country, and incapable of dealing with an agitation founded on tangible grievances. The circumstances that led up to the outbreak of the rebellion were detailed and the disbelief of the authorities in its possibility. The incidents of the uprising and its suppression were dealt with, both in Upper and Lower Canada. Far-seeing Reformers were not in sympathy with the violent methods of the extremists, and British politicians looked at the grievances of the distant colony through the small end of the telescope. In 1836 responsible government came very near being established in Canada, and would have been obtained, but Sir Francis Bond Head, with incomprehensible infatuation, prevented its consummation.

An interesting and spirited discussion followed the reading of the several excellent papers, which was joined in by Mr. D. W. Dumble, Mr. James McCaig and Mr. Wm. Kerr, Q.C., of Cobourg.

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says :—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

THE KENNEL.

If those who have signified their willingness to become members of the Kennel Club will leave their fees with the secretary-treasurer at the EXAMINER office, a great favour will be conferred, as on account of the large amount of correspondence involved in connection with the Bench Show, it will be almost impossible to see each member personally in reference to the matter.

HOCKEY.

The hockey boys will hold their first ice practice to-night at seven o'clock. A full attendance is requested. After practice a captain will be elected.

CRICKET.

A general meeting of the Cricket Club is called for 7.45 o'clock Saturday evening in the Oriental Hotel parlours. Business of importance will be discussed. The financial statement of the year will be brought down and plans discussed for raising money to meet next year's demands. An amateur minstrel show and a ball are within the possibilities.

—TO THE—

PETERBOROUGH BOOKSTORE.

Santa Claus has just been heard from. For the information of the Old Folks as well as the Young Folks we are at liberty to publish the following :—

DEAR MESSRS. STRATTON & Co. :

Just a line by telephone to say that I expect to be at the Peterborough Bookstore Saturday. Have had a splendid journey—the sleighing's so splendid! Beautiful cold weather. My loads were very heavy—but you asked for a bigger stock than ever and you've got it. Tell the police men to have the streets all clear for me, as the deer are very frisky. Won't it be jolly to meet all the dear children in the Grotto again? Put this in the newspapers and let the children know about my reception in the Peterborough Bookstore all next week. Do you think your street cars will frighten my reindeer? "So long" till I see you and all the dear children. So long, so long.

Your faithful old friend,
SANTA.

SONS OF ENGLAND GRAND BANQUET.

It Was Held Last Evening in the Morgan House.

ABOUT A HUNDRED GUESTS PRESENT

The Evening was Enlivened With Speeches, Music and Song—A Comprehensive Toast List—Most Appetising Menu.

The annual banquet of the Sons of England was held last evening at the Morgan House, when the large dining room had been most beautifully decorated for the occasion by Mr. Alf. Kingscote. At one end of the room, surrounded by flags, hung a portrait of the Queen, whilst at the other end was the banner of the lodge draped upon the wall. Graceful festoons of bunting stretched from the corners of the room to the centre of the ceiling and garlands hung between the pillars. The Union Jack was predominant everywhere, as it is throughout the world.

Mayor Davis occupied the head of the table and the vice-chairs were filled by Rev. H. Symonds and Dr. Pigeon, respectively.

Almost a hundred guests sat down to the bounteous repast and whilst the supper was in progress the Sons of England Band, in an adjoining room, played some very pleasing selections. The menu was as follows:—

MENU.

Soup
Oyster Beef Broth

Boiled
Chicken with Curried Rice
Mutton and Caper Sauce

Roast
Sirloin of Beef and Brown Gravy
Pork and Apple Sauce
Turkey and Cranberry Sauce
Duck and Currant Jelly
Goose and Apple Sauce

Cold
Ham Tongue

Entrees
Cabbage Salad Beet Salad

Relishes
Celery Mixed Pickles Pickled Peaches

Vegetables
Mashed Potatoes Boiled Potatoes

Apple Pie Mince Pie Black Currant Tart
Raspberry Tart Chocolate Cake
Walnut Cake Mulberry Cake

Jellies
Port Wine Jelly Pine Apple Jelly
Charlotte Russe

Dessert
Tea Ale Coffee Oranges Apples
Almonds Walnuts Filberts Raisins

The above menu speaks for itself—except that a mere list can give no adequate idea of the excellent manner in which the cooking was done or the excellence and promptitude of the service.

THE TOAST LIST.

Before proposing the first toast the mayor thanked the members of Lansdowne Lodge for the honour which they had conferred upon him in asking him to take the chair during the evening and expressed the hope that he would discharge his duties in a sufficiently favourable manner to be asked to take the same office next year. The health of "The Queen" was then proposed and duly honoured, as was that of "The Governor-General of Canada. Mr. Alf. Kingscote then favoured the gathering with the rendition of "Rule Britannia," the refrain being caught up and sung as only Englishmen can sing it.

The toast of "Army, Navy and Volunteers" was responded to by Lieut. V. Eastwood, of the 57th Rangers, and Mr. A. P. Poussette, President of the Veterans' Association.

Lieut. Eastwood esteemed it an easy task at such a time to laud the praises of the army, navy and volunteers, when the arms of England has just won such glory in the Soudan. The eyes of the world were on Great Britain, who had so recently placed her house in order and bade the whole world "Come on!" In connection with the volunteers Lt. Eastwood had many words of praise, drawing attention to the benefits to be derived by young men from a military training, and instancing the position held by Germany through the fact of the training to which her young men were subjected.

Mr. A. P. Poussette expressed the gratification it gave him to say a few words on behalf of the volunteers. It had been noticed with regret that the ranks of the 57th were, from some cause, suffering depletion. The local volunteers had always when away on their trip, and a warm welcome had been received by them everywhere. He urged that the citizens take a greater interest in their battalion and encourage the members in every way possible. Nothing was more valuable to a young man than the training he would receive in connection with the volunteers.

A splendid reception greeted Mr. Welter Stocker's singing of "Soldiers of the Queen."

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., proposed what he considered the most important toast of the evening, "England." It had been stated that England desired to own the whole earth. Well it would not be a bad idea if England did control the world, as where the flag of Great Britain was unfurled, there was found the open Bible and the ballot box—highest type of Christian civilization.

The name of Rev. H. Symonds was connected with the toast. In responding he coincided with Mr. Stratton in thinking that the toast was the most important one of the evening and the closest to the hearts of all in addition. He felt that it was not easy to respond to such a toast—to rise to the occasion, as it was, when the Empire was meeting with such successes in every land and prosperity shining so brightly—Englishmen might be termed a nation of shopkeepers, but it had been proven that they could hold their own with the sword and the rifle as well. Not an Englishman who when called upon to enter the field, would not cheerfully abandon his commercial life and take up his arms and lay them down, as well as his life, for his country. England was supreme in arts as well. Tennyson and Shakspere, the great poets, were Englishmen. In science England had produced some of the greatest men the world had ever known. The demands and claims of religion were met in England and in English colonies in a manner in which they were not met anywhere else.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE of the British Empire, the speaker thought that the English-speaking people had a great destiny before them. Imperial democracy was the closing keynote of this century. This idea was most prevalent in England to-day. It had been left to the nation by the late Lord Beaconsfield. Imperial democracy—the King and the people. The mission of England was to unite all English-speaking nations for the purpose of spreading liberty and civilization throughout the world.

Mr. A P. Poussette proposed the toast of "The House of Commons and the Legislative Assembly," briefly sketching the history of the Canadian parliaments from their inception.

Mr. Wm. Kerr, Q.C., of Cobourg, ex-M.P., was first called upon to respond to the toast. After referring to the great pleasure it gave him to be present unexpectedly, he mentioned the fact of his great former friendship for the fathers of Mayor Davis and Mr. J. R. Stratton. The House of Commons had a great responsibility to discharge, regardless of party, in building up under the ægis of old England, her fairest colony.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., thanked the members for their kindness in always inviting him to their banquets as a representative in the Assembly and as a private citizen. He congratulated the Lodge on its prosperity and dwelt on the good which was accomplished by societies of a similar nature. In referring to the toast the speaker contended that, man for man, the representatives in the Canadian House of Commons and Legislative Assemblies, would compare favourably with any similar bodies in the world. In affairs of state all were anxious to make every effort for the advancement of the country. Before closing Mr. Stratton bore warm tribute to the success attained by Mayor Davis in connection with the council during the past year.

Mr. Poussette then proposed the toast of "Canada," which was responded to by Mr. E. A. Peck, who, in opening, mentioned upon which a response to such a toast could be based. The present and future problems of the country and our duty to Canada would however, be more suitable than any other to the occasion. He sketched lightly some of the dark days of the past, when absorption by the United States seemed the one ultimatum. This was back in the sixties. Since then Canada had progressed and the various forward steps were rapidly outlined. As so many difficulties had been compassed in the past it required no great stretch of the imagination to tide Canada over any future ones which might arise. Canada was in a practically independent position. She could throw her lot in with the United States if she chose, but on the contrary the ties with old England were

ROSS GETS THREE YEARS

He Entered a Plea of Guilty to the Charge of Forgery and Will go to the Penitentiary.

Before Judge Weller, yesterday afternoon, at the General Sessions of the Peace, the appeal of Mrs. Searight against a decision of Magistrate Dumble was dismissed and the magistrate's conviction sustained.

Mr. E. B. Stone appeared for the appellant and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun for the respondent.

The Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Wm. Ross, for forgery, and the prisoner on being arraigned entered a plea of guilty. He was sentenced to three years in the Kingston penitentiary.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defence, Mr. R. E. Wood, County Attorney, representing the Crown.

The case of Irwin vs. Ackerman was given to the jury this afternoon.

The following presentment was brought in by the Grand Jury.

PETERBOROUGH, December 14th, 1898.

His Honour Judge Weller:

We, the Grand Jury of the County Court of Peterborough, have inspected the gaol and find everything in good shape. We would like to recommend that a modern fire alarm system be put in as we consider the present way dangerous to the prisoners. We are glad to notice the action the council of the town of Peterborough has taken with regard to a House of Refuge and we trust that the county will see its way clear to take a similar course, as we think the gaol no fit place for destitutes.

The little Dutch boy who stopped the leak in the dike with his finger saved his country from overwhelming destruction. You have read about him in your school readers, how he was walking along the dike when he heard a faint sound of trickling water, and knew at once that a leak had sprung in that great embankment which saves Holland from the devastations of the hungry sea. It was early in the night, and no one was near at hand. The leak was small when he found it, but he knew that the action of the water would enlarge it long before morning, and wash away the entire embankment, inundate the country and destroy his own and thousands of homes. So he bravely put his finger in the crevasse, and kept it there all the long night through, until help came and the opening was properly stopped. He had saved his country.

Equally insignificant is the entrance of disease into the human system. The beginnings of the most terrible ailments are so small they can be easily stopped at the start. Your health is a dike which keeps out and stops the inroads of dangerous and devastating disease. Whenever it breaks down, no matter how slightly, there is an opening for disease to enter. If the opening is not watched, it will grow larger, until the sweep of disease overwhelms you, and health and perhaps life is destroyed forever.

Fortify your health with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you can defy ill-health. You can make your health so strong a bulwark that disease cannot find a crevice through which it can creep. Taken in time, Dr. Pierce's remedies prevent greater and more serious troubles. Hundreds write daily to Dr. Pierce, telling him how these remedies have saved them and made them strong.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is speedily cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

STAGE FRIGHT.

Actors Have Been Known to Die From the Malady.

Perhaps the most terrible malady which can attack the actor in the course of his performance is the peculiar disease known as "stage fright." Through its evil effects strong men and women have been known to faint, break down and do many other queer things, and there are even on record several cases of people who have died through this horrible seizure.

Some years ago a young novice, who was to appear for the first time, arrived at the theater very white and shaky. Brandy being given him, he appeared slightly better, but no sooner had he set his foot on the stage than he clapped his hand to his heart with a low cry and fell down dead. The overwhelming sensation induced by stage fright had attacked his heart, and his theatrical career ended thus even at its beginning.

Quite as ghastly was the case of the young amateur actress who, strangely enough, had never experienced stage fright when playing with her fellow amateurs, but who was seized with the attack on making her first professional appearance. She went through the scene, aided by the prompter, her eyes glazed, her hands rigid, and when the exit came it proved her exit from life's stage as well as the mimic boards, for she staggered to her dressing room and fell into a comatose state from which she never recovered.

Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran performer who had gone through 30 years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him, and that he did not think he could ever act again.

His comrade laughed at the notion and urged him to go on as usual, but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and after making several vain efforts to speak fell back and expired. The doctor who made the post mortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.—Pearson's Weekly.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Jherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

Burton and Tobacco.

Tobacco, divine, rare, superexcellent tobacco, which goes far beyond all the panaceas, potable gold, and philosophers' stones, a sovereign remedy to all diseases; a good vomit, I confess, a virtuous herb, if it be well qualified, opportunely taken and medicinally used; but as it is commonly abused by most men, who take it as tinkers do ale, 'tis a plague, a mischief, a violent purger of goods, lands, health; hellish, devilish and damned tobacco, the ruin and overthrow of body and soul.—"Anatomy of Melancholy."

That Throbbing Headache

Would quickly leave leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and strong nerves and build up your health. Easy to take. Try them. Only 25 cents. Money back if not cured. Sold by all Druggists.

Coughs Cured.

Quickly, permanently and pleasantly by the use of Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. The most satisfactory cough remedy made. Price 25c.

Before. After. Wood's Phosphodine,

The Great English Remedy. Sold and recommended by all druggists in Canada. Only reliable medicine discovered. Six boxes guaranteed to cure all forms of Sexual Weakness, all effects of abuse or excess, Mental Worry, Excessive use of Tea, Opium or Stimulants. Mailed on receipt of price, one package $1, six $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet free to any address. The Wood Company, [illegible], Ont.

ENGLISH ARMY LIFE.

HOW TOMMY ATKINS FARES IN THE MATTER OF FOOD.

What He Must Attain Before He Can Secure the Privilege of Marrying. How the Wives of the Privates Live in the Barracks.

The orderly man clatters in at the door with a steaming can of tea, from which he rapidly fills the basins, the milk and sugar having been already added before the tea left the cookhouse. No allowance is made in barracks for men of fastidious tastes. If a man prefers his tea unsweetened, he can go elsewhere; the taste of the majority is alone consulted. The tea having been served out, the orderly man now proceeds to divide the bread into chunks, one for each man, and announces that the "extra" that morning is butter. This announcement is a welcome one, and the butter, being produced in its wrapper of blue canteen paper, is speedily divided into equal portions, one for each member of the mess.

Should any comrade be so unfortunate as to be languishing in the guardroom, awaiting disposal by the commanding officer, the orderly man has now to take his allowance to him, the tea being poured into a tin canteen and the bread and butter wrapped in paper and stowed in a haversack.

But it may be asked: "Surely we have been told that soldiers enjoy more variety than plain bread and butter at their breakfasts. Have we not heard of savory kippers, of porridge—yes, even of eggs and bacon?"

True, such are the dishes encouraged by generals and colonels who like to earn a reputation for looking after the welfare of their men, but these fancy relishes are not much encouraged by Tommy Atkins, for the simple reason that his funds will not allow of his receiving more than an infinitesimal portion of the kipper or whatever may be the favorite breakfast dainty of his commanding officer. All that the corporal in charge of the grocery book has to spend daily is threepence per man in mess or under $4 for a company with the average strength of 60 men in mess.

When it is realized that with this money tea, salt, pepper, vegetables for dinner, flour, if a "duff" is to ornament the dinner table, and all the groceries which the soldier needs to eke out the rations of bread and meat already described have to be provided, it will be understood that the question of providing extras for breakfast and tea is a difficult one to solve, and that the corporal naturally prefers something like butter, which all appreciate, to some other dainty which may not appeal to the tastes of his constituency.

The question of permission to marry is a burning one in the barrack room. Only a limited number of men are allowed to marry, the strength of the roll varying with the establishment of the corps. Sergeants are given permission to marry as a matter of course, if there is a vacancy in the establishment, but no soldier is allowed to enter the blessed state unless he has seven years' service, £5 in the savings bank and two good conduct badges. I have heard it said that there is such a thing as borrowing the £5 till the necessary permission has been obtained, but there is no getting over the other two conditions.

The married quarters seem comfortable enough. What strikes us most is the enormous number of babies and quite young children who swarm round the door of every quarter, occasional yells leading to the hasty arrival of a flushed and heated looking matron to restore order in a summary fashion. The allowance of space does not strike one as particularly liberal, soldiers with small families being given only one room, with the minutest possible scullery, the fathers of larger families rejoicing in an extra room. Sergeants, as a rule, have two rooms, but otherwise have no pull over their comrades of lower rank.

The wives of the private soldiers add largely to the scanty pay of their husbands by doing washing for the men of their husbands' company, and twice blessed is the woman whose good man belongs to a company having few married soldiers. In this case she will be able to get more to do than her less fortunate sisters. Some of the women who have a reputation as washerwomen earn plenty of money by washing for the officers of the regiment. The soldier's wife seems to drift naturally into being a washerwoman.

A little conversation with the ladies is a liberal education in esprit de corps; each woman thoroughly identifies herself with the regiment to which her husband belongs, and even in these days of short service it is not difficult to find women whose fathers and grandfathers have soldiered in bygone days under the tattered colors now hanging in the sacred precincts of the officers' mess.

The ladies of the regiment, as a rule, take great interest in the welfare of their humbler sisters, frequently visiting them in their quarters and giving more than their sympathy at one of those crises which occur so frequently in the married block and generally lead ultimately to the object of their solicitude applying for extra accommodation owing to an unauthorised addition to the strength of the battalion.—"Social Life In the British Army," by a British Officer.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

..Dr. Chase's Ointment..

His suffering from Ulcerating Piles Cured.

He says:—I was troubled with itching piles for five years, and was badly ulcerated. They were very painful, so much so that I could not sleep. I tried almost every remedy heard of, and was recommended to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box, and from the first application got such relief that I was satisfied a cure would be made. I used in all two boxes, and am now completely cured.

Every remedy given by Dr. Chase cost years of study and research, and with an eye single to its adaptation for the ailments for which it was intended. Dr. Chase detested cure-alls, and it has been proven ten thousand times that not one of his formulas leave a bad after-effect. Dr. Chase's Ointment is based on lanoline, and the best physicians prescribe it.

CANADIANS TO FORCE FIGHT.

Another Brief Session of the Joint Commission at Washington—State of the Reciprocity Matter.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The American-Canadian commission held a meeting yesterday and adjourned until to-day. The American and British members each held separate sessions before the joint session. The questions considered, it was stated, were those which have been before the commission during the past few days. It is understood that the published forecast of an adjournment about Dec. 20 till next March is well based. While no official motion of this sort has been made in conference, the matter has been discussed and such a proposition is likely to come from the Canadian side at almost any meeting. The commissioners continue their stereotyped replies to all enquiries that "the negotiations are proceeding as satisfactorily as could be expected, but no conclusion has yet been reached."

The Canadian commissioners will, it is understood, seek to force affairs along at a more rapid pace this week, so that when the conference is adjourned, next Monday or Tuesday, for the Christmas holidays they will be in a position to know what is the furthest extent of the concessions on the trade questions that can be put through the United States Senate. Yesterday the Americans on the reciprocity committee were again unready. The Senate is the real stumbling block.

BRYAN THE CHOICE.

99 Out of 186 Senators Declare for the Silver Leader for 1900.

New York, Dec. 13.—The Washington correspondent of the Journal has made a poll of the Democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress as to who is to be the Democratic national leader, and what will be the chief issue in 1900. One hundred and eight representatives were interviewed, 99 of whom declared in favor of Bryan and the currency question. Of the Senators spoken to, 23 were for the old leader and old issues until new ones develop.

Vessels Wrecked—Crews Saved.

London, Dec. 13.—Heavy gales are prevailing along the British coasts. The Hartlepool steamer Chester was sunk in a collision near Harwich last night and the steamer Nevis is ashore in the Clyde. The crews of both vessels were saved. The steamer Sailor was blown adrift in the Thames and crashed into the south end pier, doing considerable damage to herself and the pier.

CANADA'S TRIUMPHS.

Won Further Fame as an Agricultural and Mining Country at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Canada's triumphs at the World's Fair, which enhanced her fame as a productive and progressive country, have been repeated on a modified scale at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, recently brought to a close at Omaha. Canada's display of agricultural and mineral products was conceded by visitors to be one of the real features of the exhibition, and gave an impressive object lesson of the possibilities of this country. Favorable public opinion as to its merits was confirmed by the judges, who bestowed upon it the gold medal. But this was not the only honor won by Canada. A bronze medal was awarded for the British Columbia exhibit of gold, silver and copper ores, while gold medals were given for the general exhibits of grains and grasses from Alberta, Assiniboia and Manitoba. These honors were won in competition with all the western States, so that the achievement is no empty one. From the immigration point of view the exhibit was a success, and will doubtless have a marked influence in accelerating the movement Canada-ward from the United States. The medals and diplomas were received at the Interior Department yesterday.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

Nasty Skin Disease Permanently Cured.

B. B. B. is making medical history. No other remedy anywhere can produce such cases of "permanent cures" as are being published from time to time.

Even in the severest and most chronic diseases of the skin and blood, where other treatment has utterly failed, Burdock Blood Bitters makes cures so thorough and perfect that after many years there is no sign of the disease returning. We don't ask you to accept our statement that this is so. Here's proof from Mr. N. Mitchell, Carman, Man.:

"During the winter of 1892-93 I was covered with pimples on the inside of my right leg, between the knee and ankle. As I never had anything of the kind before I was anxious about it, and sought medical advice, but getting no relief from the doctor, I tried a bottle of B. B. B., applying some of it to my leg, as well as using it internally, and to my surprise the nasty disease, whatever it was, disapeared within three weeks, and I am thankful to say it has never reappeared to this day."

OFFICE - FURNITURE WAREROOMS.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," — "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

In less than half an hour every member of the Durand household was aware that a detective was soon to appear upon the scene, and all were excited, anxious, or curious, according to their various dispositions. Still another half-hour, and a stout, middle-aged, roughly-dressed man stood ringing at the door of the Durand mansion.

Presently downstairs rushed the footman, bursting into the kitchen with the announcement: "The detective has come! He is upstairs now. He is going to examine every door and window in the house!"

"Oh my!" cried the cook, letting fall a big spoon in her consternation. "What did he look like?"

"O, a biggish man, with sandy hair and whiskers. He looks to me like a man that drinks."

"La!" said the cook.

"Yes; and I heard him say that he must see all the servants."

"Well, let him," sniffed the housemaid. "I don't s'pose none of us are afraid. We didn't steal Mr. Durand's money, goodness knows."

"Didn't you, my girl?" drawled a voice directly behind her. "Well, you don't talk like a dishonest girl."

There was a chorus of little cries, in various keys, from the members of the kitchen cabinet, as they turned their eyes toward the doorway, where stood the detective, smiling benignly on them.

"Of course I don't suspect any of you," resumed he, coming toward them as he spoke. "But some of you might accidentally help me to a clue, don't you see?"

Then he turned his attention to the fastening of the doors and windows, which he examined with great care.

Next he insisted upon peering into the cellar, the pantries, and closets, and, finally, he lounged down on a big splint-bottomed chair, the especial property of the cook, and began talking about the robbery in a pleasant, off-hand, careless fashion, interlarding his discourse with frequent compliments, and comments of an irrelevant nature, calculated to edify his audience, and render them quite at east.

It would be difficult to tell where the discourse left off, and the questioning began; but when, after an hour spent in the kitchen, the free and easy detective at last lounged up to the library, where Mr. Durand awaited him, he was in full possession of every idea entertained by the servants below stairs, in relation to the robbery.

"I have done with the servants, Mr. Durand," he said, standing respectfully before the old man. "Now, if you please, I will see your daughter's maid."

Mr. Durand rang the bell immediately, and made no comment.

"Send Miss Aura's maid to me directly, Jacobs," he said to the bowing footman who promptly appeared.

In a short time the maid, a simpering, affected little being, with few ideas beyond her calling, entered the room.

A very brief interview seemed to satisfy the detective, and then he said, "Now, if you please, I will see your daughter and her companion."

In obedience to the command of her master, the simpering girl tripped away, and then the detective asked, "How long has this young lady, Miss——"

"Annin," supplied Mr. Durand.

"How long has Miss Annin been in your daughter's employ?"

"She has been with us some two months."

"And—pardon the question, sir—is she a favourite with yourself and Mrs. Durand?"

Mr. Durand hesitated a moment, and a look of annoyance flitted over his face. Then he replied: "Candidly, my wife does not like the young lady, although I see nothing to find fault with. If Miss Aura is more content with her society than without it, she should not be unwelcome to me."

The detective made no reply to this speech, and they awaited in silence the appearance of the two young ladies.

They waited so long that at last Mr. Durand arose, and, with a muttered exclamation of impatience, stretched out his hand towards the bell rope.

As he was about to ring the door suddenly opened, and a young lady entered the room quite hurriedly.

"I beg your pardon, sir," she said, addressing Mr. Durand, and never once looking at the detective. "I have kept you waiting, but it was because of Miss Durand; she is quite indisposed, and begs that you will excuse her from coming down."

"Indisposed!" cried Mr. Durand, in evident surprise, "this is the first I have heard of it."

The young lady made no answer, but stood respectfully before him, as if awaiting his commands.

"I am sorry that Miss Aura is ill, Miss Annin; is it anything serious, do you apprehend?"

"Oh, no, sir," replied Miss Annin, promptly; and just for one instant there was a queer glimmer in her eye, a glimmer which the detective did not fail to notice. "She will be better by evening, I think; it is a sort of nervous headache."

"Well, well, poor child, another time must do then. You will give this man any information that you can, Miss Annin. He is investigating this robbery, you know."

She bowed her head, and then turned to the detective, saying, simply:

"I am at your service, sir."

Miss Annin, the hired companion of Aura Durand, the heiress, was a decided brunette. She was by no means a beauty, and yet one would have paused anywhere to take a second look at Miss Nina Annin. Her nose was too large and too prominent; her forehead too low, and not broad enough; but her eyes were large, dark, and handsome; her teeth white and regular; her hair, dark, glossy, and abundant, was manifestly all her own, and she wore it in a simple and becoming fashion; her head was well shaped, and was poised somewhat haughtily upon a slender neck and above gracefully rounded shoulders. She was below the medium height, neither slender nor plump, just one of those firm, compact little bodies that impress you at once with the idea that the owner thereof has a decided will of her own, and a pretty sure method of making it tell upon others.

All of this the detective comprehended at a glance, and as she turned her eyes full upon him, he was conscious of a vague impression that the face was not quite unfamiliar to him.

After all, he seemed to have little to say to Miss Annin, and the little that he did say seemed to elicit no very satisfactory replies. When he had signified that he had no more to ask, and the young lady had bowed and retired from the room as composedly as she had entered it, he turned towards his employer, saying:

"For the present, Mr. Durand, I have finished my investigation here. If you will now write for me the address of the party who paid you the money last evening I will take my leave."

Mr. Durand silently complied with his request, and then said:

"May I be allowed to ask a few questions, not so much pertaining to this case as to your system?"

The detective bowed.

"Then will you tell me why you have so carefully examined every door and window in the house? Was it in the hope of finding some trace of the robber?"

"Not at all. I wished to assure myself as to the possibility or impossibility of entering your house either by door or window."

"Well?" expectantly.

"I find that your bolts and bars should be burglar-proof; no thief entered last night, either by door or window."

"Why, sir, how about the open street door?"

"The thief may have been secreted before your doors were locked, or even in the daytime—but—I am not at all convinced of that; if such were the case, however, he would naturally leave by the most accessible door; namely, that opening directly upon the street."

"You have questioned my servants and addressed a few questions to my wife and Miss Annin; pardon me, but I could not quite see the drift of your conversation—sometimes it seemed a little irrelevant."

"No doubt," drily.

"Why did you dismiss my daughter's maid, and afterward her companion, so summarily?"

"Because—there was nothing more to be gained from them."

"Your questions seemed to me quite unimportant."

"They were unimportant. I have been questioning faces, not minds, in my examinations to-day, sir. The mind, the tongue, soon learn to dissemble, to guard a secret well, but the human face is a window. The quivering of a nostril, a chance gleam of the eye, a movement of the hand, or head, can convey to me more meaning than will hundreds of words. For years I have made the human countenance my study, and I have been well repaid."

"And what have you learned from the faces of my servants?"

"That I must look farther before I find a clue to this mysterious burglar. Your servants are honest."

"Then we are at sea again?"

"Not quite, sir; but Mr. Bathurst must take the next step. I will now go."

And without another word this eccentric personage took his leave.

"These detectives are a queer lot," muttered Mr. Durand, as he went thoughtfully up to his wife's sitting-room. "And if I am not mistaken this man has a suspicion after all."

"It's a queer trail to strike," thought the detective, as he walked briskly away from the avenue. "But I will follow it up for all that—the only person in that household who has roused a suspicion in my mind is the rich man's daughter, Miss Aura Durand."

As if undecided where to go he turned at the corner of State street, and looked up and down. As he did so, his eye fell upon a man lounging before a confectioner's window, and, seemingly, intent upon counting the cakes within.

"Upon my word," muttered our detective, with a sudden start. "Here he is." And he hurried across the street, and was soon within speaking distance of the stranger, who was a tall man, with a slouching hang-dog air, a shabby costume, and a head of brick-coloured hair, that fell down almost to his collar. The face was smooth shaven, except for a dab of red beard upon the protruding chin, and was further ornamented by a patch just under the left eye. The nose had a very inflammable look, and a shabby beaver hat worn over one ear completed the ensemble of the veriest "bummer" that ever trod the flags of State street.

There was the usual bustle and hurry upon the street, and having surveyed the lounger to his satisfaction, our detective managed to wedge himself in among the foot-passengers in such a manner that when opposite the red-haired man he was suddenly brought up against him with considerable force.

"What the dev—"

The stranger suddenly checked his wrath, as his eye fell upon the detective; and then the two gazed at each other in silence for a moment.

"You couldn't tell me the way to the Tremont house could you, stranger?" asked the detective, with a comical drawl.

The man thus addressed turned away suddenly, and retreating until his back could be brought in contact with the confectioner's wall—said, with a jerk of the head, in that direction, "Maybe I've got the address in my pocket, pardner; come hither and see."

Thus invited, the detective approached, and said, in a low, quick tone:

"Rob, old man, I spotted you by accident, didn't set out to run you down. If I am in the way I'll move on."

"You are not in the way, Neil," said the disguised Jocelyn. "I am after a chap who is upstairs now with a lady. Just stand here and talk while I wait—that is if you are not in a hurry on your own account."

"I'm in no hurry now, Rob," replied Bathurst. "I have two good hours before me, and, as usual, am restless while idle from necessity. Lord, man, what a make-up, and you have sacrificed your moustache, too. That's a confounded shame."

"Had to do it," replied Jocelyn, indifferently. "You see I tumbled up early this morning, and came out; almost the first man I saw was a party who must have crossed the water very lately; he is a swell gambler, and a rascal of the finest cut. I knew some of his games in London, and am ready to wager that he is here for no good. I've been shadowing him all day, and don't intend to let up until I find out his game."

"All right, Rob, but don't let me lose track of you—I am looking up a queer job myself, and may call on you for assistance."

At this moment a man and woman came down the stairs near them, and Neil Bathurst knew by one glance from Rob Jocelyn's eye that this was the game.

A carriage was standing just below them, the man hurried the woman towards it, assisted her in, lifted his hat gracefully, and turned away, walking swiftly up State street, while the carriage rolled off in the opposite direction.

Without a word Rob Jocelyn turned his face northward, and walked swaggeringly after the man, while Neil Bathurst sauntered slowly down the street, as if following the carriage. Scarcely noting whither his feet turned, after the carriage had whirled out of sight, he paced on, lost in thought.

A crowd of people were gathered upon a corner listening to the lively chatter of some street vendor, and to avoid these he turned down one of those streets of doubtful repute that are so plentiful in Chicago. It was comparatively quiet here, and our hero moved on, still lost in a labyrinth of cogitations.

As he was passing a somewhat showy house, before which a carriage was standing, a sudden movement of one of the horses attracted his attention, and looking up quickly, he saw that it was the very carriage which had driven away from the State street restaurant.

"Ah!" muttered he, "Rob's Englishman is not above the demi-monde it seems, and yet the woman can't live here. I have got into a bad locality, and will turn back."

He was suiting the action to his word, when his steps were arrested by a loud shriek, which seemed to come from the upper rooms of the gaudy house.

He paused irresolute, until the sound was repeated.

"Help! help!" cried a woman's voice. "Murder! Murder!"

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

SONS OF ENGLAND GRAND BANQUET.

becoming more closely cemented each day.

Mr. George Adams then sang a couple of humorous songs which greatly delighted the guests.

Dr. Pigeon, vice chairman, proposed the toast of "The Supreme Grand Lodge," and in connection therewith mentioned the regret which was felt at the absence of the Supreme Lodge officers, who were expected to be present. In their absence the name of Rev. Mr. Symonds was connected with the toast. He humorously impersonated Dr. Hodgson, S.G.L.V.P.

To Mr. Stratton fell the duty of proposing the next toast, which was that of "The Mayor and Corporation." In referring to the mayor he eulogized him as filling the chair in a more capable manner than any official in his recollection. During the past year through his energy, permanent improvements had been commenced. Pavements and sewers had been constructed and the taxes were still the same.

Mayor Davis, in replying, explained his appreciation of the credit which Mr. Stratton had laid at his door.

HE VOICED HIS CERTAINTY

in the future prosperity of Peterborough and urged the adoption of a policy of economy. This mode of procedure had earned for the present council much abuse on account of the poor condition of the roads, but arrangements were being made to remedy this next year, when permanent work would be done on the streets. The permanent pavements which had been laid this year were only costing the ratepayers effected $250 a year and would be paid for at the end of twenty years. This was costing less, in reality, than the repairs on a wooden sidewalk would amount to. No more wooden sidewalks were to be laid. The speaker pointed out that through his idea in financing the sewer connections the property owners on the last contract had been saved amounts aggregating seven or eight thousand dollars. During the year the council had worked together most harmoniously for the good of the town. The prosperity of the town was assured if Peterborough could but make use of the power which was flowing, in the river, past its doors and offer the same to manufacturers at a nominal rate.

Mr. Sidney Mitchell's recitation commanded the attention which it so well deserved.

The capital imitation given by Mr. Geo. Adams of a steamer going up the Trent Valley Canal was highly enjoyed.

Mr. Wm. Kerr, Q. C., was called upon to propose the toast of the Press, which was responded to by the representatives present.

Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., then favoured the guests with a selection entitled "On Duty," which was well received.

The toast of "The Officers of Lansdowne Lodge" was then honoured with the utmost cordiality. It was responded to by Rev Mr. Symonds.

The toast of "The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. A. P. Poussette. They were declared to be "Jolly Good Fellows." To Mr. F. D. Kerr fell the honour of responding to the toast. That it was an honour, the speaker urged,

WAS AMPLY PROVEN

by those of the sex who had made history. Isabella, of Spain, had sent out Columbus on his voyage of discovery and at the same time Queen Elizabeth's English fleet had sailed out to victory. As a modern instance he referred those assembled to the example set the world by Victoria.

Mr. Walter Stocker then sang "Jack's the Boy."

"Our Sister Societies" brought Mr. J. J. Crowe to his feet with a capital speech, in which original wit and humour abounded.

Mr. Harry Beall asked the guests to honour the toast of "The Sons of England Band," and in the course of a few remarks asked the sympathy and encouragement of the citizens. Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., responded on behalf of the band, stating that the organization had prospered to such an extent as to deserve the praise of every member of the Order and the citizens at large. To Mr. Wm. Taylor was the credit due for the formation of the band.

Mr. Richard Warham proposed the health of the "Host and Hostess," Mr. J. R. Stratton responding on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan.

One of the guests at the close of the evening called for three cheers for "Grandfather Taylor," which were given with a will. Mr. Warham returned the thanks of the committee to the guests, and a vote of thanks was then passed to Mr. Wm. Kerr, Q.C., for his kindness in taking part in the programme at so short notice.

The pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

Brilliant Triumph of Canadian Liberalism on Wednesday.

LIBERALS CAPTURE BAGOT.

Overwhelming Defeat of Dr. Willoughby —Mr. Douglas' Majority Increased to Over 600—West Lambton Gives Dr. Johnston the Magnificent Majority of 969—Simcoe Prefers Leighton McCarthy.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—Five bye-elections for the House of Commons took place in the Dominion yesterday, viz., two in Ontario, two in Quebec and one in Prince Edward Island.

Leighton McCarthy, 228.

In North Simcoe, Ont., the contestants were Mr. Leighton McCarthy, a nephew of the late D'Alton McCarthy, who ran as an Independent, and Mr. James A. Martin of New Lowell, Liberal. The vacancy was made by the death of Mr. D'Alton McCarthy. The result is the election of Mr. McCarthy by 228 majority, with four polling sub-divisions yet to hear from. At the general election in 1896 Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, Independent, polled 2,517 votes, Mr. E. Stewart 1,410, and Mr. H. Lennox, Conservative, 875. Number of voters in the riding 7,281.

Dr. Johnston, 969.

In West Lambton the vacancy was caused by the appointment of Mr. J. F. Lister, Q.C., to a judgeship. The candidates yesterday were John Farrell, Conservative, and Dr. Johnston, Liberal, and the result is the election of Dr. Johnston by the large majority of 772. Sarnia and Point Edward alone rolled up a majority of over 500 for the Liberal candidate. At the last general election Mr. Lister polled 2,366 votes, Mr. A. C. Dewar 1,208 and Mr. W. J. Hanna, Conservative, 878. Number of voters in the riding 7,658.

John Bell, 56.

The battle in East Prince, P.E.I., was between Mr. E. A. Lafurgey, Conservative, and Mr. John Bell, Liberal. Mr. Bell polled 1964 votes and Mr. Lafurgey 1890. The vacancy was caused by the death of Mr. John Yeo, Liberal, who was elected in June, 1896, by 1,916 votes, against 1,790 cast for Mr. R. A. Hunt, Conservative. Number of voters in the riding 4,779.

P. R. Martineau, About 500.

In Montmagny, Quebec, the election was due to the elevation of Mr. P. A. Choquette to the bench. Mr. Leduc, Conservative, and Mr. P. R. Martineau, Liberal, were the contestants, and the Liberal was elected by about 500 majority—returns not complete. At the general election Mr. Choquette had 1,143 votes against 901 for his Conservative opponent, Mr. A. J. Bender. Number of voters on the list 2,899.

Marcil Redeems Bagot, 64.

In Bagot, Quebec, the contestants were Mr. Brodeur, Conservative, and Mr. Marcil, Liberal. The latter was elected by a majority of 64. The seat was vacated by Mr. F. Dupont, Conservative, who was chosen by acclamation at the general election. Yesterday's result is therefore a Government gain.

John A. Douglas, 602.

Voting took place in East Northumberland yesterday for the Ontario Legislature. The vacancy was caused by the unseating of Mr. John A. Douglas for bribery, by agents. Dr. Willoughby, Conservative, opposed the same gentleman in both contests, and yesterday was again defeated, and by an increased majority—602. Mr. Douglas' majority on March 1 was 355.

THE LIBERAL LEADERSHIP.

It Is Now Thought That Sir William Vernon Harcourt's Resignation Is Final.

London, Dec. 15.—Nothing new transpired yesterday regarding the leadership of the Liberal party. Nothing else has been discussed, but no important step was taken.

Sir William Harcourt's letter is generally regarded as final, not, as has been suggested, deliberately leaving the door open for his return. Deepest interest, of course, is felt in Lord Rosebery's attitude, but it is not generally believed he will give any sign whatever under present circumstances.

It is a curious evidence of the closer ties of English-speaking peoples that many persons are now found asking what view America takes of this crisis.

LORD STRATHCONA'S GIFT.

His Million Bequest to Royal Victoria College Calls Up Other Endowments.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Montreal is blowing to-day over Lord Strathcona's latest gift of a million to the Royal Victoria College. His endowments are as follows: Pension fund, 1894, $50,000; chair of pathology, 1893, $50,000; chair of hygiene, $50,000; Donalda department, 1884, $50,000; 1886, $70,000; 1898, $780,000; faculty of medicine, $50,000. He has also contributed to the erection of the Donalda building $250,000.

Mr. W. C. McDonald's subscriptions amount to $80,069. His endowments are as follows: Pension fund, 1894, $50,000; chair of physics, $100,000; physics building and maintenance, $150,000; McDonald auxiliary fund, 1897, $230,000; law endowment, $200,000; chair of chemistry, $25,000; chair of electrical engineering, $50,000; maintenance of chemistry building, $135,000; chair of metallurgy, $50,000. Mr. McDonald has also given the following amounts for building purposes: Workmen's workshop, $30,000; physics building, $250,000; McDonald engineering building, $400,000; chemistry and mining building, $240,000; observatory site, $70,000; lots around McGill, $10,000.

SUIT AGAINST A. R. MACDONALD.

The Temiscouata Railway Claims $300,000 From Its Erstwhile President.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The Temiscouata Railway has entered an action in the Superior Court against Mr. A. R. Macdonald for $300,000. The litigation results from certain agreements the defendant, while president of the company, made with a construction company and certain contractors. The company alleges that these agreements were illegal, corrupt and detrimental to the interests of the railway company and that inasmuch as Mr. Macdonald received these benefits while acting in the fiduciary capacity of president and director of the railway company, he is obliged to account for and deliver to the company any profits so derived by him, estimated at $300,000.

It is understood that W. H. Patton of this city is to receive the appointment of signal engineer for the Grand Trunk at Toronto, the position rendered vacant by the resignation of P. F. Hodgson, who is going to England. Mr. Patton has been in the employ of the Canada Switch & Spring Co., but was in Toronto for a while in Mr. Hodgson's department.

Railway Earnings.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—The earnings of both roads from Jan. 1, 1898 up to Nov. 21, show big increases over last year. The Grand Trunk figures for 1898 were $21,814,990, and for 1897 were $20,719,084, an increase of $595,968. The Canadian Pacific's earnings for last year were $20,817,000 and for 1898 were $22,424,000, an increase of $1,602,000. Despite the many accidents and the long rate war, the pockets of the companies continue to fill out.

To Be Tried for Murder.

St. Johns, Que., Dec. 15.—The preliminary investigation in the St. Brigide murder trial was concluded last evening, when Sheriff Arpin committed the prisoner, McCall, for trial at the criminal term on March 22.

The overdue North German Lloyd line steamer Marie Rickmers, at Baltimore on Wednesday from Bremen, brought in eight survivors of the steamship Londonian. This makes 58 persons rescued from the wreck. Captain Lee was among the latest saved.

There is great irritation at Madrid because of the continued refusal of the Filipinos to release the Spanish prisoners, numbering over 10,000. The Filipinos demand the $20,000,000 indemnity paid by the United States as a ransom for these prisoners.

The coldest weather so far experienced struck Saratoga Springs on Wednesday morning early, the thermometer registering 23 below zero, at Corinth 24 and at North Creek 26. In Waterville, Maine, the glasses recorded 38 below at 6 a.m.; at Fairfield 42 below and at Ansbenton 36 below.

The Dowager Empress of China on Wednesday received the wives of the foreign ambassadors, amid great pomp and ceremony. Lady Claude Macdonald, wife of the British ambassador, read an address of congratulation to the Empress on her birthday, and a cheese luncheon followed.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the advice but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Pills. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." MRS. H. F. PARM, Degrassi Street.

THE EAST NORTHUMBERLAND VICTORY.

The result of the bye-election in East Northumberland yesterday, the return of Mr. J. H. Douglas, the Liberal candidate, by a majority of over 600, is another evidence of the fact that the Hardy Government possesses the confidence of the country in an increasing degree. At the general election in March last Mr. Douglas was returned by a majority of 421, and the circumstance that it has been increased at the by election by nearly 200, is evidence that the Government and its cause is gaining in popular esteem, The candidates were the same and the issues were the same, but in the interval the Government has given evidence of its capacity to govern, and the Opposition has given evidence that it cannot rise above the pettiest issues, or establish any other claim to be put in possession of the management of public affairs than a desire, natural enough, but not enough, to attain office. East Northumberland is a stronghold wrested from the hands of the enemy. Dr. Willoughby had possession of the riding for 8 years, from 1888 to 1896, and East Northumberland was regarded as a safe Conservative riding. The revulsion in public opinion represented by the large majority of yesterday can arise from only two reasons—increase of confidence in the Government and diminuation of faith in the platform and methods of the Opposition. To these general causes are to be attributed the revolution in public sentiment presented by East Northumberland. Dr. Willoughby has personally done nothing to forfeit the good opinion of the electorate. He linked his fortunes with the waning fortunes of Mr. Whitney and the Opposition, and the condemnation he has received is not a rebuke to himself, but a rebuke to the policy and platform of his leader and party.

THE DAY OF CANALS NOT OVER.

The opponents of the Trent Valley Canal base their objections on the allegation that the day of canals is over—that the railway has displaced them. Apart from the fact that canals operate directly to keep down railway freight rates, the utility of canals is still something important, else millions would not be spent upon them by countries well supplied with railways.

Another commentory on the plea that "the day of canals is over" is furnished by Germany. The German government, whose Kiel canal between Baltic and North Sea was the latest great work of that kind, has decided to spend thirty-eight million dollars on a new canal undertaking.

It is a series of canal works to connect the Rhine and Elbe, with branches to other natural waterways, and will enable water transportation to almost all parts of the empire. Yet Germany is already a network of railways.

As a matter of fact, instead of the day of the canal being past, it is but dawning. The enlargement of our Canadian system of canals to meet the requirements of pressing demands for transportation, will be a benefit whose extent and importance cannot be foretold.

As an adjunct and an element in the solution of the transportation problem the Trent Valley Canal has a great future. Its local benefit will not be denied, but as one of the most direct and important outlets of the grain traffic of the great Northwest, which is becoming more productive every year, the prompt and speedy construction of the Trent Valley Canal receives its chief justification.

LIBERALISM POPULAR.

The Liberal tide is on the flow. Yesterday six bye-elections took place, and in five cases Liberals were returned by increased majorities. In North Simcoe an Independent was returned by a largely decreased majority over his opponent. In all the numerous bye-elections since 1896, and in all the Provincial bye-elections since last March Liberals have scored victories. In both cases all the seats were held, and in the Dominion especially large gains made from the Opposition. The people are evidently well pleased with Liberal Government. The prophecies of leading Conservatives, after the elections of '96, that the Liberal Government might hold out over the first session, or six months or a year, have been utterly discredited. The Liberal Government has been gaining in strength ever since it took office, and was never stronger in popular favour and efficient custody of the country's interest than it is to-day. Being on the right side is a big thing.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MR. WHITNEY can now hang his harp on the Willoughby-election tree.

THE result of the political race in East Northumberland is that the electors have sent the former favourite in the betting, Dr. Willoughby, to the barn. He didn't escape the drop of the distance flag.

THE Ottawa Journal in speaking of the Yukon gold royalty, which is the subject of so much objection and reprobation by alien kickers, says that a parallel is drawn by the Witness between the gold royalty in the Yukon territory, and the timber dues in our forests. As regards the forests, the policy of all our governments is to charge a tax on the value taken out by private operators. Timber dues and stumpage are precisely the same idea as royalties. Why charge the one and not the other? The only point is to make the tax a reasonable one in amount. There may be a fair difference of opinion as to the size of tax, whether stumpage or royalty, but as to the principle there need be little doubt.

THE LATEST LUNG CURE.

Paragraphs published recently have referred to experiments which are being made in Chicago looking to the cure of consumption by forcing nitrogen gas into the chest cavity.

Some cases are said to have been successfully treated. A description is given as follows: In one of the cases it was found that the upper part of the left lobe of the lungs was affected. An incision was made opposite to the seat of the trouble and nitrogen gas was injected into the pleural cavity, between the two membranes surrounding the lungs. The gas pressed the inner membrane against the diseased portion of the lung and then squeezed out the secretion just as water may be squeezed out of a rubber ball. The stethoscope showed that the affected part of the lung was completely out of use, the sides being pressed close together. After being kept quiet at the hospital for a few hours, until the lung had adjusted itself to its new condition, he was allowed to go. His cough grew better at once. After some weeks another injection of nitrogen gas was made, and a few weeks later it was found that the bacilli had entirely disappeared from the sputum. The patient now appears to be strong and healthy, and without a trace of the disease.

Experiments, it is said, are being made on more than 60 consumptives in various Chicago hospitals, and all are showing satisfactory results. The authorities of the Cook County Hospital for Consumptives at Dunning, will begin experimenting with the system next week.

The process may or may not be a fad, but its remarkable ingenuity and the surgical skill and certainty which can carry out the idea with safety to life are in themselves of striking interest. Medical science, with its removal of human stomachs, its marvellous operations of all kinds, its discoveries of and battlings with miscobes, keeps pace with the foremost progress of intellect in other directions.

A CHRISTMAS TREAT.

Arrangements Which Are Being Made to Feast the Poor of the Town.

The following committee has been appointed to carry out the arrangements for providing a Christmas treat for the poor—the delegates being chosen from each church:

St. John's—Miss Halliday, Miss Fair and Rev. J. C. Davidson.

All Saints—Miss Chamberlain, Miss Buller and Mrs. Lundy.

St. Luke's—Mrs. E. A. Peck, Miss Maggie Calcutt, Rev. H. Symonds and Mr. R. B. Rogers.

St. Peter's Cathedral—Mrs. O'Sullivan, Mrs. Cahill and Mrs. Justus B. Dunn.

George Street Methodist—Mrs. James Kendry, Mrs. Frank Mason, Mrs. McBain, and Mrs. McAllister.

Charlotte street Methodist—Mrs. A. L. Davis, Mrs. Dr. Morrison and Mrs. Aaron Cox.

Mark street Methodist—Mrs. Wand, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Matchett.

St. Paul's—Mrs. Sheriff Hall, Mrs. Innes, and Miss Jessie Dennistoun.

St. Andrew's—Miss Lundy, Miss Forsythe and Mrs. Mattheson.

Murray street Baptist—Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Dr. Scott and Miss Aldridge.

To avoid interfering with the churches, which have a large amount of similar work to do at this season, notice is given that cash or goods are desired, so that those who feel like contributing may do so.

The feast will probably take place in the market building and be followed by an entertainment. The appended circular has been read in the schools in connection with the affairs:—

"The officials of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough, whose duty it is to look after and protect homeless and dependent children, make their lives brighter and to better their condition generally, hereby appeal to the children of Peterborough and Ashburnham, who are blessed with loving parents and a happy home, to co-operate with them in providing means to help the homeless and destitute, and to provide for them an entertainment and feast at the Christmas season, when He who loved little children above all others came to earth—Himself a little homeless child.

"The society not having the funds necessary for these purposes, hereby appeal for voluntary contributions from the children of schools in town and Ashburnham. You are simply asked to give what you can—asked to give a share of the blessings you enjoy for the benefit of those who have little or nothing.

"Your own Christmas season will be all the happier if you help in making others happy also

"Those who joy would win Must show it—Happiness was born a twin."

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

MR. JAMES MOORE A CANDIDATE

For the County Council in the Belmont Division.

The Hastings Star says: It is now definitely settled that Mr. James Moore, of Asphodel, will be one of the candidates for the County Council of Peterborough, and will be in the field against all comers, until the ballots are counted. Mr. Moore will be no novice at the County Council board, having in years past been one of its most active members.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easies work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the gladsome glow of girlhood.

AN EVER PRESENT AND DEADLY DANGER.

Medicines That Injure the Body and Enslave the Soul.

One Pure and Effective Dyspepsia Remedy is Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—They Cure Dyspepsia Permanently, and Benefit the Entire Body.

The most wonderful, the most perfect machine ever made, is the human body. And it will not last forever. It needs repairing at intervals during its period of usefulness, and the work it does is so vitally important that such repairing should be done with the utmost care.

Many remedies that are used to repair injuries done by disease, contain deadly poisons that not only do more harm than the disease itself, but actually endanger life.

Many Dyspepsia remedies (so called) contain poisonous drugs that by dulling the pain caused by the disease, make the patient think that the trouble has been cured. When the effect of these drugs has died out, the pains return four-fold, the disease has gained a firmer hold on the system, and the body has lost its strength.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the great Dyspepsia Cure of the century, contain no hurtful drugs. Every substance that enters into the composition of this remedy acts beneficially on the system. If the contents of a full box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets were to be swallowed at once, no evil results would follow.

Apart from this, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the only medicine known, that invariably cure Dyspepsia.

Again Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets strengthen the stomach and other digestive organs, till the medicine is no longer required. Stomach, Liver, Bowels, all are strengthened, stimulated and invigorated.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

WESTERN LIBERALS

Heartily Welcome the Minister of the Interior at Brandon.

MR. SIFTON'S WORK COMMENDED

The Address of the People to Mr. Sifton —It Contained Many Words of Cheer—In His Reply Mr. Sifton Speaks of His Dealings With the C.P.R.

Brandon, Dec. 15.—The popularity of Mr. Sifton in the west was demonstrated in the most convincing manner last night at the reception tendered to him by the city and constituency of Brandon and surrounding country. Its enthusiastic character was such as might well gratify any public man. The electors drove many miles to attend, and hundreds crowded around to shake hands with Mr. Sifton before the platform proceedings began. Many other manifestations of friendly feeling must have shown the Minister that his place in the affections of the people of Manitoba was never so high. The audience of 1,000 was of the most representative character, and included scores of prominent Patrons, and a number of Conservatives, who openly expressed the opinion that Mr. Sifton had administered his important department in the interests of the country. Some of these Conservatives had seats on the platform, over which hung the banner: "Western Liberals are proud to honor Sifton." The placing of his picture on an easel on the side of the platform opposite to one of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was the signal for an outburst of great cheering, which was renewed when the Minister came on the platform. The whole demonstration was one of the most enthusiastic and successful ever held in Brandon.

Mr. Robert Hall, president of the Liberal Association, took the chair. Upon the platform were seated Rev. Leo Gaetz, Rev. Mr. Henry, Mr. D. C. Fraser, M.P.P., Mr. F. Q. Fowler, M.P.P., Mr. J. A. Christie, Mr. F. C. Norris, Hon. J. W. Sifton and others. The chairman expressed the pleasure it afforded him to assist the assembled people in doing honor to Mr. Sifton. He called upon the secretary to read the complimentary address.

Address to the Minister.

"Sir—On behalf of your numerous friends and supporters in the Dominion electoral division of Brandon, we deem it a pleasure and a privilege to once more extend to you a hearty welcome to our city, and it is an especial pleasure to those of us who have been more closely associated with you, both socially and politically, while you were for many years a prominent resident of this place, and we desire to assure you that, although removed from amongst us by the ever-changing circumstances of every-day life, you still retain your position in the hearts and affections of your friends and supporters in this city and district. It is needless to say that we have watched your public career with pride and admiration. The ability and statesmanship displayed in administering the affairs of your department, admittedly the heaviest in the Government, the additional responsibility of the opening up of the Yukon country, and your immediate action in perfecting arrangements for the preservation of law and order and for the protection of life and property in an almost inaccessible region have been most convincing evidence that this great charge has been placed in competent hands. We particularly desire to compliment you on the success of your efforts in grappling with the great question of immigration. Such efforts, we are pleased to know, have already borne fruit abundantly in opening up the natural resources of this western country, attracting thousands of settlers, who are making their homes here, and are now laying the foundation for more rapid advancement, and who will eventually assist us in occupying the proud position nature has designed for us, viz., in the front rank of agricultural countries. Your honesty of purpose in assisting these strangers to provide homes for themselves will not only encourage agriculturists in a new country, and pave the way towards the goal of this ambition, but will redound to your own credit and honor in after years. We are pleased and gratified with the excellent results accruing from the arrangement made with the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, and we commend your attitude towards the southeastern line of railway now under construction. It will be an independent line, competing for business between this country and the great lakes, affording the producer increased facilities for the transportation of his grain to the markets of the world, and we trust at a much less cost, thereby assisting him in receiving increased remuneration for his labors. The question of transportation is of most vital importance not only to the agriculturist but to every person who has the interests of this country at heart. We also desire to express our unwavering confidence in your distinguished leader and his Government, in which you occupy so prominent a position, and we trust you may long be spared to represent the diversified interests of this western portion of Her Majesty's dominion with the marked dignity and ability which have characterized your public career both in provincial and in the wider sphere of Dominion politics. We would ask you to carry to Mrs. Sifton and family the kindest regards and goodwill of her host of friends in this city. (Signed on behalf of the committee.)"

Mr. Sifton's Reply.

Upon rising to reply, Mr. Sifton was cheered to the echo. He stated that a person would be almost inhuman did he not feel the sentimental side of the demonstration that his visit had occasioned. He referred to the banquet that was tendered to him just before he left Brandon to take up his residence in Ottawa. He was very much surprised to find when coming here that arrangements had been made to tender him a reception such as the present one.

Hon. Mr. Sifton made a speech of one hour and a half, in which he dealt with the financial policy, immigration and the Yukon. In the last six months 6,000 immigrants had come in from the United States, and in all 35,000 during the present season. Homestead entries by foreign settlers had increased from 854 in 1896 to 1,253 in 1897 and 3,556 in 1898. Alluding to the charge that he was too friendly with the C.P.R., he said that the company had suffered more at his hands than anybody, and the proof of that will be shown still more in a year or two, when the independent outlet from this country to the east was secured. He supported his contention by citing the Crow's Nest Pass Railway contract and its conditions and concessions, and his attitude on the Kettle River Valley Railroad bill last session. He had no hostility to the C.P.R. or to any other corporation, as his duty as a member of the Government was to treat everybody fairly and all questions on their merits. Before sitting down, Mr. Sifton created great enthusiasm by reading the bye-election returns.

Speeches were made by Dr. Rutherford, M.P.; Mr. D. C. Fraser, M.P.; Mr. F. O. Fowler, M.P.P.; Mr. T. C. Norris, M.P.P., all of whom expressed complete confidence in Mr. Sifton and his public course. Mr. Fraser of Guysboro created a furore by one of his splendid addresses.

LORD MINTO DINED.

His Excellency the Governor-General Entertained by the Toronto Club—Lord Strathcona Present.

Toronto, Dec. 15.—His Excellency Governor-General Lord Minto and Lady Minto and staff arrived in this city last night by a special train from Ottawa. They were received by his worship Mayor Shaw and Lieut.-Col. Otter, and an immense concourse of eager lookers-on who cheered themselves hoarse. Lord Strathcona was also of the party.

Banquet at Toronto Club.

The Toronto Club presented a festive appearance last night, where were entertained His Excellency the Earl of Minto on the occasion of his first official visit to Toronto and Lord Strathcona, high commissioner for Canada in London.

After the toast of "The Queen" had been honored, the chairman amid applause, in a most felicitous speech, toasted the guest of the evening, the Earl of Minto.

The Governor-General made a very interesting speech, in which he eulogized Toronto and referred to his experiences in it and in Canada 15 years ago. He also touched in a non-committal way upon many public men and measures. He was accorded great applause on resuming his seat.

The chairman then proposed the toast of "The High Commissioner for Canada," which was received with rounds of applause.

Lord Strathcona, in reply, made a most delightful after-dinner speech, in which, as was natural, his memories of past governors was mingled with eulogy of the present. He took occasion, too, to remind his audience that he was out of politics, and as high commissioner was only a servant of the Dominion who would endeavor to act for her best interests.

A FAIR ROBBER.

Emil Marx Saw a Pair of Legs Disappear Under His Bed and Found a Penitent Woman.

New York, Dec. 15.—At last the tables have been turned, and a woman burglar has been found under a man's bed. When Emil Marx entered his flat in Brooklyn last night he saw a pair of legs disappear under his bed. He ordered the intruder to come forth, and when the latter obeyed Marx found himself gazing into the penitent eyes of a young woman, who said she was Mrs. Pauline Bergman.

Upon investigation Marx found that the pretty burglar had packed up all his valuables. The woman was arrested. She told a pitiful story of desertion by her husband. She said her two children were starving and she had to steal. The police found and cared for the children.

The New York Calamity.

New York, Dec. 15.—All night long hundreds of men worked assiduously to discover the bodies of men reported missing as a result of the collapse of the big gas tank of the Consolidated Gas Company. The body of the missing engineer, Louis Baum, was found under a mass of debris.

The limpless body of Martin Conlin, who was employed by the Consolidated Gas Company as stationary engineer, was found in the cellar of 402 East 21st street, at noon yesterday. The leg and arm found this morning are undoubtedly those of Conlin. The man must have been washed into the basement by the force of the water.

Two more bodies, those of Gustave Wincke, 17 years old, of Brooklyn, and George Brenner, were found in a house at 21st street and Avenue A yesterday afternoon. There are seven others missing yet.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcly remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00 at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

Senator MacFarlane Dead.

Halifax, Dec. 15.—Senator MacFarlane died at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at his home at Wallace, Cumberland County.

The late Senator MacFarlane was born at Wallace, N.S., on June 17, 1818. He was called to the bar in 1844, and was appointed a Q.C. in 1876. He entered political life in 1850, as a member of the Nova Scotia Assembly. He was a member of the Executive Council for two years. In 1867 he was delegate to the colonial conference at London, to complete the terms of union. He was called to the Senate in 1870. He was a Conservative in politics.

It Was Wm. Duncan, Oshawa.

Oshawa, Ont., Dec. 15.—The unknown man who was drowned at Port Newcastle Tuesday has been identified as Mr. William Duncan of this town. It seems that Duncan had been despondent for some days past. He has been in the employ of Mr. George Ashley of Cedardale for sometime past. He was a man about 35 years old, and was in good financial circumstances, and was carrying an insurance endowment policy, which would have been due him in two years. He had no relatives in this country.

It is said that the soldiers who had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla stood the long marches in Cuba much better than the others.

CURLIANA.

At a largely attended meeting of the Thistle Skips and Vice Skips held last evening, rinks for the season were selected as follows;

No 1	No 2.
Dr Neil,	W H Robertson,
H Phelan,	A McNeil,
Gus Hay,	C Rutherford,
D Belleghem, sk	S Ray, sk
No 3.	No 4,
C LeBrun,	A Talbot,
Alf Terrill,	W H Meredith,
C N Brown,	J H Hall,

J D Collins,	H Snowden,
W J Thompson,	C McGill,
W G Ferguson, sk	T Rutherford, sk
No 7.	No 8.
W J McCallum,	R Stewart,
Fred Dickson,	Geo Kerr,
T Ferguson,	R Kerr,
J Connal, sk	J McClelland, sk
No 9.
McGill Hood,
Dr Caldwell,
Dr Greer,
Jno A Cameron,
R H Kells, sk.

Messrs. C. N. Brown, J. S. Knapman and Robt. Kerr were appointed a committee to wait on a committee of the Granite Club, and arrange to have the Kendry Cup series played off on Christmas Day, and the Innes Medal contest on New Year's Day, by six representative rinks from each club. Also to arrange for the Colts Cup series to be played off during the first week in January.

As will be noticed, the membership of the Thistles has grown to such an extent as to necessitate the election of two new skips. Messrs. John McClelland and J. S. Knapman were elected to fill the positions last night.

The globes on the arc lights on the curling ice are of clear glass and in consequence the light is very poor, heavy shadows being thrown from them.

A close and interesting game was played at the rink last night, resulting in a victory for Skip Brown by one point. The two rinks were composed as follows:

J H Hall,	Geo Kerr,
Alf Terrill,	R Kerr,
J McClelland,	S Ray,
T Ferguson, sk 8	C N Brown, sk 9

The Ottawa Journal says: Even an old parliamentarian might occasionally have his eyes opened by the astuteness and vigour of some of the legislative moves made in the hockey, football, lacrosse and other athletic associations. They are not bad training schools in politics for the young idea.

HOCKEY.

It is expected that Harry Kelso of the local branch of the Bank of Commerce, will have sufficiently recovered from his recent accident in a couple of weeks to turn out with the hockey team. The Bank of Commerce may furnish another player for the team, and it is within the range of possibilities that the Bank of Toronto may do the same.

The boys held their first practice of the season on the ice last night. There was a large turn out of players.

The Executive Committee meets on Friday evening at the rink on business of importance. It is urgent that every member be present.

The Committee meets at 7.30 and a general meeting of the whole Club is called for eight o'clock.

The players have not as yet selected their captain.

Fred Lynch, the lacrosse team's point player is thinking of getting out and playing hockey with the Peterboroughs. He should make a good man. There are several other lacrosse men whom a little persuasion might bring to the fore.

Local hockey enthusiasts will receive with pleasure the news that, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary, the probabilities are that Lionel King will stick to his first love and again be seen on the ice with the Peterborough Seniors this year. He was thinking of identifying himself with the T. R. C. team in Toronto, but as it will not take any more of his time to run down to Peterborough to play than if he were accompanying the Toronto team out of town, he has decided to cast in his lot with the Peterboroughs.

Queen's team started to practice yesterday at 12 30. Among those on the team are:—Hiscock, goal; Curtis, point; Merrill, cover point; Harty and Dalton, centre; Car, Harris and Tobin, wings.

The Aberdeens of Ottawa will probably play the T.R.C. team when they come west. The crack Ottawa aggregation will visit Peterborough, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls and probably Buffalo.—Toronto Globe.

The Globe says:—The Frontenacs of Kingston have strong claims for desiring senior rating. They have been a factor for two or three years in the intermediate ranks, and, so strong was their claim last year that it was decided, should they win the intermediate championship, to give them an opportunity of meeting the senior championship team.

PETERBOROUGH BOOKSTORE.

Santa Claus has just been heard from. For the information of the Old Folks as well as the Young Folks we are at liberty to publish the following:—

DEAR MESSRS. STRATTON & CO.:

Just a line by telephone to say that I expect to be at the Peterborough Bookstore Saturday. Have had a splendid journey—the sleighing's so splendid! Beautiful cold weather. My loads were very heavy—but you asked for a bigger stock than ever and you've got it. Tell the police men to have the streets all clear for me, as the deer are very frisky. Won't it be jolly to meet all the dear children in the Grotto again? Put this in the newspapers and let the children know about my reception in the Peterborough Bookstore all next week. Do you think your street cars will frighten my reindeer? "So long" till I see you and all the dear children. So long, so long.

Your faithful old friend.

The defendant was discharged with a warning.

Have you Seen the Little Dwarfs?

If not, don't miss the chance of calling on the Winner Midgets, at Grafton & Co's. clothing store. As their time is short, like themselves, better see them soon. Standing room only has been the case at Grafton's ever since the arrival of these Lilliputians in town—the anxiety to see the smallest living couple in the world attracting immense crowds. Evening receptions will be held to-night and Thursday night from 7 to 9 o'clock, for the benefit of those who are unable to come during the day time. No goods will be sold after 7 o'clock. Come any time during the day from 9 to 5. No charge. This is Grafton & Co.'s treat. 2d

Opera House.

The Orris Ober Stock Company will present as their opening attraction on Monday evening at the opera house the beautiful four act melodramatic success, "Forgiven." This play has enjoyed a remarkable run in the States and comes highly recommended as an appropriate vehicle to display the abilities of an excellent company. The management assures theatre goers that this play has never been produced before in Peterborough and will be presented here in its original integrity with the full scenic equipment used in all the larger cities. Ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by a paid admission on Monday evening, if purchased before six o'clock. Reserved seats can be secured at the Up-town Grand Trunk Ticket Office.

WEDDED ACROSS THE BORDER.

The Marriage of Mr. Will McClelland Formerly of Town, and Miss Florence Smith, of Richmond, Va.

The many friends of Mr. Will McClelland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McClelland of town, will be pleased to learn of his recent marriage. The bride is Miss Florence Smith, of Richmond, Virginia, a neice of Senator Woodford. The heartiest congratulations will be extended to Mr. McClelland from his large circle of friends here, amongst whom he was so popular.

Grafton & Co's claims concerning clothing are very clear, very definite and very strong. We omit exaggeration. Grafton & Co. are noted for the elegance of their products. Tailoring, fitting and linings are beyond criticism. Our men's suits and overcoats are made in regular, short, stout and slim shapes. See our $10 suits and overcoats.

The Drawing Card.

No such opportunity has occurred for years to procure dress goods, staple dry goods and millinery of the same quality at such reasonable prices as that afforded by Messrs. R. H. Kells & Co.'s closing-out sale. In fact it is the "drawing card" of the season in this line. An imperative necessity exists for clearing the entire stock without delay on account of the firm deciding to retire from business. Cost price and even lower will not be a barrier to this sale. Holiday gift bargains is also stimulating this sale, and crowds of ladies find much that is appropriate for Christmas presents as well as regular wants. 2odw

COUNTY COURT.

$200 Awarded the Plaintiff in the Case of Irvine vs. Ackerman.

Irvine vs. Ackerman.—This was a case in which the plaintiff was a tenant on the farm of defendant. His rent was due on Nov. 22nd, but on his beginning to thresh on Aug 29th his landlord distressed against his goods. An arrangement was then entered into between the two that the landlord should take the grain at an advance of two cents per bushel on the market price in settlement of the rent. The action was brought under a section of the Landlord and Tenant Act of William and Mary whereby a landlord who distresses prior to the time rent is due is liable to double damages. The damages in this case amounted to $228, the doubled amount according to the act, but as the County Court only has jurisdiction in sums up to $200, the plaintiff abandoned the excess and the jury awarded him $200 and all costs.

G. J. Sherry of Norwood, appeared for the plaintiff, D. W. Dumble and W. A. F. Campbell for defendant.

Township of Belmont vs. Young and Anderson—An action wherein the plaintiffs sue the collector and treasurer of the township of Belmont for $218 The parties were sued in the alternative. The collector is short in his returns to the amount of $218, and he alleges that he paid the money to the treasurer by a bunch of orders, and that the treasurer did not give him a receipt including the money. On the other hand the treasurer says he issued receipts for all the money that came into his hands. A portion of the evidence was taken and the case was adjourned for a week.

E. B. Edwards for plaintiff; Geo. J. Sherry for defendant, Young, (collector); Stratton & Hall for defendant, Anderson, (treasurer.)

Evans & McNairn vs. Valentine—An action for damages which the plaintiffs seek to recover from Mr. Eli Valentine, of Kinmount, for breach of contract for not delivering certain cattle, which had been sold by him to the plaintiffs. The defendant says he delivered the cattle at the time agreed. The plaintiffs say that there was an agreement between them and defendant that he would hold the cattle for one week after the time agreed upon for delivery if he was notified. The case was enlarged to come before the Judge without a jury.

Stratton & Hall for plaintiffs; Hugh O'Leary, of Lindsay, for defendant.

Bennet vs. Matchett—An action brought upon a note, which was given for the price of a stallion. In his statement of defense the defendant sets up that the horse was warranted as sound and as a getter of foals, whereas on the contrary, the horse was unsound, and shortly after died in defendant's hands. Stratton & Hall for plaintiff; Hall & Hayes for defendant.

Verdict for plaintiff of $275, and interest amounting in all to about $300, with all costs.

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says :—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

AUBURN FIRE PROTECTION.

The Company to Receive the Price of Three Hydrants, Conditionally.

The sub-committee of the council authorized to deal with the Auburn fire protection question met representatives of the Auburn Woollen Mills and the Peterborough Water Company last evening and discussed the matter at length.

Those present at the meeting were Councillors J. M. White, Langford, Best, W. H. White, Cobb, Robertson and the mayor, representing the town. For the Water Co. there were Messrs. R. B. McKee, G. W. Hatton, E. H. D. Hall and Supt. Henderson. Messrs. John Carnegie and James Kendry, M.P., were present in the interests of the Auburn Co.

Messrs. Carnegie and Kendry agreed that their company, whilst paying taxes, did not receive any fire protection from the town, and in consequence had to provide a system of their own at great expense. As protection was accorded other manufacturers they asked for the same privilege to be extended to them.

The committee decided to recommend the council to give the Auburn Company the price of three hydrants on the understanding, if it was found desirable at any time to provide further fire protection for the citizens in the vicinity that the town pipes could be attached to the company's system.

THE ROLLER QUESTION.

New Tenders Were Received Last Night—A Purchase Will be Made This Evening.

At a meeting of the committee of the whole council last evening, tenders for road rollers were received as follows :

W. C. Oastler, N.Y., Aviling & Porter Roller, $3,200.

Russel Roller, $3,250.

Buffalo Pitts, $3,450.

R. E. H. Buckner, Toronto, Avery & Porter Roller (single engine) $3,150; (double engine) $3,575.

Harrisburg Roller, $2,850.

On motion it was decide to have a by-law prepared for the purchase of a roller, and to fill in the name of the one desired at this evening's meeting of the council.

Mr. Edward Finney, who is acting as nightwatchman in the place of Mr. James Gordon, asked to be appointed a constable. Mr. Finney was referred to the County Judge.

FUR ROBES.

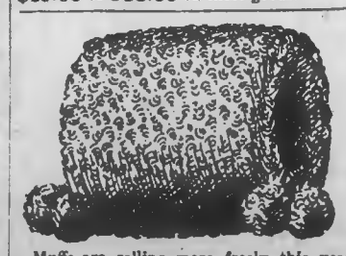
Fur Robes of Grey Goat, Black Dyed Goat, Grizzly Mountain Bear, Black Mountain Bear, Musk Ox Buffalo, Matassina Buffalo, Yak, etc. Well lined and well trimmed. Home sewn and guaranteed, at prices ranging from $5.00 to $50.00.

A very complete stock at very low prices Being home-made we get them at actual first cost of production, no middle-mans profits to pay.

MEN'S COON COATS

A very large and select stock to pick from, prices range from $15.00 to $60.00, as fine a stock is not to be found in Montreal and Toronto, and on prices we defy better values. Our Fur Coats from the cheapest to the most expensive are all home-made and well made, every-one bears our personal guarantee as to quality and workmanship, and if found otherwise we make them right and at no cost to the purchaser. As broad a guarantee as this is seldom given by any firm and we would not, if we were not positive of our qualites in these goods.

Our stock of Men's Coats consists of Wombat, Matassina, Buffalo, Wallaby, Dog, Corsican Lamb, Goat, etc. We quote from $10.00 to $35.00 on these goods.



Muffs are selling more freely this year than formally, and we are consequently well provided. Our cheapest Muffs are $1.00. Real choice ones can be bought of Electric Seal, Coney, Squirrel Goat, Sable, Opossum, Astrachan and Coon from $2.00 to $5.00 each. Sables, Persian Lambs, Seals, Minks, and Bear Muffs are of course higher priced, but $7.00 to $10.00 buys choice ones—now that reductions have been made on our complete line.

In Astrachan Jackets, Coon Jackets, Wallaby Jackets, Bocharen Lamb Jackets, Electric Seal Jackets, the surprising price reductions will be found more marked, as they can be more fully appreciated by the ordinary buyer than in the smaller articles of Fur wear. For instance, $15.00 will buy a very nice Jacket of Astrachan, of course not the best—as they cost from $25.00 to $35.00 according to size and lengths—but a Jacket that is easily worth $20.00, The same generous reductions mark the whole stock of Ladies' Fur Jackets. We would especially mention Australian Coon Jackets at $30.00 ; they are extra nice and extra good wearing.

Our fur cutters give the most complete satisfaction in fit, finish and style. Ask our many patrons as to these facts.

Select Sealskin Jackets—Real Alaskas of the famous London dye—for 22 in. to 30 in. long, at from $140 to $200 each.

Bright Curled Persians, German dyed, the finest in the world, in Jackets 22 in. to 30 in. long, from $75.00 to $125 each.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

22 in. to 30 in. long in Blacks, Browns, Blues, Green and Scarlet covers, Hampster, Muskrat, Squirrel and Kalonga linings, trimmings and large collars of Sable, Thibet Lamb, Japanese Fox and Opossum, prices from $15.00 to $30.00. A specially nice Black Fur-lined Cloak is offered at $18.00, with choice Collar of Black Opossum and heavy trimming down front and around skirt of same, lined throughout with best Kalonga, length 30 inches.

These are only some of the many moderate priced Fur articles that we make—and you are not limited to the spending of large amounts only—as there are many comfortable little pieces, stylishly made at prices starting down as low as $1.25 for a little comfortable Neck Ruff—and a real handsome Collarette for $5.00. Men's Buckskin, Mocha, Antilope, Dog and Kid Gloves and Mitts, fur lined and wool lined—all new stock—at from 50 cents to $3.50 pair. Xmas comes but once a year—and the Bargains to make merry with are here.

MANUFACTURING FURRIERS.

In military prisons an offender is sometimes sentenced to carry cannon balls from one place to another and pile them up all day long. That is all. Perhaps it does not seem very terrible but it soon wears his life out. It is practically a death sentence, and he knows it; he would rather be shot. Many a sick man feels the same way about the burden of disease that he is lugging back and forth from day to day. He would as soon be down with a mortal disease. It will come to that sooner or later.

A man's life can be dragged out by dyspepsia and liver complaint. The experience of Mr. J. T. Cardwell, of Fall Creek Depot, Pittsylvania Co., Va., shows how Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery saves people from consumption by waking up their nutritive organism and giving it power to supply pure, healthy blood, which drives out blood poisons and dead tissues and builds up sound, wholesome flesh and muscle.

"I feel it my duty," writes Mr. Cardwell in a letter to Dr. Pierce, "to write you of the lasting benefits derived from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets.' Seven years ago I contracted a severe cold, which baffled the skill of one of the best physicians in my State. It ran on and I continually grew worse until I concluded to write to the 'World's Dispensary Medical Association.' The answer to my inquiry advised me to use 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' for indigestion and liver complaint; at this time two months had passed. In two or three days after I had commenced the use of your medicine my cough had entirely stopped, my digestion was better, my low spirits driven away and I felt new life and vigor in my whole body."

This marvelous "Discovery" makes nerve force and rugged power. It is far better than oily emulsions; it does not make flabby fat, it does not increase the weight of corpulent people.

VICTORIA BRIDGE OPEN.

Trains Now Running Both Ways Over the Jubilee Structure.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Yesterday at noon the task of laying the double track across the Victoria Jubilee Bridge was completed, and in the afternoon trains were running in both directions at the same time over the new structure. In so far as the accommodation for train service is concerned, the bridge is practically completed. There is a little levelling up to do about the approaches at either end, but this will only occupy a short time. The contractors will now complete the roadways intended to accommodate vehicular traffic, and the foot walks.

Several of the western railway passenger agents met their confreres here yesterday of the C.P.R. and Grand Trunk, and discussed rates for immigrants and other matters.

A Sensation in Prospect.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The trial of Dr. Larin at the Hull Assizes yesterday, on a charge of giving noxious drugs, took a rather sensational form, Anna Normand, the girl in the case, denying the evidence she gave at the preliminary enquette, and the allegation being made before the preliminary trial, and while she herself was under arrest charged with concealment of birth, that she had been sent by some of the most prominent lawyers of Hull and told that the more she tried to convict Dr. Larin the more she would convict herself. This pressure, it is alleged, led her to testify in favor of Dr. Larin at the time. She now disavows her first testimony. The lawyers whose names she mentions will be called as witnesses.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Jherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

Mr. Beaumont Badly Burned.

Georgetown Junction, Dec. 14.—Joseph Beaumont, woollen manufacturer of Glen Williams, was seriously injured last night in a peculiar way. Recently he has added glove-making to his other work, and, being new at the business, approached the drum containing benzine with a lighted lantern. There was a terrific explosion, the drum was blown to pieces and all the windows in the building smashed. Beaumont's moustache and eyebrows were burned off and his face and hands terribly scorched by the flaming gas. He is confined to his bed in a serious condition.

Bank Clerk in Trouble.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 14.—Kenneth A. Finlayson, clerk in the Dominion Government Savings Bank, was yesterday morning arrested on a charge of stealing $1,150. The young man came up for preliminary hearing in the City Police Court a few hours later, the case being adjourned until to-day. The information is sworn to by Joseph Hugh McLaughlin, the manager of the Savings Bank, and the action is taken as the result of the visit from Ottawa of the inspector, Mr. Fraser.

GOOD CHANCES FOR A TREATY.

Much, However, Depends on the Results of Friday's Session.

A MARCH MEETING PROPOSAL.

This Plan Is Not Favored by the Canadian Commissioners—Imperial Interests Has Mr. Chamberlain Anything to Do With the More Yielding Disposition of the Americans?

Washington, Dec. 14.—(Toronto Globe Special).—The joint high commission held a brief but important session yesterday morning, during the course of which the situation was considered and the difficulties standing in the way of the preparation of a treaty canvassed. An adjournment was then taken till Friday, on the understanding that the American commissioners will on that day formulate certain proposals of importance that will be considered after the Christmas recess.

Next Friday's Meeting.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said yesterday morning after the meeting that he could not say when the commissioners would resume, and that no decision would be arrived at till the end of the week. The Canadian commissioners, however, regard the proposal of an adjournment till after Congress in March very unfavorably, but the intimation that Lord Herschell will remain on this side of the Atlantic for the Christmas holiday seems to indicate that there is hope of a speedy settlement of terms after the commission resumes work. It is said, however, that much depends on the result of Friday's session, and that an unyielding attitude on the part of the American commissioners might upset all the calculations now made.

A Treaty Almost Certain.

Making due allowances, it seems certain that a treaty will be made, and that it will contain a reciprocity schedule. Statements going further than this may for the present be taken with more than the customary grain of salt. The subcommittees still continue their work on the smaller unsettled questions, but they are not likely to delay the commissioners long after reciprocity is out of the way.

Imperial Interests.

Lord Herschell and Senator Fairbanks are holding private conferences, and this has given rise to the rumor that the Imperial Government is taking a hand in the affair. To the suggestion that the more yielding disposition of the Americans during the past few days might have been brought about by the promise of a coaling station or two for the American navy in the Indian Ocean or the Pacific, one of the Canadian commissioners said yesterday that he did not believe there was anything in the story, or that the conferences between Lord Herschell and Senator Fairbanks had to do with any question outside of the matters referred to the commission. It would, however, be directly in the line of Mr. Chamberlain's policy of promoting an Anglo-American interest in every way possible to exchange a coral reef or a bit of Arabian sand for some trade advantage given to Canada by the United States, and without which the Canadian commissioners might not feel warranted in agreeing to a treaty; Mr. Chamberlain might think, besides, that a thing is not lost which still remains in the family.

Notes.

A final attempt is to be made to secure a settlement of the Atlantic fisheries question so that it may be inserted in the treaty.

The British commissioners will give a dinner to their Washington hosts at the Shoreham on Monday, the 19th, and the Canadians will leave for home on the 20th, if present arrangements hold.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

War Vessels for Havana.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Four United States war vessels—the Brooklyn, Texas, Castine and Resolute—have been ordered to Havana. While there is not the faintest desire to convey a threat in the despatch of these warships to Havana, it may be noted that when they lie within the harbor they will hold the town in perfect subjection. It is surmised that the suggestion came from Admiral Sampson, who is now in one of the suburbs of Havana, as a result of the unfortunate eruption Sunday night at the Hotel Inglaterra.

A Cable to Iceland.

London, Dec. 10.—It is reported here that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will ask Parliament to grant a subsidy to a Danish company, which proposes to lay a cable to Iceland.

An Anglo-Canadian syndicate will probably complete the line to Frederickshaab, Greenland, and thence on to Newfoundland.

Hard Luck.

The car was full. "Pray take my seat," he implored as she entered.

"No, I prefer to stand, thank you," she replied, for she was a cruel girl.

So there was nothing for him to do but sit and bag his trousers for ten miles farther.—Detroit Journal.

The Catarrh Clutch

This Disgusting Malady is at the Throat of 900 of every 1,000 of our Country's Population.

This Is Not Hearsay. It is Borne Out by Carefully Compiled Statistics of Diseases Most Prevalent. Its Development is Watched Carefully Because it is so Sure a forerunner of Consumption if Neglected. Most Catarrh Cures Contain Cocaine, which is a Dangerous Narcotic, and Prof. Heys, of the Ontario School of Chemistry and Pharmacy, says:—

"After an examination made from samples procured on the open market, I declare that there is no COCAINE contained in the preparation of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure." Most astonishing results are daily coming into Dr. Chase's office of the cures made. Here are a few in condensed form. We ask you to call or write to the following parties if at all sceptical:

OSWALD BURKHARDT, 159 PORTLAND STREET, TORONTO, suffered from Catarrh for nine years, and was cured by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MR. J. PALMER, HAIR DRESSER, 673 QUEEN STREET WEST, TORONTO, could not sleep for years on account of the mucus dropping into the throat; cured by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MR. WHITCOMBE, OF THE METHODIST BOOK ROOM, TORONTO, suffered for two years; cured by one box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MRS. COWLE, 467 QUEEN STREET EAST, TORONTO, thirteen years ago was attacked with Hay Fever. Never knew what it was to have any relief until she used Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. If anyone troubled with Catarrh calls on Mrs. Cowle she will give her endorsation as to her cure.

PRICES HIGHER.

Wheat Quotations Went Up Nearly a Cent From the Recent Decline—The Latest Prices.

Tuesday Evening, Dec. 13.

Liverpool wheat futures, after manifesting early weakness to-day, recovered and closed ½d per cental higher than yesterday. Paris wheat eased off 5 to 20 centimes for the day. Chicago wheat futures advanced about ⅞c per bushel, closing at the best prices of the day.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 13.—Cattle: A few loads were sold to-day in small bunches at about yesterday's prices on the good kind. Medium cattle were a shade lower.

Sheep and Lambs: The total offerings were 40 loads, including five loads of fresh Canada lambs. The demand was very light, only about half of the offerings selling, and the bulk of those were the best of the lot. The basis of lamb prices was $5.25 to $5.35. With anything like a liberal run of sale from now on to the first of the year, prices are liable to break. Lambs, choice to extra, were quotable $5.25 to $5.35; good to choice, $5 to $5.25. Sheep, choice, $4.25 to $4.40; good to choice, $4 to $4.25.

EIGHT MEN KILLED.

Terrible Accident on the New York Central Railway.

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Eight men were killed and four injured at Winspere Bridge, near Corfu, on the New York Central Railroad, yesterday morning. They were all Poles, with the exception of John Warner, their foreman, who is among the killed. The men were engaged in shovelling snow, of which there were numerous drifts on the line. All were frightfully mutilated. The men stepped from one track to avoid an approaching train, right in front of a fast express train running in the same direction, and were literally ground to pieces.

Their Golden Wedding.

Guelph, Dec. 12.—Saturday was the 50th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. James Goldie, their wedding having taken place in New York on Dec. 10, 1848. Mrs. Goldie's maiden name was Frances Owen. After their marriage they lived in Paterson, N.J., and Utica, New York State, and in 1860 they came to Guelph, when Mr. Goldie purchased Pipe's mills and inaugurated a business career remarkable at once for its sterling honesty and continued success.

He Drowned Himself.

Newcastle, Ont., Dec. 14.—An unknown man committed suicide three miles east of Port Newcastle by drowning about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was from 35 to 40 years of age, medium height, dark complexion, dark mustache, bald head, weight about 180 pounds. He wore a grey suit of clothes, blue overcoat, gaiters and rubbers, and a blue peaked cap, clothing all new. No money was found on the body or papers to identify the man, but he had a silver watch and chain and pocket-knife.

All Must Have Perished.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 14.—A special from Yarmouth says: The schooner Annie G., before reported dismasted and abandoned, has been towed into Clark's Harbor. One body was found in the cabin, which leads to the belief that all on board must have perished.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

A Dunnville Jeweller's Wife

CURED OF PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND SMOTHERING SPELLS BY MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. D. E. Lasalle, Canal Street, Dunnville, Ont., whose husband keeps a jewellery store, and is one of the best known and most progressive citizens of Dunnville, Ont., gives the following description of her recent experience in the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills:

"I took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for weak nerves, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells at night and sleeplessness. Before I used them I could not get restful sleep, and my nerves were often so unstrung that I would start in alarm at the least noise, and easily worried.

"Last February I commenced taking this valuable medicine, and it proved the right remedy for my weak and shattered nervous system. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restored my nerves to a strong and healthy condition, gave regular and normal action of the heart.

"I sleep well now, and am better in every way, and I recommend them heartily to all who suffer as I did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure Palpitation, Throbbing, Weak and Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Pale and Sallow Complexion, Female Troubles, and all diseases arising from disordered nerves, weak heart or watery blood. CHAPTER V.

AN ADVENTURE AND A WALLET.

"Murder!"

The startling cry sounded doubly weird and awful, because of the afternoon sunlight that was bathing the housetops.

But no such thought occurred to Neil Bathurst as he bounded up the steps and gave the door a vigorous push. Contrary to his expectations, it was not locked, and flinging it open, he rushed up the stairs, at the head of which he encountered a group of women, who were huddled together near a door, upon which their horrified eyes were fixed.

Rightly guessing that this was the door of the room from which the cries had come, he hastened toward it, and putting his hand upon the handle, found that it was locked.

The women fell back at his approach, and hearing groans and curses from within, the young man promptly applied his shoulder to the door and exerted all his strength to break the fastening. It was but a flimsy affair, after the fashion of city tenement-house locks, and at the third vigorous push the door yielded.

Entering the room, Neil Bathurst found himself face to face with a man who had evidently turned away from his victim to secure his own safety. Guessing at once that this was the assassin, Bathurst stopped short in the doorway, thus cutting off his retreat.

With a howl of rage and fear, the cornered man sprang to seize a huge dirk-knife that lay upon the floor near his victim, but the detective was too quick for him. With wonderful agility, he seized a chair that lay between them, evidently overturned in the affray, and, as the villain stooped to recover the knife, he dealt him a sudden blow that laid him prostrate.

Instantly Bathurst was on one knee beside him, at the same time saying over his shoulder to the frightened women:—

"Come in, quick, and attend to the lady—I must secure this man."

Even as he spoke, his quick eye rested upon a wallet which lay upon the floor before the bed, half open, and exposing to view a bundle of papers, which seemed to be its only contents.

He had possessed himself of the knife, and assured himself that the man before him was not shamming but actually stunned, and now he arose and turned toward the bed, saying:—

"Run for a doctor, some one, and for policemen."

"They are coming, sir," replied the oldest of the women, who now stood beside him.

Bathurst glanced again at the woman: she was living, but evidently bleeding inwardly; he could hear the tramp of policemen on the stairs; there was no time to lose; with the instinct of a true detective he bent down and, unnoticed by any of the women, secured the wallet, with its contents, thinking, as he did so, of Jocelyn and the foreign gambler.

In less than five minutes the house was alive with people, and the usual scenes attending such occasions ensued. The stunned villain, who had struck the foul blow, recovered, to find himself in the grasp of two powerful policemen. A doctor soon appeared, and, having promptly cleared the room of all unnecessary occupants, proceeded to examine the victim, and apply such remedies as might serve to lessen pain and keep the feeble life spark alive.

Having given to the policemen a brief account of the affair, or as much of it as he had taken a part in; and having seen them safely on their way to the station house with their prisoner, Neil Bathurst re-entered the house and began to look about him. A group of excited women were conversing in low tones, in a little room just at the head of the stairs. He ascended slowly, and seeing that the door of the room which held the seemingly dying woman was closed, he approached the group at the opposite end of the hall.

Among the faces turned to him he recognized two as belonging to the women who had been huddled about the door when he had first entered the house, and, after looking from one to the other for a moment, he beckoned the younger of the two to follow him, and went downstairs.

Somewhat reluctantly the girl obeyed him, and presently they stood alone in a little, half-darkened back parlour.

Neil Bathurst was well aware of the character of the house in which he stood, and he knew therefore how best to approach the girl before him.

Crossing the room he drew back a curtain, letting in a strong light, and then drawing forward a chair, and throwing himself into another opposite, he said, in a matter-of-course tone:—

"Sit down there, please, and tell me what you know about this affair."

The girl took the seat indicated, and then said, with a coarse laugh:—

"You are quite airy in your demands. Why don't you ask some one else for information? Who are you, anyway?"

"I ask you because I choose to do so, and if you don't want to answer the same questions in a police court, you had better be frank now. I am an officer, and I've had my eye upon this house for some time."

"You—don't mean to arrest me?" faltered the girl.

"Not if you tell me what I want to know, and don't lie about it."

"If I tell you the truth, may I leave the house unmolested?"

"You may."

"All right," with a look of relief. "Then what do you want to know?"

"Do you know the woman who has been stabbed?"

"Never saw her until she lay there half dead."

"You live in this house?"

"Yes?"

"And she comes as a visitor."

"She came to-day. We were in the parlour—two others and myself. We didn't know when she drove up, we were playing casino at the back of the room."

"Who?"

"Kitty, Annie, and myself,"

"All right! go on."

"I don't suppose that the carriage had been standing there two minutes, when we noticed it, but the lady was already inside. We knew that a man had been upstairs, waiting for some one, for nearly an hour, and we had heard him tramping up and down the room as if he was getting mad."

"Well!"

"Well—as we were talking about the carriage, the old lady put her head in the door, and said it was half-past four o'clock. She expected callers at half-past four, and that meant that we must get out of the parlour. The girls went down to the dining-room, but I went upstairs—"

"You did?"

"Yes—did you examine the rooms above?"

"No."

"Well, if you do so, you will see that there is a room opening off from the one in front, where the man and woman met. The room is a sort of closet or lumber room for every one in the house. We all put our trunks in it. The old lady keeps her linen there, and there is an old dressing table there too, which has an excellent glass; the window gives a good light, and we often use the table and glass, and dress our hair there. There is a door, as I said, opening into the front room, and a transom over it. Some time ago a pane of glass had been broken in the transom, and so the thing has been filled in on the front side with a gathering of crimson moreen. Well—the occupants of the front room are not likely to know that it is very easy to hear their conversation, if one is in the lumber room, do you see?"

"Yes. Go on."

"Well, I was going out this evening, so I ran up to the trunk room to dress my hair, while there was plenty of daylight. The man was talking very loud when I entered the room, and they did not hear me open and shut the door."

"I suppose not," dryly. "You listened—well, tell me every word you overheard, and, remember, no exaggerations or false statements. I have seen the woman upstairs before—and you can't lie to me."

"So!" cried the girl, with the air of one who has made a discovery. "You were shadowing her, were you? That's how you were on hand at the right minute."

"Never mind that," replied he, with some impatience. "What did you hear?"

"I can't give you the exact words, but this it is in a nutshell. The two were old partners of some sort, and must have been up to a good many games together. It seems that they had planned to get some money from some victim (an Englishman) who had shown a full purse. The man had found the victim and then sought her services. She had got into the Englishman's good graces, and had promised the man to get possession of his pocketbook this very day, and bring it to him. Well, when she produced the pocketbook, it had no money in it, only papers. The man had been drinking, I should think, and he flew into a fearful rage; they both became very angry. She told him that she was glad the scheme had failed, and that she would never do any more dirty work for him. Then I heard him spring at her and say, 'D— you, I'll have your life then.' There was the sound of a struggle, and then I knew that he had struck her; she screamed, and I heard her say, 'You have killed me!' Then I rushed into the hall and cried at the top of my voice, 'Murder! murder! murder!'"

"So it was you who cried 'murder!'"

"Yes. Why, bless you, he had stabbed the breath out of her; she could not have screamed so."

"True!"

At this moment the mistress of the house entered the room.

"How is the lady, madame?" asked the detective, rising.

"The chances are even," replied the woman, in a hard voice; "she may live, she may die. Are you the man who broke in the door?"

"Yes, madame."

"Then come and see the woman."

Bathurst rose to follow her, but paused, and, as she passed from the room, laid his hand upon the arm of the girl and whispered:—

"Remember, not a whisper as to my business, if you want to be safe yourself; and you had better leave this house to-night."

"Trust me for that," replied the girl. "I will be safely away within an hour, and I won't give you away."

Thus assured he hurried out and up the stairs, to find the mistress of the house standing at their head, looking somewhat irate.

"I should think this was no time for trifling with silly girls," said she, testily. "I don't know who you are, but you seem to know how to act promptly. How is this affair to terminate?"

"You have just said—in life, or death."

"I don't mean that: how will it affect me?"

"Not much, I should fancy," with covert sarcasm.

"Not much, indeed; my reputation in this quarter is ruined."

"That's a pity."

"Well, I won't stay here long—and what is to be done with this woman? I can't keep her on my hands—she must go to the hospital."

Without making a reply to this unfeeling speech, Bathurst turned on his heel and entered the front room.

Before the bed stood the doctor and one woman, evidently a neighbour; he approached, and, standing beside them, looked down upon the injured woman.

It was not a young face. Evidently the woman had passed her thirtieth year, but, in health, it must have been a handsome face even yet. She might have been a weak woman, but she did not look like a wicked one. She was well, but not expensively, dressed; and on the third finger of the slender left hand she wore a plain gold ring, that looked as if it had not been removed for years, so firmly did it seem embedded in the flesh of the small finger.

For a few moments they talked of the woman and her chances for life or death. Then the detective asked:—

"Will it lessen her chances for life to remove her to the nearest hospital, doctor?"

"If she lives beyond to-morrow," replied the doctor, "she will be better off there than here."

"She won't get any too good care here," said the woman, who seemed a kindly-disposed, officious person.

"Can't you look after her until to-morrow?" asked Bathurst.

"Well—yes, I might."

"Then I will see that you are not the loser by it."

Thus encouraged, the woman declared herself ready to undertake the charge.

Bathurst was assured that the physician was all that could be desired, and, feeling that the patient was in good hands, he turned his face homeward.

More than an hour had passed since he had first entered the house, and he felt, as he hurried on, that he would be late in keeping his appointment with Arteveldt, at the Durand mansion. The day had been warm, and his disguise was somewhat burdensome.

When at last he reached his own rooms, he threw off his paddings that had given him an appearance of stoutness, and the wig and beard that had, together with various pigments and little brushes, transformed him into a middle-aged man, and heaved a sigh of relief.

"I am getting into business again with a vengeance," he muttered, as he commenced a hurried toilet. "I would like to look into the contents of that wallet for Rob's sake—but it can't be done to-night. I must now cultivate the friendship of Miss Aura Durand."

At that moment there came a sounding rap at his door, and in another instant Clarence Arteveldt, in full evening costume, stood before him.

"Hurry up, Bath.," he cried impatiently. "Old Durand has sent a message to the house desiring us to come in time for dinner. I have been hear twice before, and found the door here locked."

COUNCIL MEETING.

A regular meeting of the village council was held in the town hall on Monday evening.

Reeve Lillicrap in the chair, and all the members present.

After routine, tenders from David Darling and John Cooper for snow-ploughing were read.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor Burgiss, that the council purchase another snow plough so that both sides of the river can have the walks cleaned earlier in the day in order to permit the children to get to their schools. We think the trip around too much for one plough.—Lost.

Moved in amendment by Councillors Braden and Fraser that the tender of D. Darling for snow ploughing be accepted.—Carried.

The Finance Committee presented their report recommending payment of the following accounts:

Pay sheet No 13, wages	$ 5 00
Madill Bros, electric light	106 50

D Darling, "	59 60
	$373 54

We would also recommend that payment of Pay Sheet No. 12, $35 50, and Liverpool, London and Globe account, re insurance town hall, be confirmed.

Report adopted, on motion of Councillors Fraser and Bargis.

Moved by Councillors Fraser and Bradin, that a rebate of $3 taxes on lot 26, west Rabbit street, be made to John Hull, as per agreement with this council—Carried.

C. G. Bloomfield, secretary-treasurer Public Library, presented a report for the year 1898, showing

Receipts	$ 293 32
Expenditure	257 29
Balance on hand	$ 36 03

A bylaw to make provision for the election of a reeve, councillors and school trustees for 1899 was passed through its stages, and was signed and sealed.

Council adjourned to meet on the 15th inst. at usual hour, to receive the treasurer's financial statement.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practical CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. For correct and full information regarding the new invention and NEWCOMBE PIANOS, write to our Direct Representative,

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

PROOFS ARE PLENTY.

ANNUAL RECEPTION

To be Held on New Year's Day at the Young Men's Christian Association.

Yesterday the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. was held in the Bible class room, Mrs. (Sheriff) Hall, president, in the chair. There was a splendid attendance of members.

Arrangements were made for the annual New Year's reception to the young men of the town. An excellent programme is promised, including a number of new and attractive features. It will be held during the afternoon and evening of Jan. 2nd, 1899.

Mrs. Wm. Wand read a verg interesting paper on "How to Make our Auxiliary Meetings more interesting.

A discussion took place regarding the holding of an entertainment in February, the matter being referred to a special committee.

The Auxiliary meets again the first Thursday in January. Any ladies of the town who wish to assist in the work are invited to become members.

PERSONAL.

DEATH OF GEO. PATON.

His Demise Occurred Yesterday After a Long Illness.

The citizens in general will be shocked to learn of the death yesterday of Mr. George Paton, although hope of his recovery was given up some weeks ago.

Mr. Paton was seventy-one years of age on the day of his death. He was born in Stirling county, Scotland. Mrs. Paton was a native of Kelso, Roxborough, Scotland, and the two were married in the Old Country in 1849. They came to America about 1852 and settled at Point Edward, where Mr. Paton entered the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway, in whose service he remained over forty years, acting as tie inspector for the road. After living in Point Edward for seventeen years the family removed to Stratford, remaining two years in that town. For the last ten years Mr. and Mrs. Paton has resided in Peterborough.

Mrs. Paton is left to mourn the loss of her husband, and the surviving children are:—Mrs. F. P. Condon, Thomasville, Ga.; S. B. Paton, of the same place; J. C. Paton, of Port Huron, an employee of the Chicago and Grand Trunk; Frank Paton, of San Francisco; and H. Paton, of Stratford, a fireman on the G.T.R. Mrs. Condon and the last named were at home at at the time of death.

The remains were taken to Point Edward to-day for interment.

Y.M.C.A. DEBATING CLUB.

The Subject Last Evening was "The Spanish-American War.

The interest in the Y.M.C.A. Debating Club is rapidly increasing, as was shown by the large attendance last evening. Mr. W. H. Hill, the president, occupied the chair in an acceptable manner.

The debate, "Resolved that the Americans were justified in making war against the Spanish," was ably presented. Affirmative, Messrs. B. Anderson and S. D. Hall; negative, Messrs. F. Ray and J. McGowan. The audience decided in favour of the affirmative.

After the decision had been given the chairman summed up the points made. A number of the members took part in the discussion.

The following is the programme for the next two evenings:

Dec. 22—Papers on "The Peace Commission" and the "Joint High Commission."

Dec. 29—Debate, "Resolved that exemptions should be abolished."

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

CURLIANA.

At a meeting of the committees of the Thistles and Granites held yesterday, it was decided that the contest for the cup donated by the Colts be a six rink competition and be played off on Christmas day. The Kendry cup contest will also take the form of a bonspiel and be played off on New Year's day with nine rinks a side. The Innis medal series will be played off between the two clubs in the week beginning January 9th.

HOCKEY.

The Colts had a splendid practice yesterday, and are showing great form.

Eddie Graham is playing a better game than ever.

Harry Morgan promises to shine in hockey as he did in rugby.

On Saturday night from 7 to 8 the Colts will have a special practice. Teams will be chosen and the names will appear in tomorrow's papers.

The management of the rink has the thanks of the Colts for the way their room has been fixed up. A new stove has been put in, also a new set of rockers, and the boys now have very cosy quarters.

The Executive of the Hockey Club meets at the rink to-night at 7.30, on important business. A meeting of the whole club is called for 8 o'clock.

THE KENNEL.

A subscription towards the prize list for the Bench Show was received to-day from Mr. J. W. Flavelle, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough.

PROF. HUME ON HOW TO THINK

A DEEPLY INTERESTING LECTURE ON AN IMPORTANT SUBJECT.

Under the Auspices of the National Home Reading Union—An Excellent Intellectual Treat—A Large and Attentive Audience—Appreciation of the Lecture.

The hall of the Y.M.C.A. was filled with an appreciative audience last evening, who listened with great delight to the most purely intellectual treat presented in years to a Peterborough audience. The company was composed principally of ladies, with an ornate fringe of gentlemen on the outskirts.

Rev. H. Symonds occupied the chair, and introduced the lecturer, Mr. J. G. Hume, Professor of Metaphysics in Toronto, with his usual graceful discrimination. He spoke of the immense importance of the subject of the evening. The lecture was one of a series to be given under the auspices of the local Union.

Prof. Hume, who is as clear a speaker as thinker, though he led his audience into pretty deep water at times, was able to give his address an investiture of language adapted to popular appreciation. He began his address by saying that his subject suggested a field that had not been very much explored. The problem was how we should apply the laws of thought. So far applied psychology had confined itself chiefly to teaching others to think, while logic concerned itself chiefly with fallacies in methods of thinking. The art of mnemonics came near the subject, but it only taught how to gain mental wealth—how to retain and store up the products of thought. As remarked, the lecturer's subject had not been much explored and he was chiefly responsible for the conclusions he would present. The cosmic theory of thinking reduced thought to a conjunction of infinitisimal sensations—man's intelligence was made up of a cluster of sensations. The lecturer declared that man was a complex organism animated by life and harmonized to the end of life's manifestations. Man's moral qualities had value only from his relations to his fellow men. Man was an organism both morally and socially, with well-defined relations in all directions. Man in thinking of himself had to reckon with his relations to his fellows and his surroundings. Man was fundamentally a thinker, a member of a unitary life. He was not alone; even in his most secret thoughts he derived the laws of thought from his surroundings, from his associations. All our intellectual powers should not only harmonize with themselves but with others. We did not truly believe what we did not do. Man's acting and thinking should go together,—thinking should be an expression of the whole man. The recognition of differences was less important than the recognition of unity. Religious sects differed in regard to certain aspects of truth, but they were advancing to a higher and truer plane when they came to discover that there were fundamental points upon which they agreed, which was the true relation that was finding wider acceptance in these days. Thinking was a form of action, and thinking must, therefore, express itself by action. We get more thoughts as we try to express the thoughts we have. If we wished to have our thought we must work it out. Labour, therefore, as an expression of thought, was an ennobling occupation. True thinking could not be selfish, it must have several aims and objects. Our literature as the expression of thought, was our only lasting thing that could resist the "corroding tooth of time." If thought expressed ourselves and gave our best to others it in turn bestowed upon us the best of others. As a thinker man was an ultimate power in the universe, an originating power in himself. The law of thinking was the law of living, and the thinking would depend upon the liver. The child as a thinker was not a mere bundle of sensations; he was an organizer from the beginning—a unitary life and consciousness. He applied the universal to the acquisition of a knowledge of the particular as one of his ways of escape from the particular. The inclination of the child nature was to play and the play of the fancy should be encouraged in children through the media of fairy and nursery tales and even the story of Santa Claus could with wise handling be made the stepping stone to a perception of higher truth. Without imagination there was no such thing as truth. The great truths of science were founded upon imagination and the discovery of the law of attraction by Sir Isaac Newton, and the axioms of mathematical science were cited in proof. Reference was made to the inquisitiveness of youth and its encouragement in the right directions enjoined. Exact observation was the ground of good memory. We could not remember what we did not know. Visual imagination was the seeing of pictures grouped in the mind—we saw a burning ship at sea and the picture made would never leave the mind. It was similar with the auditory imagination. The higher form of memory was the discriminative or selective, whose value depended upon the means adopted to hold these selected ideas together. A good rule was to never do for the memory what the memory could do for itself. We remembered a story because there is a plot that holds it together. Memory should be trained by thinking as one reads and knowing what one reads as one reads. Mature thinking asked questions, searched the meaning of what was read. Mature thinking was both reflective and constructive. The real dry rot that endangered truth was indifference. Earnest inquiry was the essence of the search for truth, for truth was a growing thing. Skepticism did not inquire; it dogmatized. In reading we should be systematic and criticise and test, as we read, a process of mental stock-taking whose value was earnestly and effectively impressed. The conclusion of the lecture was an eloquent application of the points adduced, especially graceful refrence being made to the tendency of true thinking to the development of the social, moral and religious interests.

Rev. Dr. Torrance and Mr. J. McCaig, in moving a vote of thanks, paid a very high tribute to the excellence and value of the lecture the audience had heard with such pleasure. The motion was enthusiastically carried.

The chairman expressed the immense pleasure it gave him to tender the most cordial vote of thanks, which the learned lecturer gracefully acknowledged.

Another "Spot Cash" Guessing Contest.

Yesterday morning Mr. Mayor Davis formally sealed the jar filled with beans, which is to be the subject of the new Spot Cash Grocery guessing contest. The representatives of the press were present, and from the fact that they "know beans, it may be taken for granted that the jar contains beans and that it was securely and hermetically sealed. A guess goes with every 25c purchase at the Spot Cash Grocery.

Well Made and Makes Well

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists of today, who have brought to the production of this great medicine the best results of medical research. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, containing just those vegetable ingredients which were seemingly intended by Nature herself for the alleviation of human ills. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach and digestive organs and creates an appetite; it absolutely cures all scrofula eruptions, boils, pimples, sores, salt rheum, and every form of skin disease; cures liver complaint, kidney troubles, strengthens and builds up the nervous system. It entirely overcomes that tired feeling, giving strength and energy in place of weakness and languor. It wards off malaria, typhoid fever, and by purifying the blood it keeps the whole system healthy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills and Sick Headache. 25c.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE two big railways of Canada, the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific, have increased their earnings in a very satisfactory degree. In spite of the bitter rate war, the increased prosperity of the country—the growing time—has been represented in the earnings of our chief railway companies.

IN effect all six of the bye-elections held Wednesday went Liberal. In the case of the apparent exception, Mr. Leighton McCarthy, in North Simcoe, though he is classed as an Independent, yet there is little or nothing in his platform, which is that of his father, the late Dalton McCarthy, that Liberals cannot assent to, as expressed in his nomination speech. The sentiments are as much in line with Liberal principles as if the speech had been made by a Liberal candidate. Mr. McCarthy virtually promised to judge the Government on its record, and that is all the Government desires. If the member elect for North Simcoe adheres to this the Liberal Government is sure of his support.

MARKETING SWINE.

In marketing the hogs it will usually be found profitable to sell them by live weight rather than to have them killed and dressed on the farm. The shrinkage in weight in fasting the hogs for twenty-four hours has been found to be about from 2 per cent to 4 per cent of their live weight. After such hogs have been killed the shrinkage, from the fasted live weight to the dressed weight twenty-four hours after the killing, has been from 17 to 22 per cent. That varies a good deal according to the shape of the hogs, the age and the condition of fatness.

It will be a good practice to have hogs for sale at different seasons of the year. It is not usually profitable for a breeding sow to have more than one litter in the year. Young pigs which are born in August or September and wintered in the manner recomended can be fattened and sold in excellent condition from May until August. Pigs born in March and April can be marketed from September until November.

In the handling of fat hogs in warm weather every precaution should be taken to avoid exciting them or causing them to be overheated. There is a risk of death from that cause, and if the swine should survive, the quality of the meat is said to be inferior. Any abuse that bruises the animal also reduces the value of the sides and hams. To obtain the best results in the production of pork, it is necessary to give the animals a chance to be comfortable during the whole of the journey through life. Comfort creates profit.

Old England's Flag ,vs. Dr. A. W. Chase.

The virtues of D. Chase's remedies are known the world over and like old England's Flag the sun on them never sets.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, Kidney-Liver Pills, Catarrh Cure, Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and Liver Cure enjoy the confidence of everybody. They have won their way into the public favor on merit. Their stirling qualities and high standing and purity have made them the household word all around the world. All dealers sell and recommend them.

The bylaw appointing returning officers and naming polling booths for the municipal elections received its several readings.

Messrs. Harper and Miller waited upon the council re a grant for the Fire Brigade Band. Councillor Craig moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford, that a grant of $25 be given to the band.

A communication was read from Mr. Knapman of the Bell Telephone Co., re fire alarm boxes.—Received.

Moved by Messrs. Morgan and Craig that the dog tax of R. Watley, J. Conroy and J. Cadigan be remitted.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Craig and Rutherford that the financial statement presented by the treasurer for 1898 be received and that the clerk be instructed to have the necessary number of copies printed and posted according to law.—Carried.

Moved by Councillors Morgan and Craig that Messrs. McQuillan & Co. be paid $149.72, balance of account due on waterworks contract, as reported by Mr. Henderson, village engineer.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easiest work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the gladsome glow of girlhood.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, illustrated.

HAVELOCK.

From Our Own Correspondent.

It is our sad duty to chronicle the death of one of our most popular young men, Mr. Fred Drewitt, whose death at Smith's Falls on Saturday last at 8 p.m. cast such a gloom over our village. Deceased was 33 years of age at the time of his death, and has been a C.P.R. engineer during the past six years or more. Two weeks ago last Friday he took his engine to Smith's Falls, and fell sick, being unable to come home and died of blood poisoning from an abcess of the liver. His remains were brought to Havelock on Sunday, arriving here at 3 30 p.m., accompanied by a number of Masonic brethren, of which Order he was a member. The train was literally covered with crape. On Monday at 2 p.m. the remains were taken to St. John's church, where a funeral sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Carson. The remains were then carried to the C.P.R. station by the Masonic brethren, and placed on the 4 p.m. express and taken to Toronto. Many of the villagers accompanied the remains to the city, and on Tuesday he was buried at Prospect cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of friends.

He leaves a young wife to lament his early death and a boy of four years and a daughter two years old. Mr. Davitt was married six years ago and his highly respected young widow has the sympathy of the whole community. He was highly appreciated by all who knew him.

Mr. Heron and family have moved into the house lately occupied by Mr. Thos. Smith.

We hear that our townsman, Mr. Joyce, purposes running for Commissioner in January next.

Thermometer stood 12 below zero in Havelock on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack, who have kept a boarding house in Havelock for years, are moving to their old home in Owen Sound. They will be greatly missed here and have the good wishes of all.

Mr. Charles Harrington intends starting for New York in a day or two to spend Xmas with his wife, who has been visiting there for a month past.

We are pleased to learn that Conductor Thompson, of Toronto Junction, who was injured in the wreck at Cavanville, is improving.

In Havelock, on Tuesday, 6th inst., the wife of Wm. Wilson, fireman, presented her husband with a daughter.

We are pleased to see Mr. J. Coon able to be out again after his long illness.

The skating rink will open on Saturday evening next.

We are pleased to see Mr. Morrison back from a four months' trip to Manitoba and British Columbia. The country seems to have agreed with him.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

THAT NAPANEE "RIOT."

The London Advertiser says: It is just as unfair to stigmatize the citizens as rioters, as to blame the citizens of London for the damage to property during the street car strike, which was inflicted mostly by small boys. In view of these circumstances all this fine talk about "an outrage on British justice" at Napanee is mere twaddle. The people of Napanee have strong sympathies in this particular case, but they revere British justice as much as any other community of the province. We fail to see where the dignity of British justice was at all assailed in the barber shop incident, or why the town of Napanee should be aspersed.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1135 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. TO BE HANGED.

Mrs. Poirier Convicted of Killing Her Husband and Sentenced to Pay the Extreme Penalty.

St. Scholastique, Que., Dec. 16.—The trial of Cordelia Viau, wife of Isidore Poirier, which has been in progress for some days, concluded last night, the jury finding the woman guilty of the murder of her husband. The judge thereupon sentenced her to be hanged on March 10, 1899.

The murder of which Mrs. Poirier has been twice found guilty, was a most horrible one. She was the wife of a respectable French-Canadian carpenter at Ste. Canute, a village near here, and had for some time been on intimate terms with Sam Parslow, a farm hand, and the two plotted together to get rid of the husband. One night last November Mrs. Poirier left her husband's house to go to see a friend some distance away. Poirier, who was troubled about his domestic relations, had been drinking rather freely, and the next day he was found with his throat cut from ear to ear. Mrs. Poirier claimed that she had not been near the place, but she and Parslow were arrested on suspicion. The woman broke down and tried to lay the whole blame on the man. Parslow confessed and, according to his statement, they both committed the murder. The first trial took place in February last, when the jury after a short deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence was reserved, the court granting the defence a reserve case on the point as to whether the woman's confession should have been admitted as evidence against her. Parslow is still in custody, and his case will be dealt with later on.

Mrs. Allison, wife of Dr. Allison, president of the Mount Allison University, is dead at Sackville, N.B. She was a sister of Mr. H. A. Powell, M.P. for West MacLeod.

The death took place on Thursday night of Alexander Grant, registrar of the Court of Appeal, at Toronto.

A POPULAR MISTAKE.

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The national disease of Americans is indigestion or, in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common, many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when, as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigorous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid, faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Werthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover this remedy is not a patent medicine, but it is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter), vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these pills will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonial sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

BERTRAM'S MEETING.

An Enthusiastic Liberal Rally in Centre Toronto.

PUBLIC ISSUES DISCUSSED.

An Able Speech by the Member for Centre Toronto—Hon. Messrs. G. W. Ross and Mulock Also Address the Gathering—Unfounded Charges of Corruption—The Reciprocity Negotiations.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Mr. George H. Bertram, M.P., invited his constituents of Centre Toronto to meet him last night and discuss the political questions of the day. The invitation was accepted by as many of the electors as could comfortably find accommodation in St. George's Hall, and the result of the meeting was as flattering to Mr. Bertram as it was satisfactory to the electors. The representative of the riding, during the successful campaign which he conducted prior to the bye-election in which he scored so signal a victory for the Liberal cause, pledged himself to an independent support of the Liberal Government along lines which he laid down with distinctness. Last evening he rendered a frank and manly account of his stewardship in Parliament, and explained to his constituents that he was still able to support the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, because it was pursuing a policy which, in his opinion, was calculated to promote the welfare of the Dominion, and to develop and strengthen its commercial, financial and manufacturing interests.

Hon. G. W. Ross, who occupied the chair, made a capital speech, in which he touched the popular chord upon Anglo-Saxon unity and especially in this connection the treaty negotiation at Washington. While he believed a treaty was likely, he was also sure that Canada could get along without one now.

Hon. William Mulock followed Mr. Ross, and delivered one of his characteristically broad-lined speeches that enthused the audience which filled St. George's Hall.

Mr. Bertram's Speech.

The chief speaker of the evening was Mr. Bertram, M.P. for Centre Toronto. After expressing his sincere appreciation for the manifested approval of the audience, he passed on to a consideration of public issues. He totally cleared up the charges of corruption against the Government in the matters of the Crow's Nest Pass and the Drummond County Railway, and then passed on to a consideration of trade matters. He showed that neither party wanted direct taxation, that the revision of the tariff two years ago was in accordance with Liberal speeches and Liberal policy, and that, while no tariff was perfect, the tariff now was such as would ensure prosperity if tinkering with it was not entered upon.

The Washington Negotiations.

Referring to the Washington negotiations, Mr. Bertram said: "I do not care for theories, but I take the plain, practical question that if the Americans will not allow Canadian lumber to go into the United States without duty, we do not want to oblige them. (Cheers. If they propose to out off business relations with us, why we propose to do the best we can without them. (Renewed cheers.) In the United States the tariff has been so high that it has promoted trusts and combines in a most extravagant degree. I am against all trusts and combines. (Applause.) Let it be understood to-day that the fiscal policy of Canada is a settled policy—that there is no disturbing element—and you will have stability of trade and the advancement of the best interests of the country. I do not want the people of Canada to be merely hewers of wood and drawers of water for any country. (Cheers.) I am not in favor of any treaty with the United States or any other country that will interfere with or hurt Canadian industries.

"We do not want any mere paper agreement between Great Britain and the United States, but an alliance of good-feeling. Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that Canadians and Britons should seek to remove all irritating questions. I believe it is the duty of the commissioners to strain every nerve to remove these differences, and if this is done—and I believe it will be done—it will bring in a new era of peace and prosperity. (Cheers.)

"I am sure that Canadians should not be called upon—it is not necessary that they should—to make any sacrifices for this end. We are willing to co-operate with Great Britain and the United States, but we are not going to pay anything for it. (Loud cheering.) Why? Because the good-will which is purchased is not worth having. If Canada has to give up anything we do not want the treaty. (Renewed applause.) I have unbounded confidence in the Canadian commissioners at Washington, and I do not believe that they would do or consent to anything against Canadian interests."

Prospects Extremely Doubtful.

Then Mr. Bertram pointed out that there was no occasion for the cry "Come home"—that time must be given for the consideration and sanction of Senate and Congress. The Canadian commissioners must strive to bring the business to a successful issue, but not ask any favors from the Americans. "We have," said he, most emphatically, "no favors to ask of anyone. (Applause.) We are looking for equity and fair dealing, and if we cannot get these we do not want anything. If we get a treaty—good; if not, we are not crying. Canada never was more independent than now, and she can find new avenues for her trade.

"This," said Mr. Bertram, "is the reason I am not concerning myself much whether we should have a treaty with the United States or not. The prospects are extremely doubtful, but the attitude and ability of our Canadian commissioners is not doubtful."

In the remainder of his address Mr. Bertram explained the increased expenditure of the Government for opening up the country and for inproved transportation facilities: most emphatically advocated the abolition of the Canadian Senate, which he termed as being in great part a hospital for political cripples, and espoused the James Bay and other northern railways.

M'KINLEY'S SPEECH.

President Tells the People That Their Recent Success Will Render the Union Indivisible Forever More.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16.—In the Auditorium at Piedmont Park, yesterday afternoon, the President addressed a large and enthusiastic gathering. Referring to the war with Spain, the President said:

The domains secured under the treaty, yet to be acted upon by the Senate, came to us not as the result of a crusade of conquest, but as the reward of a temperate, faithful and fearless response to the call of conscience, which would not be disregarded by a liberty-loving and Christian people.

We have so borne ourselves in the conflict and in our intercourse with the powers of the world as to escape complaint or complication and give universal confidence of our high purpose and unselfish sacrifices for struggling peoples.

This Government has proved itself invincible in the recent war, and out of it has come a nation which will remain indivisible forever more. The victory we celebrate is not that of a ruler, a President, or a Congress, but of the people. An army whose valor we admire, and a navy whose achievements we applaud, were not assembled by draft or conscription, but from voluntary enlistment. The heroes came from civil as well as military life. Trained and untrained soldiers wrought our triumph. The peace we have won is not a selfish truce of arms, but one whose conditions presage good to humanity. At Bunker Hill, liberty was at stake; at Gettysburg, the nation was the issue; before Manila and Santiago, our armies fought, not for gain or revenue, but for human rights. The glories of the war cannot be dimmed, but the result will be incomplete and unworthy of us unless supplemented by civil victories, harder possibly to win, in their way no less indispensable.

KILLING THE SICK IN MANILA.

A Red Cross Nurse Vividly Describes the Situation.

San Francisco, Dec. 16.—Advices from Honolulu, Dec. 7, say: "Scores of the soldiers at Manila are dying in hospitals for want of proper nourishment," says Miss Schaeffer, a Red Cross nurse, who went from here to Manila in September and has just returned.

"They say the Government allows 60 cents a day for each patient. You can save dozens of lives on five cents a day.

"Outside the hospital, and even in it, there is such indifference, petty consideration of rank and position, squabbles of precedence, lack of consideration in prescribing and preparing food, while men are dying, not merely of heart hunger, but for want of nourishment.

"Think of an attendant going through a ward with a pail of beef broth ladling it out to 50 or 60 patients indiscriminately by the cupful, when in the whole pail there was not enough nourishment for one even if made of the best material. But what it really was made of I refuse to imagine. In a whole ward there is not more than one nurse with experience, and for helpers only one or two awkward boys, who, perhaps, never saw a sick-room before."

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says:—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

SOCIALISTS WANT RECOGNITION.

Claim to Have 800 Votes in American Federation of Labor.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 16.—The delegates representing the Socialist element in the American Federation of Labor were in secret conference until nearly 1 o'clock yesterday morning, considering the advisability of nominating a candidate to oppose Samuel Gompers for the presidency of the Federation. The nomination was offered to Frank P. Gobin of Boston, representing the boot and shoe workers, but he positively refused to have his name go before the convention. The caucus then adjourned. The Socialists claim to control 800 of the 2,300 votes of the convention. It is now said to be the purpose of their leaders to serve an ultimatum upon Mr. Gompers, demanding general recognition of the Socialists in the Federation, and if this shall be refused, to begin an active warfare upon Gompers. Victor Berger of Milwaukee and Seymour Stedman, members of the executive committee of the Social Democratic party, who are here watching affairs, are positive in their declarations, however, that the Social Democracy is not fighting Mr. Gompers.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practical CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. For correct and full information regarding the new invention and NEWCOMBE PIANOS, write to our Direct Representative,

SILVER WEDDING.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of the Marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dormer:

The silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Dormer was celebrated last evening at their residence on Stewart street, Ashburnham, when about fifty guests assembled during the evening.

A large number of very beautiful presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Dormer on this the 25th anniversary of their wedding. Their eldest son Robert, of Syracuse, was unable to be present. Maude, Lorne, Lillian and Minnie were all in attendance.

Mrs. Dormer was a daughter of the late Mr. John Luny, of Ashburnham, and the wedding ceremony took place in the village, Rev. Mr. Hopper, of the Bible Christian church, officiating.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

The Directors Met Last Evening at the Morgan House.

The directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association met last night at the Morgan House, when the many special prizes which have been donated were placed on the list.

The fact that the secretary was receiving a large number of enquiries from towns all along the line between Ottawa and Hamilton, was considered a very favourable augury for the success of the show.

The meeting adjourned until Friday, Dec. 23rd, when representatives will be selected to the Ontario Poultry Association's annual meeting at Toronto in January. A strong effort is to be made to persuade the Association to hold the Exhibition of 1900 in Peterborough.

Fairyland.

The popular idea of the appearance of the fairyland is a mere matter of speculation, according to the taste of the individual, but one would think that it looks like the Peterborough Bookstore in its present holiday condition. The brilliant array of gift goods, the glitter of silver bric-a-brac, the sparkle of cut glass, the warm glow and yellow flash of bronze and brass art work, the rich and brilliant coverings of splendid gift books ranged on counters and tables, make a brilliant and enticing sight. Never before in town has a more splendid stock been laid in and never before has a stock been arranged and displayed in so enticing a form and to so strongly suggest at least one conception of a glimpse of fairyland. Description by words conveys no more idea of the beauty of the Peterborough Bookstore's gorgeous and elaborate display than a painting can express the exquisite odour of an English violet. Seeing only is what will form the idea ; and seeing is desiring, and desiring is equivalent to purchasing, for the prices are so moderate as to suggest that in marking these beautiful wares, profit has been lost sight of.

THE BYLAW SIGNED.

Authorising the Purchase of the Russell Roller.

The Mayor consulted the Town Solicitor this morning regarding the legality of the bylaw which was passed by the council last evening, authorising the purchase of a Russell roller. His Worship's mind was relieved on certain points about which he had his doubts, and the bylaw was duly signed by him this morning.

DIED IN ROCHESTER.

Demise of Mrs. (Dr.) Sawers—Death due to Brain Trouble.

Mr. John Sawers has returned from Rochester, where he was attending the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. (Dr.) Sawers, of that city.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Edward Duffy, who many years ago conducted a distillery in Peterborough. Besides a sorrowing husband, two small children survive, aged respectively eight and twelve years.

COLLAR BONE BROKEN.

A Young Son Mr. Wm. Laing Falls From a Sleigh.

THAT BIGAMY CASE.

The Woman who is Supposed to be Wm. Hull's First Wife is Under Arrest.

Constable Stewart went to Havelock last evening and placed Mary Morey, alias Hull, alias Williams, alias Collins, under arrest. She is wanted as a material witness in the charge of bigamy which is preferred against Wm. Hull, being said to be his first wife.

The second wife is said to be a Frenchwoman in town who, however, is said to have a husband alive by the name of Cleveland. Hull's first wife is also alleged to have another husband named Collins, who lives in Belmont. When the case comes up a week from to-day there will be a number of interesting developments.

ST. LUKE'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Charge of Bigamy.

Since William Hull has been arrested on a charge of assault, the charge of bigamy has also been laid against him.

Declared Himself a Candidate.

There seems to be little interest taken in the approaching municipal elections, at least from the candidate side. Several members of the present council have asserted their intention of becoming candidates. In addition Mr. M. H. Quinlan definitely announces that he is in the field as a candidate for the town council of 1899.

Fire at Port Hope.

About 12 o'clock last night a small fire occurred in the basement of the Day-Gough Company's clothing establishment, doing probably two thousand dollars worth of damage, chiefly by water and smoke. The building is little damaged. The companies interested are the Lancashire, Phoenix, Guardian, Liverpool & London and Globe.

RUSSELL ROLLER HAS THE CALL.

The Bylaw Authorizing its Purchase Was Passed.

THE MAYOR REFUSED TO SIGN.

A Hot Time in the Council Last Night —Collusion Between the Mayor and Mr. McWilliams Charged— The Auburn Power Company's Contract.

The council held its statutory meeting last evening. The Mayor was in the chair and the following members present—Messrs. Best, W. H. White, Robertson, Denne, Allen, Hamilton, Dawson, Cobb, McWilliams, Meldrum, Langford and J. M. White.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received and dealt with as appended:

From John Doris, Jr., asking for a refund of his statute labour tax—Granted.

From John Jackson, Hamilton, asking for position of superintendent of roads—Street and Bridge Committe.

From E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, as follows:

DEAR SIR,—I am in receipt of your letter of the 6th inst., enclosing a copy of the resolution passed at the council at the last meeting, asking for my opinion, if each elector will be entitled to only one vote, in the coming elections, or whether an elector will have a vote in each ward, in which he has property qualifications.

The act of 1898 provides, that the council on the passing of the bylaw for that purpose, "shall be composed of Mayor, and one alderman for each one thousand population, to be elected by popular vote." No further direction is given in that act, as to how the electors shall vote for aldermen. The Municipal Act section, 188, provides that, "in towns and cities every elector may vote in each ward in which he has been rated for the necessary property qualification, but in case of mayor of cities, or mayor or reeve, or deputy reeve of towns, an elector be limited to one vote."

I am of the opinion that, according with this section, an elector is entitled to vote for aldermen in each ward in which he has the necessary property qualification, but for mayor an elector is limited, as here before, to one vote.

Yours truly,
E. B. EDWARDS.

From W. Robin, of the Fire Underwriters Association, with reference to fire appliances.—Received,

From Ellen Rogers, asking that the taxes of John Rogers be remitted.—Granted.

From Jos. Stubbs, in reference to taxes on lots 17 and 18, Ward 4.—Left in the mayor's hands to consult the town solicitor in regard to the same.

From town council of Strathroy, asking the town to petition the Legislature in reference to amendment to a clause of the Municipal Act.—Referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

THE FOLLOWING ACCOUNTS

were presented and referred to the Finance Committee:—

Peterborough Water Co	$93 08
Thos White	2 50
R Gibbs	2 50
Curtis Bros	1 05
A McDonald	31 55
B Shortly	10 99
Jos sucee	90

The account of Thomas White was ordered to be paid.

Messrs. McWilliams and Denne moved that the clerk write and ask the opinion of the Attorney-General in regard to the number of votes to which property holders are entitled in the ensuing municipal election—Carried.

Mr. Thos. Cahill was heard on motion, and asked the council to take some action in connection with the refusal of the Grand Trunk Railway to fence their tracks which run through his property. Mr. Cahill stated that the refusal of the company was based on the ground that they were not compelled to fence sidings. He contended, however, that it was not a siding in this case but a spur line.

On motion of Messrs. McWilliams and Robertson, the clerk was instructed to notify the town treasurer to write the Company in reference to this point, stating that proceedings were about to be taken.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE

recommended as follows through its chairman, Councillor Denne:

1. That the following accounts be paid:

2. That Mr. R. H. Green be given another extension of three months in which to pay the balance he owes the town on account of market tolls

All of which is respectfully submitted,
T. H. G. DENNE, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE

re Auburn fire protection, reported through its chairman, Councillor J. M. White, as appended:

Your Special Committee regarding fire protection at Auburn beg leave to report and recommend that the town pay to the Auburn Woollen Company $105 for 1899 in lieu of furnishing three hydrants on condition that the Auburn Woollen Company agree to permit the town to extend or have extended a pipe from their waterworks system 1,000 or more feet to give further protection on that side of the river and furnish water therefor for fire protection.

All of which is respectfully submitted,
J. M. WHITE, Chairman.

Messrs. J. M. White and Langford moved the adoption of the report.—Carried.

Messrs. Best and W. H. White moved in amendment that the report be referred back.—Lost.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

reported, through its chairman, Councillor Best, as follows:

Your Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report that in accordance with the resolution of the council tenders were again asked for a fifteen long ton roller, and that the following tenders were received:

W C Oastler, Aveling & Porter roller	$ 3,300
Sawyer & Massey Co, Russell roller	3,250
Buffalo Pitts Co	3,150
R E H Buckner, Aveling & Porter roller, single engine	3,150
R E H Buckner, Aveling & Porter roller, compound engine	3,575
Harrisburg Foundry and Machine Works	2,800

All of which is respectfully submitted.
H. BEST, Chairman.

In moving the adoption of the report Messrs. Best and Denne moved that the tender of the Harrisburg Company be accepted at $2,800.—Lost.

TROUBLE BEGINS.

Councillor Best then introduced the bylaw authorizing the purchase of a steam roller and for the next couple of hours a very lively discussion followed. The tender of the Harrisburg roller was the lowest, but the claim was made that its qualities were unknown, whereas the council had seen both the Russel and Buffalo-Pitts machines operating Councillors Langford and J. M. White, who went to London to see a Harrisburg roller were asked to give their views on the machine.

Mr. Langford was satisfied that the machine could do good work. London's city engineer was satisfied with it.

Mr. White pointed out that by making its wheels and fixtures heavier a 12-ton machine could be brought up to fifteen tons weight, but would be deficient, as it would only have the 12-ton roller machinery.

Mr. Meldrum was in favour of buying a Canadian machine. The Buffalo-Pitts and Russell would both be made in Canada, and of the two the Russell was the lowest in price. He considered that the Harrisburg, being an American machine, was out of the running.

Mr. McWilliams stated that the Harrisburg machine would soon be made in Canada. He understood the company were corresponding with the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Company to this end now, and the rollers might be made in Peterborough.

Mr. Robertson was sure there was no intention of making the rollers in Canada. In his opinion the Pitts and Harrisburg roller companies were working together against the Russel.

Mr. Hamilton moved that the Russel Co. be offered $3,000 instead of $3,250 for their machine, the latter price being the amount of their tender.

The Mayor ruled the motion out of order.

Mr. Hamilton stated that there was only one course left for him, if the Mayor refused to allow the offer to be made. He then moved that the Russell roller be bought at $3,250, and stated that he wished the ratepayers to know that was being paid on account of the Mayor refusing to let an offer for $3,000 be made.

Mr. J. M. White asked the Mayor to name the rule under which he refused the motion to be made.

The Mayor stated that he was acting under no fixed rule, but doing what he thought was simple justice to the other companies, which had tendered in good faith.

Mr. Dawson asked how it was this new rule about tenders had been broken in reference to the rollers so often before without objection? He was prepared to vote for the Russell roller as against the Buffalo Pitts, because Mr. Andrew Macfarlane, who had been taken to Hamilton to see the rollers, had declared it the best roller by ten per cent.

On motion of Messrs. Best and Langford, the council then went into committee of the whole on the second reading of the by law with Mr. J. M. White in the chair.

Mr. McWilliams desired to read some letters recommending the Harrisburg roller, but Mr. Dawson interrupted him, stating that it had been decided that no more letters should be read in council in reference to the matter.

Mr. McWilliams continued reading the letters, and Mr. Meldrum asked Mr. White's ruling from the chair. Seconded by Mr Dawson, he moved that the letters be not read. The motion was carried and Mr. White asked Mr. McWilliams to discontinue reading. The latter refused to do so and challenged the right of the chair to dictate as to what he should do when on his feet.

Mr. White then left the chair, requesting the Mayor to resume its possession. he understood when taking it that he was sitting with gentlemen at the Board. When he found he was not he would not attempt to keep the chair.

Mr. Dawson rose to claim that this was the first time since he had sat in council that the ruling of the chair had been disobeyed, when endorsed by a majority of the council.

On taking the chair the Mayor was asked to decide on the motion. He stated that whilst he had decided against letters in recommendation of the Russell roller at the last meeting of the council, this did not bind the present meeting, nor affect the letters which referred to the Harrisburg roller.

ALLOWING MR. WHITE TO READ

Mr. White resumed the chair and Mr. McWilliams read the letters.

Messrs. Robertson and Meldrum moved that the blank spaces in the bylaw be filled in with the name of the Russel roller at the price of $3 000.

In amendment, Messrs. Langford and Davis moved that the spaces be filled in with the name of the Harrisburg roller, at $2,800

The amendment was lost on the following vote:—

Yeas—Councillors Best, Denne, Langford, McWilliams and the mayor—5.

Nays—Councillors W. H. White, Robertson, Allen, Hamilton, Dawson, Cobb, Meldrum and J. M. White—8.

Mr. Best inquired by what right the Russell Company was now allowed to change its tender from $3 250 to $3,000.

In answer, Mr. Dawson said by the same right as Mr. Best had to vote for a snow-ploughing tender being raised in committee a few nights previous. (Laughter.)

The committee then rose and reported the bylaw read a second time, the mayor resuming the chair.

Messrs. McWilliams and Denne moved that the bylaw be referred back to the committee, with instructions the have the name Harrisburg roller at $2,800 inserted instead of the Russel machine.

Mr. McWilliams asked for the yeas and nays to be recorded, stating that he was taking all necessary steps to make it easy for the judge to unravel the whole business, as he intended having an injunction issued in the morning.

The vote was the same as before.

Mr. Langford objected to the mayor signing the bylaw, stating that it was illegal.

Messrs. W. H. White and Robertson moved the third reading of the bylaw, which was passed on the same vote, the yeas and nays being again recorded at the wish of Mr. McWilliams.

Mr. McWilliams then objected to the mayor stating that it had been illegally carried, as there were members sitting at the board who had no right to vote.

SIGNING THE BYLAW,

Mayor Davis announced that he would not sign the bylaw until he had consulted the solicitor in regard to the matter. Some very peculiar things had been done by some of the councillors. Mr. Hamilton, without authority, had written to get the price of an English roller.

Mr. Meldrum then made the charge that there was collusion between the Mayor and Mr. McWilliams in the matter of the purchase of a roller. As regards Mr. Hamilton writing to get the price of a roller, he had a perfect right to do so if he wished. So had the speaker, or any member of the council. If the minority of the council refused to abide by the decision of the majority they were cowards.

Mr. McWilliams claimed that the collusion between himself and the Mayor was for the good of the town, but there were other kinds of collusions of a different nature, such as the collusion between the Peterborough Light and Power Company and the Auburn Power Company, when they had decided not to compete for the contract of lighting the town but agreed that one should do the lighting and the other

ONLY SUPPLY POWER.

On the statement that cheap power was to be supplied the town, the poles of the Auburn Company had been exempted from taxation, but now the consumers were notified that the price was to be raised. This was the company of which Mr. Meldrum was manager. Mr. Meldrum had denied that there was an agreement between the two companies, but the speaker had seen the document.

Mr. Denne stated that the price he was paying for his power was to be raised.

Mr. Meldrum replied that Mr. Denne had only been paying for one-horsepower to the old company for certain reasons,

From the day that a young man starts out to seek his first position to the end of his business life, his health has a world to do with his success. When a young man applies to a business man for a position, his personal appearance has a deal to do with the outcome. "Personal appearance" does not mean dress alone. It does not mean exterior cleanliness alone. A young man may be clean, so far as soap and water will make him, but be disfigured by unsightly pimples, eruptions and ulcerations on the skin. These are due to impurities in the blood. The blood becomes impure because it is improperly nourished. Instead of receiving the life-giving elements of the food, it receives the foul emanations of indigestion, biliousness and costiveness.

The reason that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best remedy for disorders of this description is that it goes right to first causes. It gives a man an appetite "like a horse." It facilitates the flow of digestive juices. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, and makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect. It invigorates the liver. It purifies and enriches the blood. It makes the muscles strong and active. It tones and steadies the nerves. It makes a young man look as he should—strong of body, alert of brain and clean and wholesome of skin. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"I had eczema in its worst form," writes Austin Ramsey, Esq., of Saltillo, Huntingdon Co., Pa. "I tried three doctors but got no relief. I thought it would set me wild, it itched and burned so badly. The neighbors thought I would never be cured. I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and am now well."

TERMS OF THE TREATY.

The Provisions Are in Accordance With the Outlines Already Given by the Despatches.

London, Dec. 15.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says: The text of the Spanish-American peace treaty has now been published, and, shorn of diplomatic verbiage, may be summed up thus: Cuba, Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines are ceded to the United States.

For ten years after the treaty is ratified Spanish ships to trade at Philippine ports on the same terms as American ships.

Spain is to have her soldiers returned from the Philippines with their arms restored to them, United States to bear the cost.

Prisoners of war are to be released by both sides. The United States engages to return to their homes all the prisoners of war released or caused to be released by them.

All claims for indemnity, national or individual, of every kind are relinquished, dating from the beginning of the late insurrection in Cuba.

Spanish subjects may remain Spanish subjects in the ceded territory by making a legal declaration of their desire to do so, and will have equal civil and commercial rights with other foreigners. If they make no declaration it will be taken for granted that they renounce Spanish citizenship.

All creeds shall have religious liberty.

Spaniards residing in the ceded territory shall be subject to the laws, both civil and criminal, of the country in which they reside. Rights of property secured by Spaniards under copyrights and patents, and in force at the time of ratification of the treaty, to be respected, and Spanish literary and artistic works not subversive to public order shall be admitted free of duty for ten years from date of the exchange of ratification.

For ten years after ratification merchant vessels to have identical treatment in the matter of port charges, entrance and clearance dues, light dues and tonnage duties. This provision may be abrogated on six months' notice by either country.

Any obligation assumed by the United States with regard to Cuba is understood to be limited to the time of occupation, but on the termination of such occupation any government established in the island will be advised by the United States Government to assume the same obligations.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

Addison Is Still Laid Up.

London, Dec. 15.—Walter Richards, jr., was before Police Magistrate Parke yesterday morning, charged with having a hand in the assault of Motorman Austin Addison. Mr. McKillop announced that Addison was still in a serious condition, and would not be able to be around for some time. He asked for an adjournment of the case for two weeks, which was granted by the magistrate. The necessary bail was renewed for the time mentioned.

HAVANA UNSAFE.

Terrible Riots of Sunday Provoked by Spanish Soldiers Liable to Be Repeated—Men Beyond Control of Officers.

Havana, Dec. 15.—There will be sad struggles in the streets of Havana unless arrangements are quickly made to get the Spanish soldiers out of the city. No one is safe. The Spaniards grow daily more insulting, and the Cuban forces in the outskirts are eating their hearts out to enter the city and avenge their women and their comrades. Gen. Castellanos had no control over the Spanish troops here, and Gen. Arolas is a bothead who hates all that is Cuban or American. He makes no serious effort to curb the men under his command, seeming rather to take pleasure in the outrages they commit.

The Colon Battalion was responsible for the murderous affray on Sunday night. Havana has since been in a state of panic. While the Colon Battalion was marching through the park Sunday earlier in the day Col. Frederico Peres Jaramillo, in command, roused the enthusiasm of his soldiers by cries of "Viva Espana!" "Viva Weyler!" One of the captains, to go his chief one better, stepped from the ranks and set upon Mr. La Cavada, an American citizen, who was standing at the entrance to the Hotel Inglaterra. All the other members of the battalion looked on approvingly, watching closely meanwhile lest La Cavada should offer effective resistance to his assailant. The hotel, where the Cubans generally stop, was ransacked, and a volley was fired in a corridor.

Personal assaults were numerous. Senor Morales, a prominent lawyer of Havana, was beaten near the Captain-General's palace by a number of Spanish soldiers. At San Jose wharf a boy 9 years old was beaten nearly to death because he cheered for the United States and Cuba. The boy is now under the care of a Cuban doctor and is not expected to live.

Spanish officers and soldiers singled out for attack the family of an American, P. Ward, whose home is at 472 North street, Philadelphia, and whose Havana residence is 27 San Ignacio street. With Mr. Ward, who is an invalid, live his wife, four daughters and a son, but neither of the men was at home Sunday when Capt. Julio Surdo, Lieuts. Antonio and Nicanor Huerta and their orderlies broke down the door and entered their house. The house had an American and a Cuban flag displayed, and the women were at work upon more flags. They were beaten with the flat of the officers' swords and were dragged and swung about from room to room. "Go call your friends, the American pigs!" the officers cried, adding much abusive and profane language.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Jherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

PRINCE OF WALES.

No Truth in the Rumor That His Royal Highness Will Visit America.

London, Dec. 15.—It was learned last evening at Marlborough House that there is no truth whatever in the rumor that the Prince of Wales is to cross the Atlantic next summer. It is generally believed in court circles that the Prince will not leave Europe in the near future on account of the age and generally critical health of his mother.

The Cannibalism Verified.

Brussels, Dec. 15.—Advices received here from the Governor of the Upper Congo confirm the news that four Belgian traders had been killed and eaten by the natives of Upper Ubanghi. The Governor adds that the traders' escort of 30 soldiers were also massacred, and that another detachment of 40 soldiers in charge of two white officers, who were proceeding to the assistance of the traders, were surprised by the natives, and all were put to death.

Girls Held for Ransom.

Vienna, Dec. 15.—A band of Arnauts, or Albanians, in old Servia, have carried off from their homes in the village of Illok three of the belles of the town, whom they threaten to sell across the frontier unless a ransom of 25,000 groschens be paid them. The parents of the girls, by selling all their possessions can only raise 4,000 groschens, and the other villagers are contributing to make up the sum demanded.

Multi-Millionaire Dead.

Paris, Dec. 15.—Antonio E. Terry, formerly of New York, died here yesterday of liver complaint. He was twice married, his second wife being Sybil Sanderson, the opera singer. Terry was one of the sons of Senor Tomaso Terry, who left a fortune at his death in 1896 estimated to amount to from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 to be divided among his six surviving children.

The Catarrh Clutch

This Disgusting Malady is at the Throat of 900 of every 1,000 of our Country's Population.

This Is Not Hearsay. It is Borne Out by Carefully Compiled Statistics of Diseases Most Prevalent. Its Development is Watched Carefully Because it is so Sure a forerunner of Consumption if Neglected. Most Catarrh Cures Contain Cocaine, which is a Dangerous Narcotic, and Prof. Heys, of the Ontario School of Chemistry and Pharmacy, says:—

"After an examination made from samples procured on the open market, I declare that there is no COCAINE contained in the preparation of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure." Most astonishing results are daily coming into Dr. Chase's office of the cures made. Here are a few in condensed form. We ask you to call or write to the following parties if at all sceptical:

OSWALD BURKHARDT, 159 PORTLAND STREET, TORONTO, suffered from Catarrh for nine years, and was cured by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MR. J. PALMER, HAIR DRESSER, 673 QUEEN STREET WEST, TORONTO, could not sleep for years on account of the mucus dropping into the throat; cured by Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MR. WHITCOMBE, OF THE METHODIST BOOK ROOM, TORONTO, suffered for two years; cured by one box of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure.

MRS. COWLE, 467 QUEEN STREET EAST, TORONTO, thirteen years ago was attacked with Hay Fever. Never knew what it was to have any relief until she used Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure. If anyone troubled with Catarrh calls on Mrs. Cowle she will give her endorsation as to her cure.

DROPPED A NOTCH.

An Advance in Wheat at Chicago Was Quickly Followed by a Decline—The Latest Prices.

Wednesday Evening, Dec. 14.

Liverpool wheat futures to-day eased off ½d to ¾d per cental. Paris wheat closed at a decline of 10 to 20 centimes for the day, although flour was higher at the French capital. Chicago wheat futures, after advancing this morning, dropped back about ⅞c a bushel, and closed ⅝c to ⅝c below yesterday's final figures.

Straw steady; six loads sold at $6 to $7.50.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

East Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Cattle—The market was about in the same position as for the last few days. The total sale receipts were one load, which sold in bunches at a shade easier than on Monday. Calves were in moderate demand and lower. Choice to extra veals were quotable $6.50 to $6.75; good to choice, $6 to $6.50; heavy, fed steer calves, $4 to $4.50.

Sheep and Lambs—There was no improvement in the demand to-day, but the market continued dull and draggy, with 28 loads on sale, including 7 loads of Canada lambs. Native lambs, choice to extra, were quotable $5.15 to $5.25; good to choice, $4.90 to $5.15; common to fair, $4.75 to $5. Sheep were quite dull. Choice to extra were quotable $4 to $4.25; good to choice, $3.75 to $4; common to fair, $2.50 to $3.50.

Orillia's First Market.

Orillia, Dec. 15.

This town has erected a large building, with stalls for butchers, and sheds on either side, similar to those of the St. Lawrence Market, Toronto, only on a much smaller scale, the building being 100 feet long by 50 wide.

This building is in close proximity to the Town Hall, in which farmers are given a large space for selling poultry, butter and eggs. Weigh scales and cattle yards have also been provided for the stockmen.

The first market was held yesterday, and, considering the inclemency of the weather, and the bad state of the roads, many of which are impassible, it was a grand success. In live stock there were about 50 cattle, several sheep and hogs. There was also a large number of dressed hogs, turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens, as well as butter and eggs, all of which found a ready market. Good butchers' cattle sold at $3.50 per cwt.; medium, $3 and common $2.50; stock steers sold at $3, and heifers $2.25 per cwt.

Dressed hogs sold at $4.80 to $4.90 per cwt.; light hogs, $4.50 per cwt., but are not wanted at any price.

Poultry—Turkeys, 7c to 8c per lb.; geese, 5c to 6c; ducks, 40c to 50c, and chickens, 25c to 40c per pair.

British Markets.

Liverpool, Dec. 14.—(12.30.)—No. 1 Cal., no stock; red winter, 6s 1d; No. 1 Northern, spring, 6s; corn, 3s 0½d; peas, 5s 10d; pork, 50s; lard, 28s 3d; tallow, 20s 3d; bacon, heavy, l.c., 28s 0d; light, 27s 0d; short cut, 26s; cheese, white, 47s 6d; colored, 48s.

Liverpool—Close—Spot wheat steady, with No. 1 Northern at 6s 1d; red winter at 6s 1d; red winter futures 5s 9¾d for Dec., 5s 8¾d for March, and 5s 6¾d for May. Spot maize quiet, at 3s 9½d. Futures quiet at 3s 9¼d for Dec., and 3s 7½d for March. Flour, 19s.

PERSIAN CATS.

One Favored Feline That Had a Weakness For Asparagus.

If you happen to be the fortunate possessor of a handsome Persian cat, take my advice and allow its beauty to remain unadorned. Any sort of necklace, even a ribbon tie, is most detrimental to the luxuriant growth of its neck ruffle, in which, together with its bushy tail, the Persian pet's chief magnificence lies. Have you ever noticed how much more affectionate and doglike in nature are Persians and Angoras than the ordinary housetop and doorstep species? In many respects their habits and conduct diverge radically from the traditionally accepted cat nature. My own Persians—and I have possessed some beautiful specimens—scorned the fireside even in the coldest weather and would any day prefer a sheet of brown paper on which to coil themselves up to sleep. They were exclusively devoted to their mistress, whose footsteps they followed all over the house, and would sooner starve than partake of their meals in the precincts of the kitchen.

One—she was a beautiful smoke blue, very small, but of exuberant furriness—was the daintiest little beast conceivable. Food from the dining table was rarely to her taste, and her meals had nearly always to be specially ordered. She would not look at butcher's meat, she scorned salmon and would not touch milk. She demanded to be fed on pigeon, game, whitefish and asparagus. It was only her uncontrollable passion for asparagus that caused her on rare occasions to forget her usually perfect manners. Her scent was keen, and the moment it warned her of the approach of her beloved dish she would dash upon my shoulder, and if I did not at once accede to her piteous pleading would attempt to intercept the desired dainty on its way from the plate to my mouth by clawing it from my hand with her two front paws. So great was her greed in this respect that I could never induce her to leave even the hard stalks. She would swallow the whole stick!—London Outlook.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ruling rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

CURED OF PALPITATION OF THE HEART AND SMOTHERING SPELLS BY MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. D. E. Lasalle, Canal Street, Dunnville, Ont., whose husband keeps a jewellery store, and is one of the best known and most progressive citizens of Dunnville, Ont., gives the following description of her recent experience in the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills:

"I took Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for weak nerves, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, smothering spells at night and sleeplessness. Before I used them I could not get restful sleep, and my nerves were often so unstrung that I would start in alarm at the least noise, and easily worried.

"Last February I commenced taking this valuable medicine, and it proved the right remedy for my weak and shattered nervous system. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restored my nerves to a strong and healthy condition, gave regular and normal action of the heart.

"I sleep well now, and am better in every way, and I recommend them heartily to all who suffer as I did."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure Palpitation, Throbbing, Weak and Dizzy Spells, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Pale and Sallow Complexion, Female Troubles, and all diseases arising from disordered nerves, weak heart or watery blood. CHAPTER VI.

AURA DURAND.

Neil Bathurst was busily thinking, the while he arrayed himself for the evening that was to be an admixture of pleasure and business. But when he finally interrupted the flow of Arteveldt's small talk with a carelessly-spoken question, not even the keenest observer would have suspected him of having a care more important than the careful adjustment of his lavender tie.

"So you are really smitten with that little country girl?" he said, arranging the knot of the aforementioned tie with much apparent care. "Miss—what did you call her name?"

"Miss Armyn," enthusiastically. "Yes, Bath., I am smitten—and it may be as well that my engagement with you and old Durand keeps me from making an idiot of myself by rushing over to the North Side again to-night."

Bathurst laughed good-humouredly. "You omit to mention Miss Durand," he said. "You did not find her unforgiving, did you, when you called in the morning with your pretty excuse?"

"I did not find her at all," replied Arteveldt, with a grimace. "She sent down that blessed companion of hers, with an excuse for me—she was 'indisposed' to see me."

"Not well, eh?"

"Don't know whether she was well or not; she said she was indisposed, and begged to be excused."

Neil Bathurst brushed his coat in tranquil silence.

"I say, Bath.," broke out Arteveldt, after a moment's pause, "did you send around a man to look over the Durand premises?"

"Certainly; always keep my word about these things. So Miss Durand has a companion, eh? Is she pretty and young?"

Arteveldt shrugged his shoulders.

"She is young—and attractive; you couldn't exactly call her pretty."

"Oh! she makes up for lack of positive beauty by dash and style!"

"No; Miss Annin is a reserved girl—nothing dashing there; she certainly has good style, though." Then, with an impatient movement of the head, "Hang it, man, why have you not availed yourself of some of my invitations to come and be introduced to these girls. It's the deuce of a bore to be trying to tell a fellow how a girl looks."

"Especially when you are thinking about the 'looks' of another girl," laughed Bathurst. "Well, come along, Arteveldt, I am ready to go and inspect these two fair damsels on my own account. Are you sure that you have never mentioned my name, in connection with my business, to the young ladies?"

"Of course I am! Do you suppose I have forgotten the turn you did me in Boston, two years ago, or nearly that? I never blow, except when I am drunk, and not then unless the party is under my eyes; and I'm not likely to get drunk to-night."

"Nor ever, I should think, after your Boston experience," replied Bathurst, dryly.

"Well, I don't know about that; as Dick Swiveller would say, the 'Rosy' has many charms for fellows like me," replied the other, carelessly. "All ready, are you? Come along then, we shall be late at the Mansion as it is."

They hurried out of the building, sprang into a waiting hack, and drove rapidly away.

There was little affinity between the two young men, and their present intimacy was hardly of Neil Bathurst's seeking. Two years previous, while employed in shadowing a party of gamblers and confidence men, in the good city of Boston, the young detective had rescued Clarence Arteveldt from their clutches.

Arteveldt was visiting the "Hub" for the first time, and in seeing the sights had fallen in with a gang of villains; already they had fleeced him out of much money, and, having enticed him into one of the very worst quarters of the city, were about to complete their work by robbing him systematically of watch and jewels, of which he wore some valuable ones. They had made him blind and stupid with drugged liquor, and would have found him an easy victim. But suddenly Neil Bathurst came down upon them with a sufficient force to capture the entire gang, and rescue young Arteveldt. Bathurst took charge of the young man, his money and valuables, and, when at last the effects of the drugging had passed away, sent him home intact, and with some excellent advice—which, of course, the young spendthrift did not follow.

But while Clarence Arteveldt forgot the advice, he remembered the man; and when some months later, he encountered his benefactor in the streets of Chicago, he pounced upon him forthwith, dragged him home to the Arteveldt mansion, introduced him to his mother, and declared his resolution to be the young detective's "host and right bower" during his stay in the Lakeside city.

This arrangement, however, scarcely suited Neil Bathurst. He accepted the hospitality of the Arteveldts for a short time, because there seemed no alternative, but Clarence Arteveldt, the darling of the boudoir, was hardly a congenial companion for the young man who abhorred insipidity, and whose life had been too full of adventure and peril to enable him to enjoy the trifling amusements and safe excitements that made up the sum of existence for the young man of indolent habits and bounteous wealth.

So he broke away from the Arteveldt thraldom to the extent of establishing himself in a suite of bachelor apartments on Dearborn street, and kept quietly out of young Arteveldt's way whenever he had anything practical to employ his time.

Not that he was not fond of gaiety and the society of the fair sex. He loved both, provided they were of the right quality. But he found the one extreme of dinners en regle, in stately dining-rooms—where he invariably found himself slipping off from morocco-covered dining-room chairs, owing to the upholsterers' reckless disregard for the centre of gravity, or, later, tete-a-tetes with stately, much furbelowed damsels, in stiff back parlours, where the same slipping process was repeated, with only the variation of a smaller and still more provoking chair, with a satin, instead of a morocco surface—and the other extreme, of suppers, en passant, at questionable down-town restaurants, and the society of champaigne-drinking, slang-talking maidens of another class, were equally distasteful to him. The first he pronounced stupid, the last, vulgar.

It chanced that during the time of his stay beneath the Arteveldt roof, Miss Aura Durand had been absent from the city, and as he had invariably declined all invitations to make her acquaintance since, Neil Bathurst was inwardly wondering what sort of young lady Miss Durand would prove herself to be.

"That was a queer suspicion of mine," he thought, as they rolled toward the Durand dwelling, "if it was a suspicion—and yet, stranger notions than that have led to the discovery of greater crimes. If what I have heard from that scamp Fordham be true, the young lady is really fond of this young scapegrace beside me; in which case, she was, probably, in the sulks this morning; after a charming fashion women have, when they fancy themselves aggrieved." And so thinking, Neil Bathurst arrived, for the third time that day, at the door of James Durand's splendid home.

Meantime, the heiress of the Durand wealth was standing before a magnificent mirror in her beautiful dressing-room, surveying, with a satisfied countenance, her own reflected image. And this is what she saw.

A girl, small of stature, and apparently about twenty years of age. She was plump; cavillers might have called her a trifle too plump for her height, and yet, looking upon her rounded, baby-like shoulders, and the arms, so full and tapering, with the dimples in elbow and wrist, one could scarcely wish her embonpoint less.

The head, rising above a full, white throat, was covered with an abundance of blonde hair, that lighted up to pale gold under the glare of the gas-light; it was short above the white brow, falling in crinkling waves almo tsto the delicately-arched eyebrows, thus concealing the forehead, or nearly so, while the remainder was drawn carelessly back from the face, and dressed, low upon the neck, in braids and loose curls.

The eyes were strangely in contrast with the hair, being of intense darkness, the sort of eyes that, without really being black, are always called so; and justly too, when fringed by dark lashes, and shadowed by jetty brows. In the matter of brow and eyelash, Miss Durand's eyes were certainly defective, for the former were too thin, while the latter were likewise thin, and too short to be pretty, or to shadow the otherwise lovely eyes effectively. The nose was small and straight, the mouth rosy and smiling; but here again the caviller might have found fault—the tteth were white, even, and small, too small, for when the face was in repose the corners of the mouth had a compressed look, as if its fair owner were forcelbly keeping back a secret. The complexion can be best and easiest described by the stock phrase, "Lilies and roses," simply perfection; and as no mortal, whether male or female, had ever seen the lilies darken, or the roses cease to glow, it were unfair to suppose that their bloom was not the gift of nature.

This was Miss Aura Durand, as she stood before her mirror, arrayed in a becoming garment, composed of wonderful shades of green.

At first, one might have considered it strange that she should have so decided a taste for green of every shade—her dressing-room was hung with sea-green, her boudoir might have been the home of a Naiad, and her chamber, with its white canopied bed, had the appearance of a snowy tent in a shadowy forest; but when one considered how remarkably becoming was the colour to the mistress of all that green richness, they ceased to wonder, but never to admire.

"Your recreant knight, and his friend, have arrived, Miss Durand," said a mocking voice at her elbow, and turning, Aura met the cool gaze of Miss Annin.

"Plain black and scarlet fuchsias," exclaimed the heiress, glancing critically at her companion's toilet. "You certainly look well, Nina, but I don't see why you will affect such rigid simplicity, as the expense of your wardrobe does not affect your purse."

"Because I am no fool, Miss Durand," snapped the companion, ungraciously. "I don't choose to incur remark by dressing like an heiress—if I do finger the purse of one; my silk is as rich as yours, if it is plain, and I fancy I know what does and does not become me," with an approving glance at the scarlet fuchsias in her bodice.

Aura Durand turned away from the mirror tranquilly, seeming not to have noticed the disrespect in the tone of her companion.

"Dress is not to the point," continued Nina Annin, with less asperity. "Do you know who the friend is who is here with Clarence Arteveldt?"

"Certainly," flicking off an imaginary speck of dust with the daintiest of handkerchiefs. "It is Mr. Bathurst, who visited at the Arteveldts while I was in New York."

"Then you didn't happen to hear in New York who Mr. Bathurst is?" ironically.

"Who he is?"

"What he is, then."

"Bah!" cried Miss Durand, with a shrug of her pretty left shoulder. "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Then I'll enlighten you. Mr. Bathurst, the dear friend of Clarence Arteveldt, is a detective."

Aura Durand was standing at a dressing-table with her back to the girl who made this sudden announcement; for one moment she stood motionless and silent, then she turned swiftly to face her companion, with a scornful smile upon her lips.

"How dramatic you are," she said, coolly. "How do you know that he is a—a detective?"

"No matter! I do know it."

"Don't add mystery to your dramatic effort; it's unnecessary with me. How do you know?"

"Oh, I can tell you," said Miss Annin, flinging herself down upon an ottoman, and bending to examine the toe of her dainty boot. "I went into the drawing-room this morning to look for a letter I had dropped somewhere—and as the room was darkened I let in a little light to aid my search. As I stood at the window I saw Clarence come up the steps and behind him this detective Bathurst."

"Well?" impatiently.

"Well! I know him for a detective in this way. When I was playing at a certain theatre in New York, once upon a time, this identical man arrested one of our best ladies, took her off the stage in all her gauze and spangles, and when one of the ballet girls, struck by his handsome face, asked who he was, the manager said, 'That is one of the ablest detectives I ever heard of. I verily believe he would hunt down a shadow; he has never been known to fail.'"

Miss Annin paused, and looked to note the effect of her words. But Miss Durand's next remark was hardly what she had expected. "You should be careful where you drop your letters," she said, coolly. "And it must have been uncomfortable for that young woman to be taken to the lock-up in her stage clothes." Then, as if the idea had suddenly occurred to her, "You don't suppose he will know you?"

"Hardly; considerable difference in the appearance of Miss Annin, the companion, and 'La Florette,' in pink tights and a shower of spangles, not to mention a wig of the most impossible yellow."

"Then I don't see what all this fuss is about," said Aura, with a positive sneer. "By the way, why didn't you tell me this before?"

"Because I didn't see fit," retorted Nina Annin, rising to her feet. "Are you going down now?"

"Certainly. So this detective is handsome?"

"Very."

Aura Durand turned toward her mirror, once more gazed at the image reflected there, and then, as if satisfied with the view, turned about.

"Come," she said, "let us go down."

When they had reached the hall, she paused suddenly. "Wait a moment," she said, "I have forgotten something."

As she re-entered the dressing-room, Nina Annin glided after, and through the partially-closed door saw Aura take from her dressing-table a small vial, lift it to her lips, and then turn away.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

SANTA CLAUS

Surrenders to Gough Bros!

Carloads of Overcoats!
Carloads of Suits
Carloads of Hats
Carloads of Boots, etc.!
Carloads of Neckwear!
Carloads of Underwear!
Carloads of Furnishings!

You see our predicament! The inevitable must be faced. Heaps upon heaps of Christmas Boxes and New Year's gifts for every man woman and child right here—early in the winter, when merchants are looking for profits—we throw off all restraint, and Cut Our Prices Square in Two.

Gough Bros. Lease of the OAK HALL STORE expires in January—we've got to dispose of the stock by that time. It's easier to move in segments than by cartloads. Will you help us? With the alternative of moving or selling the stock staring us in the face, we do the daring act of SPLITTING THE FIGURES IN TWO. We go further, we throw into the Sacrifice the combined stocks of our other TWO BIG STORES on George Street. We must unload—all the Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Neckwear and Underwear—the pyramids of Holiday Gifts—and give you pick and choice on same terms as our Oak Hall Stock. Come with great expectations and they will be more than realized.

GOUGH BROS'

Combined Lease - Expiring and Unloading Sale.

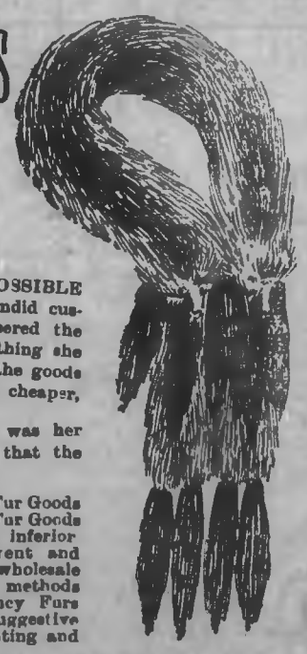
Crowning Xmas Chances

In High-Class

FURS.



Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

Fur Collarettes $5.00 to $50.00.
Fur Muffs $1.00 to $15.00.
Fur Ruffs $1.25 to $20.00.

MANUFACTURING FURRIERS.

Peterborough. Toronto.

RUSSELL ROLLER HAS THE CALL.

but that the Auburn Company was only charging him pro rata for what he used. Mr. Denne was the last man who should have brought this up.

Mr. Denne replied that his rate had not been low because he was in the council, as he had used the the power long before he entered municipal affairs. The rates of all consumers were being raised.

Mr. Dawson again asked the mayor if he intended to sign the bylaw, stating that during his ten years in the council he had never seen a mayor refuse to sign a bylaw which was supported by two-thirds of the council. If the mayor would not sign the bylaw he could not continue to sit with him at the council, as if a majority did not rule their votes were of no use. Messrs. Dawson, Meldrum, Hamilton and Cobb then left the council chamber.

The appended financial statement was then submitted by Mr. Denne, chairman of the Finance Committee:

A. L. DAVIS, Mayor. F. BROWNSCOMBE, Treasurer.

Mr. Denne pointed out that the town had in reality about $3,000 to its credit, as the stone crusher represented an asset of $1,000, crushed stone, $1,500; roller expenses to be repaid, $118, and suits had been purchased for the firemen and police. The amount of $757.48 had been saved in the interest account through the fact of the taxes having been paid earlier.

On motion of Messrs. W. H. White and H. Best, A. Eagleson was granted a carter's license free of charge.

The council then adjourned.

MRS. SMITH—"How early you are out, I'm not nearly through my work yet."

MRS. JONES—"Indeed I am not suprised, for when I used to buy my Raisins and Currants from the corner grocery I did not get out once a week but now since HENRY & CO. have their Electric Fruit Cleaner working, I go up town and buy all my groceries from them, and now have half of my day for pleasure. Take my advice and go there for your groceries, and quit making adomestic slave of yourself

DEAR LADY — As the Christmas Season approaches we are again reminded tha the tedious task of Cleaning the Currants and Raisins awaits you. To all of you we say we have a machine that Takes Off the Stems and Takes Out the Dirt and makes them nice and clean and Fit for Use.

If you are buying Fruit that is not Cleaned You Are Behind the Times. Do not buy Fruit Cleaned by some Wholesale House three months ago.

Buy Fruit Cleaned on the premises every day, by the Latest Process, electric power.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

PROOFS ARE PLENTY.

Price our Holiday Dry Goods.
Price our Holiday Millinery.
Price our Holiday Mantles.
Price our Holiday Mantle Cloth
Price our Holiday Blankets,
Price our Holiday Flannels.
Price our Holiday Underwear.
Price our Holiday Hosiery, &c.

Many suggestions here for useful Christmas Gifts. See our Holiday Decorated Show Windows.

We'd Rather Miss Sales Than Miss Fits

If You Knew..

How many fashionable people get their clothes made here, you would be astonished. Lots of the best dressed men you meet, are credited with buying their best suits in Toronto, when the truth is, we were the Tailors.

We ask you to think of us when you are ready to be measured for a Winter Suit or Overcoat. Whatever can be done elsewhere you may depend can be done here. Pete's right hand is as dexterous and cunning as ever.

No "just as good as" business with us. We're here to suit you—not to dictate. Our advice—if you want it—costs you nothing.

Rhapsody Must Not Take the Place of Calculation.

WHEN NOT TO PROCLAIM WAR.

Lord Salisbury's Latest Remarks on Foreign Affairs—Value of a Foreign Relations Committee—The Conduct of a Foreign Policy—How a Government Should Be Judged—Cable News.

London, Dec. 17.—The Marquis of Salisbury, the Premier, at a banquet given last evening in his honor at the Constitutional Club, devoted his speech, in reply to a toast to his health, to home affairs and to the foreign principles for the conduct of foreign policy, without direct reference to any particular question.

Dwelling upon the necessity for discussion, Lord Salisbury said it would be a relief if he could discuss and explain certain masters that had been and were being grotesquely misrepresented, but this he could not do without betraying his duty.

"The Government," he continued, "should be judged, not on individual items, but on the success of a policy as a whole If a Minister goes to war on a trivial matter he may find himself without the support of the people. This should be considered when people ask why we have not pushed to the point of war some secondary difference. Before condemning us for not going to war, they should be sure there are no other complications in view, compelling us to economize the force at the Government's disposal.

"This is a matter of business-like calculation. The more the Empire extends, the more necessary to judge matters from this standpoint. It is dangerous to let rhapsody take the place of calculation.

"Our strength must be used unfailingly, but prudently."

Referring to the "difficulty of taking the people into a Government's confidence in matters of foreign policy," he said: "I have often felt the want of such an institution as the United States foreign relations committee. It is impossible here, but it must be a great advantage for a Minister to be able to meet persons not of his own political opinion and to explain to them the reasons for his action."

VIENNA'S VITRIOL FIEND.

The Latest Species of Criminal the Old World Has Developed.

Vienna, Dec. 17.—A vitriol thrower is the latest species of criminal in this city. The miscreant hides behind doorways in dark streets and selects the best dressed ladies and gentlemen on their way to the theatres as his victims.

The police have received numerous complaints of dresses ruined by the destructive acid so thrown. Herr Muhlberger, a Government official, reported last night that a man suddenly jumped from a doorway in front of himself and daughter and threw vitriol from a large bottle all over them, ruining his daughter's dress and severely burning her face and hands. Another complainant was Frau Amalia Sieger, the wife of a prominent business man.

HARCOURT'S RESIGNATION.

Resolution of Regret Passed by the National Liberal Federation.

Birmingham, Eng., Dec. 17.—At the meeting yesterday of the National Liberal Federation Mr. Spence Watson moved a resolution expressing deep regret at Sir William Vernon Harcourt's resignation of the leadership of the Liberal party, tendering heartfelt thanks for his brilliant services and expressing pleasure at the fact that he will continue to devote his pre-eminent powers to the cause of Liberalism.

An amendment, asking Sir William to reconsider his decision, was defeated, and Mr. Spence Watson's resolution was adopted almost unanimously.

A motion to consider the leadership of the Liberal party was withdrawn.

MENELIK FAVORS ITALY.

He Grants Humbert a Concession on the Frontier and Britain Agrees.

Rome, Dec. 17.—Admiral Canevaro, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, admitted in the House of Deputies yesterday that King Menelik had agreed to the frontier Italy demanded on condition that if the hinterland be abandoned it shall be included in Abyssinia. The agreement has the assent of England.

Rebellion Is Getting Serious.

Cairo, Dec. 17.—The native rebellion against the Turks in Yemen, a chief division of Arabia, is becoming formidable. Thirty thousand Turkish troops have been mobilized in the district.

Mahdi Dinin, the insurgent chief, is said to resemble the Mahdi, the Mohammedan warrior-prophet, in religious fanaticism, and rules his followers despotically.

It was a similar outbreak 15 years ago, under the Mahdi, that swept the Soudan and ended in the massacre of Gordon at Khartoum. Aden, the chief town of Yemen, is English.

A Word of Advice.

Madrid, Dec. 17.—A semi-official note issued yesterday says: "As the American Senate must ratify the treaty of peace, our Government should wait for this ratification and not hasten to cede territory which the United States Senate may not accept."

Niger Ratification Postponed.

Paris, Dec. 17.—An official note issued by the Foreign Office states that the ratification of the Niger convention between England and France has been postponed for six months from Dec. 8.

Are These Julius Caesar's Ashes?

Rome, Dec. 17.—Ashes, supposed to be those of Julius Caesar, were unearthed yesterday in the columns of the Roman Forum. The column marked the spot where Caesar's body was cremated.

The Irresistible Launched.

London, Dec. 17.—The first-class battleship Irresistible was successfully launched from the dockyards at Chatham yesterday. She was named by Princess Christian. The launching cradle weighed 300 tons. Seven tons of Russian tallow and soft soap, besides a large quantity of train oil were used in lubricating the ways.

SIR SANDFORD FLEMING'S IDEA.

Wants State-Owned Cables Connecting All British Possessions.

London, Dec. 17.—The morning newspapers print a letter addressed to the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, by Sir Sandford Fleming, chancellor of Queen's University, Canada, and a leading expert in telegraph communication and the unification of time reckoning throughout the world, advocating the adoption of a system of state-owned cables connecting every British possession, and all Great Britain's naval coaling stations.

Sir Sandford Fleming proposes three sections of cables, in the Pacific, Indian and Atlantic Oceans, and estimates their cost at £6,000,000. The first step he suggests is a state owned Pacific cable. He contends that if his proposals were carried out, the cost of cabling would be enormously cheapened.

Town Named Sirdar.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 17.—In honor of General Lord Kitchener, the C.P.R. Company has changed the name of the new town at the eighth siding on the Crow's Nest Road from Creston to Sirdar.

Charles Brouard, the French journalist who is walking to the Klondike from Paris, has arrived here and will go north.

THE LATE GEORGE PATON.

The Funeral Took Place Yesterday Afternoon to the Grand Trunk Station.

A large number of friends assembled at the home of the late George Paton yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when services were conducted prior to taking the remains via Grand Trunk to Sarnia.

Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's, of which church he was a highly esteemed member, took charge of the service. The selections sung were favourites of the deceased, such as "The Lord is my Shepherd," "Nearer my God to Thee," and "Abide with Me." Rev. Dr. Torrance read the Scripture lesson and spoke in high terms of the life of his departed friend. Rev. Mr. Potter paid a warm tribute to the friendship that had existed between them, and the high esteem in which Mr. Paton was held in the whole community, and especially in the home and in his church. Reference was made to the profound sorrow for the widow in the bereavement of a son and husband within a few days of each other, and the pastor committed the bereaved wife and family to the mercies, kindness and comforts of God.

The funeral then proceeded to the Grand Trunk station from which place at 5.30 Mr. Harry Paton and Mr. Hitchon (G.T.R.) accompanied the remains to Point Edward, the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Paton, and where many friends and relatives will assemble. Rev. Dr. Thompson of Sarnia took charge of the obsequies this afternoon.

The floral tributes were exquisite. The Grand Trunk employees, W. C. T. U., Mr. Hitchon and the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church sent beautiful wreaths, besides these a large number of choice flowers from many friends.

The pall-bearers herr were Messrs. Jas. Garrow, Alex. Campbell, Thos Richardson, Wm. Fowler, Alex. Stewart and John Mathieson.

GOOD TEMPLARS' CONCERT.

Held at the Fourth Line of Smith Thursday Evening.

A highly successful concert was held in the Orange Hall, Fourth Line, Smith, on Thursday evening last, under the auspices of Union Lodge No. 51, I.O.G.T. The hall was filled to the doors, and several hours were well spent in listening to an excellent programme. Several sleigh loads came from town, Bridgenorth and Mount Pleasant to attend the concert, which must reflect great credit upon the members of Union Lodge, under whose management the entertainment was prepared.

Mr. G. W. Powell, of town, ably filled the position of chairman in his usual satisfactory manner.

The different numbers on the programme were well rendered. Several interesting dialogues were presented and they were received with applause.

The following was the programme:

Well Made and Makes Well

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists of today, who have brought to the production of this great medicine the best results of medical research. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a modern medicine, containing just those vegetable ingredients which were seemingly intended by Nature herself for the alleviation of human ills. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach and digestive organs and creates an appetite; it absolutely cures all scrofula eruptions, boils, pimples, sores, salt rheum, and every form of skin disease; cures liver complaint, kidney troubles, strengthens and builds up the nervous system. It entirely overcomes that tired feeling, giving strength and energy in place of weakness and languor. It wards off malaria, typhoid fever, and by purifying the blood it keeps the whole system healthy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5.

Stand by the Town.

The value of the campaign that has been carried on by the local press against the commercial robbery represented by out-of-town shopping has been conclusively demonstrated. There has been a decided decrease in the evil written down for the past two or three months in their columns.

This result can not, consistently with the modesty characteristic of the newspaper fraternity, be alone ascribed to the eloquence of the articles written. They had the effect mentioned because they embodied great economical truths; because they called public attention, and the attention of offenders, to the commercial crimes they were committing. They brought home to those guilty of spending out of the town the money that rightfully and properly belonged to the town, because it was made here, their guilt in so doing. Because they demonstrated that the prosperity of the town depended upon the mutual co-operation of every one, however humble. They had an effect, because it was shown by the citation of numerous authentic and actual instances that the people who went to the city for bargains were like those who, in the language of Cervantes, "go out for wool and come home shorn"—because they showed with undeniable conclusiveness that article for article the town stores provided as good goods and at as reasonable prices as the city stores; that their stocks were as complete and well assorted as the city stores; that town merchants were your neighbours and had a claim upon you, and that seeing you every day it was not their interest to over-reach you, a temptation that confronts the city merchants who, in their anxiety to grab trade, make it a point to sell regardless of consequences, for they were not likely to see the purchaser again.

Did you ever think what a dollar may do? You get it from a fellow citizen in the course of business; you spend it in purchasing some article from a local merchant; he uses it to buy some other article or meet some obligation; it goes through a dozen hands till it returns to you again having passed through a score of channels, contributing, in proportion to its size, to so much prosperity for those concerned. If the dollar mentioned had been spent by you in the city for a bargain of doubtful value, the good it did to the town would have be lost forever. The same is true of many dollars with a similar history. Every dollar you spend in town conduces to the commercial prosperity of the town, and thousands of citizens spending thousands of dollars contribute in a far greater degree to the prosperity of the town and its upbuilding.

Did you ever think that all your neighbours had as good a right to spend money in the city as yourself, and did you ever think how rapidly and certainly the town would go to everlasting smash if all, or a large proportion, of our citizens were as disloyal to its interests as you would be if you spent your money out of town?

The blessed season of Christmas is at hand and never before in the life of the town have our local merchants made more elaborate or successful preparation for it. Every shop window is gorgeous with magnificent displays of holiday goods, that represent the best markets and the best productive skill of the industrial world. Every possible want that the gift-giving season can demand, has been met. There is no article (with exceedingly rare exceptions) that cannot be furnished as good and as cheaply (and as a rule more so) here as in any city of the Dominion. They have all been purchased by as shrewd buyers with as good money as the stock of the city merchants and in the same markets. Now if you want to buy any kind of a Christmas present, you have no excuse except the promptings of original sin and "pure cussedness" to go to the city. You can get what you want at home, and you should buy it here, where you have, by the help of these same merchants, made the money you have to spend. If ever you patronized home merchants, and thus fulfilled the golden rule, you should do it in your Christmas buying. The very season commemorates the coming to the world of Him, who destroyed the cruel reign of self and inaugurated the brotherhood of man, who made it a duty to do unto others as you would have others do unto you. If your means are limited, you confine your gift giving to your family circle or circle of close friends. You should carry out the same principles in your relations with the civic family, circle, represented by your fellow-citizens in business, and do your Christmas buying in town—make a gift of the profit to your civic brother instead of giving it to the Gentile—the stranger in the city.

Take ten minutes and think the subject over, it won't need any longer consideration to convince you that it is the honest thing, the honest thing and the fair thing, the paying thing, to STAND BY THE TOWN.

WHERE IS THE LIBERAL REACTION?

The Montreal Gazette tries to found an evidence of reaction against the Liberal Government on the result of the election in East Prince, Prince Edward Island, where, with a new and untried candidate, the Liberal majority was reduced a few votes in the bye-election of Wednesday last. Let us look a little farther. The Gazette ignores the Conservative debacle in Bagot, Quebec, and it is necessary to remind it and these Conservative leaders that gave the Liberal Government a very short lease of life, that ever since the huge reaction against Conservatives in the general election of 1896, there has been a continuously growing electoral antipathy to Conservative statesmen and methods. There have been, as the Montreal Herald shows, thirty-one bye-elections for the Federal Parliament since the 23rd of June, 1896. Eleven of the seats thus opened were held by Conservatives. Now only two are so held—nine have swung into the Liberal line—a change of eighteen on a division in the House of Commons. Here is the roll of victory, those constituencies which are printed in capital letters having been captured from Conservatives:

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 13—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

First Symptoms of Heart Disease often appear at the head and feet—parts farthest from the heart.

The heart pumps less strongly—possibly pressed upon by an enlarged stomach—then sluggish blood swells the veins, inflames the feet, liver, kidneys or other parts where their are many veins. Various diseases so arise.

The reasonable cure is provided in Howard's Heart Relief. It removes the cause. It never fails to help—will cure where cure is possible. So says Mrs. Henry Woltz, Hartford, Ont.; so say a multitude from Vancouver to Halifax who have been cured in the last three months.

All Doubts Vanish When Paine's Celery Compound is Used.

Its Wondrous Work Commands the Admiration of all.

It only requires the fair and honest use of one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound to convince a suffering man or woman that there is virtue, power and life in each drop of this wondrous medicine. This assertion is supported by the fact that thousands of men and women in Canada who can well afford to call in the best medical aid in times of sickness, are now using Paine's Celery Compound in preference to all other medical prescriptions.

Some people who have never tested the health-giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, wrongly class it with the common patent medicines, sarsaparillas, nervines and purifiers so extensively advertised. Paine's Celery Compound is far removed from any of these ordinary preparations; it is as much superior to all other medicines as the diamond is superior to cheap glass.

Paine's Celery Compound is the marvellous prescription of one of the greatest physicians that ever lived, and has won the hearty endorsation of the noblest medical men of the age. Its merits and its continued victories over disease have carried it to enduring fame. It has given new life to those almost dying from liver and kidney troubles; it has raised up the rheumatic, neuralgic and dyspeptic, and purified the blood of those tortured by blood diseases.

If you are sick and ailing and cannot enjoy life, try one bottle of of Paine's Celery Compound.

FROZEN WHILE ASLEEP.

Charles Renaud, After Drinking to Excess, Lay Down on a Gentleman's Lawn and Died.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—Yesterday morning about 6 o'clock members of the household of Mr. R. H. Klock, the wealthy lumberman of Aylmer, found on the lawn the body of a man who had frozen to death. The body was found to be that of Charles Renaud, a resident of Aylmer, about 40 years of age. He leaves a widow and two children. Renaud had apparently been on his way home, when he strolled on to the lawn and lay down, after removing his coat and boots.

The coroner was notified and an inquest was held in the afternoon. The evidence showed that the man had died from exposure after excessive drinking, and the jury returned a verdict accordingly.

CONVICTED THE ENGINEER.

Daniel W. Getchel Found Guilty of Manslaughter for Causing Death in a Railway Collision.

Dedham, Mass., Dec. 17.—Daniel W. Getchel, an engineer on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who was indicted for manslaughter for causing the death of Franklin M. Waters in a rear-end collision at Sharon last August, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in the District Court last evening. The case will go to the Supreme Court on exceptions.

AN INGERSOLL CASE.

How Mr. Francis Stewart Baffled a Relentless Enemy.

Stricken by Kidney Disease—He Had Treatment From the Most Skilful Doctors—All Failed to Help Him—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Ingersoll, Dec. 16.—Some time ago Mr. Francis Stewart, one of the well-to-do tailors of this town, had the misfortune to fall, and injure his kidneys severely.

Soon after the accident symptoms of Kidney Disease made their appearance, and Mr. Stewart at once placed himself under the care of a competent physician.

Time passed; the medical men were constant in attendance, and unremitting in their care. But no benefit resulted. On the contrary Mr. Stewart's condition grew steadily worse. The symtoms became more and more pronounced, and the patient's sufferings were, at last, almost unbearable.

About this time he bought a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and began using them, taking no more of the doctor's medicine, which had proved so useless.

Mr. Stewart tells the result of his action in the following words: "I had taken only a few doses of Dodd's Kidney Pills when I began to feel better. My urine grew more natural in colour and became normal in quantity.

"I persevered in the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills and to-day I am sound and well—have not an ache or a pain, although the doctors had utterly failed to relieve me."

This is a fair example of the wonderful cures that Dodd's Kidney Pills have been making in this district during the past few years.

It is an absolute fact that Kidney Disease of every type, from Bright's Disease, Diabetes and Rheumatism to Female Complaints have been almost entirely banished from this section by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by the Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PROTECTION AND PROPAGATION OF FISH.

The following letters from Mr. D W. Dumble, appears in the Mail and Empire, To the Editor of the Mail and Empire:

SIR.—The depletion of our small lakes of fish is a fact which has been forced to the notice of all who are familiar with our waters. The Muskoka Lake Association recently memorialized the Ontario Government, praying for such remedial measures as would restore again to the lakes the splendid fishing of early days. The Fish and Game Protection Society of Central Ontario sent in petitions to the Dominion Government in reference to the small lakes of Peterborough and Victoria counties, seeking a like remedy. The fact is patent, our lakes are being rapidly depleted of maskinonge and bass. A valuable food supply and a great source of pleasure is being lost to us.

In New York State there are hatcheries where most interesting experiments in fish culture are being carried on. The propagation of bass has not been carried on, the State Commissioner alleging that the fish are so prolific that if suitable regulations are made they will themselves keep up the supply; and further, the habits of the bass are peculiar, the mother fish staying with and protecting her young as a hen does her chickens, sometimes in their defence offering her own life. They are such good mothers that if they get a fair chance no artifical propagation will be needed. A simple way of introducing them to new waters is to catch them through the ice in winter, place them on the ice to freeze, then bag and drive to the lake to be stocked, drop them through the ice and the job is done. They should be put in as quickly as possible and handled carefully. As to maskinonge there are many difficulties in propagating, but they are being overcome, and millions of young fry are being put into the St. Lawrence and other waters by the Americans.

Now, it is found useless to attempt to fill the waters with the fish if the waters are unsuitable, or if they do not contain the quantity and kinds of weeds which supply to the fish their natural food. By raising and lowering of waters by dams, the young fish hatched on flooded land are left there on the failing of the waters to perish: this is very destructive, for the fish are spawned in the shallow waters.

It is complained that the Americans who come to our waters are inveterate fishermen—that they hire men familiar with the waters to row them from morning to night, while they, seated in an arm chair at the back of the skiff, fish and count, irrespective of size, then pack them on ice and ship to their homes. This complaint is well founded; they are very greedy and unsportsmanlike fishermen, yet they spend considerable money with us, and are generally such pleasant fellows that the Canadians welcome them. After all their shipments are largely ice, and the total catch is inconsiderable.

The great mischief is in our own people catching at seasons when the fish should not be caught. There is a class of people who make a trade of fishing through the ice, and in the early spring. They net the fish, they snare them, and by other illegal methods catch them, and dispose of them to dealers, who ship them to Buffalo, Cleveland and other American [illegible] by the ton; yes, by tens of tons. The [illegible] of the Dominion Government [illegible] to this, but no action has been [illegible] owing to the uncertainty of rights as between the Local and Dominion Governments. Our small lakes are delightful summer resorts, and one of their greatest charms has been in the sport and food supply. Now, if we would have them retain their charm, we must keep the fish abundant. There should be no export trade in fish from these lakes, not a pound should be sent out of the country in trade. Let men fish and eat here, but stop the sale to the Americans, and stop the early spring fishing, which is so disastrous. Then change the regulations and forbid all fishing between the first of January and the fifteenth of June, and this will speedily restock our waters.

This fish question is an economic one, and one of no small importance; to neglect it is culpable. There are a number of fishery inspectors drawing Government money but what use are their efforts to stop illegal fishing if the regulations encourage wholesale destruction? The Local Government now has the matter in its own control; let us hope there will be an intelligent effort to formulate laws and regulations such as an intelligent knowledge of the conditions call for. Let us make and keep our country the happiest and the best land under the sun, affording such sport and pleasure at home that our wealthy people will not want to go away to spend their money among strangers, and where our poorer people can find at their doors such conditions as will give them what in other lands money cannot buy.

Yours, etc.,

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says:—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to baffle the skilful medical attendant."

Christmas Temptations!

Doubts About a Suitable Present Can Best be Settled by Buying Now What Every Person Wants—

WARM FURS

—Collarettes, Ruffs, Muffs, Gauntlets, Caps, Jackets, etc.—To make Christmas time a merry and happy one, your Gifts should be such as will be permanently appreciated—gifts whose quality and workmanship are the best—exactly as represented—what then can be more appreciated? What more comfort-giving? What more elegant or useful than Furs?

FINE FURS are acceptable to all—and from us you can buy them "direct from factory at factory prices." Our whole immense stock of Furs from now to end of Holidays at re ductions on former prices that cannot but be helpful to the hosts of persons looking for suitable Holiday Gifts at not too high figures.

$ 2.00 Wallaby Ruffs for	$ 2.25
4.00 Grey Lamb Ruffs for	3.00
12.00 Sable Ruffs for	10.00
10.00 Sable Ruffs for	8.00
8.00 Sable Ruffs for	7.00
7.50 Sable Ruffs for	6.00
6.00 Sable Ruffs for	5.00

And so on throughout our stock of Scarfs of Grey Lamb, Mink, Opossum, Beaver, Persian Lamb, etc.

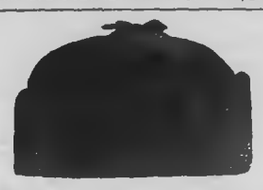
FUR GAUNTLETS.

Our stock of Fur Gauntlets for Ladies' and Gentlemen is very complete and prices are lower than the lowest; for instance:—

Electric Seal sold for $5.00, now.... $4.00
Greenland Seal, worth $4.50, for.... 3.00
Belgium Coney, also for..... 3.00
Persian Lamb at $5 00 $6.00 $7.00 and 8.00

In every case former values marked them at $1.00 to $1.50 more. So on through the large stock of Gauntlets consisting of Seal, Mink, Grey Lamb, Otter, Beaver, etc.

Imitation Fur Gauntlets for Children, Ladies' and Gentlemen from 75c to $1.50.



Persian Lamb Wedge Caps at reductions of $1 00 to $2 00 on each and every one.

$ 7 00 Caps for	$ 5 00
7 50 Caps for	6.00
9 00 Caps for	8.00
10.00 Caps for	8 50

Space does not permit us to give quotations on assortments of Beaver, Seal, Grey Lamb, Beaver Opossum, Electric Seal, Otter and Nutria, but on all will be found reductions in keeping with the generous spirit of the Xmas times.

FUR ROBES.

Fur Robes of Grey Goat, Black Dyed Goat, Grizzly Mountain Bear, Black Mountain Bear, Musk Ox Buffalo, Matassina Buffalo, Yak, etc. Well lined and well trimmed. Home sewn and guaranteed, at prices ranging from $5.00 to $50.00.

A very complete stock at very low prices Being home-made we get them at actual first cost of production, no middle-mans profits to pay.

MEN'S COON COATS

A very large and select stock to pick from prices range from $15 00 to $60 00, a fine a stock is not to be found in Montreal and Toronto, and on prices we defy better values. Our Fur Coats from the cheapest to the most expensive are all home-made and well made, every-one bears our personal guarantee as to quality and workmanship, and if found otherwise we make them right and at no cost to the purchaser. As broad a guarantee as this is seldom given by any firm and we would not, if we were not positive of our qualites in these goods.

Our stock of Men's Coats consists of Wombat, Matassina, Buffalo, Wallaby, Dog, Corsican Lamb, Goat, etc. We quote from $10.00 to $35.00 on these goods.

Muffs are selling more freely this year than formally, and we are consequently well provided. Our cheapest Muffs are $1 00. Real choice ones can be bought of Electric Seal, Coney, Squirrel Goat, Sable, Opossum, Astrachan and Coon from $2 00 to $5 00 each. Sables, Persian Lambs, Seals, Minks, and Bear Muffs are of course higher priced, but $7.00 to $10.00 buys choice ones—now that reductions have been made on our complete line.

In Astrachan Jackets, Coon Jackets, Wallaby Jackets, Bocharen Lamb Jackets, Electric Seal Jackets, the surprising price reductions will be found more marked, as they can be more fully appreciated by the ordinary buyer than in the smaller articles of Fur wear. For instance, $15.00 will buy a very nice Jacket of Astrachan, of course not the asbest— they cost from $25.00 to $30 00 according to size and lengths—but a Jacket that is easily worth $20.00, The same generous reductions mark the whole stock of Ladies' Fur Jackets. We would especially mention Australian Coon Jackets at $30 00; they are extra nice and extra good wearing.

Our fur cutters give the most complete satisfaction in fit, finish and style. Ask our many patrons as to these facts.

Select Sealskin Jackets—Real Alaskas of the famous London dye—for 22 in. to 30 in. long, at from $140 to $200 each.

Bright Curled Persians, German dyed, the finest in the world, in Jackets 22 in. to 30 in. long, from $75.00 to $125 each.

FUR-LINED CLOAKS

22 in. to 30 in. long in Blacks, Brown, Blues, Green and Scarlet covers, Hampster, Muskrat, Squirrel and Kalonga linings, trimmings and large collars of Sable, Thibet Lamb, Japanese Fox and Opossum, prices from $15.00 to $50 00 A specially nice Black Fur-lined Cloak is offered at $18.00, with choice Collar of Black Opossum and heavy trimming down front and around skirt of same, lined throughout with best Kalonga, length 30 inches.

These are only some of the many moderate priced Fur articles that we make—and you are not limited to the spending of large amounts only—as there are many comfortable little pieces, stylishly made at prices starting down as low as $1.25 for a little comfortable Neck Ruff—and a real handsome Collarette for $5.00. Men's Buckskin, Mocha, Antilope, Dog and Kid Gloves and Mitts, fur lined and wool lined—all new stock—at from 50 cents to $3.50 pair. Xmas comes but once a year—and the Bargains to make merry with are here.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. J. W. White returned on Monday from Toronto, where he has been attending the School of Pharmacy in that city. He resumes his studies again on the 3rd of January.

Mr. S. H. Kirkpatrick and O. Gallagher, spent Sunday in Campbellford.

Master Jim Freeman on Sunday last had quite a thrilling experience. He hired a horse at McGregor Bros. livery stable and drove to Havelock. While there he was attracted by the charming smiles of two young lassies whom he easily succeeded in getting to ride with him. The result was a clean running away with his mental faculties. The horse also took fright and ran away, breaking several cutters in its wild career.

Mr. E. P. Cuffe was in Havelock on Sunday.

The Norwood skating and curling rink is being put in shape and will be ready week..

Quarterly communion service was held in the Presbyterian church on last Sunday morning.

Mr. James Harvey has set up his chopping mill in the building opposite Mr. P. Metcalf's grocery store.

The supplementary meeting of the East Peterborough Farmer's Institute will be held in Norwood on the 19th of January, and will be addressed by Messrs. A. C. Hallman, of New Dundee, and J. E. Orr, of Fruitland. Mr. Hallman, is a farmer of large experience in dairying, cattle breeding and swine raising.

Mr. Orr will give information on all the branches of horticulture. He is an extensive fruit grower.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Stewart last week attended the wedding of Mr. Stewart's brother and Miss Booth, sister of Mrs. Stewart, at Big Springs, Ont.

Miss Clysdale of Sarnia, is visiting her uncle, W. H. Brethen.

Auctioneer Fraser next Saturday will sell by public auction the house and lot on Belmont street, belonging to the estate of the late Thos. McFadden.

Last Wednesday the Norwood creamery made the second shipment of butter. The price realized was 18½c per pound. The total weight of the consignment was about half a ton, and was put up in packages of 56 pounds each.

The closing exercises of the Model School were held in the town hall on Friday evening last. Though a very good programme was prepared it was not as well patronized as in former years.

God Save the Queen.

The address read by the valedictorian is one of the best ever yet given.

Mr. Wm. Flemming has bought out the boot and shoe business of Mr. Wm. Hutchison.

The High School football team have wound up their business for the fall season and are highly satisfied with the showing they made. They played five matches, winning four and tieing in the fifth They altogether scored 15 goals to their opponents two. Next year they expect to place even a better team on the field.

The Sunday school scholars of the Methodist church are practising daily for their Christmas entertainment.

Mr. Harrison's new electric light system is nearing completion and he expects to have it running by Saturday.

Geo. J. Sherry and W. A. F. Campbell are attending County Court in Peterborough this week.

The children of the Presbyterian Sunday school are practicing the cantata, "Santa Claus Junior" for their Christmas entertainment.

The Norwood Hockey club will have a team in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. this season. The High School club has entered one in the junior. The boys expect to begin practicing this week. The rink this year is to be boarded up on the sides and lighted better than formerly, which will make it much better for the spectators as well as the players.

The merchants are opening up their Christmas goods and are already doing a lively holiday trade.

Dr. Hall was in Hastings Tuesday on business.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcly remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50 cents and $1.00 at any Drug Store; every bottle guaranteed.

MAKING A TREATY

Slow Work at Washington, But It Is Being Done.

Washington, Dec. 16.—It is likely that at to-day's session the commissioners will take a recess, beginning early next week, for the Christmas holidays. The commissioners continue to be absolutely reticent as to the progress of the negotiations, but there is an impression in the air at Washington that an understanding is slowly being reached which may eventually take the form of an honorable and mutually satisfactory settlement of all the pending circulating questions between the two countries. The Canadian people do not appreciate the difficulties of all diplomatic negotiations in this country, from the fact that there is an absolute separation of the executive and legislative powers of the Government under the American constitution, the result being that the American commissioners never feel themselves to be resting on absolutely safe grounds.

Committee Will Meet Hays.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—To-day General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk will have an interview with the telegraphers' committee at 3 o'clock.

The report that the Elder-Dempster Company had bought the Beaver Line boats and would run a passenger service is not confirmed.

With reference to the sentence of Cordelia Viau yesterday, it may be said that the last woman hanged in Montreal was in 1857.

Six Persons Were Killed.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 16.—A passenger train on the Florida Central & Peninsular Railroad was wrecked last evening near Madison by a collision with cattle on the track. Six persons were killed.

JAMES SMITH IS TOTALLY BLIND.

Pleaded Guilty of Horse Stealing—Asked to Be Sent to the Hospital.

Galt, Dec. 16.—James Smith was brought here from Mono Mills by Chief of Police Ahern to be tried on the charge of stealing a horse and buggy from Liveryman A. J. Cardy of this town on Nov. 8 last. His trial took place yesterday before Magistrate Turnbull. The prisoner pleaded guilty and asked to be sent to a hospital that his eyes could be treated to see if his sight might again be restored to him. Smith is totally blind from the effects of the bullet which was sent into his head in the recent affray at Mono Mills. The prisoner will be sentenced this morning at 10 o'clock.

North Waterloo Again.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Reasons for appeal in the North Waterloo election case, in which Dr. Lackner asks to have the judgment unseating him to be set aside, have been filed. It is claimed that the drinking done was but the customary social glass. The appeal will be heard during the second week of January.

Complete Reciprocity.

Washington, Dec. 16.—The National Board of Trade adopted a resolution to the effect that the commercial prosperity of the country would be greatly promoted by the nearest practical approach to the establishment of complete reciprocal trade relations between the United States, Canada and Newfoundland.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practical CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. THE GREATEST MODERN BENEFACTOR

In Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Which Have Freed Mankind

From the Grip of Dyspepsia and all Other Stomach Diseases—Every Man's Cure is Within His Own Reach—Positive and Permanent.

Every day life is becoming more enjoyable, and is being rid of some of the thorns that once made it hard to endure.

No more emphatic proof of the truth of this claim could be found, than the fact that Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Waterbrash, Flatulence, Liver Complaint and all other similar stomach Diseases, can, to-day, be easily and permanently cured, whereas, some years ago, the victims of these complaints were compelled to suffer, knowing that there was neither relief nor cure for them.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have brought about this result. Since they were first given to the public, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, etc., have decreased in number every year.

The experience of both the medical profession, and the public has proved conclusively that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are an unfailing cure for each and all of the diseases named above. Their effect on the entire digestive system is wonderfully beneficial. Vigour, strength, energy, endurance and perfect health follow the use of this wonderful medicine.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the great Blood Makers and Muscle Builders of the age. A carpenter can repair a house, a machinist can repair a machine; a dentist can extract a tooth, a doctor can amputate a limb, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and they only, can repair the worn-out stomach and digestive organs.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by the Dodds Medicine Co., Limited Toronto.

A Convenience to Merchants.

The C.P.R., always up to date, has introduced an improved convenience to merchants and freight receivers. It consists of a triplicate freight freight advice note, three documents in one, each on top of the other. The uppermost is a receipt for freight charges. The second is the consignee's receipt for the goods, and the third was a notice to consignee of the arrival of freight. The first is signed by the local agent as a receipt of the freight charges; the second by the receiver in acknowledgement of the receipts of goods, and the third by the consignee, and is an order to any licensed drayman to deliver the goods. It is a great convenience and simplification, and merchants are requested to be on the look out for their use in a day or two.

Opera House.

Few dramas appeal so strongly to the average theatre goer as does "Forgiven," the beautiful play which will be presented in Monday evening at the opera house by the Orris Ober Stock Company. With all the elements of success the play is now being produced by this excellent organization at popular prices for the first time. The Ottawa Citizen in speaking of "Forgiven" in the hands of the Orris Ober Stock Company says: "The play is the continuous round of pleasure, each act containing an impressive feature." "Forgiven" will be presented with appropriate scenery and handsome costumes, and dancing specialties will be introduced throughout the play. Ladies will be admitted free on Monday evening when accompanied by a paid admission, if purchased before six o'clock. Reserved seats can be purchased at the up-town Grand Trunk Ticket Office.

An Annual Event.

Mr. J. H. Glass entertained his Sunday school class of the George street church at his residence on Thursday evening, 15th inst. This pleasant event is repeated every year by Mr. Glass and his scholars look forward to it with feelings of pleasure and delight. Mr. Glass has quite a large number of young men in his class, to whom he faithfully discharges the duties of an earnest Sunday school teacher every Sabbath. These boys have an intelligent appreciation of his interest in their welfare and for him they entertain a warm respect. On Thursday evening the twenty-two members of his class, who partook of the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Glass, enjoyed a delightful evening. The supper was usual served by Mrs. Glass, who knows what boys like, and is always a successful hostess. The evening was made additionally interesting with parlor games and other amusements, and several hours were spent in happy intercourse between teachers and scholars.

WINTER PASTIMES IN FULL SWING

THE HOCKEY CLUB HOLDS A GENERAL MEETING.

Mr. F. D. Kerr is the New Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Alex. Gibson is Now on the Executive—A. A. Hollingshead Chosen for Captain.

HOCKEY.

At the general meeting of the hockey club called last evening, the players selected Mr. A. A. Hollingshead for captain unanimously.

President Fife gave the players some sound advice after the election, urging them to take Captain Hollinghead's directions in good part, and not to consider them as reprimands at which to feel hurt, as anything that was said would be for their own good. He referred to the off side plays, which occurred too frequently, and urged the captain to warn the players against this style of play.

After thanking the boys for the honour conferred on him, Captain Hollingshead asked them to back him up in striving to bring the club up to the highest standard.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner's resignation from the executive was received and accepted on motion of Messrs. Hollingshead and Glover.

Messrs. Hollingshead and Davidson moved that hereafter three members of the Executive, meeting at the call of the President, shall constitute a quorum; also that Mr. Alex. Gibson be elected to the vacancy on the executive caused by the retirement of Mr. Kenner.—Carried.

Messrs. Richard Watt and A. A. Hollingshead moved that Mr. F. D. Kerr be elected to the position of Secretary-Treasurer and that his election be made unanimous.

The motion was carried amid much enthusiasm and without a dissenting voice.

On motion of Messrs. W. Crossley and H. King, Mr Roger Davidson was elected as the third member of the team committee to act with the President and the Captain.

The enthusiasm manifested at the meeting was such as to evidence that the club will have prosperous year before it. Never before in the history of the organization have the players taken the ice with more determination to give a good account of themselves.

The practice nights have been arranged for Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Lionel King's presence on the team this winter is a surety.

COLTS TO-NIGHT.

The Colts will hold a special practice at the rink to-night between teams picked as follows:—

W McDonald	goal		H McKee
E Graham	point		A Brundrette
H Rush	cover		H Armstrong
H Morgan	forwards		P Crosby
S Bradd			O Dumble
H King			E Maybee
H McBain			J McGrath

Every player is requested to be on the ice at 7 o'clock. The rules of the game will be strictly enforced at all practices of the Colts.

MIFFS VS. BIFFS.

The young ladies have begun practice again and yesterday afternoon an interesting match took place between sides picked as follows:

Goal, Miss Bertha Moore; point, Miss Edna Ackerman; cover point, Miss Helen Hall; forwards, Miss Pearl Hamilton, Miss Madge Davidson and Miss May Hamilton.

Goal, Miss Lilly Hamilton; point, Miss Mabel Bradburn; cover point, Miss Florence Hamilton; forwards, Miss Pearl Lundy, Miss Linda Hall and Miss Lilly Rush.

CURLIANA.

Last night was the Thistles' evening at the rink, and a large number of curlers turned out, two interesting scratch matches being played, resulting as follows:

RINK NO 1.

J Martin,	J D Collins,
Geo Kerr,	Alf Terrill
Robt Kerr,	C Rutherford,
J McClelland, sk... 7	S Ray, sk.....24

RINK NO. 2.

THE KENNEL.

The prize lists for the Dog Show were off the presses of the EXAMINER Printing and Publishing Company to day, and are very comprehensive. The covers are an especially neat piece of work.

Mr. J. W. Flavelle, formerly of town, has kindly made a liberal donation towards the prize list.

CRICKET.

Cricketers are reminded of the general meeting which is to be held in the Oriental Parlours to-night at 7.45. The financial statement will be brought down and ways and means discussed for next season.

Y.M.C.A. CONTEST.

The senior Y.M.C.A. gymnasium class work last night consisted of gymnastic work on the parallel bars and the horse. Ten men competed in the contest, and out of a possible 100 points H. Conway scored 92, C. Mathias 90, P. Stewart 90 and G. Caslin 80 points. The scoring of the first four of the intermediates on Thursday on the same apparatus but simpler movements, resulted as follows: Wm. Turnbull and E. N. Smith, 93, R. Buntin 86, Howard Waram 84. Fifteen intermediates took part in the contest.

Silver Plating.

Silver plating neatly, promptly and cheaply done by the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company. Ladies' look over your silverware and when you have forks, knives, spoons or any pieces of silverware tarnished or plate worn off, bring it to us and have it nicely done over and made as good as new.—The Peterborough Lock Company. d

Fairyland.

The popular idea of the appearance of the fairyland is a mere matter of speculation, according to the taste of the individual, but one would think that it looks like the Peterborough Bookstore in its present holiday condition. The brilliant array of gift goods, the glitter of silver bric-a-brac, the sparkle of cut glass, the warm glow and yellow flash of bronze and brass art work, the rich and brilliant coverings of splendid gift books ranged on counters and tables, make a brilliant and enticing sight. Never before in town has a more splendid stock been laid in and never before has a stock been arranged and displayed in so enticing a form and to so strongly suggest at least one conception of a glimpse of fairyland. Description by words conveys no more idea of the beauty of the Peterborough Bookstore's gorgeous and elaborate display than a painting can express the exquisite odour of an English violet. Seeing only is what will form the idea; and seeing is desiring, and desiring is equivalent to purchasing, for the prices are so moderate as to suggest that in marking these beautiful wares, profit has been lost sight of.

RICH CUT GLASS.

China Hall is showing over one hundred pieces of "Hawk's" Celebrated Cut Glass. The finest in the world and the first assortment of genuine Cut Glass ever shown in Peterborough. 3d

FOR THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Interesting Contribution of Society Emblems.

In compliance with a suggestion made at the time of the Jubilee procession in 1897, on the occasion of the opening of Victoria Museum, Mr. F. J. Jameson, member of the High Court Executive Committee of the Canadian Order of Foresters, has presented to the Victoria Museum, samples of the badges, etc., worn by the Canadian Foresters in the procession on Jubilee Day. These consist of a member's parade badge of celuloid ribbon and gold fringe, a member's lapel button badge, and a member's maple leaf gold pin.

These will form quite an interesting memento of an interesting and historical occasion, and it is to be hoped that all the other societies that took part in the Jubilee procession will fall in with the suggestion that every society should be represented in the museum collection by a sample of the badge worn on the occasion mentioned.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mr. David Farnum.

In the death of Mr. David Farnum, who passed away yesterday, his immediate neighbours mourn the loss of one of the kindest, most thoughtful and most unselfish of men; while the stricken wife is deprived of a life companion, than which none could be more loving, tender and true. His nobleness of heart was saddened by his own invalidism for many years; not upon his own account, but because of the heavy burdens thus brought upon the almost idolized wife. This gentle, unobtrusive, quiet assistance was gladly given, even in the smallest matters. Mr. Farnum was the youngest child of Capt. Thomas Farnum, and the only survivor of the entire family. He was a native of the Bay State, removing to Minnesota in 1857, where in 1860 he was united in marriage with Miss Harriett J. Morse, who now mourns his loss. Nearly ten years since the family sought a change of climate, settling at 20 College street, Peterborough. A severe recurrence of lung and bronchial troubles last March brought him very low, since which time he has lingered on the "Border Land." He died triumphant in Christ, having served and imitated Him for many years.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 20 College street, on Sunday at 2 p.m.

RETIRING TRUSTEES.

GIFT-GETTING and GIFT-GIVING DAYS

Are crowding the Peterborough Bookstore full of gift seekers from far and near. This is the holiday shoppers week of weeks. The store has donned its holiday attire and bids the people all welcome.

Nowhere else can such variety, such beauty, such preparations to satisfy the gift-giving desires of all classes be seen. Christmas things in the Newest 1898 Novelties charm the eye of shoppers, and Prices are so reasonable as to make buying a pleasure.

We Guarantee to make the prices of our Newest and Most Attractive Novelties fully 15 and 20 per cent. lower than the same goods can be bought for anywhere else in Canada. Our tremendous stock of Fancy Goods requires that prices must be one of the strongest inducements to buy, as we can't afford to have any left over at end of season.

CROWD THE STORE during the next few days! An extra force of Salespeople will facilitate your shopping. We are already meeting the demands of hundreds, and you would do well to join the advance army of early shoppers, and SHOP NOW! SHOP NOW!

We expect tremendous crowding in a few days more. Pick out your gifts, we will lay them aside for you, to be delivered when desired.

JARVIS' ACCOMPANIST.

To the Editor of the Examiner :

DEAR SIR :—Kindly permit me to offer word of explanation with regard to the accompaniments at our recent concert. It has been said, and probably with some measure of truth, that Mr. Jarvis was overpowered by the weight of the accompaniment furnished by the piano. In this regard I wish to say that the piano was placed in its position under my direction, but when too late to remedy it Mr. Jarvis announced it in an unsatisfactory position for him; he, therefore, instructed the pianist to play his accompaniments with the power of the instrument, as he claimed he could not hear the piano unless this was done. No one could regret the error more than I do and I take this means of asking that justice only be done one, who, in my estimation, is quite capable of performing the duties of an accompanist to the satisfaction of any artist requiring such.

Yours truly,
J. CRANE.

OTONABEE.

Death of Mrs. Arthur Elmhirst.

On Friday Mrs. Arthur Elmhirst, of the North Concession, passed away at the age of 30 years. The cause of death was consumption. She was a daughter of the late John Hope, and leaves a family of five young children to mourn her loss. The funeral takes place on Sunday at 1.30. Interment at Westwood.

Struck With Lightning.

Vividly describes the position of a hard or soft corn when Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor is applied. It does its work so quickly and without pain that it seems magical in action. Try it. Recollect the name—Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere.

Wonderful Midgets at Grafton's.

The two greatest and most tiny people ever on exhibition at Grafton & Co.'s Clothing Store are holding daily receptions to immense crowds of people. So popular are Major Winner and wife become that the longer they stay the bigger the attendance. In stocking feet the Major measures only 36 inches ; his weight is but 42 pounds ; age, 30 ; and his hat is an 8¼. Mrs. Winner's age is (by permission) 21 ; height, 35 inches ; weight, 40 pounds. Mrs. Winner is a good looking, quiet and refined lady, and the Major is an active, courteous and business-like gentleman. Their engagement terminates Saturday evening. No children will be admitted on Saturday unless accompanied by their parents. Evening reception to-night between 7 and 9 o'clock. For your life don't miss it.

CHRISTMAS AT CHINA HALL.

PERSONAL.

Miss Nettie Bell, of town, is spending a few weeks with Miss Ella Fee, of Omemee.

Miss Madge Staunton, of 'Varsity Hospital, Philadelphia, is home for the holidays.

Miss Agnes Jones, of Emily, has returned home after a pleasant visit with friends in town.

Mr. Charles and Miss Ida Rutherford, of Lebanon, were visiting friends in town during the week.

Mr. Mills, of town, formerly of Cavan, is in Millbrook, visiting his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Leach.

Miss Cochrane has returned to town after spending a few days in Lakefield as the guest of Miss Etta Reynolds.

Mr. A. J. Belcher has returned to Peterborough for a short stay with friends. Mr. Belcher has been for the past season employed on the survey work of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway.

Miss May Richardson, of town, was in Millbrook on Tuesday where she sang at the Jessie Alexander concert. The Millbrook Reporter states Miss Richardson's solo "The Holy City," was sung with very sweet pathos and distinctness.

Hon. G. E. Foster, ex-Finance Minister passed through Peterborough to-day on his return east from Lindsay, where he spoke last evening on "The Canadian Outlook," under the auspices of the Collegiate Institute. Mr. Foster was banquetted in Lindsay during the afternoon by the town council.

Amongst the successful students at the recent junior examinations at the Ontario College of Pharmacy this term were Mr. Geo. Reilly, who studied with Mr. John McKee ; Mr. Geo. H. Halpin, with Mr. Jas. Lynch, and Mr. W. S. Sanderson, with Mr. H. S. Macdonald. The boys are to be congratulated on having applied themselves so closely to their studies.

The many friends of Rev. J. U. Tanner, of Omemee, will be sorry to hear that he contemplates withdrawing from his present work owing to the defective state of his eyes, but the members of his congregations, as well as many others, are sincere in the hope that it will be only for a few months and not a permanent retirement, as Mr. Tanner has been faithful in the discharge of his duties and has endeared himself to the people of the neighbourhood.

CARD OF THANKS.

The Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society desire publicly to thank the following kind donors : Mrs. T. Robinson, for clothing ; Mrs. Ackerman, for clothing ; Mrs. Walsh, for dress materials, underclothing, etc. ; Mrs. Firth, quilt ; Miss Edmison, clothing.

The change of season affects pianos as well as anything else. Mr. Geo. Gumpricht, practical piano maker and tuner, with 28 years experience, attends to all orders left at Mr. H. S. Macdonald's drug store.

OUR CIVIC ELECTIONS.

There is exhibited an apathy and indifference that one cannot understand in regard to the approaching municipal elections, probably the most important that have taken place in the recent history of the town. The people, with a broad-minded and liberal view of their responsibilities, declared last August for a change in the mode of electing aldermen, and for the abolition of the ward system, thus bringing in conditions that would broaden the constituency as well as the outlook and responsibility of councillors.

That the change decided upon will have a beneficial effect is not denied in any quarter. But the improvement, thus made possible in the management of our town affairs, will not be received if advantage is not taken of the occasion ; if citizens do not arouse themselves to a sense of their duty and a sense of their privileges, the municipal chariot will continue to lumber along in the same old ruts and there will be no relief from the mismanagement of local affairs which so many loudly complain of, without taking any steps to assist in providing a remedy.

Public indifference is shown by the position of the town in regard to candidates for the coming municipal elections. Here we are within a few days of nomination and there are only about half a dozen candidates, so far as can be learned, who have definitely decided upon being candidates. There are four or five of the present council who have expressed their intention of running again and only two or three candidates outside of the council have announced themselves.

This is not as it should be. The people want a chance to select councillors to manage their affairs. They don't want the councillors to select themselves, as will be the case if only just enough candidates present themselves to make up the number of the council.

The present is a very important and critical period in the history of the town. We have entered upon the work of improvement of a permanent character in regard to our streets, and we shall need a council with more than usual business capacity to manage the work to the town's best advantage. We shall need a council that is at least able to purchase a steam roller, which is an essential element in the work of street construction in an economical and effective manner.

The town also greatly needs to have its standing in regard to manufacturing establishments strengthened. While other towns and cities are on the alert to secure the presence of new industries, we do not seem to be able to entertain them when they come knocking at our doors. An official of the city of Toronto, with a lively interest in the advancement of the city, occupies himself with going around from establishment to establishment in the province, presenting inducements for their location in Toronto. We want something in this line in regard to Peterborough. We have all the facilities for entertaining manufacturing establishments, and the only point seems to be to come to the point. We need a council of business men, broad in their views, and with business experience sufficient to deal with establishments seeking a desirable location, in a prompt, straight-forward business-like manner ; men who can, and will, make a good bargain for the town, without an exhibition of a huckstering spirit like a female bargain hunter buying a chicken on the market. In these remarks no reflection is cast upon present councillors. We merely state the need of the town, and all who meet the conditions that seem to be necessary, can take all they deserve to themselves.

We want a council big enough to deal with the great question of power for manufacturing purposes. The Auburn power is about all contracted for. The Dickson Company have made large expenditures and will have considerable power to dispose of that the town should secure control of in connection with manufacturing establishments. There is one industry that would come to Peterborough to-morrow which would pay out a million dollars in wages in a dozen years—that would guarantee to pay $80,000 per year in wages if only the small matter of power could be guaranteed. Woodstock is exempting its industries in order to keep them. Toronto pays a man a big salary to look up establishments for that city. He offered one industry recently the land and all the facilities of that kind, and exemption from taxation for fifteen years at a dollar a year.

We want a council that can grasp the situation and turn it to the town's advantage. We want a council that will work for the benefit of the town. Our present need, to help in this connection is power available for the use of new industries, and we need a council that will get it—that's the long and short of. There may be difficulties and we want a council that will make apparent impossibilities give place to practical results.

We have men in town of such a calibre, but the difficulty is to get them to come to the front. They object to the time required for discharging a councillor's duty. In this regard they are judging from past or present conditions. With a capable council there is no need of much time being consumed, as witness the School Board, which disposes of its business in an effective manner, and without waste of time. If our town affairs were managed in the same spirit, there are few business men who could not spare the time. Men who know their business and aim to do it, with a single eye to the town's interests, without regard to other considerations, can do a large amount of work in a short space of time.

It is hoped that something can be done to arouse the public spirit of our citizens and induce other good men to come into the field—men who will not bend all their energies to trifles, men who will not raise the roof of the firmanent over things that do not amount to a row of pins, in comparison with weightier matters, that are consequently neglected and allowed to drift, while wide-awake towns take advantage of our petty squabbles.

Will our citizens respond, to the call of duty ? We have now six or eight candidates—but that is not enough. There is no candidate so good but some other possesses special qualifications and capacities that at least justify the affording of an opportunity to the electors of making a choice. And we want a sufficient number of candidates to permit of such a choice being made.

Whatever is to be done must be done quickly. Will our public spirited citizens respond to the call of duty ?

THE TIME HAS EXPIRED

And Britain Has Not Ratified the Anglo-French Niger Treaty.

A CONDITION OF CHAOS NOW.

Sir Edmund Monson Instructed to Demand an Important Omission From the Revised Treaty Britain Has Now Soldiers Where the French Were a Few Months Ago—Cable News.

London, Dec. 16.—The time for ratifying the Anglo-French Niger treaty expired yesterday without any action having been taken by the British Government to confirm the terms of the treaty arranged by the ambassadors of the two countries. This leaves the disputes and rival claims of England and France to territories and rights along the River Niger in a more unsettled state than before. It not only leaves in critical condition the affairs in western Africa, but has important bearing upon the disputed regions in other parts of the continent where the two countries have conflicted.

Sir Edmund Monson, the British ambassador at Paris, has been instructed by Lord Salisbury to inform M. Delcasse, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, that if the treaty is to be brought up again in a revised form the clause giving France two trading stations on the River Niger must be omitted before England can consent to negotiate in the matter.

When the treaty was supposed to have been concluded, a few months ago, the French withdrew their garrisons at Boussa and Illo, on the river. British forces have now occupied these places This action on the part of England will greatly intensify the feeling of hostility in France which flamed up so dangerously at the time of the Fashoda incident.

Lord Salisbury's policy in dealing with all questions of dispute with France has been of a most firm and resolute nature. In this he has apparently the unanimous backing of the English people.

BERESFORD IN CHINA.

It Is Said He Will Organize a Disciplined Army There.

Vancouver, Dec. 16.—Chinese papers received by the Empress of India declare that 20,000 men are to be handed over to Lord Charles Beresford to organize as a nucleus of the Chinese disciplined army of the future.

Hong Kong papers declare that reports published of the existence of a secret treaty between the Russian and Chinese Governments are perfectly true.

It is stated that a large force under Russian officers is ordered to Shahlaikman.

CZAR HAS HIS OWN MOTIVES.

Places Russian Occupation of Port Arthur on High Moral Grounds.

London, Dec. 16.—Mr. William T. Stead, writing with reference to his recent visit to the Czar, says His Majesty is entirely stimulated by good will for Great Britain, and that he brought from India genuine admiration for British colonial administration. "But," the Czar is said to have sorrowfully observed, "colonization sometimes reduces itself to supplying natives with alcohol and other demoralizing agents." The Czar, it also appears, regards the partition of China with a feeling of horror, and he is said to have asserted that Russia only occupied Port Arthur under bitter necessity and in order to forestall German and British designs.

It Will Take Eight Years.

Madrid, Dec. 16.—Senor Puigcerver, Minister of Finance, in the Cabinet Council yesterday said that the financial department expected to pay Cuban debts, and added that in eight years' time he had hopes that Spain would settle all of the expenses of the war, the country having taxed each element of production.

What Steamer Is This?

Skibbereen, Ireland, Dec. 16.—A despatch received here from Baltimore, about seven miles southwest, says that a steamer, supposed to be a trans-Atlantic liner is in distress off the coast there. She has been throwing distress signals for some time.

Has Russia Been Scared Out?

London, Dec. 16.—The Vienna correspondent of the Standard says: "It is asserted here, both from St. Petersburg and London sources of information, that serious negotiations have been begun between Russia and Great Britain for the solution of the Chinese problem, Russia having arrived at the conclusion that it would be impossible to resist the now threatened co-operation of England, Germany, the United States and Japan.

Lord Curzon Starts for India.

London, Dec. 16.—Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the new Viceroy of India, started yesterday morning for Marseilles, overland, to join Lady Curzon on board the Arabia there. A party of friends, including his father, the Rev. Alfred Nathaniel Holden Curzon, Baron Scarsdale, Lord George Hamilton, the Secretary of State for India, the Duke of Westminster, the United States charge d'affaires, Mr. Henry White, and Mrs. White, bade him farewell at the railroad station.

Three Saved, Two Drowned.

Glasgow, Dec. 16.—The Allan Line steamer Sarmatian, Captain Johnston, which has arrived here from Portland, Me., rescued and brought to port three members of the crew of the Nova Scotian schooner Annie G., which sailed from Bridgetown, N.S., for New York, and was previously reported sighted abandoned on Dec. 4. The men were taken off the wreck on Dec. 1. The captain and a seaman had been washed overboard and drowned previous to the rescue.

Dying of Hunger in Madrid.

London, Dec. 16.—Despatches from Madrid assert that thousands of soldiers who have returned from Cuba are suffering terribly. Many are dying of hunger in the streets of Madrid. The Government owes the men millions in back pay, but cannot find the money to give them.

The New Swiss President.

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 16.—The Federal Assembly has elected M. Mueller of Berne, who was Vice-President for 1898, to be President of the Swiss Confederation. M. Hauser of Zurrich was elected Vice-President. They are both Radicals.

SECRET ORDERS.

Herr Bebel, German Socialist Leader, Criticizes the Kaiser in the Reichstag —Denial of Issue of the Orders.

Berlin, Dec. 16.—During the debate on the estimates in the Reichstag yesterday Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, criticized Emperor William's acts and home politics, saying it was a pity the revenues of the German Empire were swallowed up by the army, the navy and the colonies, and that he understood that there was an intention in influential quarters to introduce a still larger naval program. Herr Bebel referred to the expulsions from Prussia, contrasting them with the conciliatory utterances of Emperor William in the Church of the Redeemer of Jerusalem. Herr Bebel then proceeded to criticize the Imperial remarks, amid considerable uproar and cries of "Shame!" Finally he was called to order.

Herr Bebel then denounced the anti-Socialistic police measures, and referred to secret police orders, said to have been issued by Generals Bromsort von Sobellendorf and Von Hahnke, for the arrest of Socialist leaders in the event, seemingly, of revolutionary disturbances. He said such measures did not arrest the growth of Socialism, which fundamentally differed from Anarchism. The Socialist leader afterwards discussed internal questions, his remarks causing clamorous protests from the Rightists

The Minister of War, General von Gossler, replied, declaring that the orders mentioned by Herr Bebel did not exist.

The Secretary of State for the Interior, Count Posadowsky-Wehener, spoke ironically of the social-democratic state of the future. He said the existence of the social-democracy was the best proof that Germany was a country of freedom.

Herr Leiber, the Centrist leader, emphasized the loyalty of the Centrists, who would ever lend their co-operation to the welfare, honor and greatness of the Empire. The estimates were then referred to the budget committee and the House adjourned until Jan. 10.

To Fortify France.

Paris, Dec. 16.—A Government commission composed of high naval and military officers has been appointed to visit the northern and western coast of France to prepare a great scheme of strengthening the national defences. This will include strong fortifications at all the ports along the English Channel.

WARRANT FOR ESTERHAZY.

Significant Interview Between Prince Victor Napoleon and Gen. Mercier.

London, Dec. 16.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy.

"It is asserted that Prince Victor Napoleon stayed at the house of an Imperialist in Avenue Hoche from Wednesday to Sunday last, and that while there he had conferences with General Mercier, Minister of War in the Cabinet under which Dreyfus was condemned, and M. Paul de Roulede, the anti-revisionist."

Is Dreyfus on the Way?

London, Dec. 16.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says it is believed that Dreyfus is now on his way to France.

Sybil Sanderson in Luck.

London, Dec. 16.—According to the Paris correspondent of the Daily News, the late Mr. Antonio Terry, husband of the former opera singer, Sybil Sanderson, left his entire fortune to his widow.

Tolstoi to Be Expelled.

Vienna, Dec. 16.—The Tageblatt hears that Count Tolstoi, the novelist, is shortly to be expelled from Russia, because of social disturbances which have been attributed to his teaching.

Revolution in Bolivia.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 16.—Advices received here yesterday confirm the reports of a revolution in the Bolivian Republic.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easies work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the gladsome glow of girlhood.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, illustrated.

With Vice-Royalty.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—Lord and Lady Minto had a busy day yesterday.

Early in the afternoon Their Excellencies received a large deputation from the Methodist Church at the Queen's Hotel, when Rev. Dr. Carman, superintendent, and Rev. Dr. Ross, secretary of the conference, presented His Excellency with an illuminated address, beautifully bound in morocco, expressing the loyalty of Methodists to British institutions. His Excellency replied briefly.

Later Their Excellencies were driven to the Hunt Club for luncheon.

At 4 o'clock they received the civic address, and in the evening Their Excellencies attended the annual ball of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club at the Pavilion, winding up a busy day.

Boils Banished.

Mr. O. J. Murray, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes: "About six months ago I was troubled with painful boils and got one bottle of B.B.B. which completely cured me."

Mrs. David Labor, Waterford, Ont., says: "I can recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil for pains of any kind. It cured me of a distressing pain that the doctor could not cure."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment...

Endorsed by Dr. C. M. Harlan of the American Journal of Health

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE....

He says:—Among the proprietary medicines recognized is Dr. Chase's Ointment, compounded by Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, as a remedy for Piles, Eruptions and Eczematic Skin Diseases, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures. It is not the practice of the Medical Profession indiscriminately to use proprietary medicines, but there are hundreds of physicians throughout this country who are using Dr. Chase's Ointment in their practice. We handed out during the last month 2,700 boxes of free samples of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the thankful results have been something astonishing. Here is what one of the cures says:

MR. O. P. ST. JOHN, 246 Shaw St., Toronto, in his letter states: I suffered for some years from Itching Piles, at times being unable to sleep for the annoyance caused by them. After trying almost every remedy known, I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and can say one box entirely cured me. I cannot speak too highly of it, and have recommended it to several of my friends, all whom have been cured by its use.

GOVERNMENT OF RUINED CUBA.

Major-General Ludlow Charged With the Exercise of Civil Functions.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 16.—The War Department yesterday published the formal order providing for the military government of Cuba The notable feature of the order is that Major-General Ludlow, who is designated as Military Governor of Havana City, while nominally subordinate to the division commander, General Brooke, is apparently charged to exercise all the civil functions in that place under the direct authority of the President. General Lee's functions appear to be limited to those of a strictly military character, although it is said at the War Department he may be eventually charged with all the duties, civil as well as military, of the governor of a province.

Havana Street Car Line Sold.

Havana, Dec. 16.—At a general meeting of the stockholders of the Ferro Carril Urbano yesterday the sale of the entire stock, amounting to $1,600,000, was authorized at 92, half of the amount was taken by Mr. George W. Young, president of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company; Senator Smith of New Jersey; Percival Farquhar, F. S. Pierson, Col. G. B. M. Harvey and Hanson Bros. of Montreal. The other was taken by Ruffe & Sons, and T. W. Todd, bankers of London.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

Old McGill in Luck.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—At the annual dinner of the McGill University medical faculty, held here last night, the announcement was made that a contribution of $100,000 had been received from Lady Strathcona, the wife of Lord Strathcona, chancellor of the university, and her daughter, Mrs. Howard.

Killed in a Snow Slide.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 16.—Alex. L. McDonald and Andrew Malcolm, two miners, have been killed in a snow slide at the Silver Queen Mining Company's place on Snow Creek, back of Burton City, Kootenay.

Success comes to those who persevere. If you take Hood's Sarsaparilla faithfully and persistently you will surely be benefitted.

Given a New Trial.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—A new trial has been granted to James Coleman of Melancthon Township, Dufferin County. He was convicted of perjury at Brampton before Judge McGibbon and a jury. The grounds urged for a new trial were: That he had not been properly sworn when the alleged perjury was uttered, and that Judge McGibbon had made comments on Coleman's evidence. The trial was granted on the latter ground.

Tickles the Columbians.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 16.—Sir William Van Horne, in reply to a complimentary message from Crow's Nest Pass Railway excursionists, has telegraphed: "You may be sure the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will spare no effort to make southern British Columbia what we all believe nature intended it to be, the greatest mining district in the world."

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000, which matured on the 8th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 90
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low ing rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

CHAPTER VII.

WHAT THE WALLET CONTAINED.

Late that night, Neil Bathurst sat alone, pondering over the events of the day, and making copious entries in a plethoric note book.

Rob Jocelyn had often laughed at him "for a garrulous note maker." But Bathurst had found that his habit of jotting down everything that came into his mind, or under his observation, concerning a suspected party, or those connected with parties, or cases coming under his eyes, had often stood him in good stead, and that seeming irrelevancies had been in truth most apropos and useful in many cases.

He wrote rapidly, and for a long time. Finally he paused, and turning back the leaves, reviewed his work, to see that no item had been omitted.

There was a most minute description of the doings of that day, from the moment when his luncheon had been broken into by Clarence Arteveldt, to the time when, having bidden farewell to Aura Durand and the other members of the family, he had turned his back upon Arteveldt, and hastened, alone, to his rooms, at eleven o'clock at night.

His memoranda, concerning the incidents and impressions of the evening just passed were characteristic.

Here is an extract:

"Evening, 6.30.

"Landed at the door of the robbed mansion precisely on time for dinner, which would have been a heavy affair but for the beauty and vivacity of Miss Aura Durand, and the nonchalant grace, and general 'interestingness' of her companion, Miss Annin. These are not ordinary girls, and form a decided contrast, both in manner and appearance. Doubtless they are aware of this, and of its effectiveness."

Here followed minute descriptions of the two girls, after which he had written:

"I begin to realize he absurdity of suspecting Aura Durand of any connection with he robbery. She is idolized by those old people, they see no faults in her, and I am prone to confess—neither can I—unless—it may be that she is a little too fond of that gay Lothario, Arteveldt; and yet, she has lavished not a few of her sweetest smiles upon ungrateful me. I was aware of a few—a very few—glances that indicated some sort of an understanding—or misunderstanding—between Arteveldt and the heiress. I can't quite make them out, but of one thing I am sure, those two fair young ladies were so ceremoniously sweet to each other that I know there must be some other bond between them than the silken one of love—and yet, why should this be—it looks like another improbability—can it be that I am becoming a maniac on the subject of glances and tones?

"My visit to the Durands to-night may have been a social success, but from a professional standpoint it was nil. I am still at sea in regard to the burglary—was it a burglary?"

The young detective sat for a time absorbed in thought, then, suddenly rising, and throwing back his hair with a boyish gesture, he muttered:

"Now for the wallet; I wish Rob was here to help me."

He took the wallet from his pocket, and placed it upon the table before him.

It was smaller than the ordinary wallet, and of the finest bronzed leather.

"Looks like a piece of foreign extravagance," he muttered. "Silken-lined—and—hallo! what's this?"

On the inside leather were the embossed initials, J. B. "J. B.," read the young man. "Wonder if these are the initials of the owner."

The wallet contained a number of letters, a couple of pictures, and what appeared to be a collection of adresses, dates and memoranda.

Putting aside the latter, Bathurst applied himself to the letters. Glancing over the dates of these, he perceived that they extended over a number of years. They were all in one handwriting, evidently that of a woman, a fine, clear, Italian hand, as unusual as it was beautiful.

They were all addressed to a "Mr. Jason Bradwardine," and nearly all bore foreign postmarks.

The first of these letters, addressed from an obscure German village, were grateful, impulsive, yet guarded little missives, expressing unbounded faith in the person addressed, but full of fear of some unknown person, or thing; they were all brief, and not one of them contained a name or even an initial. They bore no signature whatever.

Arranging them in order, the earliest dates uppermost, Neil Bathurst began their perusal.

"Kindest of Friends," so ran the first letter.

From this little foreign hamlet, seeming to me to be out of the world, I address you. Again and again I give you my poor thanks for your kindness to most miserable me. What could I have done without you? How escaped from the cruelty and persecution, the ignominy and utter horror that surrounded me? I owe you for everything, and thank you for all. Thanks to you, my little inheritance is at command. I want for nothing; it will suffice for me and mine. My darling one—all that is left me now—is well, is beautiful; ah! what will she be by and by? Some day the tables will be turned; some day she may possess the strength I never had.

My letter is addressed in fear and trembling. If it should fall into other hands, their hands!

My friend, I write no more. You have my benediction, my gratitude—all I have to give. I pray to the Virgin to comfort you always. Amen.

In fear, in sorrow, in gratitude. Yours,

"Here is mystery," quoth the detective. "Let's see—that letter is fifteen years old, as I live."

There were several more letters, written in much the same vein, bearing the same postmark, and dated one and two months apart. Then came one which ran as follows:—

Dear friend, kind friend: Forgive me that I have not heeded your advice. I can stay here no longer; my days are filled with fear, my nights with vain repinings. I begin to fear myself; I have now the opportunity, I must embrace it. Once in that foreign land across the ocean the fear will fall from me, I shall feel myself in a new world; I shall rest. Write no more to me here; when this reaches you I shall be on the ocean. I go with good people, who will care for me, and we will be safe. I have promised never to let you lose sight of me, but for this I would say it were best to pass now out of your life. Best that you should forget me. But my promise I will keep. When I have found a home in that far-off land, you shall hear from me; until then, best of friends, farewell. Once more forgive me; I could not stay longer where there is so much to fear.

Thus abruptly the letter ended.

"Mysterious but interesting," commented the detective. "Let's see what happens next; wish I had the other side of the correspondence."

Taking up the next letter he resumed his research.

My Friend of Friends:

Six months since last I wrote you. But your goodness has not been forgotten. There has been much to prevent writing. First, the search for a place to sit down in and say, "This I will call home"; afterward sickness that, but for my beautiful comforter, I would have prayed might end in death. Even yet I am not strong. This is a wonderful new land, and we live in a wee, small hamlet in the province—no, the State of New York. Everything is new and strange, but my dear one thrives and is happy. Here there is no musical variety of title, no royalty, almost no aristocracy. It is as if one were a citizeness of the French Republic.

I have taken a new name—what an effect mine—my real one—would have here—address me thus—Mistress Bourne, Elm Valley, New York, in the United States. Adieu.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Bathurst, "I wonder if he did. 'Mistress Bourne—in the United States.' What fun for our Yankee postmasters."

The next letter was in an entirely different vein. Bearing date four months later than the one announcing the safe arrival in a new world, it began as follows:—

Villain, Betrayer—insult to the name of friend:

Know yourself unmasked; know yourself foiled, and that by a weak woman. Did you think that love such as mine ever sleeps? Do you think a mother's vigilance ever fails? Bah! I mock at you, for I am transformed. I am a tigress. Stand before me now, and I will plant a dagger in your heart. I can! I will!

Your emissary has failed. He will return to you empty-handed. Know him for a bungler—a fool. I did not suspect him as your tool. I thought him sent by another. What fixes the guilt on you? Just a scrap of your own handwriting, discovered by me, no matter how. You would steal my child. It can be but for one purpose; do you think I do not know what that is, and why you thirst for that young life? How I loathe myself that I ever called you friend. Fool that I was. You plotted like a serpent; you thought to surprise me among strangers; to find me unprepared. As if I had not lived for years in fear and watchfulness. Know you not that habit becomes second nature?

I have no fear in addressing you thus. After to-night this place will know me no more. The last link that binds me to the past is now broken. The woman who has been will be no more.

The future—that future in which you will stand unmasked—rests in stronger hands than mine. Jason Bradwardine, beware of it!

"Now, who but a woman would have sent an enemy such a defiance as that?" said Bathurst, as he laid aside this last letter, "and if this man is Bradwardine, what a precious fool he is for carrying about such a letter. How completely he must have duped the woman in the outset, and what a female Ishmael she must have been—must still be, if she is yet in existence. Is the man that Rob Jocelyn is shadowing Jason Bradwardine? And if so, is Jason Bradwardine still in search of this woman of mystery and her child?"

Then he picked up the memoranda and examined that, but it was still more unsatisfactory. They were the merest jottings, names of several towns of England and France, together with unexplained dates. Two or three foreign addresses, with only the initials of the names; the name of a church that might have been anywhere. A great many jottings of this sort there were, and Bathurst laid them down with a sigh of weariness.

"They are dry as dust," he said, with a yawn, "and altogether beyond my comprehension to-night. I will let these notes stand over."

He took up the two pictures, and contemplated them thoughtfully. One was the face of a woman, young and lovely, a soft Southern face with dusky eyes, and clustering curls above the forehead and about the throat. The other was the picture of a man with a handsome Saxon face, possessing more of beauty than of strength.

The photographs were finished in the same style, and looking at the reverse side of the cards, he found that they were taken by the same artist—probably at the same time—taken in Paris.

"There seems to be considerable of the 'foreign element' about this affair," thought Bathurst, as he carefully replaced the letters, pictures, and notes in the wallet. "There appears to have been a wrong somewhere, and perhaps Rob Jocelyn may be on the trail of the criminal. However, if these papers are valuable, I shall find it out. Now for bed. I can trust this part of the matter to 'our wonderful advertising medium.'"

Thoroughly wearied with the day's adventures, he prepared to retire, and had soon forgotten all thought for the morrow in sleep. Early the next morning he was stirring, thoroughly refreshed, and ready for whatever might transpire. While still busy with his toilet, a tap on the door announced the newsboy with his morning papers.

"Now to consult he 'ads,'" he said, as flinging aside his hair brush, he hastily opened the "Tribune."

If the contents of the wallet were of value, the loser would most likely avail himself of that convenient medium, the morning paper.

"An honest man might put the matter in the hands of the police," so reasoned the detective; "but few men, even though honest, would care to make the manner of the theft public. The chances are, that he will advertise, in any case, and from the nature of the 'ad,' one may judge as to the value of the documents, and the honesty of the man. If he be acting fairly, I can save him from the blackmailing that would have been inevitable, had the papers fallen into the hands of any of those women, and, if I find that Jocelyn has grounds for his suspicions, we may be able to spoil Mr. Bradwardine's little game."

Bathurst had expected to find an advertisement something after this fashion:—

"If the person who took a wallet containing papers, etc., from a gentleman, on yesterday afternoon, will return the same to owner, said person will be rewarded, and no questions asked."

Or else a large reward would be offered, if the papers had a money value. Perhaps an appointment would have been made. Perhaps a threat implied.

But no such advertisement appeared in the morning papers, nothing that could be constructed into a covert hint. Nothing open or implied, that could possibly be referred to the owner of the lost wallet.

Neil Bathurst pondered for a few moments, and then took up the paper again.

This time he ran his eye over the column of the "wanted." Through all the long list of male wants, his eye travelled, and then he commenced a perusal of the column headed, "Wanted, Female Help." In a moment his eyes fell upon these words:

WANTED, A FEMALE DETECTIVE, one thoroughly acquainted with the city, and who is not connected with any agency. Address, V., Tribune office.

"So," laughed the detective. "Is this the long-looked-for? If Mr. Bradwardine wants a female detective he is sharper than the common run of swell foreigners. Well, of course, some one will apply." And whistling softly, he resumed the task of brushing his hair.

(To be continued.)

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM.

The Canadian Order of Foresters has a larger Surplus per head, and still larger for each $1,000 of risk carried, than any other Society of the kind in Canada. Surplus per member $21.82; per $1,000.00 of Insurance $20.96

C

All the money received from the monthly Insurance fees is placed into the Insurance Fund, and no portion of this fund or the interest accruing therefrom can be used for any purpose whatever other than the liquidation of death claim certificates. Not a fraction can be used for managing purposes.

O

All risks carefully selected. Being purely Canadian, we contract no risks in foreign countries, thus ensuring a low death rate. Our death rate of 5.44 of last year, and the average rate of 4.97 for the past nineteen years, speak for themselves.

SESSION OF THE PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY.

QUARTERLY MEETING HELD IN ST PAUL'S CHURCH.

The Business Which was Transacted—Reports Received—Those who Were Attendance—Next Meeting in to be Held in Port Hope.

The quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery was held on Tuesday in St. Paul's church. The members present were Rev. Mr. Hay, moderator, and Rev. Wm. Bennet, Andrews, A. Laird, E. F. Torrance, D.D., D. A. Thompson, R. R. Hyde, C. S. Lord, W. Johnson, A. C. Reeves, J. F. Somerville, J. U. Tanner, R Laird, J. G. Potter, Boyce Ionis, A. J. McMullen, J. W. McIntosh, R. F. Hunter; also, Elders W. Graham, W. Robertson, S. Black, Thos. Esson and John Braden.

Rev. Mr. Laird reported as to the Presbytery fund regarding the disbursements and receipts. It was resolved that twelve cents per family be the rate for he Presbytery fund next year.

A report was received from the Young People's Societies, showing that they were implementing their engagements to raise $230 for the partial support of a missionary in the Northwest

Rev. Mr. Hay reported regarding the claims of the Augmentation Fund. It was agreed that the report be received, that great satisfaction be expressed at the efforts of the convenor and that the Presbytery agree to raise the full amount of $1,000 asked on behalf of this fund.

A call from Warkworth to Rev. A. W. Craw, of Toronto, was accepted—induction to take place on January 10th, at 2 30 p. m. Rev. Mr. Thompson will preside, Rev. Mr. Somerville will preach, Rev. Mr. Ross will address the minister and Rev. Mr. Potter will address the congregation.

The following motion was adopted expressive of the feelings of the Presbytery towards the late Robt. Tully: "The Presbytery of Peterborough desires to place on record its sense of the loss sustained in the death of the late Robt. Tully, who was for many years a valuable member of this court, as representative elder of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough. He was always faithful to his trust, being most regular in his attendance and taking a keen interest in the work of the Presbytery. The Presbytery expresses its sympathy with St. Andrew's in the loss of such a highly esteemed elder and especially with the bereaved wife and daughter in the removal of one so beloved by them and our prayer is that the God of all comfort may continue to sustain and bless them in their sorrow."

It was found in enquiry that the Missionary Sabbath appointed at the last meeting had been very generally observed by the pastors within the bounds.

The next meeting was appointed to be held in the hall of the First church, Port Hope, on the second Thursday of March at 2 p.m.

Rev. Dr. Torrance gave an interesting report on the work of Home Missions in the Presbytery.

Rev. R. F. Hunter, of Baltimore, was appointed to represent the Presbytery at the annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society in Campbellford in February next.

The remit of the Assembly in reference to the constitution of the Assembly and expenses of commissioners, was disapproved of. The remit on Synodical and Home Mission Committees and on the Examination of Students and on the supply of vacancies, were postponed for consideration until the next meeting.

MISS RUDKINS' STORE NEWS.

A Great Mistake

You hear of people who have paid high for the privilege of buying because of a name. They thought that the name or size of a store made the prices right, but found to their cost, it was a Great Mistake.

Come here and compare values first, then buy. Don't buy first and compare last—unless you're buying here.

Bargains grow naturally. Prudent buying—no overstocking—no waste capital. We pay cash and get the Discounts—give short credit to those we can accommodate—is it any wonder that, with light running expenses, I can afford to sell at a smaller profit?

TO BE NO FREE LUMBER

The Two-Thirds Majority of the U.S. Senate Unattainable.

TREATY BY THE END OF JANUARY

Congress May Pass It Before March 4, Although There Is a Possibility That the Spanish Debate May Crowd It Over Until Dec., 1899—The Christmas Adjournment.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Material progress in the negotiations was made at the meeting of the commission on Saturday morning, and at its close the announcement was made that the conference would resume its work after the Christmas recess on Thursday, Jan. 5. The final meeting before adjournment will be held this morning. The intention of the commissioners is to push the work along as rapidly as possible after they come together again. It is confidently stated that by the end of January, at the furthest, the negotiations will be completed, and that the treaty will go before the United States Senate for ratification by the beginning of February. This will leave a clear month for action before Congress rises on March 4, and in view of the thorough manner in which the interest of the Senators has been aroused there is every reason to believe that the treaty will be ratified before March 4. The Spanish peace treaty will be laid before the Senate when it meets on January 4, and it should be out of the way by the time the British treaty is ready. If, however, the debate on the Spanish treaty is prolonged into an anti-expansion fight, there is serious danger that the British treaty may go over to the December session of 1899, the feeling against an extra session being so great that there is little probability of one being called.

Free Lumber Defeated.

Although not officially admitted, it is said that at the meeting of the commission of Saturday an announcement was made that the approval of the necessary two-thirds majority of the Senate could not be obtained to the free admission of Canadian lumber, and that a treaty with such a provision in it would be foredoomed to failure. Were it a question of a majority vote, free lumber could safely be included, but the treaty as a whole must get the support of 61 Senators, and the lumber interest has, it is asserted here, proved stronger than that of the Administration. While free lumber cannot be forced through, it is understood that, if Canada cares to accept, the duty will be reduced from $2 to $1 per thousand at once, or a sliding scale of reduction may be inaugurated which would ultimately result after a series of years in free lumber. Our commissioners are extremely reticent in their views as to these proposals, and will doubtless not make up their minds till they return to Washington after consultation with their friends in Canada.

Canadian Hay to Be Admitted.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—The Star's Washington special says: Some fairly important concessions are expected in agricultural products, it being practically certain that Canadian hay will receive entrance to the American market free of duty. Concessions also in the matter of lead ores, coal and nickel are believed to have been practically promised by the American commissioners.

PULLMAN'S BARBER BOYCOTTED.

Ruined by His Employer's Employes He Was Forgotten by the Millionaire.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—Because of his fidelity to George M. Pullman, Frank Scotch, for 16 years his barber and confidant, is practically a bankrupt. During the great Pullman strike of '94 when the Pullman mansion was guarded by police night and day, Scotch was the only one outside the family admitted inside. The strikers demanded that Scotch tell them certain things about his employer. He refused, and his shop at Wabash avenue and Sixteenth street was boycotted. He was forced to move to another place, but failed to get any trade here. When Mr. Pullman heard of this he promised to set Scotch up in business downtown, but he died before the plan was carried out, and Scotch was refused the $500 left to all "household servants" in the Pullman will. Boycotted and broke, Scotch will move to some Wisconsin town to-day and start life anew.

NO ABSOLUTE ULTIMATUM.

C.P.R. Official Says G.T.R. Is Well Able to Fight a Strike.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—A high Canadian Pacific official stated yesterday that the Grand Trunk was in good shape to fight a strike if one should be ordered.

Mr. Powell was seen yesterday, and while careful to insist upon the point that no absolute ultimatum had been served on the general manager, he announced that the meeting which was to have taken place Saturday afternoon had been adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Hays will then be called upon to answer definitely whether the Telegraphers' Union will be recognized or not. If it is recognized the men are prepared to discuss their grievances in a temperate and conciliatory manner. If the union be not recognized, they are equally prepared to resort to labor's last resource—a strike.

IN AN AWKWARD POSITION.

Several Essex Couples Will Have to Be Remarried.

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 19.—Referring to the decision of the Attorney-General of Ontario that a marriage performed in Ontario by a minister who is a resident of the United States is not legal, Rev. John Reynolds, who had long been a resident of Ontario, but who has been living in Detroit for several years, has been in the habit of returning to this country to perform marriages among his old parishioners. Some one questioned the validity of these marriages and, after much discussion, it was referred to the Attorney-General. There is said to be several couples in Essex County who are affected by this decision, and must now either break up housekeeping or get married over again.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Fire on Saturday did $3,000 damage to the Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Co.'s premises in Toronto.

A fire in the Voorman Block, the lower floor of which is occupied by the extensive dry goods establishment of Radion & Kemp, at Fresno, Cal., has caused a loss of about $150,000.

On Saturday night a large frame house on Bleeker avenue, Belleville, owned by Mr. Warren of Montreal, was totally destroyed. Mr. Victor Wensley, the tenant, who is a dealer in bicycles, lost 20 wheels and all his household effects. Insured for $1,700. Loss on building $1,200. Insured.

Justice at the Sessions.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—In the Criminal Sessions on Saturday morning Judge McDougall passed sentence on the prisoners convicted during the sittings as follows:

Charles Datoe, theft and two cases of cattle stealing, seven years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Dugald McKinnon, receiving the stolen cattle, 18 months in the Central Prison.

Edward Hartnett, convicted of shooting Hugh Sheridan, was fined $15 or one month in jail.

They Did Not Vote.

Galt, Ont., Dec. 19.—The bylaw which was to be voted on on Saturday to sanction the issue of debentures for $67,750 to acquire the Galt Gas Light Company's property was withdrawn from the people by the Council at Thursday night's meeting, owing to supposed irregularity in the form of the bylaw, discovered after it had got the necessary reading in Council. The Mayor, fearing possible lawsuits, decided to, if possible, withdraw the bungled bylaw and introduce a new one, which was done. The new bylaw is to go to a vote on Jan. 9.

A Nation to Fight Consumption.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The plans of the Government to call an international conference to devise measures for fighting tuberculosis, first made public a month ago, have matured. The congress has been called to meet at Berlin, May 23 to 27. Chancellor Hohenhohe will preside. Prince Victor, Duke of Ratibor, and Prof. Leyden have been appointed a committee to have in charge the necessary arrangements. The main business of the congress will be to devise concerted measures to prevent tubercular infection.

AREA OF 31,000 FEET

Will Be Given Canada to Display Her Resources in 1900.

AN INCREASE OF 2,000 FEET.

Through Mr. Fisher's Persistency Our Original Allowance at Paris Has Been Increased From Eleven Thousand Feet to the Above Figures—Three Things to Be Made Special Features.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The Minister of Agriculture has been informed by Lord Strathcona that the space allotted to Canada at the Paris Exposition has been increased by 2,000 square feet, which gives the Dominion an area of 31,000 feet in which to display her resources in 1900. Canada's original allowance in the Colonial Building was between eleven and twelve thousand feet. As the result of the representations made by Mr. Fisher while in Great Britain last summer 8,000 feet of the space allotted for the Imperial classified exhibit was placed at the disposal of this country. Since the return of the Minister, and in consequence of strong representations made from this side of the Atlantic, Canada has been allowed 3,000 feet additional of the Imperial area and 6,000 more in the Colonial Building, making 20,000 feet in all. The display in the Colonial Building will be national in its character, and will not be limited to particular classifications as will Canada's contribution to the Imperial classified exhibit. An application has been made by the manufacturers of agricultural implements for space in the Imperial exhibit, and it will likely be assigned to them. All requests for space in the Imperial exhibit must be forwarded by the Minister of Agriculture to the Imperial commission. It is not improbable that a further concession of space will be made to Canada.

To Display Her Natural Resources.

Mr. Fisher states that the great natural resources of Canada will receive illustration by strong exhibits in mineral, agricultural and pulpwood products. "These are the three things that we propose to make particular features of," said the Minister, "and no effort will be spared to make them worthy of the country they represent. I believe that during the coming year the pulp and paper industry of Canada will have reached a stage of development that will enable us to make an exhibit that will astonish the world." The Department of Agriculture will make an exhibit of agricultural products that will only be limited by the space available for the purpose. The value of a strong agricultural exhibit as an inducement to immigration has been proven by Canada time and again, and it is believed that whatever expenditure is necessary to make the display at Paris complete will be amply repaid by the increased immigration which may be expected to result.

It Will Open Their Eyes.

Probably nothing will serve to advertise Canada to the world so much as a rich and attractive display of mineral wealth, and the exhibit that will be placed on view at Paris will be lacking in nothing that will contribute to make it the best collection ever seen at any exposition. It has been suggested, and the idea seems a good one, that a special Klondike exhibit should be gotten together. With a country so rich it should not be a difficult matter to secure nuggets enough to make a display that would open the eyes of all beholders and emphasize the mineral richness of Canada. The Minister of Agriculture has arranged to secure the co-operation of a small committee of gentlemen, representing Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and the west, who will act in conjunction with himself and his department in laying out a scheme and organizing the exhibits. The work will be begun early in the new year.

TEN PEOPLE SAVED

From the Disabled Schooner Deerhill by the British Steamer Pawnee—A Period of Suffering.

New York, Dec. 19.—The British steamer Pawnee arrived yesterday from Mediterranean ports and brought ten shipwrecked people, eight men and two women, who were taken from the disabled schooner Deerhill in mid ocean. Captain Aikenhead reported that on Dec. 8 at 10.30 a.m., he sighted a three-masted topsail schooner in evident distress and needing assistance. The name "Deerhill of St. John, N.B.," could be seen on the stern. A heavy gale was blowing, and a dangerous sea was running. The schooner was seemingly unmanageable and the rudder disabled and carried away. The Pawnee stayed by, and at 2 p.m. succeeded in getting a tow line aboard. The line parted, however, and a boat was launched in charge of the chief officer and sent to communicate with the Deerhill. The boat had nearly succeeded in boarding the wreck when an enormous sea struck and stove it, and after great difficulty the boat crew succeeded in getting on board the schooner, where they were obliged to remain all night. On the following morning the weather had slightly moderated and a towline was sent on board and the Pawnee towed the Deerhill towards Bermuda. After towing about six hours the line again parted. The wind and sea were increasing; when the line parted it was found impossible to get out another. The captain of the Deerhill signalled that he wished to abandon the wreck, and requested the Pawnee to stand by. The gale continued throughout the 9th, 10th and 11th, and the Pawnee kept her position near the wreck, but found it impossible to use the boats to remove the unfortunate people of the Deerhill, owing to the dangerous character of the seas. Finally at 7 p.m. of the 11th the rescue was effected, and the Deerhill was abandoned. The rescued people were Capt. C. W. Burns, Louisa Burns, his daughter; Hazel Merritt, the owner's daughter, and seven of the crew of the Deerhill. When Capt. Burns was seen at quarantine he said that the Deerhill was a three-masted schooner owned by W. H. Merritt and others of St. John, N.B. The Deerhill sailed from St. John on Nov. 8 for Santos with a cargo of lumber.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." MRS. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

IMITATING ONTARIO.

Though late in the day the Government of Quebec—of course under Liberal management—is beginning to imitate Ontario's ways of doing things—that is, Quebec is beginning to do public business upon the same principle that a business man conducts his private affairs. For instance, the court house at Rimouski cost $32,551. It was destroyed by fire, and it then became the duty of Mr. Duffy, as Commissioner of Public Works, to replace the building. The work was awarded to the lowest tenderer. Mr. Duffy himself drew up the contract, and no loop-holes were left for claims for extras. The contractor did the work according to agreement. The old court house had been insured, and the insurance company, when fire destroyed it, paid on the policy covering the building the sum of $16,781 and on the insurance on the furniture the sum of $1,000, making a total of $17,781 received from the insurance company by the Government. The court house was rebuilt with an additional wing of 32 feet by 32 feet, two stories high. The building cost $15,250, the fixed furniture $1,070, and the movable furniture $614, a total of $16,934, well within the sum received as insurance. The Quebec Commissioner of Public Works has evidently been studying the methods of the late Christopher Finlay Fraser.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The Toronto Star remarks that "when a United States battleship is launched the Statesers go into gush by columns. When the Irresistible, the largest battleship in the world, is launched, the British mention the fact in a paragraph." This circumstance illustrates the contrast between the national characteristics of the respective countries. When the eagle lays an egg the cackle is heard from end to end of the country. When a British warship is whelped no fuss or demonstration is made, it is taken as a matter of course. The British are accustomed to see battleships slipping into the waves they rule almost every day. So unostentatiously is the thing done that the world at large knows very little about the naval strength of Great Britain till some circumstances affords a revelation. When the German Emperor was a little "too fresh" in patting President Kruger on the back, a naval demonstration made the world wonder, made the Emperor's head swim, and suggested the humble pie he ate. Some nations "blow" about the things they do, but Great Britain does things and keeps on doing them quietly.

THE Government of the Province of Quebec seems to be pretty firmly fixed in power for the present parliamentaro term. The division list shows 51 Government supporters and 14 Opposition followers.

The Medical Profession Recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment

Dr. C. M. Harlan, writing in the American Journal of Health, February 10th, says:—"Among the proprietary medicines deserving recognition is Dr. Chase's Ointment as a remedy for Piles, Eczematic skin eruptions of all kinds, for which it has been used with marked success and has effected remarkable cures in many obstinate cases which seem to fill the skilful medical attendant."

HINTS TO CATTLE BREEDERS.

THE ADVANTAGES OF WELL-BRED GRADES.

Why the Argentine Leads Canada in Stock Supplier to the British Market—The Lesson of the Brantford Fat Stock Show.

How is it, we are asked, that while Canada's exports of cattle to Great Britain have increased from 95,993 in 1895 to 126,495—or at the rate of 18 per cent—the arrivals from Argentina have grown from 39,494 to 73,887 in the same period, or at the rate of 78 per cent? The answer will be found by any reader who turns to the successive reports of the high commissioner for some years past. In these reports attention has again and again been called to the fact that Argentina is forging ahead simply because she is sending a better class of stock. The Canadian producers can do equally well if he will only follow the same tactics, and improve the quality of his export. He can hardly be blind to the truth that the cost of transport for high-class stock and for inferior beasts is just the same, while for the latter he must be content with a much lower price. Why, then, does he not profit by experience, change his methods, and seek to supply a type of animal which will hold its own with any that Argentina can send?

A very practical commentary on these questions is the following extract from the report of Mr. F. W. Hodson, secretary of the Brantford Fat Stock Show, under the head of GRADE CATTLE.

These classes attract the most attention, and are really the ones that prove what breed is best adapted to Canadian agriculture. It is to the breeders of these cattle that we must commit our reputations as progressive stock breeders abroad. We are there judged by the stock we put upon the market, not by the thoroughbreds we may buy and show at our home fairs. It is upon our commercial cattle the verdict is pronounced and the question asked, What are you doing with your thoroughbred stock? If they are merely plaything for the rich and the country at large is reaping no benefit from them, and the stock at large is not improved by their use, then they are of little value, and this is the final test of all the required beef breeds. What are they doing for the country? It does not require an extraordinary brilliant man to read the lesson that may be learned at this show. I will put a question that cannot be answered, but it may lead to thought. If all the commercial cattle that have been sold from Ontario since the last Fat Stock Show had been as well fed and had the same class of bulls for sires as had the grades on exhibition at Brantford, how much would be added to the wealth of the country? In the two-year-old steer class, J. Campbell led off with a grade son of Indian Chief. He was second last year. Jas. Leask showed two good ones, both sons of Moneyfuffle (sic a name). In the yearling class, J. Leask was first and third, the white proving the conquerer though the roan had beaten him elsewhere, but the decision was right. We learned that Leask's two were by Capt. Robson's sweepstake bull. Fried also showed three extra ones, all red, and I am inclined to think there is a dark horse in the lot.

Cows and heifers.—Up to this all the winners were Shorthorn grades. In the three year old class, Jas. Bowman was an easy winner with an Angus-Shorthorn cow. She was large, evenly fleshed, not a sign of blubber, though past the mark of age. Under three, dished up a hot lot of heifers. Jas. Leask led off with a cracker, about as correct in outline and finish as a grade could be expected to be. Fried here sent forward a capital white which was easily second and not disgraced. Yearling class again saw Leask to the front, with Campbell second. The championship was soon settled. It finally lay between J. Campbell's grade and Wilson's thoroughbred, the former won judging from the butcher's standard. He had the greater proportion of high priced meat in percentage to the low priced than any of his competitors. Were the prizes however, to be awarded entirely on these grounds, my opinion is Walter Hall's Angus would outdress any other, and in Chicago would command fifty cents per hundred more than anything in the ring. A feeder would have gone for Wilson's pure bred; he was thicker in flesh and carried perhaps 250 pounds below—low priced meat, I admit—but when the feeder sells, it has to be paid for. So here is the situation, suppose you were judge, place the ribbon, my readers, to suit yourselves. Never were classes better judged according to the writer's ideas, and it is but right that their work should be recognized. Thos. Crawford, M.P.P., Toronto, and Jas. Smith, Brantford, placed the ribbons.

PEARSON THE PRINTER.

Threw Bricks Into the British Embassy at Washington.

Washington, Dec. 17.—The police have under arrest Joseph W. Pearson, a printer, 26 years of age, who last night made a violent attack on the British embassy with bricks, which he flung into the drawing room, in which members of the family of Sir Julian Pauncefote were seated. Miss Pauncefote was struck by a brick, which slightly injured her ankle. Several windows were smashed, and the magnificent cut glass of the main entrance doors was broken and ruined. The total damage will amount to $700. Pearson's offence may be a very serious one, should he be adjudged sane, as special laws govern the case of foreign legations and embassies.

Probably Insane.

The petition for a writ de lunatico inquirendo was made yesterday afternoon by Pearson's mother, who expressed her belief that her son's insanity is due to excessive study. She says he had threatened the life of a brother, and had said that on Dec. 13 the President and his officers would leave the United States never to return. He had never expressed any ill-will heretofore toward the British ambassador or British Government, but now says he is the instrument to settle the grievances and complaints the people of the United States have against the British Empire. Judge Cox directed that the writ issue and the inquiry probably will be held next week. Pearson, who is now confined in a station, grew violent in the afternoon.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

FLOUR TRUST KNOCKED OUT.

Minneapolis Mills Decide to Keep Clear of the Combine.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 17.—The flour trust is dead, as far as Minneapolis mills are concerned. At a meeting of representatives of the three milling concerns, the Pillsbury-Washburn Flour Mills Company, the Northwest Consolidated Company and the Washburn-Crosby Company, it was unanimously agreed that none of the Minneapolis properties should go into the McIntyre consolidation scheme, and that no further attention should be given to the matter.

The mills at Milwaukee and Duluth will in all probability follow the lead of the Minneapolis millers.

A Boy Drowned.

Brougham, Ont., Dec. 17.—A very sad accident occurred near here yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, in which Willie, the 5-year-old son of Robert Dafoe, lost his life by drowning. The little fellow was running through the yard, and fell through a trap door into a cistern. When found about 15 minutes after life was extinct.

FIGHTING A LIGHT MONOPOLY.

Old London Is Aroused Over the Attempt to Grab One.

London, Dec. 17.—Former Lord Mayor Savory's suit has led to a memorial being presented to the corporation, with 5,000 signatures of city bankers, insurance companies and merchants, protesting against the monopoly contract held by the London Electric Lighting Company, which was promoted by Savory.

In the discussion at the City Common Council yesterday, the speakers advocated the grant of the memorial as coming from distinguished citizens, and not adventurous speculators. It was contended that contracts with the electric company are legally void, because members of the corporation are interested therein, against the law. The memorial was referred to a committee. There is a strong city movement to compel all of the aldermen concerned in the case to resign.

Lord Beresford's Report on China.

Shanghai, Dec. 17.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford has arrived in this city with important data gathered in a journey of several months through the Chinese Empire.

One of the most emphatic of his recommendations to the British Government as a result of his trip will be the necessity of occupying Kiangning, as the strongest strategic point for the control of the Yangtse Valley.

Lord Beresford has been exploring China as the representative of British commercial bodies, to report on the best means of protecting and extending British interests in the Chinese Empire.

He will make a tour of America before returning to England. From Shanghai he will proceed to Tokio and Yokohama, Japan, hence passage will be taken to San Francisco.

The Pope Thanks McKinley.

London, Dec. 17.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "In response to the Vatican's enquiry on the subject, President McKinley has sent an assurance that the Catholics in Cuba and the Philippines will enjoy the same liberty as the Catholics in America. The Washington Government has also promised the Pope that measures will be taken to prevent provisional governments despoiling convents or seizing ecclesiastical property. The Pope has sent the warmest thanks to President McKinley."

Britain and Italy Agree.

London, Dec. 17.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, Signor del Baono asserted the existence of an agreement, equivalent to a formal treaty, between Italy and Great Britain, for the maintenance of the status quo in Africa along the Red Sea and the Mediterranean, and in the hinterlands of Tripoli and Raheita, as well as in the Soudan. It is noteworthy that his statement was not contradicted by the Government."

Unhappy Spain.

The most rigorous censorship of telegrams is maintained, and all messages relative to Carlist movements are stopped. Accounts of the recent disturbances in Havana are strictly prohibited.

THE CZAR A DECENT FELLOW.

Will Enquire Into and Redress Grievances Among the Siberian Criminals.

Moscow, Russia, Dec. 19.—A despatch has just been received from Gen. Liapounoff, the new Military Governor of the Island of Sakhalin, Siberia, announcing his arrival at his post. Gen. Liapounoff goes under direct commission from the Czar to introduce reforms in the administration of the penal settlements of that portion of Siberia. Thirty thousand convicts are now colonized on the island, and their condition is said to be frightful. Gen. Liapounoff telegraphs that he has already promulgated the Czar's manifesto promising justice and mercy to the prisoners, and draconic punishment of official servants who shall prove to have been unworthy. The Czar has been determined since intelligence of the fraud and misrule and cruelty practiced came to his ears to reform the administration of the colony.

A Sample Siberian Atrocity.

Vienna, Dec. 19.—The Neue Freie Presse gives particulars of a Siberian atrocity committed at Scherdowka, near Irkutsk. A gang of political prisoners had reached there on their way to Saghalien, when one of them begged Col. Bassarba, who commanded the escort, for permission to buy food to supplement the scanty rations allowed the convicts. Col. Bassarba at once ordered his men to shoot the prisoner. Another prisoner intervened to beg for his friend's life, and he, too, was shot dead on the spot. A third prisoner, who murmured at these cruelties, was also shot. Three other prisoners who seemed dissatisfied with the fate of their comrades were singled out by the bloodthirsty colonel and shot, while 20 others were wounded by a volley which the escort directed at the gang. Col. Bassarba was commended for zeal in maintaining discipline.

Peace Demonstration.

London, Dec. 19.—The Venerable William Macdonald Sinclair, Archdeacon of London and Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, presided at a public conference at St. James' Hall yesterday, convened by the heads of the various religious denominations in favor of an international demonstration on behalf of the Czar's disarmament proposals.

A telegram expressing sympathy with the effort was received from Lord Rosebery. Among the letters read by the chairman from prominent people was one sent by Lord George Hamilton, Secretary of State for India, who wrote advocating "an Anglo-Russian understanding, of which the Czar's rescript ought to be the foundation."

A resolution in accordance with the objects of the conveners of the conference was adopted unanimously.

THE CUBAN TARIFF.

The Duties Which Will Be Collected on and After Jan. 1.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—President McKinley, before leaving for the South last Tuesday, signed an executive order establishing a customs tariff for the Island of Cuba, to go into effect Jan. 1 next. The more important items are as follows: Fresh beef, mutton or pork, $4.50 per 100 kilograms net weight; salt cod and stock fish, $2; herring, pickled, $1; mackerel, pickled, $2; salmon, canned, $5; eggs, $5.

On wheat there is a duty of 60 cents; corn, 30 cents; potatoes, 50 cents; wheat flour, $1.50; beans, $1.10.

Horses are taxed $10; cattle, pigs and sheep, $1.

The export rates of duty are: Tobacco—Cigarets in boxes, per 1000, 90 cents; tobacco, cut, $3.75 per 100 kilos; other, $6.30; cigars, per 1000, 45 cents.

The entire duties will be collected in United States currency.

Hudson Bay Route Useless.

Winnipeg, Dec. 17.—James Fisher, M.P.P., who accompanied the Dominion Government expedition on the steamer Diana to Hudson Bay last year, has presented his report to the Manitoba Government. His conclusion is that the Hudson Bay route can never be a factor in competing for trade for Manitoba, except, possibly, very northwesterly portions. The report is very exhaustive, comprising 40,000 words. Mr. Fisher says: "If we had a route by Hudson Bay to-morrow, it would not be a factor in transporting the produce of Manitoba and the west."

A MANITOBA MAN

Suffered Agony From Kidney Disease.

Doan's Kidney Pills have Completely Cured Him.

There is scarcely any place in this Dominion where Doan's Kidney Pills are not held in high esteem on account of their wonderful power in conquering kidney diseases and disorders after other remedies fail.

Mr. Alexander Fraser, a well-known and prosperous farmer of Miami, Man., went the rounds of other remedies—they failed to relieve his suffering and cure him—Doan's Kidney Pills did. His experience therefore is well worth reading:

"I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from the Miami Drug Store, determining to give them a chance to cure me of the kidney complaint, from which I have suffered for some time, and which has become so bad latterly that I could scarcely endure it. I may say that it resulted from a fall which I received a few months back. After using several kidney pills and cures of several kinds, but without receiving any benefit, I am pleased to testify to the great benefit I have derived from Doan's Kidney Pills. I have used only one box up to this date, and the change in my condition is so great that I cannot refrain from recommending them to any person afflicted as I have been, or troubled with any kidney disorder, for I believe that if they would cure me they would cure almost any case. I will be able to resume my farm work now, as usual, and it is not the lightest work either."

BOY LOST HIS ARM.

Claude Brown of Tilsonburg Caught by Machinery and Crippled.

Tilsonburg, Dec. 17.—A serious accident occurred in the Tilson Company's stave factory yesterday afternoon. A young lad named Claude Brown, aged 16, son of Albert Brown, who was killed on the new railway bridge here recently, accidentally got his left arm caught in one of the heading machines, and it was so badly mangled that it had to be amputated between the wrist and elbow. The young fellow is the main support of a widowed mother and several small children. Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Brown.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS SHY.

Reciprocity Looked Askance—Another Meeting to Be Held—The Date of the Christmas Vacation and Resumption of the Business in January—War Vessels on the Lakes.

Washington, Dec. 17.—When the joint high commission met yesterday morning the Americans announced that they were not in a position to make a definite statement relative to the latest Canadian proposals or submit counter-proposals of their own regarding reciprocity, but hoped to be in a position to do so to-day (Saturday). An adjournment was therefore agreed to, and the British and American commissioners afterward met separately for conference. The meeting of the Americans was quite protracted and the result is unknown.

Republican Senators Balky.

It is well understood, however, that the commissioners are now agreed as to what they should offer, and that the fickleness of certain Senators is the only cause of delay. Senator Faulkner, it is stated, has been very successful in securing pledges of Democratic support for the treaty, and the difficulty seems to be entirely among the Republican high protectionists. They doubtless fear that even a limited reciprocity schedule will give a weapon to the tariff reform element in Congress that may hereafter be used to advantage.

The Christmas Vacation.

Lord Herschell, who during the past week has had frequent conferences with Senator Fairbanks, will probably be even more disappointed than his Canadian colleagues, for the delay is keeping him on this side of the Atlantic when there is urgent need of his presence in England. For his convenience the Christmas vacation will be shortened as much as possible, the date for resumption favored by the British commissioners being January 4 or 5.

Sir James Winter, who left for home last evening, will not return to Washington, as that part of the business in which he is interested has been practically completed. If the commissioners go to Quebec to sign the document, however, Sir James may take a run over to affix his signature.

Notwithstanding the delay of the last few days, there seems to be no abatement of confidence on the part of anyone in a final settlement on lines acceptable to both countries.

The committee on bonding privileges met yesterday afternoon and held a somewhat protracted session. The members are Sir Wilfrid, Senator Fairbanks, Sir Richard and Mr. Coolidge. Lord Herschell was also present and participated in the discussion.

War Vessels on the Lakes.

By the convention of 1817 both Canada and the United States are prohibited from building war vessels on the lakes, with the exception of four small craft for each nation. At present it is well known that strong pressure is being put upon the President to put an end to that convention, which he can do simply by giving six months' notice to that effect. The plan is set forth that the sovereignty of the United States is abridged in an important particular by the terms of that convention; that every nation has a right to use the shores of its own waters for building purposes as well as for any other. This appeal to national pride receives an additional impetus from the fact that the shipbuilders on the great lakes want to have their share of the naval expenditure which Congress will order during the present session. Should the President give notice of the termination of the convention of 1817 the United States' power to build warships in the interior States would be absolutely unrestricted.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. Opera House To-night.

The Orrie Ober Stock Company open a week's engagement at the Opera House to-night, presenting the beautiful dramatic success, "Forgiven". This company comes to Peterborough highly recommended as an organization of ladies and gentlemen of more than usual ability. The presentations to be given during this engagement include the best and most successful plays of repertoire, presented with every attention to detail. Pleasing high-class specialties will be given during the evening, and theatre-goers will be afforded an evening of rare entertainment. To-night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by a paid admission ticket. Prices, 10, 15 and 25 cents.

Personal.

For the sake of your family, yourself and your friends, don't delay the Christmas shopping. Henry & Co., grocers and wine merchants, are particularly anxious to give prompt service during this Christmas week. If shopping can be done early in the week it will certainly be much more satisfactory than if it is all left until the last day or two, when all will be topsy-turvy. Not that we won't try to serve all, but simply the usual holiday rush will make it somewhat unpleasant to shop. For instance, the weather is likely to be cold, and ales and porters do not improve by being delayed in the cold late on a Xmas eve. Henry & Co. have an immense stock of Wines and Liquors for the holiday season, and of the best Ales and Porters, kept in the finest condition. We are always pleased to serve our customers with the best goods in the best condition, and would request our friends to order early week and avoid the rush.—HENRY Co.

An Exciting Bear Hunt.

One day last week, says the Lakefield News, two young men, Messrs. Gerald Hayward and Charles Bell, went up near Burleigh on a day's hunt. While in the woods they came across a number of of big tracks in the snow, and on examining them came to the conclusion that it was a bear's track, and following it with their eyes it stopped at a big pine stump. With stealthy steps and trembling with excitement they approached the stump, and, discovering a hole in the stump, they built a fire and tried to smoke brain out. In this they were not successful, and having only a shot gun they hurried home and secured a rifle. On their return the fire was still burning, and building another one they waited patiently for the stump to fall. It soon came down and out rushed the animal, which, with a few well-directed shots, they laid low. With great difficulty they conveyed the game to camp, and, with their minds filled with the story they would tell their friends, returned home. Their bear was a porcupine.

Fairyland.

The popular idea of the appearance of the fairyland is a mere matter of speculation, according to the taste of the individual, but one would think that it looks like the Peterborough Bookstore in its present holiday condition. The brilliant array of gift goods, the glitter of silver brie a-brac, the sparkle of cut glass, the warm glow and yellow flash of bronze and brass art work, the rich and brilliant coverings of splendid gift books ranged on counters and tables, make a brilliant and enticing sight. Never before in town has a more splendid stock been laid in and never before has a stock been arranged and displayed in so enticing a form and to so strongly suggest at least one conception of a glimpse of fairyland. Description by words conveys no more idea of the beauty of the Peterborough Bookstore's gorgeous and elaborate display than a painting can express the exquisite odour of an English violet. Seeing only is what will form the idea; and seeing is desiring, and desiring is equivalent to purchasing, for the prices are so moderate as to suggest that in marking these beautiful wares, profit has been lost sight of.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS FOR HOCKEY.

A Number of Good Men From Outside Who Have Located in Town During the Summer and Will Play the Game.

HOCKEY.

Hockey enthusiasts in town are jubilating over the fact that there is every evidence of the senior team being stronger than ever this season. New blood is to be infused, and the report is that it will be very blue blood too, and of the kind which will materially strengthen the team.

Harold Reynolds, the well-known left forward of the champion Montreal Intermediate team, is one of the new men in town. Last year the Montreal second team was almost invincible and easily landed the championship of the big league. Reynolds played on the team throughout the season, and if he decides to spend the winter in town, will doubtless be a great find for the Peterboroughs, who badly need a man on the left wing. The Montrealer played with Brittania Rugby team during the fall and is a broad-shouldered, stocky lad, having the appearances of a speedy puck chaser. Another new man is Stewart who is with the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co. and last year figured conspicuously on the defense of the fast Young Capital team of Ottawa. Efforts are being made to induce him to return to Ottawa for the winter, but he likes Peterborough and will remain here and in all probability will wear the crimson and white on the ice this winter.

Reynolds will be out to practice with the boys this evening and Stewart makes his first appearance on the ice Wednesday night.

The Executive of the O.H.A. held a lengthy discussion Saturday at the Rossin, but the schedule was not completed, and was left over until to-morrow. The sub-committee was appointed as follows: Messrs. Macdonald, McMurrich and Beaton. The use of the goal nets was discussed, but it was decided to leave the matter over until they had been tried in Quebec. The T.R.C. and Wellington teams were admitted to membership in the senior series. The first game in the senior series will be played between T.R.C. and Varsity, at the Victoria rink, on Jan 16th. The Wellingtons will meet Peterborough and Osgoode Hall will run up against Stratford on the same date. The members present were:—President Creelman, Vice-Presidents Robertson and Macdonald, Secretary A. H. Beaton, Lionel Ling, Geo. Gray, J. McMurrich, Gautier, E. P. Brown and F. Morrison.

It is expected that "Mac" Murray, who has played here both with the Victorias and Frontenacs of Kingston, will take up residence in town next week. He is a forward man.

Meagher, of last year's Cornwall team, will be out on the ice to-night for his first practice.

A general practice is called for to-night. All players should be on hand.

A meeting of the Executive is called for Wednesday evening at the rink.

Two teams of the Colts had a lively practice in the rink on Saturday night. Last year's players were easily picked out through their neat stickhandling, although the new men are weightier. Judging from the manner in which the players acquitted themselves the team for the first match will doubtless be composed of Will. McDonald, goal; Eddie Graham, point; Harold Armstrong, cover point; Harry King, Hubert McBain, Stanley Bradd and Harry Morgan, forwards. Morgan is a new man on the ice, but he is a comer, being a very strong skater. The knack of skilful stick-handling can only be acquired by practice. Armstrong at cover promises to develop in a couple of years into the best defense man that Peterborough has produced. All he needs now is the weight.

VACCINATION.

The Council, the Board of Health and the Board of Education, though they have more or less considered the subject, have not inaugurated any scheme for the vaccination of our school children. However, in view of the fact that vaccination is a protection against this loathsome disease, and in face of the further fact that the danger of infection from smallpox is always present, it would seem that some definite and decided action should be taken. It is years since anything like general vaccination was done in the town and we are therefore in poor shape to meet an attack that may come almost any day.

The city of Toronto is only a couple of hours from Peterborough and with the frequent interchange by travel the smallpox, that is said to exist in that city may be very easily transmitted to Peterborough. Though the Toronto authorities and the newspapers are keeping the knowledge private, there seems to be every reason to believe that several cases of smallpox exist in the city. A citizen has received a letter from a friend in Toronto stating that last week two cases of smallpox developed in one of the departmental stores of that city, and were removed to an hospital. The letter stated that one saleswoman was attacked and removed on Wednesday, and another on Saturday, and that arrangements were made with the newspapers that the matter should be kept quiet. Under the circumstances, with the throngs that go and come at such stores, the danger of contagion from a visit to the affected place is very great.

The School Board, the Board of Health and other authorities can see that it would at least be a wise precaution to have some move made in the direction of general vaccination. We can't shut out the possibility of contagion, but we can prepare ourselves by the best means known to medical science—vaccination.

THE FIRST CANADIAN THANKSGIVING DAY.

A regular reader of the EXAMINER inquires as to the date of the first thanksgiving day of Canada. The first thanksgiving day of a national character was celebrated in recognition of the peace brought about between Great Britain and France by the treaty of Paris—on September 23th, 1763. Of course Canada did not then exist with its present boundaries. The celebration, which was of a military character, was made both at Halifax and Quebec on the above date.

The first civil thanksgiving day was proclaimed in the Canada Gazette on Oct. 18th, 1879, and the first thanksgiving of a purely national and popular character was consequently observed on November 6th, 1879.

OBITUARY.

Death of a Former Resident of Peterborough in Bowmanville.

Mr. William McCowan, who for many years was foreman of the Peterborough EXAMINER during the time that the EXAMINER was in the present Public Library building on Water street, and during the period of the proprietorship of the paper by Messrs. Graham & Stratton, died at Bowmanville on Friday, 16th inst., interment taking place in the Bowmanville cemetery on Sunday, 18th.

Those who worked under Mr. McCowan speak of him as an excellent printer, of a kind-hearted and genial disposition, and a number of his friends who will remember him in Peterborough will regret to hear of his death at the age of 61.

Since leaving Peterborough Mr. McCowan has been employed on the Bowmanville Statesman. He leaves a widow but no children.

WEDDING BELLS.

Marriage of Miss Maud Bothwell and Mr. David Mahood, on Wednesday Evening.

On Wednesday, Dec. 14th, the beautiful residence of Mr. John Bothwell, Cavan, was the scene of a very happy event, it being the marriage of his daughter, Maud, to Mr. David Mahood, of Smith.

Rev. A. J. McMullen, of the Springville Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the drawing room, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. McMullen played the wedding march as the bride entered the room leaning on the arm of her father, and stood beneath a canopy and ring of chrysanthemums. The bride looked most charming in a handsome gown of cream and silk, with garniture of pearl passementerie and silk lace, and wore the conventional veil with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

She was assisted by her sister, Miss Jenny Bothwell, who was attired in white mousseline de soie, over blue trimmed with valenciennes lace and ribbon, carrying a shower bouquet of pink carnations.

Little Pearl Ruth, neice of the groom, who was attired in pale blue cashmere, trimmed with ribbon and carried a basket of pink and white carnations, made a sweet little maid of honour. Mr. John Mahood, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

After the ceremony and felicitous congratulations, a most recherche dejeuner was served, about seventy-five invited guests being present, after which an informal reception was held.

The many handsome and costly presents testify to the high esteem in which the bride and groom were held by their many friends, the bride being a member of the Sunday school and choir. Mr. and Mrs. Mahood will take up their residence in Smith.

GRAFTON & CO.'S NOVEL ATTRACTION.

The Little Midgets Were Great Winners—A Saturday Blockade.

Major Winner and wife, the midgets, who have been giving daily receptions at Grafton & Co.'s Clothing Store for the past week, closed a highly successful engagement in Peterborough Saturday night. The increasing daily jam of visitors to Grafton & Co.'s culminated on Saturday and Saturday evening in a complete blockade. Street, sidewalk, doors and store were blocked so that it became necessary to put into force a systematic plan of regularly clearing the sidewalk, and closing the doors at intervals, to enable the throng to get into the store. The Major and wife estimate the number of their callers on Saturday at ten thousand. Certain it is that Grafton & Co. never before attracted anything like the crowds to their store. They report an unparalelled number of sales during every day of last week. Mr. Conway, the local manager, in reply to a question, stated that the great crowds did not impede business, as might be presumed ; but, on the contrary, the people were so handled that the constant stream kept moving on smoothly, while buyers dropped out of the procession and the clink of the cashier's till was kept up in the liveliest manner imaginable. 1d1w

REV. W. R. YOUNG IN GEORGE ST. CHURCH.

HE PREACHED EDUCATIONAL SERMONS YESTERDAY.

Large Congregations Present at Both Morning and Evening Services—Special Music Rendered.

Rev. W. R. Young of Port Hope, preached educational sermons in the George street Methodist church yesterday, both morning and evening, to large congregations.

In the evening the church was crowded to the doors. The text for the sermon was from Genesis iv, 9th verse : "And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel, thy brother ? And he said I know not ; am I my brother's keeper ?"

Whatever scientists might prove, the speaker claimed, as to man's physical nature being the growth from a lower to a higher plane, there was no doubt as to the evolution in our moral nature. The seed or germ of wickedness in the child developed into a mighty power, controlling the whole man. The erring child of to-day developed into the sin-saturated man of to-morrow. It was pleasant to think of the world growing better from day to day, but it was equally true that an evolution was going on at the same time from bad to worse. Cain was the first to inherit a corrupt nature and became a murderer, seeking to deny all knowledge of his crime.

Taking the question of Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper ?" as applicable to every man, it must be answered in the affirmative by all recognizing the responsibility of living.

A man cannot live to himself in these days. All were benefactors and all were beneficiaries in this world. Any man having an opportunity of doing a good thing was under a compliment to the man to whom he did it for giving him that privilege, and on the other hand the receiver of the good should return thanks.

When human society is so closely entwined as in the present day there can be but one answer to the question in point, and God Almighty will hold all responsible for it.

Influence is a big factor in the world. It was the ascendancy which one gained over his fellows, as a hypnotist controlled his subjects. Man exercised a power over his fellows and all must beware of uttering a hasty word which might have, therefore, a far-reaching effect. None but God can estimate the power of influence.

The power of influence carries through words and acts.

The speaker gave many examples of how a word or action, however insignificant, produced a lasting effect on the life of another.

If men would take the power called influence and concentrate it in truth and goodness the world would be lifted up and brought nearer the sun.

The choir produced excellent music at both services.

The morning anthem "Create within me a clean heart," was very harmoniously rendered. The solo "Eye hath not seen," from the "Holy City," was given by Miss L. Pascoe, with good effect. The evening anthem, the old favourite, "Seek ye the Lord," was given with fine effect. Miss Clara Belleghem sang the solo and obligato passages with rare sweetness and expression.

The chorus "Sweet Sabbath Eve" was rendered by the ladies of the choir. The beautiful sentiment expressed in that excellent piece of music was well brought out and the chorus was much appreciated.

MR. McINTOSH RETIRES FROM THE REEVESHIP.

He Withdraws From Municipal Life—Mr. T. M. Hunter a Candidate for Succession to the Office.

At the close of the statutory sessions of the council, the present reeve, Mr. John McIntosh, in a few well chosen remarks, announced his intention of withdrawing from municipal life. He said this would be the last session at which he would preside, after a career of nearly a score of years. As a member of the North Monaghan council he felt he could honourably retire and make room for some other to assume the responsibility and duty that goes along with municipal honours. He took this opportunity of thanking his colleagues for their able assistance in the performance of his duties as their presiding officer for the last two years, and also thanked the ratepayers generally for the friendliness and support at all times accorded to him. He wished the incoming council every success in the future and generously offered his services and experience, should those who are serving as his successors require it at any time.

In the course of the mutual congratulations, returns of the compliments of the season, etc., which followed the reeve's remarks, Mr. Thos. Hunter, the present "father of the council," announced his purpose of now aspiring to the reeveship, he jokingly said "first come first served" was his motto, and he was first in the field and prepared for any event, and he hoped that event would be his election by acclamation to the honourable position of reeve of North Monaghan for the year 1899.

FIRE IN DUMMER.

Forty Hogs Belonging to William Crowe were Cremated.

On Monday morning of last week at 5 30 o'clock, fire broke out in a hog pen on the homestead of the late David and Wm. Crowe at Hall's Glen, North Dummer. The pen was a separate building, and was a large and modern affair, being built with a large root house, cistern and a stone furnace for boiling feed. The furnace had been completed only on the Friday before and the fire was first kindled on Saturday. On Sunday night care was taken that the fire was extinguished, but it must have lodged somewhere and burned through, for early on Monday morning the building was discovered in flames.

In the pen were forty hogs which had been put in to fatten, and were in good condition. They were all burned.

The barns and sheds were only about 10 feet on either side of the pen, and though both they and the house were covered with cinders several times they fortunately did not take fire, the direction of the wind saving them.

Neither the building nor the hogs were insured, and the loss will fall heavily upon the owners.

Baby Eczema and Scald Head.

Infants and young children are peculiarly subject to this terrible disorder, and if not promptly arrested it will eventually become chronic. Dr Chase made a special study of eczema and diseases of the skin, and we can confidently recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure all forms of eczema. The first application soothes the irritation and puts the little sufferer to rest.

LECTURE TO MEN.

St. John, the Baptist, as the great precursor of Jesus Christ, occupied the attention of the audience at the men's course of lectures at St. John's church yesterday afternoon.

Of John was spoken the greatest tribute to mortal being, in the words of Jesus : "Of those born of women none is greater than John the Baptist." A man is only great in so far as he rises superior to ideals of his day and environments of his life. In order to estimate and appreciate the greatness of St. John a glance at the conditions of life in Syria prior to his day is necessary. The lecturer traced the social, political and religious life of the age, and in the life of John the Baptist endeavoured to indicate that he borrowed nothing from the existing precepts of the day, but rose to an ideal position in his strong opposition to all vices and abuses of society. His preaching was in some measure harsh and severe, designed rather to arrest and convict than to sooth and console, yet at times his tone is changed to greater moderation. In the necessary preparation for the coming Kingdom, no class or caste escaped his strong denunciation. His life was short in days, but long in the accomplishment of his work ; and his death tragic.

For two Sundays this course of lectures will be discontinued. On Jan. 8th they will be resumed with a lecture on "The Roman Church of the Roman Empire."

ARMED BANDS IN CHINA.

Depredations of the Rebels in Western China—A Determination to Banish Foreigners and Christianity.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 17.—The steamer Empress of India brings news from Chung King, China, via Shanghai, that business is paralyzed throughout the western Chinese Province of Szchunen because of the depredations of Yumantze and his band of 5,000 rebels, who are thoroughly disciplined and wear a uniform having for its distinguishing feature the Chinese character meaning "Avenge." They are determined to rid China of all foreigners and to stamp out the Christian religion.

There are 6,000 Catholic refugees in Chung King, and the property destroyed by the rebels is estimated at 5,000,000 taels. During their raids they have rendered 20,000 people, mostly native Christians, homeless, and 62 lives have been taken, including several European missionaries.

Yumantze recently beheaded two Catholic missionaries which the city of Yuin Chuan gave up to him as hostages. He offered them their lives if they would renounce their religion, but they refused.

J. Fleming, an English missionary, has been killed by natives and soldiers at Tsing Ping.

France demands 5,000,000 taels damages for the destruction of the French mission property.

Their Excellencies' Reception.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Strains of music filled the air as hundreds of citizens thronged yesterday from 4 to 6 at Government House to attend the vice-regal reception. Lord and Lady Minto received, together with Lady Beauclerc, Major and Mrs. Drummond. The roomy halls and corridors were filled with a vast concourse of people, and a tempting buffet attracted the many guests. Over a thousand ladies and gentlemen attended. The vice-regal party left for Ottawa via C.P.R. at 9.35.

Burglars Stole Clothes.

Brighton, Ont., Dec. 17.—Yesterday morning the clothing establishment of Mr. W. N. Davidson here was burglarized. The miscreants procured large chisels from a wood shop and opened the door. The three helped themselves to the ready-made clothing, underwear, hats and socks, and then made their way to the Public School, where they changed their wearing apparel.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easiest work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the gladsome glow of girlhood.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. Of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the lowering rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

CHAPTER VIII.

A CLEVER REPORTER, AND A VEILED FEMALE.

Dr. Rice came forth from the questionable house in which lay the wounded woman, who had become an object of interest to Neil Bathurst. As he came briskly down the steps, a young man, faultlessly attired, and wearing immaculate mutton-chop whiskers, approached him.

"Good morning, sir," said this personage. "I presume I am speaking to Doctor Rice ?"

"You are," replied the little doctor, somewhat stiffly.

"Pardon my presumption," said the mutton-chop young man, as he adjusted a pair of gold-bowed spectacles. "I am a newspaper man, and as such, know, by sight at least, a great many of our prominent professional men. This is how I recognized you."

"Ah !" replied the doctor, in a mollified tone, "happy to meet you, sir. Can I serve you in any way ?"

"Frankly, sir, you can," replied the young man, in a manner so charmingly respectful that it went straight to the doctor's heart. "In my capacity of reporter, I would like a statement of the case which you have just left—the woman who was stabbed last evening. I knew that from you I would hear nothing save the truth, while the inmates of the house would give a garbled account, if they did not indulge in absolute fiction. Can you spare me a few moments ?"

The doctor consulted his timekeeper gravely, and then replied,

"I can give you or ten fifteen minutes. Yes."

"Then may I ask you to step into the nearest restaurant ? We can get a glass of wine and a cigar, and talk at ease."

"Certainly," replied the doctor, with beaming countenance; "certainly, sir."

The "nearest restaurant" was just around the corner, and in a few moments the two were seated cosily at a little table, with a bottle of wine between them, and cigars ready to hand.

After listening to a somewhat tedious statement of the events of the previous evening, the reporter asked, as he made a little entry in his notebook :—

"And—how do you find the injured woman this morning ?"

"Better, much better."

"There is no clue to her identity, you say, or to the cause of the assault ?"

"Nothing definite. The woman who keeps the house says that she believes a girl, who left last night very soon after the stabbing affair took place, could have given some information, as she was in the room next to the one where the thing happened. She also says, that she believes the man who was the first on the scene, the one who rushed in and broke open the door, you remember, is at the bottom of the mystery concerning the sudden departure of the girl. For her going was a surprise to all in the house."

"Ah, indeed ! then the affair remains a mystery ?" said the reporter. "Doctor, let me fill your glass."

The doctor allowed his glass to be refilled, with the unconscious air of a Betsey Prig, as he replied :—

"Not quite. My patient was able to talk some this morning; was quite excited, in fact; I judged it better to let her talk a very little, as there was evidently something on her mind. From a few disjointed assertions, and by asking questions, which she could answer in monosyllables, or by a feeble gesture, we gathered something of her meaning. It seems there was a strife about a pocketbook containing some papers. She signified that the pocketbook was thrown down on the floor near the bed; was lying there when the man struck her, and she fell. She wanted it, but it was not to be found. She does not think the man took it; and one of the women declares that she saw the stranger, who was first on the scene, stoop down and pick up something near the bed. His movement was so quick she could not seen the object, as she was peeping in at the door, afraid to enter. The sick woman is very anxious about the wallet—but it is not to be found; who has it is more than I can guess."

"Really !" making an entry in his notebook. "There seems quite a mystery here. Will the woman recover, doctor ?"

"I think so. I think—she will. She will be removed to the hospital soon. She signified her wish to be removed this morning. She is not without funds. Mrs. O'Grady, a neighbour, who volunteered to look after her while she stayed in the house, and who seems an honest soul, took charge of a purse which contains considerable money. I think we will take her to the Sisters hospital, and the money as well as the woman will be in good hands."

"True, quite true," shutting up and pocketing the notebook as if the business portion of the interview was at an end. "Doctor, I owe you a thousand thanks. Permit me to refill your glass."

The doctor permitted him, and shortly the two men separated with many expressions of politeness and a friendly shake of the hand.

"That's a fine young fellow," mused the doctor, as he watched the spectacled young reporter pass swiftly down the street. "But—why, bless me, if I ever thought to ask his name, or the name of his paper."

That afternoon a boy rang the bell of the house where the wounded woman lay, and asked for Mrs. O'Grady. That good woman appearing speedily, the boy put a note in her hand, and sped away. Opening the envelope, Mrs. O'Grady found in her hand a crisp ten-dollar bill, and a scrap of paper upon which was scrawled :—

"To Mrs. O'Grady, for her care of the lady who was stabbed."

"Humph," muttered the woman, "I suppose it is from the sandy-haired man what made off with the wallet. Well, this is clever of him, anyhow." And pocketing the money she went back to her charge.

At dusk of that same day, Rob Jocelyn, still in his disreputable disguise, was lounging within sight of the genteel private boarding-house which he had ascertained to be the temporary home of the man he had been shadowing for two days. It had not taken the jovial expert long to decide upon the room which was occupied by his quarry, and his eyes were now directed toward the window of the room.

"He is lighting up and closing up things," he muttered. "Acts as if he intended to stay indoors to-night."

As he thus mused, a female form came down the street on the opposite side, and, pausing for a moment, as if peering through the dusk to ascertain if she had found the right number, passed up the steps and rang the bell. As the door opened and the gaslight from the hall lit up the form in the doorway, Jocelyn observed that the visitor was tall, and dressed entirely in black. In another moment the door had closed upon the dark-robed figure, and the detective again turned his eyes toward that upper window. Suddenly he gave a violent start, and exxclaimed, under his breath :—

"Ah, ha ! there she is, in the man's very room, as I live ! You should look to your blinds, good sir. Ah ! he is closing them. All right; Mr. Jocelyn, here you stay until that tall lady comes out again, if you have to give Morpheus the go-by until two in the morning." And lighting a cigar he moved carelessly up the street for the space of a few yards, when he again halted.

For more than an hour he stood at his post, and then his vigilance was rewarded. The vestibule door swung open, and the dark-robed lady came forth and moved away in the direction whence she came. Swiftly and noiselessly Rob Jocelyn crossed the street, and was soon close in the wake of the veiled woman. For some distance she held a straight course, and then she abruptly turned a corner, looking back quickly as she did so. Several blocks more were passed, and suddenly the pace of the woman became slower.

"Hang me !" muttered Jocelyn, who sometimes indulged in slang; "I verily believe my lady is 'fly' enough to suspect my racket. Lord ! there she bobs around another corner !"

And around the corner dived Rob Jocelyn in pursuit. On and on went the veiled woman, and on and on went Rob.

"Devil take me," he muttered, "if I don't believe she is going to Bridgeport !"

But she did not go to Bridgeport. As she neared a corner she quickened her pace almost to a run, and disappeared from view.

Striking into a dog-trot, Rob rounded the corner in hot pursuit, when to his astonishment, he ran almost into the arms of the lately flying fair one, who now stood composedly under the glare of the gaslight, streaming from a huge double lamp.

"Sir," said she, putting out a hand as he paused before her, "you have been following me—why ?"

"True, madame," answered the ready-witted but perfidious Rob, "I have followed you, but it was out of admiration."

"You flatter me, sir," replied the veiled damsel; "how can you admire one whose face you have never seen ?"

"Ah, madame ! But your step is grace itself; and now, your voice—ah, what music !"

"Ah, sir !"—her voice broke suddenly, and her form seemed shaken with emotion. She reeled as if about to fall.

Instantly the ready arm of the gallant Rob was extended, and the reeling form was encircled.

Then his ear was smitten by a peal of laughter from an unmistakeable tenor throat, and, as the hand of the fair ignis fatuus tore away the filmy veil, the voice of Neil Bathurst cried in his ear—

"Sold ! old man—sold !"

CHAPTER IX.

MR. AND MRS. ROBBINS.

For a moment Rob Jocelyn stood staring, transfixed with astonishment. Then, as the laugh of Neil Bathurst rang out afresh, his countenance suddenly relaxed, and his own voice was lifted in an uproarious burst of merriment.

"Stop, for the Lord's sake, man," cried Neil, suddenly recovering his gravity; "stop, or we will have all the cops in the neighbourhood down on us."

"Powers alive !" panted Rob, struggling to subdue his merriment, "how you have sold me ! Where on earth did you get that trick of the voice, Neil ?"

"Let's move on, and I'll tell you," said Bathurst, taking his friend's arm, and facing him about. "There, now, we look quite proper, and I don't feel so much like a forlorn female. Where did I learn to talk like a woman ? Well, Rob, I found that I could 'make myself up,' as theatrical people say, into a very respectable woman, therefore I put myself into the hands of a first-class ventriloquist, and I have found my accomplishment a most valuable one."

"Well, you do make a fine figure of a woman," admitted Rob, with a critical glance. "A little too tall to suit my taste, but then—— How did you strike the fancy of your fellow up on the avenue ?"

"Pretty well, I should think," replied Neil, carelessly. "Where do we go, Rob ? I have led you the deuce of a dance."

"I should think so," grumbled Jocelyn. "My feet are about worn out. I have been on the go almost since yesterday morning. Can't you stand that toggery until morning, Neil ?"

"If necessary, yes."

"Well, it is necessary. We can't get a hack in this God-forsaken quarter, and I can't go back to town in an old car. I'm all ready to fall to pieces now. Let's finish the night together—take up our quarters in the nearest hotel, and have a chance for a long chat. You can be my wife, or my grandmother, whichever you please."

"Not at all particular," laughed Neil. "I have nothing especial on hand, and am willing to be your grandmother or anybody for the sake of a comfortable talk with you. There is a little hotel half a block away; come along, and don't forget that I am a lady."

Within fifteen minutes thereafter the two detectives were comfortably established in a shabby genteel suite of rooms belonging to a third-rate hotel, and the ink was not yet dry where the dirty register bore in sprawling characters the names, "Mr. and Mrs. Robbins."

If one would have peered into the room occupied by the two "Robbinses," they might have beheld the rather unusual spectacle of a lady lounging in one chair, with her feet upon a second, and puffing out clouds of smoke from a strong, black cigar, while her companion, stretched full length upon a sofa near by, contemplated the performance with perfect satisfaction.

"I say, Mrs. Robbins," queried this latter individual, when, a little later, they sat at supper, which had been served in their rooms, "where did you get the sorrel wig ?"

"Sorrel !" sniffed the aggrieved one, scornfully, "It's blonde, you great blockhead, strawberry blonde. I'm shocked at your ignorance."

"Oh ! is it," quoth Rob, meekly. "Looks sort of reddish to me, but I won't contradict a lady."

"Well, Rob," said the bewigged Bathurst, resuming his natural tone,—"let's send away the supper things, and get down to business; I have got some queer things for your ears."

"Clear away it is then. Just pull that cracked bell. Oh, I forgot; I'll do it myself."

When at last the supper was cleared away, and the two friends had lighted fresh cigars, Jocelyn said :—

"How is it that I find you in this toggery, and running down my quarry, old fellow. Did you ever see him before I piped him yesterday ?"

"Never," replied the "old fellow," composedly.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

On Friday evening a very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. John Elliott, Mount Pleasant, when a number of the members and friends of the Methodist Church, assembled for the purpose of presenting Miss Eva Elliott with an address and a purse as a slight token of their appreciation of her services as organist in the Methodist church.

The address was read by Mrs. W. S. Graham, and the presentation was made by Mrs. Jos. Gardiner.

ADDRESS.

Dear Miss Elliott,

For a number of years you have acted in a very able manner as organist of the Methodist church here, and have always given your services free. We therefore on behalf of the members and friends of our church present you with this purse of money as a small token of the esteem in which you are held for your personal worth, and also for the good work which in many ways you have done for the church.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

MRS. W. S. GRAHAM.
MRS. J. A. GARDINER.

To which Miss Elliott responded in a few brief but well chosen words, expressing her gratitude for the kindness and good will shown to her by the congregation, not only for the value of the purse, but for the spirit in which it was given. Miss Elliott said she did not render her services as organist with the expectation of receiving anything for it, but that she felt it her duty, as it had been handed down to her by her brother, the late Fred Elliott.

After the address was read, and Miss Elliott responded to the address, a very pleasant evening was spent with music, both vocal and instrumental, and games and conversation, after which all sat down to a very sumptuous repast. After all had partaken freely of the good things provided for the occasion, there were a few more well rendered vocal selections, then as the hour was getting late, the crowd departed for their respective homes.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Paragraphs Picked Up and Pencilled for Public Perusal.

—Catholic Literay Association entertainment this evening.

—A choral service will be rendered in All Saints next Sunday evening.

KINGSTON'S RECORD

For Producing Famous Men and Dodd's Kidney Pills Cures.

Kingston, Dec. 19th.—The Limestone City has given Canada a majority of her greatest and most famous men. Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Geo. Kirkpatrick, Sir Richard Cartwright, and many other notable personalities claim the city as their home.

Kingston is no less famous as the scene of many of the most wonderful and startling cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, than for the first named reason.

Now another is added to this long list of cures. Mr. Robert Orr, Pine street, reports that after suffering for years with Bladder trouble, Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured him, though all other remedies had failed. Every city has a similar experience. Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured every time.

HIAWATHA.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. Stubbs, of Peterborough, gave his lecture entitled "From the Manger to the Throne" in our church on the evening of the 13th. The lecture was illustrated by limelight views. Views of noted buildings belonging to American and European cities were also presented. The entertainment furnished by Mr. Stubbs is interesting, instructive and wholesome and it affords much pleasure to recommend it.

The Drawing Card.

No such opportunity has occurred for years to procure dress goods, staple dry goods and millinery of the same quality at such reasonable prices as that afforded by Messrs. R. H. Kells & Co.'s closing-out sale. In fact it is the "drawing card" of the season in this line. An imperative necessity exists for clearing the entire stock without delay on account of the firm deciding to retire from business. Cost price and even lower will not be a barrier to this sale. Holiday gift bargains is also stimulating this sale, and crowds of ladies find much that is appropriate for Christmas presents as well as regular wants. eodw

An Appropriate Envelope.

There is now on sale by local booksellers a correspondence envelope, printed and issued by the Review Printing Company to commemorate the inauguration of Imperial Penny Postage, which comes into force on Christmas Day. The envelope bears a handsome and appropriate design. The price is 15c. per package of 25. For sale by local booksellers and at the Review Stationery. 63

THE CASE OF DREYFUS

The Chamber of Deputies Discusses the Secret Documents.

M. BRISSON ON THE DOSSIER.

He Makes a Remarkable Declaration Concerning It—There Is Nothing in It, He Says, to Affect the Security of the State—When Dreyfus Starts—Cable News.

Paris, Dec. 20.—There was a repetition yesterday afternoon of the now familiar scenes in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Lasies, anti-Semite, interpellated the Government on the subject of the alleged indiscretions of the Brisson Ministry in the Dreyfus affair. He accused the former Premier, M. Brisson, of violating the constitution, and violently attacked the Court of Cassation, whose president, M. Loews, he said, was a brother of a German official.

The speech of M. Lasies was interrupted by uproar and protests.

The Minister of War, M. de Freycinet, replied that he did not desire to appear as wishing to influence the decision of the Court of Cassation. But, while willing to submit to the court all the official documents in his possession, he was absolutely determined not to submit the secret batch of documents in the case, which, he pointed out, contained papers affecting the security of the nation. He added that if the House did not approve of his attitude, he was willing to resign.

M. Lasies said he thought that under the circumstances the revision of the Dreyfus trial was only a comedy, and he thanked M De Freycinet for furnishing official confirmation of the report that the secret batch of documents so frequently referred to, really existed. He then withdrew his interpellation.

The Secret Documents.

The Chamber later discussed an interpellation of M. Millerand, relative to the conditions upon which the secret dossier could be communicated to the Court of Cassation, as, he contended, unless the court were put in possession of all the documents the whole case of revision was vitiated.

M. Dupuy, the Premier, replied that unless guarantees of absolute secrecy were forthcoming the Government would not communicate these documents to the court. The Premier declared also that it was impossible to show the documents to the defence unless the Government were absolutely assured of secrecy.

All Were Suspicious.

M. Brisson said: "There is no document in the Dreyfus dossier that could affect the security of the state. I examinated the entire dossier, after the discovery of the Henry forgery, and considered them all suspicious."

M. Cavaignac, former Minister of War, interjected: "Yes, M. Brisson and M. Sarrien examined the documents. I thought it necessary to show them. Afterwards I offered to show M. Brisson certain documents in the hands of Gen. Gonze, in which there were the elements of the conviction, but M. Brisson thought it useless to examine these." After further debate, which had been of the most animated character, the Chamber by a vote of 370 against 80 approved the attitude of the Government.

Dreyfus Dossier Demanded.

London, Dec. 20.—The French Court of Cassation, according to a special despatch from Paris, has demanded the secret Dreyfus dossier, undertaking not to publish its contents.

When Dreyfus Starts.

It is reported that Capt. Dreyfus will leave Cayenne on Jan. 5 and arrive in Paris the end of the month.

FEARED COUP D'ETAT.

And Consequently Did Not Have Prince Victor Napoleon Arrested.

London, Dec. 20.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "Prince Victor Napoleon's recent sojourn in Paris was of more serious import than was at first surmised. His presence was known, but the Government did not arrest him, because M. Dupuy, the Premier, believed that the arrest would be the signal for a coup d'etat and he knew that he could not rely upon either the police or the troops commanded by General Zurlinden.

"Prince Victor intends to come again at Christmas and to remain until the new year, when he hopes that the League of Patriots will be able to force a convocation of the National Assembly."

When Marchand Left Fashoda.

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 20.—Major Marchand and his party evacuated Fashoda during the morning of Dec. 11, when the French flag was lowered and the British and Egyptian flags were hoisted. The French detachment started for the Sobat River.

A CHILD ON THE RACK.

A Terrible Tale of Cruelty From Old England—Torturers Sent to Prison for Six Weeks.

London, Dec. 20.—The Chatham branch of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children brought a man named Walter Robert before the local stipendiary magistrate yesterday for torturing a little girl named Maud Whaley, aged 7 years. The prisoner went to Chatham from Deptford, and was entrusted with the care of the child, whose mother lives at Deptford. He and his wife occupied apartments in the squalid neighborhood of King street, Brook. Evidence was given by a single woman named Florence Humphries, lodging in the same house, who said she had frequently heard the sound of blows, followed by the screams of a child. Last Saturday the screaming occurred in the afternoon, and continued during the evening in a piteous tone. Witness went to ascertain the cause, and found that the prisoner and his wife had gone out and locked the door. She unfastened the door, procured a light (the room being in total darkness) and found the child upon a chair which was lying on its side. One leg of the child was tied by the ankle to one side of the chair and the other leg to the other side. The hands of the child were tied behind to one of the chair legs, palms outwards. There was also a cardboard stock arrangement fastened round her neck to prevent the child leaning her head either backward or forward. The child was in an extremely dirty condition, and her head was covered with sores, being also bruised about the body. Inspector W. N. Nimrod of the society stated that the child's wrists and ankles were swollen, and Dr. Walter Buchanan added that there were many bruises about the child's body, limbs and face.

The male prisoner was sentenced to six weeks' hard labor, while his wife was sent to prison for 14 days, in default of paying a fine. As the male prisoner was being removed from the court to the cells he expressed a wish that the magistrate might be found dead when he came out of prison.

SALISBURY FAR-SIGHTED.

British Premier Prepared for Recent Developments—His Attitude on the Venezuela Affair a Forerunner.

Reading, Eng., Dec. 20.—At the opening of the Wellington Club here yesterday, the Earl of Selborne, Under Secretary for the Colonies, discussing the foreign policy of the Government, maintained that the Marquis of Salisbury's management of the relations between Great Britain and the United States alone entitled him to the absolute confidence of the country. The change which had taken place from three years back, when both countries were discussing the possibilities of war, would not have been possible except for the cool, firm, far-seeing way in which the Premier had dealt with the Venezuelan difficulty. Continuing, the Earl of Selborne said: "A very simple, but very great, thing has happened. A misunderstanding has been removed. The people of the United States had not understood Great Britain's real feeling towards them. Now they understand. That is all, but it is immense.

"Great Britain has not proposed to use the United States for her purpose, any more than our friends across the Atlantic have proposed to use Great Britain for their purpose. Where our interests are identical we may hope for co-operation. When one country has an interest and the other has none we may hope that the country not interested will do what it can to support its friend. Where their interests may unhappily tend to diverge, they should hasten by mutual conciliation to an understanding, so as to arrive at a speedy compromise before there is any chance of a breach of their friendship." (Loud cheers.)

THE CONTEST FOR THE COUNTY PARLIAMENT

COUNTY COUNCIL NOMINATIONS

The Nominations Made in the Several Divisions—No. 1 and No. 8 go by Acclammation—A Contest in Three Other Divisions—A Specially Warm Contest Promised in the Belmont Division.

The nominations for county councillors were made yesterday, and in No. 1, or Otonabee Division, the candidates were elected by acclamation, and also the Lakehurst Division. In all the other divisions there will be a contest, in the Bridgenorth and Lakefield divisions three cornered fights, but in the Belmont division there promises to be a battle royal, seven candidates having been nominated. One of the candidates, however, retired, and it is probable that some of the Asphodel candidates will retire. There will be enough left to make a lively and interesting fight with a somewhat exciting element of uncertainty.

In No. 1, or Otonabee Division, comprising Otonabee and the village of Ashburnham, Mr. J. M. Drummond, the nominating officer, received the following nominations:—

E. A. Peck, nominated by John Deyell; councillor, Otonabee, seconded by Mr. Alex. Rutherford, councillor, Ashburnham.

Wm. Anderson was nominated by Mr. John Lancaster, deputy reeve of Otonabee.

There being no other nominations the above gentlemen were declared elected by acclammation.

Nominations took place at Lakefield on Monday for county councillors for No. 5, or Lakefield Division, comprising Lakefield, Dummer and Douro, Mr. Samuel Edwards, of Warsaw, acting in the capacity of returning officer. The following were the nominations:—

William Henry Hurlburt Casement, merchant, of the village of Lakefield, proposed by John R. Fraser, M.D., seconded by J. F. Lillicrap.

Edward Hawthorne, farmer, of the township of Dummer, proposed by Alexander Watts, seconded by Patrick Fitzpatrick.

Richard Crowe, farmer, of the township of Dummer, proposed by William Leeson, seconded by Richard Darling.

Mr. Casement again asked the electors to elect him on his former record. He stated that now the county is governed by ten men instead of twenty-two, as formerly, and he would show what has been gained by the county during the two years under the new regime—making a saving in each year of over $400, or about one-half of what it formerly cost, for county councillors' expenses. He took up the finances, Mud Lake bridge and House of Refuge. He then made an earnest appeal for re-election, and stated that if elected he would look after the interests of each municipality to the best of his ability.

Mr. E. Hawthorne asked the electors for their support. He alluded to the building of a County House of Refuge, which, he stated the county were willing to build provided the town would contribute their share. In speaking on the subject of good roads, he said it was a very delicate question to handle, and everyone knows that the roads might be made better, as in one division where the farmers work and put their roads good in repair, and the next division probably they will not work properly, and their road is in a poor state of repair. He believed it would be better if a system were devised to plan a better system of road making than they had at present. He did not believe in doing away with statute labour. He would be in favour of purchasing a stone crusher and hiring it to different municipalities for their use. He then asked for a liberal support of the electors to elect him as one of the county councillors for the coming year.

Mr. Richard Crowe stated that he had not intended to run again, but being approached he stated he would run again, provided they did not bring out a man from Douro, and as Douro has not brought forward a man he was in the field, and hoped that on the third day of January each man in the division would give him a vote and place him at the head of the poll.

Dr. J. K. Fraser made a few remarks in favour of Mr. Casement's candidature and asked the electors to stand by him and again elect him.

Mr. Lillicrap also contributed words of praise on behalf of Mr. Casement.

Mr. Alex. Watts as proposer of Mr. E. Hawthorne, read a short address eulogizing him as a fit and proper person for a county councillor, and asking the people to give him their support.

Mr. Patrick Fitzpatrick stated that living beside Mr. Hawthorne for a number of years he had always found him a gentleman, and he was pleased to second his nomination.

Mr. Wm. Leeson said he was not ashamed of nominating Mr. Richard Crowe. Having sat in the council with Mr. Crowe he could say that he was a fighter, and generally got what he wanted—if not as slick as some get it, he got it in a better way, fair, square and above board. He asked the electors for the support of Mr. Crowe.

Mr. Richard Darling also made a short address in favour of Mr. Crowe.

Mr. J. J. Crowe addressed a few words to the electors in favour of Mr. Casement and his brother, Richard Crowe, and hoped that they would be elected as the representatives in the County Council for the Lakefield Division.

In No. 3, or Lakehurst Division—Harvey, Burleigh and Anstruther—Mr. J. S. Cairnduff, nominating officer, received the nominations of last year's councillors, Mr. Robt. Shaw and Mr. T. G. Eastland. Being unopposed, they were declared elected by acclammation.

In No. 4, or Belmont Division—Norwood, Asphodel and Belmont—Mr. S. Calder, nominating officer, there was a most animated nominating occasion. The town hall was crowded with electors, who displayed much enthusiasm and interest. The nominations were as follows:—

John Brown, Belmont, nominated by Wm. Mathieson, seconded by Jos. Freeman.

S. S. Joyce, Havelock, nominated by C. H. Brewster, seconded by Jos. Stewart.

J. B Pearce, Norwood, nominated by Walter Scott, seconded by T. C. Caskey.

Jas. Moore, Asphodel, nominated by John Christie, seconded by Saml. Elliott.

John Finlay, Norwood, nominated by Geo. Elliott, seconded by W. F. Elliot.

Jas. Andrews, nominated by M. Walsh, seconded by Patrick Fallon.

W. T. Buck, Asphodel, nominated by Wm. Oakman, seconded by Henry Humphries.

Mr. Finlay resigned.

The candidates from Asphodel are to meet to-day and will probably decide upon a man.

The candidates then addressed the meeting, Messrs. Pearce and Brown, speaking first and the others following in order. It looks as if there would be a very warm contest in Division No. 4.

Weak and Run Down, With Heart and Kidneys in Bad Condition—Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I was very much run down, having been sick for several months. I had been trying different remedies which did me no good. I would have severe spells of coughing that would leave me prostrate. I was told that my lungs were affected, and my heart and kidneys were in a bad condition. In fact, it seemed as though every organ was out of order. I felt that something must be done and my brother advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I procured a bottle and began taking it. Before it was half gone I felt that it was helping me. I continued its use and it has made me a new woman. I cannot praise it too highly." MRS. SUMMERVILLE, 217 Ossington Avenue, Toronto, Ontario. Get only Hood's, because

CHRISTMAS BUYING.

The time is at hand when people should give over Christmas shopping, and do Christmas buying

The difficulty of buying a Christmas present is hardly realized till it is tried, and any suggestion tending to facilitate the matter of choice will not be unwelcome.

Let any intending purchaser of a present take up the DAILY EXAMINER and run his or her eye through its advertising columns. There will be found represented our best and most enterprising merchants, who have the best stocks, as shown by their confidence in calling public attention to them. Those stocks contain everything in reason that can be desired in the line of Christmas presents, and the advertisements regarding them are full of pertinent suggestiveness. Here you have the whole field before you. Study this field and make your selections with reference to the length of your purse. Then you will be prepared to do your holiday buying intelligently and speedily. Consider that our merchants and their staffs are overworked these days and that it is wrong to go into a thronged shop without your mind made up. You will be pushed and jostled, if the majority of buyers are like yourself, undecided, and take a long time to make up your minds. This, of course, means that you should do your shopping early and, as the advertisers say, "avoid the rush." The cream of the stock goes to the early buyer.

Finally, do your Christmas shopping in town. The holiday stocks of local merchants are superb, complete, and afford a full range of choice. They are as good in all lines as you will find in the big cities. The is no necessity to go out of town for anything you want to buy in the line of Christmas presents. Buy of our local merchants; buy early; buy liberally. Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes it should bring good cheer to as many as are in the sphere of our affection, friendship or good will.

COLD COMFORT.

The only grain of comfort that the Conservatives could extract from the big string of Liberal bye election victories on Wednesday, Dec. 15th, was the fact that in one solitary constituency there was an independent elected in the person of Mr. Leighton McCarthy. Now the Toronto News cruelly deprives the Conservatives of even that crumb of comfort, by aiming to show that even North Simcoe furnished a Liberal victory last Wednesday. It says, under the heading, "An Empty Victory:"

It is mighty hard for a genuine independent to enthuse over a candidate who runs for Parliament on that ticket with the approval and endorsation of the Government of the day.

Mr. Leighton McCarthy may turn out to be as independent as his uncle, but the assistance he has received from the Liberal leaders is justification for the suspicion that he will not be a cause of embarrassment to Mr. Tarte et al.

That the Administration at Ottawa will be satisfied with the result in North Simcoe is apparent from the fact that they made no efforts to elect the party candidate, such as marked their course in other constituencies.

In order to call in this a victory for independence one must overlook the very evident desire of the Liberal leaders for Mr. McCarthy's success, as it was exhibited in their efforts to prevent a contest.

The Liberal Government is not to blame if its platform and policy and its demonstration of a fitness to administer our affairs in the best interests of the country, are such as to command the support of independent public men—even independents of Conservative training and Conservative leanings. When the people think that the Conservatives can do better, they will recall them to power; but a change of heart won't come through unpatriotic pessimism and peddling criticism of a Government that does things. When the people grow tired of the growing time, then our separated—from the sweets of office—political brethren may have the call.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ENGLAND, says the Washington Star, desires to remind France that anybody who goes into the lion taming business ought to be in a position to give the enterprise strict, undivided attention.

JOHN BULL is not generally regarded as a roystering fellow, but he can't get over the habit of painting the earth red. He is dropping a new splash of red on the map of the world every day or two.

AN anti-tipping league has been started in Paris, France. An anti-tippling league would be well represented by an anti-treating league. Treating at bars leads to more intemperance and drunkenness than the liquor appetite. Of the persons that drink one in ten may drink to excess from the mere love of strong drink. The other nine drink because they are asked, and because it would be unsociable to not drink, when, as they feel bound to do, they treat in turn.

WHEN Hon. Mr. Foster was in town on Saturday he visited the Auburn Woollen Mills and the Canadian General Electric Works. He was doubtless surprised to see these industries, like other local concerns, pounding away day and night in such a splendid state of prosperities, in face of his repeated prophecies that Liberal rule meant the ruin of Canadian manufacturing industry, the one with orders eighteen months ahead, and the other as busy as a toy seller a day before Christmas. Mr. Foster will have in these object lessons, material to revise his prophetic speeches the next time he holds the electorate bound under the spell of his eloquence.

CANAL ENLARGEMENT.

A matter of the utmost importance to the large business interests of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence, and indeed the country at large, is the completion of a waterway of fourteen feet draught to the Atlantic seaboard, a project which the Canadian Government has had under way during the last three seasons, and which is to be completed in time for through navigation next year.

Our canal system from the Great Lakes to the seaboard has already cost a very considerable sum, yet being persuaded of the need of bringing our waterway to the requirements of the day, the Canadian Government has not hesitated to make further inroads upon the public treasury; and when the figures are made up it will be seen that the canals have cost in the neighbourhood of $60,000,000. Included in the scheme is the improvement of existing facilities, the deepening of the older canals and the building of new locks of larger dimensions. These St. Lawrence canals were opened to traffic in 1846 and 1847, and are believed by Canadian public men to have contributed largely towards the development of Canadian trade. Their remodelling on an up-to-date plan costs in the neighbourhood of $16,000,000, but if the opinions of the leaders of both political parties count for anything, the undertaking is such as will meet with the unanimous endorsation of the Canadian public.

GALLIA AND SCOTSMAN RACED.

Left Liverpool Together and Reached Halifax With the Gallia Ahead.

Halifax, Dec. 20.—The steamer Gallia arrived yesterday morning at 10.30, winning the ocean race from the steamer Scotsman. Both steamers left Liverpool at the same time and many wagers were made on the result. The Gallia brings about 400 men for the Leinster Regiment and a large contingent for the Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery, hundreds of tons of explosives for the War Department, and a large number of quick-firing and other guns for the forts in Halifax and Esquimalt.

The Scotsman arrived a few hours after the Gallia.

Sacred Play in Modern Costumes.

Genoa, Dec. 20.—A singular spectacle was witnessed in one of the theatres of this city last night, when a musical drama representing the resurrection of Lazarus was produced. An archbishop and hundreds of priests were in the audience. The actors wore modern costumes. Jesus was impersonated by a stout man in evening dress with a white cravat. John the Evangelist was similarly attired. Martha appeared in a blue evening gown. The performance was enthusiastically applauded.

Canadian Topics in Britain.

London, Dec. 20.—As a result of efforts put forth to develop a market for Sudbury nickel ores and matte independent of the United States, one large manufacturing house offers, if upon investigation the samples offered prove satisfactory, to give a contract for 300 tons per month.

The Times yesterday devoted a long leader to Sir Sanford Fleming's Pacific cable scheme, treating it from the point of view of naval defence.

Baby Eczema and Scald Head.

Infants and young children are peculiarly subject to this terrible disorder, and if not promptly arrested it will eventually become chronic. Dr Chase made a special study of eczema and diseases of the skin, and we can confidently recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure all forms of eczema. The first application soothes the irritation and puts the little sufferer to rest.

The committee appointed at last meeting to investigate the matter of surveying Mr. J. Bell's line fence, reported having examined the location of the stone monuments, and also having interviewed a surveyor, but as yet could not, from the information at their disposal, recommend any further action. This report was received.

Mr. McIntosh, as appointed at last meeting to investigate the contra account of Cavan re expenditure on boundary, reported having gone to Millbrook and consulted the clerk of Cavan, but as yet could not accept the statement as fyled by Cavan as satisfactory.—Received.

Moved by Messrs. Hunter and Bradburn, that the committee on the matter of surveying Mr. J. Bell's lot, together with the clerk, be and are hereby authorised to consult with Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck & Scevenson, solicitors, etc., of Peterborough, with regard to the liability for cost of surveying public highways where the owner of adjoining property protrudes his fence upon the road allowance.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Hunter, that the salaries of the reeve $25 and each councillor $19 for the year 1898.—Carried.

Orders were issued paying the fixed fixed salaries of the township officials as follows:—Treasurer, $35; clerk, half year, $37 50; caretaker, $5

The clerk was instructed to take such action necessary to collect the rent of road grader from such private parties who have not a yet paid for the use of same.

Suffocated by the Snow.

Newmarket, Ont., Dec. 20.—Hiram Sweezy, a farmer about 50 years of age, residing in King Township, was found frozen in the snow about 80 rods south of his own home. Coroner Wesley made an investigation, and concluded an inquest unnecessary. Sweezy had been drinking, and becoming bewildered while walking home in the dark was suffocated by falling in the deep snow.

Canadian Commission Adjourned.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The Canadian joint commission adjourned yesterday until Jan. 5, after which it is expected they will reassemble in Washington for a session of not more than two weeks, during which they will sign the draft of any treaty between the United States and Canada they may be able to agree upon.

Three Years in Bed.

From Kidney Disease—Although a Man of Three-Score and Ten, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills gave him back perfect health.

This is to certify that I was sick in bed the most of the time for three years with kidney disease. I took several boxes of pills—different kinds—and a great many other kinds of patent medicines; besides that I was under treatment by four different doctors during the time and not able to work. I began to take Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and since that time have been working every day, although a man nearly 70 years of age. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me.

THE FINAL MEETING.

Joint High Commission Adjourns for the Holidays.

UNCERTAIN U. S. ATTITUDE.

The Canadians Before Leaving for Home Give a Banquet Which Was Attended by Most Distinguished Guests—Question of Reciprocity Toasted, and Sir Wilfrid Replies in Same Spirit.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The joint high commission held its final meeting before the Christmas recess yesterday morning, but the session was brief and unimportant, no material progress being made. With the information as to the trade concessions that may be expected from the United States, gleaned by them in the past few days, the Canadian commissioners will be in a position during the holiday season to consult with their colleagues as to the position they shall take when they return to Washington to conclude the negotiations. It appears that there is still doubt and uncertainty as to the American attitude on several important points, and that even on the vital question of free lumber the Americans have given no final answer. While those in their confidence were filling the columns of the press with statements that the subject is closed to debate, the commissioners themselves, contrary to the report which was made concerning Saturday's meeting, have not given a final and decisive no. The Canadian commissioners regard this continued evasion, however, after ample opportunity has been afforded for consultation with the senators, as pretty conclusive evidence as to what the final answer when it comes will be.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Louis Davies leave for home to-day at 11 in the forenoon. Mrs. Charlton is unwell, and Mr. Charlton will therefore be detained here for a day or two. Sir Richard Cartwright leaves for home on Wednesday.

British Commissioners' Banquet.

Last night the British commissioners gave a banquet at the Shoreham in honor of the American commissioners and the leading society people of Washington, who have so generously entertained them during the past six weeks. The banqueting hall was magnificently decorated with the colors of Great Britain, the United States and Canada.

The list of guests was one containing the names of very distinguished men, and was very long.

A string band discoursed soft music. The banquet was almost entirely free of speeches. Baron Herschell in a few well-chosen words proposed the health of Her Britannic Majesty and the President of the United States. Later the American commissioners were honored. Senator Fairbanks proposed the health of the Canadian commissioners. He wished them a safe journey to Canada and an equally pleasant return to Washington in January. To this Sir Wilfrid replied. He had but a few words to say, merely expressing the wish that when the Canadian commissioners returned they would be able to secure reciprocity not only in word but in deed.

THE WEST YORK TRIAL

Ten of the 82 Charges Thrown Out on Monday.

THE CHARGES VERY TRIVIAL.

In Gilman Group, in Which Direct Evidence Was Submitted Before Adjournment, Court Holds That Bribery Was Not Proven—Court Comments on the Character of Allegations Submitted.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—The West York election trial was resumed at the Court House yesterday morning, and by evening the court had thrown out ten charges, with monotonous regularity. The only charge that was gone into and not thrown out was the last called. It was unfinished when the court rose. Mr. Justice Falconbridge and Mr. Justice Street commented on the trivial nature of some of the charges, which were entirely uncorroborated. During the nine days devoted to the trial a month ago 27 allegations were dealt with, and one insignificant charge proven. When court opened yesterday morning there remained 82 cases to be heard.

The first evidence gone into was in reply to charges of William Gilman, before adjournment, in which the defendant is alleged to have promised Gilman that an account of his with the Township of York would be settled in consideration of his voting for Mr. Hill.

Mr. Burgess, for the defence, swore he had agreed to present Gilman's claim, as the latter was not much of a writer, and Mr. Hill had said Gilman had a moral if not a legal claim. Mr. Hill had not said he would see Gilman got his money. Election matters were not discussed.

The polling book was produced, in which Mr. Gilman is marked Conservative.

The group of charges was then thrown out.

Charge No. 1 was then taken up, to the effect that Archibald Fraser had been paid $10 by Mr. Hill for his vote. Mr. Bristol produced a declaration signed by Fraser, who said he had been roped into signing it while drunk, made so by Conservative agents. He had been told he would get $200 if he stuck to his story and Mr. Hill was unseated. Charges 1, 2, 3 and 4 were then thrown out.

After recess, the first witness was Mr. William Baggs, who deposed that previous to the election, at a Liberal supper at the Eagle House, Weston, Mr. Hill had promised to use his influence to get him on the Toronto police force. In cross-examination, he admitted being under 21 years of age, but thought he could vote so long as he was not sworn.

Mr. Hill, called next, did recollect some talk of Baggs getting on the police force. "I told him he was a likely-looking man." Mr. Hill told him the steps necessary to get on the force.

"Anything said about his vote?"

"No; I didn't know he had a vote." Influence was not mentioned.

"What about the statement that you would do your best if he voted for you?" he was asked.

"He lies when he says that," said Mr. Hill.

The judge, in dismissing the charge, said Baggs' story was entirely uncorroborated. He was favorably impressed, however, by his evidence.

In reference to charges 18 and 19, Mr. Pantry was the first witness. He was a voter at the last election, and knew Mr. Graham. He recollected having a drink or two with him at the Park Hotel, Bracondale, but the meeting was about potatoes, not elections.

"You'll give Billy a vote, Harry?" said Graham.

"I s'pose so," responded Pantry.

Graham had then said, "Well, I'll give you a bag of potatoes, anyway." This was the first gift he had received from Mr. Graham. The potatoes were not delivered till two months after election.

Mr. Thomas Graham was called next. He explained the gift of the potatoes on the ground that Pantry was a poor man. They had several drinks together, but nothing was said about the election. Witness denied having approached Pantry regarding Mr Hill. He never thought Pantry would vote for Mr. Hill, and didn't send a rig for him. The potatoes had nothing to do with the vote.

This charge was also dismissed, the judge saying there was no proof of a corrupt motive in the deal.

Mrs. Flora Brown was next called. Mr. Wright had told her that if Brown voted for Mr. Hill he would give him a situation as constable at the polling booth. Mr. Wright later came in and gave Brown a plug of tobacco. Mr. Brown said he was going to vote for Mr. St. John, but Mr. Wright told him he would get him the job. Brown wanted more. Witness didn't know it was wrong to barter for a vote.

Mr. Brown did not act as constable, and did not get anything for his vote. Mr. Wright came back later and wanted Mr. Brown to give evidence as to what had been said. Mr. St. John had asked for her evidence. Witness had always refused to tell her husband what evidence she was going to give. They didn't interfere with each other's business. She did not in politics know one party from another.

Court adjourned at this stage.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Sherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best one and strengthener known.

An Engineer's Rheumatism.

Chicago Wheat Market Was a Rising One, and Liverpool Acted in Concert—The Latest Prices.

Monday Evening, Dec. 19.

To-day's advance in wheat was due to the continued damage reports from Argentina, smaller Russian shipments, and the heavy takings for export. Liverpool futures closed ¾d to ⅞d per cental above Saturday's closing figures. Paris wheat closed 5 to 10 centimes higher than on Saturday, with flour 35 to 45 centimes higher. Chicago futures advanced about 1c a bushel over Saturday's last quotations, closing near the top prices of the day.

Visible and Afloat.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has increased 3,821,000 bushels; that of corn has increased 307,000 bushels, and that of oats has increased 648,000 bushels.

To recapitulate, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States, together with that afloat to Europe, is 57,119,000 bushels, against 54,178,000 bushels a week ago, and 69,165,000 bushels a year ago.

East Buffalo, Dec. 19.—Cattle—The market opened rather dull and decidedly irregular on the bulk of the offerings, which for the day aggregated 145 loads, including 19 loads of Canada stockers. Choice heavy cattle were steady to strong, but medium grades were 15c to 25c lower. Good to best smooth, fat export cattle, $5.25 to $5.40; good to best, $4.75 to $5; export bulls, $4 to $4.25; good to choice butchers' steers, $4.50 to $4.75; common to good butcher bulls, $3 to $3.40; good to best fat heifers, $4 to $4.25; fair to good heifers, $3.60 to $4; stockers, choice to extra quality, $3.75 to $4; common to good do., $3.60 to $3.85; feeders, good to extra, $3.75 to $4.20; common to good, $3.50 to $3.60; calves, choice to extra, $6.50 to $7; good to choice, $6 to $6.50; heavy fed steer calves, good color, $4.50 to $5; common, $3 to $3.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Offerings, 80 loads, including 20 loads of Canada lambs. The general demand was moderate, and the market opened on the basis of $5.50, but the offerings were not absorbed steadily enough to maintain the price. Lambs closed quotable, choice to extra, $5.25 to $5.40; good to choice, $5 to $5.25; common to good, $4.75 to $5; feeders, good to prime, $5 to $5.25. Sheep, choice to extra, $4.50 to $4.75; good to choice, $4 to $4.50. On the close there were a few loads over, and the tone about steady. The basis of Canada lambs was $5.30 to $5.50, mostly $5.40.

MURDERS CONFESSED.

Czuby Admits Having Killed W. Boechko and His Four Children—A Premeditated Crime.

Dominion City, Man., Dec. 20.—Simon Czuby, the Stuartburn murderer, who was arrested yesterday and brought here, has made a full confession voluntarily before three sworn witnesses, his own countrymen, and in the presence of officers. It appears that the murderer walked one mile barefooted to commit the crime, and having had a friendly smoke with his victim, intimidated him into giving up a pocketbook containing $50, afterwards murdering Boechko and his four children.

Czuby and Wasyl Boechko, the murdered man, were neighbors, living on adjoining sections, and working together. The crime was first discovered by Simon Czuby's son, a 10-year-old boy, who gave the alarm. Boechko was lying just inside his own door with his head almost severed from his body. On the bed, which was soaked with blood, lay the mangled corpses of four of the dead man's children, the eldest of whom was only 10 years of age, and the youngest but 4. Their heads had been barked with an axe in the most brutal manner, the blood and brains bespattering the walls and ceiling of the room.

Czuby is 54 years of age, and does not speak a word of English.

The prisoner was taken to Winnipeg to be lodged in the provincial gaol.

Wanted to Killed Himself.

Czuby attempted to commit suicide before leaving for Winnipeg. He first asked for a razor, as he wished to shave. This was promptly refused. A little while afterwards he asked for a knife to pare his nails. This was also refused. No particular significance was attached to these requests, and they were refused on general principles. He finally asked to go to the closet, and this was granted. After a considerable delay the constable opened the door, when he discovered that the prisoner had made a rope of a portion of his clothing, and with one end of it attached to the ceiling, was attempting to hang himself. From that time doubly careful watch was kept upon him.

THE DEATH OF ROBBIE REID.

Caused by Tuberculosis, Accelerated by Exposure and Neglect, Says the Jury.

Newmarket, Ont., Dec. 20.—Coroner Scott held an inquest here yesterday on the death of the boy Robbie Reid.

The jury retired at 5 o'clock and returned at 6.50 with the following verdict: That the deceased, Robert Reid, came to his death by tuberculosis, accelerated by exposure and neglect, and that evidence points to the father, Robert Abner Reid, as having ill-treated the deceased.

The upshot of the above verdict resulted in the arrest of Robert Abner Reid, who is committed for trial.

THREE LIBERALS RETURNED

And Only One Conservative in the Quebec Bye-Elections.

Montreal, Dec. 20.—Four bye-elections took place in Quebec yesterday for the Local Legislature, the principal interest centreing in Levis, where Mr. Charles Langelier (Liberal) was opposed by Mr. Boutelle Bourassa (Liberal) and Mr. E. Emile Gelley (Conservative). Mr. Langelier won the three-cornered fight by a majority of 108.

In Beauharnois a large vote was polled, and Mr. Plante (Conservative) won by a majority of 44 over Mr. Mercier (Liberal).

Missisquoi County was contested by two doctors, and the Liberal, Dr. C. L. Cotton, was elected by a majority of 49 over Dr. J.B. Comeau (Conservative).

In Vercheres County Mr. E. Blanchard (Liberal) was elected over Mr. Archambault (Conservative) by a majority of 231.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. 1898 styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. For correct and full information regarding the new invention and NEWCOMBE PIANOS, write to our Direct Representative. Easy Prices. Liberal Terms.

B. Y. P. U. Anecdote Social.

Last night there was a large attendance at an informal social under the auspices of the B.Y.P.U. of the Murray street Baptist church. A feature of the occasion was the relating of anecdotes of noted preachers by members of the Union. Music and refreshments, added to the other enjoyment contributed to the spending of very apleasant evening.

Personal.

For the sake of your family, yourself and your friends, don't delay the Christmas shopping. Henry & Co., grocers and wine merchants, are particularly anxious to give prompt service during this Christmas week. If shopping can be done early in the week it will certainly be much more satisfactory than if it is all left until the last day or two, when all will be topsy-turvy. Not that we won't try to serve all, but simply the usual holiday rush will make it somewhat unpleasant to shop. For instance, the weather is likely to be cold, and also and porters do not improve by being delayed in the cold late on a Xmas eve. Henry & Co. have an immense stock of Wines and Liquors for the holiday season, and of the best Ales and Porters, kept in the finest condition. We are always pleased to serve our customers with the best goods in the best condition, and would request our friends to order early week and avoid the rush.—HENRY CO.

CATHOLIC ASSOCIATION ENTERTAINMENT.

The Second of the Fortnightly Series Held Last Evening.

The Catholic Literary Association held their second entertainment last evening in their rooms, which was attended by a good-sized audience.

In the unavoidable absence of the president, Ven. Archdeacon Casey occupied the chair in his usual capable manner, and introduced a programme of unusual excellence.

Mr. Geo. Adams, who is a whole concert in himself, opened the entertainment with some clever specialties. He also contributed other numbers during the evening. Miss Annie Simon's rendition of a pleasing vocal number was also well received, and little Carrie White, in her two recitations, added the numbers of the evening. Mr. Jas. Wyer contributed a pleasing vocal number, and Miss B. Parnell, in two beautifully rendered vocal numbers, showed that she possessed a voice of unusual sweetness. A graphophone kindly loaned by Mr. M. Galvin, contributed several excellent numbers to the programme. The entertainment closed with an amusing sketch entitled "The Haunted Hotel," which created considerable fun.

During the evening Ven. Archdeacon Casey referred to the efforts being made by the directors to build up the society, and asked those present to encourage the young men as far as it lay in their power He also urged upon the young men the importance of holding debates, and advised the directors to arrange several during the season.

The series of entertainments for the new year promise to be of an interesting and instructive character.

XMAS SMAX.

A Merry Christmas at Gough Bros.

The study of the problems of advertising is exceedingly fascinating. How is it that every woman as well as every man in Peterborough is interested in reading Gough Bros' advertisement? It is a fact that the average woman cares very little, comparatively for the news columns of a paper, and still less for the editorial. It is the advertising columns that tell a tempting tale of dry goods, clothing for herself and children, boots and shoes, groceries, housefurnishings, and so on, that interest her the most. And if not prevented she will also probably buy the clothing and men's furnishings for the whole family It is the women of our country who buy from 75 to 90 per cent. of all the goods sold at retail in the stores. It is right here that the importance comes in of an advertiser enlisting the interest of the women in their newspaper announcements. Gough Bros. continually aim to do so; and their experience is that it has paid them well. The economically disposed wife knows, that it has paid her well to watch the price lists and pick out the bargains she needs. Hundreds of women have attested the present combined lease-expiring and unloading sale of men's clothing, boots, shoes, hats, caps and furnishings now in full swing at Gough Bros. The brightest, choicest suits for boys find ready sale to women who have been attracted by the saving of dollars; and to mothers of boys a practical lesson in economy runs all through the big sale. It's clothing that'll wear they want, and mothers can bank on the quality of the boy's clothing in this splendid stock. And for such clothing it needs but little money. Men's suits, ulsters and overcoats were never so low in price. Read Gough's great Xmas announcement with Gough's great gift list, to meet the requirements of all classes of people.

WILL TRY TO QUASH THE ROLLER BYLAW.

The Mayor Served With Notice of an Order.

ARE TWO MEMBERS DISQUALIFIED?

Councillors McWilliams, Denne, Best and Langford are Applying for an Injunction Against the Signing of the Agreement.

Mayor Davis was served this morning with the following document giving notice of an injunction which will be asked for restraining him from signing the agreement to purchase the Russel Steam Roller:

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

In the Matter of By-law Number 843, of the Town of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough.

Between:—

JOHN B. MCWILLIAMS, Applicant,

and

THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWN OF PETERBOROUGH, Respondents.

Take notice that the Court will be moved at Osgoode Hall in the City of Toronto, on behalf of John B. McWilliams, of the Town of Peterborough, Crown Timber Agent, on Tuesday, the 10th day of January, 1899, at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, or so soon thereafter as Counsel can be heard, for an order that By-law Number 843, passed the 15th day of December, 1898, by the Municipal Council of the Town of Peterborough, and entitled "A By-law to authorize the purchase of a Steam Roller," be quashed for illegality, with costs to be paid by the said Municipal Corporation of the Town of Peterborough, upon the following among other grounds:—

1. The said bylaw was introduced without any notice thereof having been given at a previous meeting of the council as required by Rule 50 of the Rules of Order of the council.

2. The said bylaw was introduced without the previous leave of eight members of the council, as required by Rule 54 of said Rules of Order.

3. The said bylaw was read a third time at the same meeting, at which it was introduced contrary to Rule 50 of said Rules of Order, although previous leave of eight members of the council had not been granted therefor as required by Rule 54, of said Rules of Order.

4. The recital to said bylaw that the Sawyer & Massey Company, Limited, had offered to sell the corporation a steam roller at $3,000, is untrue; no such offer had been made, and said company's tender being for a larger sum than that mentioned in the bylaw, the bylaw is therefore ultra vires.

5. Two members of the council who voted in favour of the several readings of said bylaw had be come disqualified and had no right to sit at the council or vote, and but for whose votes the third reading of said bylaw would have been unquestionably defeated.

6. And upon other grounds disclosed and to be disclosed in the papers filed and exhibits therein referred to, and in the evidence to be adduced.

And take notice, that in support of such motion will be read the said bylaw, the Rules of Order of the council, the resolution for the third reading of said bylaw, the recognizance of the said John B. McWilliams and his sureties in the premises, the affidavits of the applicant, and the exhibits therein referred to, and the testimony of Simon R. Armstrong, Town Clerk, Adam Hall and George Hutchison, to be taken viva voce upon oath before the return of said motion.

Dated the 20th day of December, 1898.

A. P. POUSSETTE,
Solicitor for the Applicant, John B. McWilliams.

To the Municipal Corporation of the Town of Peterborough.

Although the injunction is being applied for in the name of Councillor McWilliams, Councillors Denne, Best and Langford are associated with him in the application.

On being applied to for further information on the subject, Mayor Davis stated that he knew nothing more of the matter than appeared on the face of the document which had been served upon him.

COURTESY APPRECIATED.

The Recognition of Hospitality by the Faculty of McGill University.

Mayor Davis has received a copy of the following resolution from Mr. Henry T. Bovey, dean of the Faculty of Applied Science, McGill University, Montreal:—

"That the dean of the faculty be requested to transmit to His Worship the Mayor of Peterborough the cordial thanks of the Faculty of Applied Science of McGill University, for the kind reception given to the members of the staff and to the students on the occasion of a visit to Peterborough on Friday, Dec. 2nd.

This resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Faculty of Applied science and is an evidence that distinguished visitors heartily appreciate courteous hospitality, and it is a pleasure to know that all visitors of mark from abroad during the past year have received at the hands of the mayor and council a courteous and graceful attention worthy of their guests, of themselves and of the dignity of the town.

Fairyland.

The popular idea of the appearance of the fairyland is a mere matter of speculation, according to the taste of the individual, but one would think that it looks like the Peterborough Bookstore in its present holiday condition. The brilliant array of gift goods, the glitter of silver bric-a-brac, the sparkle of cut glass, the warm glow and yellow flash of bronze and brass art work, the rich and brilliant coverings of splendid gift books ranged on counters and tables, make a brilliant and enticing sight. Never before in town has a more splendid stock been laid in and never before has a stock been arranged and displayed in so enticing a form and to so strongly suggest at least one conception of a glimpse of fairyland. Description by words conveys no more idea of the beauty of the Peterborough Bookstore's gorgeous and elaborate display than a painting can express the exquisite odour of an English violet. Seeing only is what will form the idea; and seeing is desiring, and desiring is equivalent to purchasing, for the prices are so moderate as to suggest that in marking these beautiful wares, profit has been lost sight of.

Try Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup if children are troubled with worms. It always works well. Price 25c.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Interesting Items of Local and General Interest.

CURLIANA.

Curling has certainly received a wonderful impetus this year, most probably on account of the manner in which the sport deteriorated last season by reason of the elections, which monopolized the attention of the majority of the "knights o' the heather and stane."

Last night all three of the rinks were occupied by the Thistles, and by the cheers and shouts which broke forth ever and anon it was evident that all were enjoying the pastime to the full limit.

The results of the various matches were as appended:

RINK NO. 1

HOCKEY.

The Peterboroughs turned out last evening for their first regular practice and there was a large attendance of players. Naturally interest was centered in the new man—Reynolds, of Montreal, and although he was greatly handicapped by the fact of the local rink being much smaller than the big sheet used by the players in the eastern metropolis, he acquitted himself in a manner which showed that he was no novice at the game. Not knowing the men was also a big drawback, but after a practice or two he will show up to better advantage, and the boys are confident that in securing him they a player who will fill the gap on the senior forward line with a man whose presence will materially strengthen the whole team. Davidson, Belleghem and Hollingshead were the only ones of the old seniors, who turned out and give evidence of being stronger than ever, particularly Hollingshead, who appears to have far more confidence in himself than formerly, and to display more dash. Jimmy Hamilton and Willie McDonald were in the respective goals for the opposing sevens and both did good work. Amongst the younger players Glover and Harry King showed good form and both have a strong call for a place on the senior team. Vic McWilliams, too, did some nice work, and as the season progresses bids fair to develop into a strong defence man.

During the practice a good deal too much individual work was seen on the part of the players. Captain Hollingshead cannot put his foot down too firmly on this sort of think.

On Wednesday night several more new men, who are aspiring to places on the senior team, will be cut on the ice.

Jimmy McCabe intends to play this season, and therefore will not act as trainer to the club, although his great experience on the lacrosse field puts him in the position to offer much good advice.

A special practice of the Colts will be held to-morrow afternoon, the teams being as follows: Goal, McDonald; point, Graham; cover point Brundrette; forwards, Crossley, Dumble, Mayhee and McGrath; goal, McKee; point, Rush; cover point, Armstrong; forwards, Morgan, Bradd, King and McBain.

Upper Canada College team plays the Colts here next week.

Lionel King telephoned to-day to the effect that there was an error in the senior schedule as published in the Toronto papers to-day. Peterborough plays the Wellingtons home and home matches first instead of the Toronto Rowing Club, and the winners will play the victors in the O-goode-Waterloo contest. The entire schedule will be published to-morrow. The Juniors first game is with Norwood.

THE KENNEL.

Although the catalogues for the Dog Show were only posted yesterday morning the evening's mail brought in quite a number of entries. A large number of local dogs will be shown. Those which are not registered have to be listed at a cost of 25 cents. This fee will be taken by the secretary at the time the entry is received, and forwarded to the Canadian Kennel Club at Toronto.

TURKEY SHOOT.

A shoot for turkeys was held yesterday afternoon at Mr. Bell's farm, Monaghan, and about 20 or 30 shooters took part. The boys from town were lucky: W. Clancy, 1; Lou Honedry, 1; F. Burdett, 3; — Webb, 1; Charley James, 1; Jack Johnston, 1. Mick's mag is coming up by express.

An Interesting Marriage.

Mr. R. W. Marks, manager and proprietor of Marks Bros., Company, was married between 10 and 11 o'clock Friday night to Miss May A. Bell, the leading actress of the company, who is well-known in Peterborough. The ceremony took place at the parsonage of the Queen street Methodist church, the bands being tied by the pastor, Rev. Jas. Elliott, B.A. The sisters of Mr. Marks had come to the city from Perth for the occasion, and two of his brothers, who are members of the company, were also at the ceremony. The bride was the recipient of many costly presents from the members of the family and from members of the company and other friends. Mr. R. W. Marks is an able manager, and he has got for his wife a lady who no doubt will bring him as much success and happiness in that capacity as she has as an actress. Mr. Marks himself has shown that he possesses no ordinary amount of nerve and energy by his management after the recent fire, but his taking such an important step in life so soon after his heavy loss by fire caps the climax. He is evidently in need of sympathy. The News wishes him and his bride a happy life and prosperity.—Kingston News.

SUSPECTED MURDERER ARRESTED.

Simeon Czuby Charged With Murdering Boechko and His Five Children.

Winnipeg, Dec. 19.—A Dominion City despatch to the Free Press says Simeon Czuby was arrested there Saturday night charged with the murder of Wasul Boechko and his five children six weeks ago at Stuartburn, Galician settlement. The prisoner will be brought to Winnipeg to-day.

The tragedy was a particularly horrible one. At first the wife and mother was suspected to have taken a hand in it. The man and his children were killed with an ax, and the home presented a bloody spectacle when the crime was discovered.

Acetylene Gas Explosion.

Calgary, Dec. 19.—Alfred Head was fatally injured and died Saturday night through an explosion of acetylene gas, which occurred while he was trying to locate a leak with a match.

Sometimes it seems to weary woman that she must certainly give it up. The simplest and easiest work becomes an almost insurmountable task. Nervousness, sleeplessness and pain harass her and life seems hardly worth the living.

Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription was made for her. Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was made for her. The former is for ills distinctly feminine, the other for her general system. Together they supply a scientific and successful course of treatment. The "Favourite Prescription" restores healthy, regular action to the organs distinctly feminine. It forces out all impurities, strengthens the tissues, allays inflammation. The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes appetite, helps digestion, promotes assimilation, fills out the hollows in cheeks and neck with good solid flesh and brings back the gladsome glow of girlhood.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, illustrated.

Contractor John O'Leary Killed.

Nelson, B.C., Dec. 19.—John O'Leary, a well-known railway contractor, was killed on Saturday on the Robson-Penticton Railway, upon which he had a sub-contract. While superintending the lowering of a large stone into place one of the guy ropes of the derrick broke. The mast of the derrick swung downwards, pinning the unfortunate man to the ground, and injuring him so severely that he died 20 minutes later. Deceased was a native of Maine.

The Gaspesia Has Arrived.

Paspebiac, Que., Dec. 19.—The SS. Gaspesia arrived off Paspebiac at 9.25 a.m., and steamed to New Carlisle, where the preparations have been made to land passengers and discharge cargo. The weather is very mild, and the bay is clear of ice.

She had on board 57 intermediate and 53 steerage passengers, all principally for New York. They are Russian, German and Polish Jews.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is nice to take and death to all worms. Contains its own purgative. Price 25c.

Severe Cough Cured.

"I had a severe cold which settled on my lungs and made me so weak I had to give up work. Two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup completely cured me." J. H. Panthwright, Gowland Mt., N. B.

Mrs. David Lobor, Waterford, Ont., says: "I can recommend Hagyard's Yellow Oil for pains of any kind. It cured me of a distressing pain that the doctor could not cure."

GRAND DUKE AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

He Unveiled a Monument to Russian Soldiers in the City.

Constantinople, Dec. 19.—The Russian Grand Duke Nicholas, who arrived here on Friday on board a Russian steamer, unveiled yesterday at Galatana, near San Stefano, where on March 3, 1878, was signed the treaty of peace that terminated the Russo-Turkish war, a monument to the Russian soldiers who fell in that conflict. The unveiling was accompanied with much ceremony and a military parade, at which representatives of all the Balkan States were present. Earlier in the day a requiem was held at the Russian chapel there in memory of the dead. The Turkish newspapers are excessively irritated at these ceremonies, which recall great disasters to the Turkish arms. At the reception at the palace yesterday the Grand Duke handed the Sultan the Czar's autograph letter and informed His Majesty that Emperor Nicholas had delegated him (the Grand Duke) to draw closer the ties of friendship binding the two countries. Decorations and presents were exchanged.

ANTI-ANARCHIST CONFERENCE.

Reason to Believe That a Plan Has Been Adopted.

London, Dec. 19.—The Rome correspondent of the Times says: "I have reason to believe that the international anti-Anarchist conference, which has been in session here for several weeks, has proved a success. Great secrecy is maintained regarding the proceedings and conclusions; but the delegates seem satisfied that they have laid solid foundation for a uniform system of dealing with Anarchists. The conference declines to recognize Anarchist outrages as political crimes."

THE ASHES OF BUDDHA.

Discovered Near Peprehwa and Accepted by the King of Siam.

Calcutta, Dec. 19.—The ashes of Guatama Siddartha, the Sakya Muni, generally termed Buddha, the founder of the Buddhist religion, which have been discovered near Peprehwa, have been offered to the King of Siam, who is the only existing Buddhist monarch.

The offer has been accepted and a royal commission has been assigned to proceed from Bangkok to India to receive the sacred gift.

THE FRENCH IN CHINA.

One of Their Gunboats Already Above Nanking the "Southern Capital."

London, Dec. 19.—According to a despatch to the Morning Post from Hankow, on the Yangtse Kiang, about 700 miles from the sea, a French expedition has been despatched up the river to Kwei Chau, and one gunboat is already above Nanking, the "Southern Capital" of China, about 90 miles from the river's mouth.

All Over a Little Bill.

London, Dec. 19.—A case in the law courts which has created no little interest and amusement, too, in society circles, is one in which the husband of Mrs. Herla Williams, a noted leader in dress among society ladies, has been sued by a dressmaker for the small sum of $190. Her husband refused to pay the bill, alleging that, as Mrs. Williams has large means of her own, and that as he allowed her $2,500 a year for pin money, he was not liable. The question is considered rather a nice point of English law. The judge himself was rather doubtful how to decide it, for he delayed judgment in order to consider the matter.

Curzon Wrote a Book.

New York, Dec. 19.—The London correspondent of the Times says: Lord Curzon, before leaving here, completed a book on "The Indian Frontier," and arranged for its publication with the Harpers. I have received a message, however, from a great personage, and I believe that the Queen herself is pointing out the impropriety of a book about India by the Viceroy appearing during the Viceroy's term of office. Therefore, the book has been withdrawn, the publishers naturally requesting the reimbursement of their expenses.

Knaak Likely to Suffer.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—According to the Kleine Journal, the evidence as to Frank Knaak's utterances against the Kaiser is so overwhelming that a heavy sentence is certain. The plea that he had been drinking heavily is of no avail, and the fact of his German birth is taken as proof that he was aware of the gravity of his offence. All efforts of the American embassy in his behalf remain without avail.

Prince Arthur for Khartoum.

London, Dec. 19.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily Mail says he learns that the Duke of Connaught will go to Khartoum, as the representative of the Queen, to lay the foundation stone of the Gordon memorial college to be erected there under the direction of General Lord Kitchener, for the instruction of Soudanese youth.

Kaiser May Visit Paris.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The Kaiser's suite is exceedingly desirous of visiting Paris during the exposition. If the conference for a general disarmament is favorable to European harmony the Kaiser hopes to render possible his presence in Paris in the company of some sovereign friend of France, meaning, of course, the Czar.

It Cannot Be Thought Of.

London, Dec. 19.—The question was recently broached of placing a statue of Washington in Westminster Abbey. Dean Bradley now announces that no such proposal has yet been submitted to the authorities, and he is of the opinion that it is impossible for the matter to be officially entertained.

Gomez Reported Dead.

Madrid, Dec. 19.—A report has been received by a Cuban representative in the Spanish Senate from Havana that General Maximo Gomez is dead.

Gratifying Improvement,

GOMPERS DENOUNCES SOCIALISTS.

He Does Not Want Socialism Infused Into the Trades Unions.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 19.—The Saturday morning session of the American Federation of Labor convention was devoted to the Socialists, who argued for the political support of their principles by the Federation. While the speech-making was at its height Mr. Gompers took a hand and denounced the efforts of the Socialists to infuse their doctrines into that of trades unionism. He said: "This question involves the integrity of the labor movement of our country. Either the trade union movement is right or it is wrong. We must either declare for the union movement without frills or follies or make an admission that it is wrong."

The debate on social conditions and proposed remedies of so-called evils was resumed at the afternoon session, and was continued almost to the close of the day's proceedings. The result was an utter rout of the Socialists, both resolutions being buried by a vote of 4½ to 1.

A New Train Service.

St. Catharines, Dec. 19.—Arrangements have been made by the Niagara Central Railway to commence a new hourly passenger service between this place and Niagara Falls. The freight and passenger service are to be kept distinctively separate, so as not to inconvenience passengers while shunting. The service will connect both ways with Michigan Central trains. Next week will see the repair work completed and operations will also be commenced to extend the N.C.R. to Port Dalhousie. By an arrangement with the Michigan Central the N.C.R. will be able to reduce its passenger rates between St. Catharines and any point on the former road.

A Respite for Paul Brown.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—It is understood that the Dominion Government has decided to grant a respite in the case of Paul Brown, the Winnipeg murderer, until such time as an opportunity will be had to look into the evidence submitted to the Department of Justice after the trial, showing that Brown is insane, and had been confined for years as a lunatic in an insane asylum in Tennessee.

Run Over and Killed.

London, Dec. 19.—Peter Cake, a car repairer on the Grand Trunk, was caught beneath the wheels of a moving train at the Wellington street crossing and instantly killed about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 12—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

No disease can resist the powerful medical properties of Burdock Blood Bitters, as is proved by the fact that thousands of the most obstinate cases have been cured and permanently cured by the use of this best of all remedies.

Anxious mothers find Dr. Low's Worm Syrup the best medicine to expel worms. Children like it—worms don't.

"IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY."

To Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, North American Life Assurance Co., Toronto:

DEAR SIR.—Your official notice came duly to hand, apprising me of the results obtainable upon my 15 year endowment Policy in your Company for $1,000 which matured on the 5th inst. of the various options you have given me viz.:

Cash value	$1,564 96
Paid-up Policy, payable at my death, for	2,560 00
Yearly Income for life of	166 20

I have decided upon the cash value; and it gives me pleasure to testify that, as I anticipated it would be when I took out the policy, IT IS VERY SATISFACTORY. This returns me the full premiums of the 15 years and over 4½ per cent. compound interest, in addition to which you have carried the risk upon my life. In view of the low lending rates of interest which have been obtainable during the latter portion of the period, it is difficult to see how this excellent result could have been surpassed.

Yours sincerely,

Mr. E. S. Massey, Belleville, Ont., tells how Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Increased his Weight and Restored his Health and Strength.

When you find yourself losing in weight, feel weak and miserable, you're in a serious condition. It's time for you to start taking some remedy that will restore your lost flesh, tone your nerves and give you back your old time health and vigor. Nothing will do this so quickly and effectually as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Read the following statement made by Mr. E. S. Massey, foreman at Capt. Allen's Coal and Wood Yard, Belleville, Ont.:

"For two years I suffered greatly from nervous prostration and was greatly run down and debilitated. In addition to this, severe headaches annoyed me greatly. My heart would throb, my nerves seemed completely unstrung, and I gradually lost flesh as a consequence. All I could do in the way of doctoring and using patent medicines seemed to do me no good. Finally I got Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I have used two boxes, and am now better than I have been in a long time. I have gained 20 pounds in weight, and am now strong and healthy."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cure Palpitation, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Dizzy Spells, etc. Price, 50c. a box, or 3 for $1.25, at all druggists.

James Clark, Commanda, Ont., says:—"Some time ago I was greatly troubled with headache and constipation. One bottle of Laxa-Liver Pills helped me more than any medicine I ever took." Price 25c.

A Woman's Crime.

A THRILLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

By LAWRENCE M. LYNCH.

Author of "John Arthur's Ward," "The Diamond Coterie," "Against Odds," Etc., Etc.

Jocelyn gave a long whistle, and then relapsed into silence and smoke. Several moments were passed thus, and then removing the cigar from between his lips, Neil Bathurst said:—

"I'll tell you how I came to call upon our swell friend to-night, Rob; but first, I want you to give me an account of your business with him yesterday."

"That won't take long," replied Jocelyn, drawing up his chair. "I can't make the fellow out. From State street he went directly to the Clark street gambling house."

"The gambling house! Which one?"

"Well, you know I am not quite up to the names of things here yet. It was on the corner of—"

"Oh! you mean Mike's?"

"Mike's; yes, I remember the name now. Why it must be the old Mike—"

"Mike McDonald, of course; he ran several smaller places when we were here together."

"Well, no matter,—he, my man, went there, and I was not far behind. He began to play, but was betting light. Pretty soon I worked myself into a game with him. After a little he became more interested in the play. He had been staking some loose money that he had pulled, all in a crumple, from his trousers' pockets. He seemed to have exhausted that resource, and reached for a wallet from his inner breast pocket. All at once he started and exclaimed:—

"'D— me—I've been robbed!'

"'Lost your pocketbook, stranger,' I asked, thinking it was a dodge.

"'No, he said, looking black as a thunder-cloud, and slapping down a well-filled purse on the table beween us. 'Worse than that.' Well, he ransacked his pockets, muttering curses all the while, muttering them so low, and between his teeth, I could not catch the form of the words more than to know that he was consigning some person or thing to a very warm place. He paid no attention to anything that was said by the men around him, and I knew that he was too much upset to play any more, so I thought it best to leave ahead of him. In the rummage for the lost article, whatever it was, he dropped his handkerchief on the floor. I could not pick it up without being seen by the others around the table; so as soon as the eyes of the owner were turned away I pocketed it coolly under their very noses. Then I gave them a wink and ordered drinks for the crowd. After which I left as soon as I could."

"Well; and then?"

"Then I had to hang out about ten minutes before my man came down. When he did come he walked straight into the nearest saloon, ordered a schooner of beer or ale, and sat there for nearly an hour without so much as changing his position. I tell you, he looked black. Finally he gave himself a sort of a shake, and ordered some more ale. This he drank and then marched straight to the Tribune office."

"Exactly."

"As he had seen me, I did not, of course, follow him inside the building, but I lounged near enough to see that he wrote an 'ad.' and handed it in at the clerk's window. After that he walked over to Wabash avenue, hailed a car, and went south. I jogged after until the thing stopped to take up some more passengers, and then I hung on the tail end, and escorted my man to his boarding-house. I waited about until I heard a supper bell ring, and then, as I knew he would be engaged for a few minutes at least, I made off and snatched a hasty meal at the nearest restaurant. I had not been back at my post five minutes when he sallied out and then began a chase. From seven o'clock until one we went from theatre to theatre, from restaurant to restaurant, stopping in each place just long enough to overlook the guests, and then on to the next. I observed that he visited no places that were not patronized by ladies—and, of course, it did not take me long to figure out the fact that he was looking for some one, and that some one was a woman."

"Did he find her?"

"Not he. He went home at one o'clock, and walked the floor for a full hour, without taking the trouble to close the blinds."

"And to-day?"

"To-day he kept tolerably cool. He went to the Tribune office and got a letter or two, which he answered then and there, and mailed at the post-office. After this he wandered about looking in at shop windows and eyeing all the women. After dinner, he stalked about the streets in much the same way, and then went home, took his supper—I suppose—and waited for you. That's all; now give us your story."

"Hold on a bit, let's look at that handkerchief," said Neil; "you have it with you, of course?"

"Of course," producing it from an inner pocket, and putting it into Neil's hand.

He unfolded it slowly. It was of silk, soft and white; instantly the quick eye of the young detective discovered a bit of fine embroidery in one corner. It was a name embroidered with woman's hair; a name, and after it an initial. Looking close at it Neil Bathurst read "Jason B." Then he bent toward his companion.

"Old man," he said, gravely, "you did a good thing when you nabbed that handkerchief."

Then, without waiting for a comment from Rob Jocelyn, he related his experiences of the past two days, omitting nothing.

Bathurst lighted a fresh cigar, and, leaning back comfortably, watched his friend's countenance.

When the memoranda had been carefully scanned, and the photographs closely inspected, Jocelyn turned two keen, earnest brown eyes upon his friend, and Neil, who knew well the meaning of that intense look upon the usually debonair face, said:—

"I see, Rob, you think we have stumbled upon a strong case."

"I think," replied Rob Jocelyn, with slow gravity, "that this man is Jason Bradwardine, and that Jason Bradwardine needs a guardian."

"You think he is here in search of this mysterious mother and child?"

"It is not improbable. Did you look closely at the notes and figures? See, they have been jotted down at different times; there are numerous shades of ink, and a variety in the size of the strokes, indicating that different pens have been used. Here are some entries that have evidently been made while moving, probably while riding in the cars, or a carriage. Now, then, here are some dates with curious marginal notes, or words. Did you look over these very carefully?"

"No; to tell the truth, I did little more than glance at the notes. I was very sleepy, and expected to run them through again with you."

"Why did you not think of comparing some of these dates with the dates of the letters?"

"Why didn't you think of connecting our friend Bradwardine with that 'ad' for a female detective?" retorted Bathurst, with a good-humoured laugh.

"Hang it, man, one brain can't hold everything. You and I may possess very good heads, as heads go; but haven't we proved more than once the truth of the old adage?"

"'Two heads better than one,' quite true," replied Jocelyn, gravely. "We have done some hard thinking together, and if you came to go over these papers the second time you would hardly have overlooked this matter of the dates. Let us see. Just refer to that pile of letters, will you. For a test, take that letter of defiance, the last one: what date does it bear?"

"April 7, 18—"

"And here, under my eye, is the same date; and here another date, some forty days later, most likely to mark the time when the letter was received. This man must have relied much upon his memory. Wait a moment; he sent an emissary, she says in her letter. Well, here, just above the memorandum of April 7, is another, listen:—'Feb. 18th I. sailed.' What do you make of that? By Jove! 'I.' must be the fellow who came over to steal the child."

"Precisely. Now then, below I find this: 'May 21st, failure.' That means the man's return, eh?"

"It looks like it."

Upon further examination of the letters and notes they found that the latter bore entries corresponding with the dates of the letters, or at the time at which they were received. Beyond this, their combined efforts could make nothing out of the memoranda, or notes.

For more than an hour they talked of Jason Bradwardine, and his probable intentions and movements. Then Jocelyn said, "Well, Neil, we will work up this case together, as we both have leisure."

"No, Rob," said Bathurst, shaking his head. "This is your case. And you are just the man to see it through. You always were a 'Squire of dames.' The fact is I want to remain in the city. I have got one or two notions in my head. Notions so odd and altogether vague, that I dare not repeat them even to you. But I want to stay here awhile, and go in for society. Whenever you really need help, I am yours. Bradwardine, or Brady, as he calls himself, having employed me to scour the city in search of this woman, I will be able to keep him under my eye, and can keep you posted during the time you will need for your trip to New York. You can gather up all the Elm Valley news, and deel assured that I in the meantime have not lost my grip of Bradwardine. When you come back I will turn him over to you."

Jocelyn was surprised at his friend's sudden resolve to abandon work for pleasure, but knowing that Neil would explain in his own way and time, he forbore to comment, and it was decided that he, Jocelyn, should pay a visit to Elm Valley, there to seek information concerning "Mistress Bourne," while Bathurst, who had replied to the advertisement for a female detective, and had been employed by Bradwardine, who gave his name as Brady, to search the city for one Helen Richards, who had stolen from him, so he said, a wallet containing certain papers entrusted to him by a friend, and which, because they were held in trust for another, he would pay almost any price to recover.

"I will, of course, keep my character as a widow, with a taste for private investigations, and who knows but that in my perambulations about the city I may come upon your beautiful assassin. She of the eye."

"Who knows," replied Rob, "don't think I have abandoned the search for her. Depend upon it, I shall find that she-devil yet."

"I should like to have a haul in that myself," said Bathurst, little dreaming how closely the fate of the beautiful murderess would be linked with his own.

CHAPTER X.

A TERRIBLE TEMPER.

We must now leave the two detectives for a time, and see how the world is dealing with Lenore Armyn, the orphan girl, who, as a guest of the Ruthvens, was making the acquaintance of the city.

It was no wonderful Phoenix to her, for she had never looked upon those silver spires and stately walls now crumbled, or vanished away.

Before her arrival, the Ruthvens, or such of them as did know the truth concerning Lenore, had indulged in more than one jest at the expense of the coming "country girl." But there were no more jests at her expense. The Ruthvens could find nothing to criti-

True, she was childishly ignorant of everything pertaining to the city; but she asked questions with charming affable naivete, and received astonishing information with perfect composure, that her friends could do nothing but admire.

There was no such thing as patronizing Lenore. On the contrary, she bore herself toward those who were about her with gracious friendliness; while to strangers, she extended a courtesy actually haughty. Upon Kate Seaton, her school friend, the girl always lavished a flood of sincerest affection not unmixed, it must be confessed, with a little, a very little, patronage. But Kate Seaton had been patronized by some one from her cradle up. She was one of those meek, sweet-tempered, lovable girls, who never assert their own equality, or superiority, and her sister, Mrs. Ruthven, was of the same sort.

Charles Ruthven was young and gay, fond of society, fond of fun, and—a little too fond of the ladies. His half sister, Mrs. Warren—the lady so graphically described by Clarence Arteveldt as a "blonde pussy cat widow"—had been but a short time a member of the Ruthven family.

Mrs. Warren was a fleshy blonde, very pretty, and standing upon the border-land of her thirtieth summer. She was well-preserved, good-natured, and frivolous—unprincipled, too, in the matter of getting her own way; but as Mrs. Warren's way was pretty sure to be a pleasant one, no one felt called upon to reproach her for lack of principle.

Mrs. Warren prided herself upon her style, and her taste in dress, and had calculated upon overwhelming the country girl with the elegance of her toilets. But Lenore, herself, well and tastefully arrayed, was not to be overwhelmed by the fashion as embodied in Mrs. Warren, a fact which that lady was not slow in finding out.

The widow was, in her own way an admirer of her own sex—one of those women who must always have on hand several "dear friends" in whom they may confide, and whose confidences they may betray when the love of gossip is strong upon them. Finding that Lenore was not to be led, Mrs. Warren, who had elected her, at sight, one of her chosen "dear girls," was content to stand on an equal footing—even to submit to be ridiculed sometimes, for the lady afforded a fine target for mirth at times, and Lenore was quick to see absurdities. But her laughter was far more malicious: her sarcasm had in it no sting.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

IMPERIAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

OF CANADA.

Seven Cardinal Reasons for Insuring in the Imperial:

1. It Affords Unquestionable Security to policy-holders, by its large Capital Stock of $1,000,000, and its Dominion Government Deposit of $250,000, being the largest Government Deposit of any Canadian life insurance company.
2. Its Policy Reserves are held on the most stringent basis used in Canadian Actuarial calculation.
3. Its Policies do not Restrict the assured in respect to residence, travel or occupation, and are payable immediately on receipt of satisfactory proof of death.
4. Its Policies cannot be Forfeited after three annual premiums have been paid, but provide for surrender values by way of cash or paid-up insurance
5. The Premium Rates Compare favorably with those of other insurance companies, and a grace of month is allowed in payment thereof, during which time the policy remains in full force and effect.
6. Its Policies are Automatically Continued in force after three years premiums have been paid, for such time as the whole reserve is sufficient to pay premiums.
7. Liberal Cash Loans are granted under policies after three annual premiums have been paid.

THE CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Such an amount of interest and sympathy has been shown with regard to the Christmas festival to be held in the Market Hall on the evening of Dec. 28th, under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society, that it has been thought advisable to give a brief account of what is being done with reference to it.

Those connected with church and other charitable societies know how much there is to be done in relieving distress at this season of the year. However, notwithstanding all these exertions, cases are continually cropping up where work remains to be done. Not all of this of course is due to an overwhelming amount of poverty, but rather to its persistence from year to year. It is with this very phase of persistence that the Children's Aid is chiefly called upon to deal. In connection with the other work a sewing class was organized some time ago at the Shelter. This has proved successful in spite of the strong probabilities against it. The ladies directing it are encouraged. This success, without speaking too plainly, has shown what may be done by well-directed regenerative effort. Conditions of life in many houses show upon careful visiting, that this regenerative effort, already applied in all it phases in the Children's Aid work outside of the houses, may well be extended into the houses themselves. The people indicated welcome the suggestion—in fact the suggestion has really emanated from them. Then again it does not follow that because the homes referred to are cheerless, forbidding and utterly wretched, that this condition of things is always the fault, and never the misfortune, of the inmates—though, of course, in many of the cases some one is at fault, and seriously so.

Now, the proposition is to begin this phase of home work by a tea, Christmas tree and musical entertainment. Care is being taken that those who are helped from other sources shall not reap an undue benefit. It has been thought advisable to include the parents in the invitation to the festival which their children are already looking forward to with such joyful anticipation. Clothing was, and is, badly needed for those who will not be able otherwise to leave their wretched surroundings in the event of the weather being at all severe. Whole families of male children are yet practically destitute of clothing. No fewer than 175 people (parents and children) come within the meaning of the words "destitute and unfortunate circumstances," which it is the present aim of the society to relieve. The response to the proposal has been prompt. The charitably disposed are numerous and active. One of the best features of this educative as well as practical undertaking is the delightful interest taken in it by the school children of the town and Ashburnham, who have in very many cases at the expense of the own little savings, subscribed a sum exceeding one hundred dollars. The names of these and other donors have been carefully kept, the former by the president, Mr. McBain, and the latter by the secretary, Miss Clarke. Tickets will be sent free to each of these. Of the thousand tickets being struck off some will be reserved by the committee for distribution in line with the express object of the tea, Christmas tree, musical entertainment and addresses. It will be seen from this that the occasion is to be one to be remembered both by the recipients and by the donors, young and old. It is not proposed to use all of this sum on this occasion, but to make it serve a more permanent purpose as well. Clothing, old picture-books, toys and contributions to the tea will be welcomed. No step has been taken without due consideration, and it is believed that on the principle that a little leading will help a long way, discreet assistance may work a moral and religious benefit in the end. Unpleasant distinctions are done away with by the use of tickets, and even on the Christmas-tree there will be found articles serving a similar purpose. To those who are not contributors the price of admission will be twenty-five cents. It is a pity that these good intentions for the Christmas season cannot be extended to the back country where the conditions of not a few are similar to those above described. The government is, by means of Children's Aid Societies, gradually changing the policy of spasmodic philanthrophy or penal servitude to the more effective and reasonable one of rescue. Nature, in Canada, has been lavish in her bounty. It remains for us to make a wiser use of it. What is left over of the school children's contribution might, if the general committee, thought well of it, be used towards the endowment of beds for sick children in the Nicholls Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital.

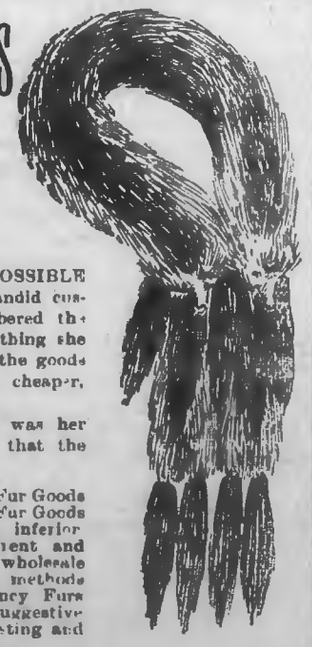
Crowning Xmas Chances

In High-Class

FURS.



Prices with Styles and Qualities IMPOSSIBLE TO DUPLICATE ELSEWHERE. A candid customer who went shopping and remembered the advice to compare, found, that the something she found elsewhere was really different from the goods she wanted—this made our goods much cheaper, because it was matching genuine and against a fraud, that couldn't suit. This was her admission—It's worth remembering now that the holiday buying is on.

Not that we are the sole sellers of Real Fur Goods but that, we charge as low prices on Prime Fur Goods well made, as is often charged for much inferior goods. If the Fur business was not different and better here. If this house depended on wholesale manufacturers or on old fogey business methods these Christmas chances in Fine and Fancy Furs would not be possible. This store is now suggestive with hints of Christmas givables—things lasting and useful as well as ornamental—at low prices.

Fur Collarettes $5.00 to $50.00.
Fur Muffs $1.00 to $15.00.
Fur Ruffs $1.25 to $20.00.
Fur Caps $1.00 to $15.00.
Ladies' Fur Gauntlets $2.00 to $15.00.
Ladies' Imitation Gauntlets $1.00 to $15.00.
Children's Imitation Gauntlets 75c. to $1.25.
Gent's Fur Gauntlets $3.00 to $18.00.
Gent's Imitation Gauntlets $1.00 to $1.50.
Astrachan Jackets $15 to $35.
Persian Lamb Jackets $75 to $125.
Alaska Seal Jackets $140 to $225.
Electric Seal Jackets $35 to $50.
Bocharen Lamb Jackets $35 to $55.

SIR WILLIAM C. McDONALD.

The Queen Knights the Generous Millionaire Tobacco Manufacturer.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—Yesterday afternoon the McGill Mining building was opened with great eclat in the presence of His Excellency and Lady Minto, Lord Strathcona and all the dignitaries of the university world. When His Excellency announced that Her Majesty had been pleased to confer the honor of knighthood upon Mr. W. C. McDonald, the great benefactor, there was great cheering, which was renewed when Lord Minto stated he had received a telegram from Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, thanking Sir William McDonald for what he had done for the cause of higher education in Canada.

The degree of LL.D. was conferred on Lord Minto, Lord Herschell and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Telegraphers Are Not Finding the Sailing Very Easy.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—The conference of telegraphers was resumed yesterday, when the case of the men was more fully gone into. This embraces wages, hours of work, overtime, treatment of the men, the law as to dismissals, the usage as to the employment of boys, and, in fact, every feature affecting the duties of the telegraphers.

THE WRIGHT FAMILY

Held the Fort in the West York Case on Tuesday.

ST. JOHN SENT A DETECTIVE

And Brought Witnesses From Michigan—Slow Progress Was Made—Charge Ill Continued—Walter J. Wright Alleged to Have Promised a Constableship—Points of the Evidence.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—The West York election trial dragged its weary length through the court hours of yesterday, and in the evening the court was still dealing with the charge which had been entered upon 24 hours before. The Wright family practically had possession of the witness box yesterday. These was Walter Wright and Mrs. Wright, Charlie Wright "the Terror," and another Charlie Wright, who, being only 12 years of age, may be called "the meek," for the sake of identification. Then there was little Louie Wright and her Sunday school prize book, with the handwriting of her Sunday school superintendent therein, by means of which the prosecution will try to prove the handwriting and connection of J. M. Pearen, an alleged agent. Several of the Wrights came all the way from Michigan, the balance from the Junction. Those who came from Michigan were escorted by Private Detective Flynn, who, according to the chief witness for the family, was sent by Mr. St. John. The Walter J. Wright who had the stand for several hours yesterday is the same Wright who was discredited by Mr. Justice Street at the first trial, when what was then known as the Wright series was thrown out, and Wright held to have committed perjury. Wright and his family and relatives now appear to substantiate charge three, in which Wright is alleged to have promised a constableship to one Harry Brown. Brown was the first witness yesterday. His story was essentially the same as told by Mrs. Brown the night before. Cross-examined, the witness coolly admitted that he had tried to better the bargain by not making any definite promise. At another time, when Mr. Wright was present, witness pulled out his pipe, and mentioned that he was out of tobacco, whereupon Mr. Wright handed him a plug.

"Would you sell your vote for a plug of tobacco?" asked Mr. Watson.

The witness smiled.

"Oh, you do value it more?"

"I don't value my vote at anything."

"And you do value your tobacco?"

"I value my tobacco ten cents." (Laughter.)

Brown admitted intimating to Mr. Parsons, who was with Mr. Wright, that he was hard up and not able to get out to work. Mr. Parsons said he could not give him anything, but if he cared to get out certain stumps from a field he would draw them home for him. Under Mr. Watson's handling, Brown experienced a fit of remorse, during which he said he would never vote for any man again as long as he lived.

"Your moral sense has been affected, then?" Answer—Yes.

Mr. Walter T. Wright was again called, and repeated his former evidence regarding his claims to agency. A canvasser's book was produced, containing names written, the witness said, by himself and Mr. Pearen, who gave him the book, with instructions to canvass those names in the latter's handwriting. Another book was produced which the witness said he had received from Mr. Pearen, and which he said were found in his trunk when he went to Michigan. Previously he declared they were destroyed. He also produced a paper purporting to be from Mr. Hill, authorizing him to act as scrutineer. He swore he had appointed William A. Hill poll constable at Mount Dennis.

After recess the witness continued. His words to Mr. Irwin were: "I thought I had a man. I could work his wife if he got a job as constable." Mr. Irwin said, "he'd see again." The night before the election Mr. Irwin said he wouldn't have Brown; he couldn't trust him.

Witness did not think much of Pearen.

To Mr. Bristol, witness said he had on election day told Anderson to try and get Brown to vote on an open ballot.

Mrs. Wright was next called. To Mr. Bristol she said she had been living in Michigan. She was keeping a grocery store on the Weston road at the time of the last election. Mr. J. M. Pearen had engaged Mr. Wright to do election work for him. Pearen was superintendent of Mount Dennis Sunday School. Once in the store Mr. Pearen had given Mr. Wright a voters' list—a book of a blue color, similar to the one shown. They marked names in the book. Mr. Hill and Mr. Pearen called at the store. She was introduced. "This is Mr. Hill, Mrs. Wright, the man we're working for." Mr. Hill bought two cigars and they left. Mr. Wright would ask men who came into the store whom they were going to vote for. Mr. Wright had carried a pink book all through the election. Mr. Wright had gone away before she had. About the last of June she had gone to Mr. Pearen on the request of Mr. Wright to get money her husband had spent in the election. Mr. Pearen had pretended he didn't know Mr. Wright or the witness. She insisted on getting the money. "You can't expect to get anything till after the protest, if you are Mrs. Wright."

In cross-examination, witness said she had come with a detective, who told her she must come on account of election matters. Mr. Charles Wright was the only one who had asked her what she recollected. Witness heard some talk of her husband being appointed constable. Mr. Wright had told her to ask Pearen for $10. She said it might be the worse for him if she did not get it, being annoyed. She was here to help her husband.

Charlie Wright was 12, going on 13, a Sunday school scholar of Mr. Pearen's. He had got a prize at Christmas. On election day he was helping his father, carrying messages.

Mr. Charles Wright was next. "This is the Terror!" said his lordship. He was scrutineer at Toronto Junction. He remembered seeing his brother in Mr. Irwin's room. He went in response to a letter. He had become identified with the case in order to exonerate his brother.

Louie Wright, a girl of 13, next took the stand. She had seen Mr Pearen and her father looking over books in the store. Her uncle, Mr. Wright, had brought her here.

Mr. William Stonehouse was next. He was a Reformer, but not strong either way. He had seen Mr. Hill once enquiring for a Mr. Newton. He knew Harry Brown, a man he would have nothing to do with.

Mr. Frank Baby knew Mr. Pearen. He identified a receipt as written by Mr. Pearen.

Mr. William Parsons had lived one and a half miles from Toronto Junction for 40 years. He had known Harry Brown since the fall of 1897, when Brown worked for him. W. J. Wright was also working for him. He was a member of the executive committee of the Reform Association, and had been in the Junction committee rooms various times. He had never canvassed Wright. In consequence of a communication, he had gone to see Brown on Feb. 23. Witness had sounded him as to his vote, and his reply was that he would vote Liberal, also that he was very hard up, and that he didn't dare go to work for fear of people. Witness had told Brown he could promise him nothing, as it might upset the election. He said he could have milk for his sick child. Wright asked if witness could not give Brown a constableship. The reply was, no. Witness then left, and he and Wright drove to the committee room. Witness did not hear Wright promise Brown a constableship. He had no recollection of Wright's saying so afterwards in the cutter.

To Mr. Bristol, witness said he might have said that Brown was after money. On election day he was driving. He told Brown he could not appoint him, as he did not live in No. 13. Witness kept a diary and had consulted it. There was nothing said in his presence as to Mount Dennis.

Mr. H. E. Irwin said he had been fully examined re the agency of Mr. Wright, given before. He had never discussed the appointment of a constable with Mr. Wright, contrary to Wright's assertion.

"Wright says in a conversation you said you wouldn't risk appointing Brown."

"There was no such conversation," answered Mr. Irwin.

The court adjourned till 10 to-day.

THE FIRE RECORD.

Burning of the Greenshields Block in Montreal—Narrow Escape of the Mace Family at Tamworth—Other Fires.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—One of the heaviest fires for years took place last night on Victoria square, the result being that the large dry goods warehouse of S. Greenshields & Co., and the adjoining building, occupied by McIntyre, French & Co., are nothing but ruins. In fact, Greenshields' premises have been levelled to the ground, entailing a loss, including stock, of $300,000, pretty well covered by insurance. The Greenshields building is on the corner formerly occupied by the old St. Patrick's Hall, which also suffered from fire more than once. It was at this corner where Hackett was shot during the Orange riots. Three of the firemen were badly hurt, but as far as known no lives are lost. When the wall facing Craig street fell outward it smashed the water tower, and it looks as if the fire department had suffered heavy loss.

Later.—Nobody was hurt in last night's fire. It was at first thought that several people had been buried beneath the falling walls, but enquiry at the hospitals shows that this is not the case.

Other Fires.

At Tamworth, Ont., the fine residence of Mr. W. D. Mace was burned on Tuesday morning. Nothing was saved, and the family had to flee in their night clothes. Mr. Mace lost over $300, which was in his trousers pocket, and some of Mrs. Mace's money was also burned. John Mowbray's house next door was also burned; contents saved. Mr. Mace's property insured for $8,000; Mowbray's property very little insurance.

The Music Hall on Dundas street in London, owned by Mr. Alex. Harvey, was damaged $10,000 by fire on Monday night.

At Regina, N.W.T., on Tuesday the premises of Millar Bros., flour and feed merchants, were destroyed, with contents.

INQUEST IN BIRDSALL CASE.

Charles Admits Throwing the Plate, But Claims Self-Defence.

St. Thomas, Ont., Dec. 21.—The inquest in reference to the death of Joseph Birdsall was resumed yesterday. Charles Birdsall admitted that he threw the plate at Joseph, but said he was compelled to do so in self-defence. Joseph had come home drunk.

Mrs. Birdsall, mother of deceased, and Mrs. Joseph Birdsall, wife of the deceased, both gave evidence, showing that the dead man was struck on the head by a plate picked from the supper table and hurled by Charlie Birdsall, his brother. They said Joe was intoxicated and started a quarrel with his mother, threatening to kill her with a hatchet. He then made a race for Charlie, because he tried to interfere, his mother catching him by the arm, when Charlie turned and threw the instrument of death. The lad Charles corroborated this evidence. Dr. Smith, who dressed the wound, said the deceased was in a frenzy and very dangerous when he was called in. Drs. Tufford, Lipsey, Lawrence and Wilson, who held a post-mortem examination on the body, also gave evidence. One of the main problems the jury are trying to sift is whether the deceased had proper attendance after the wound was inflicted up to his death.

Kate Hope Drowned Herself.

Ayr, Ont., Dec. 21.—A sad case of suicide by drowning occurred here yesterday. Miss Kate Hope, a fine, bright, intelligent young lady, was seen to go up by Jedburgh's dam about 10.30 o'clock, and friends, learning of her absence about noon, made search and found her body below the falls, having been washed over by the action of the water. No reason can be given for the act.

Cross-Petition Filed.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—Yesterday a cross-petition was filed in the Court of Appeal against Mr. Charles Calder, the defeated candidate in the bye-election in South Ontario

FACTS ABOUT HEALTH

It is Easy to Keep Well if We Know How—Some of the Conditions Necessary to Perfect Health.

The importance of maintaining good health is easily understood, and it is really a simple matter if we take a correct view of the conditions required. In perfect health the stomach promptly digests food, and thus prepares nourishment. The blood is employed to carry this nourishment to the organs, nerves, muscles and tissues which need it. The first great essential for good health, therefore, is pure, rich blood. Now it is certainly a fact that no medicine has such a record of cures as Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is literally true that there are hundreds of people alive and well today who would have been in their graves had they not taken Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is depended upon as a family medicine and general regulator of the system by tens of thousands of people. This is because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure. This is the secret of its great success. Keep your system in good health by keeping your blood pure with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which absolutely cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A WORTHY OBJECT OF BENEFICENCE.

In another column is printed an illustrated article relating to the work and needs of the Sick Children's Hospital, at Toronto, an institution that is doing a splendid work for the alleviation of the sufferings that afflict children by either the hand of disease or the misadventure of accident. It should be noticed that the dark cloud of a $50,000 mortgage hangs over the institution which, if not speedily lifted, threatens to extinguish the beneficent work of the Sick Children's Hospital. A record of the work of this institution is contained in the article referred to; and among those relieved are some from this very county. Afflictions that darkened homes have been removed or mitigated, and the joy of households has been great. Childhood is above all things the age of muscular activity, but when disease or accident intervenes the affliction of enforced inactivity is added to the inevitable pain and suffering.

The charitably inclined may do much to help these little sufferers. The children of the schools of Peterborough and Ashburnham have given of their little store to help those less fortunate, and their deeply afflicted brothers and sisters. But much more needs to be done, and those who are in sympathy with suffering are urged to read the appeal printed in another column and do what they can to mitigate the sufferings and relieve the affliction of the little children. Such an appeal should come with especial force at this season, when the Blessed Saviour of man came to earth, that Saviour who made little children his especial care and the objects of his especial benediction. When we are making liberal expenditures in celebrating the season that commemorates the advent of the Christ child, let us set apart something, in size according to our means, to relieve the suffering poor, whom He assured us we should always have with us—"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my little ones, ye have done it unto Me."

POLITICALLY, Hon. Mr. Foster seems to be playing a lone hand. No other Conservative magnates are filling much space in the public eye or the public press.

A great deal of talk is made of the discovery of the ashes of Julius Cesar. The discovery of his fire would be a good deal more important than his ashes.

WHEN we have grain shipments delayed for lack of railway cars it is time to recognize the importance of canals as factors in moving a harvest. If the Trent Valley Canal was completed it would furnish a short and speedy route to the seaboard. Let us stick to the completion of this great waterway. The diminution of opposition to its construction, which is following on a better recognition of the important contribution it is capable of making to the transportation problem, should inspire the friends of the [illegible]

FROM THE STUDENTS' STANDPOINT.

An Ex-Cathedra Record of the Trip of McGill Students.

McGill College "Outlook," a journal printed in the interest of the students, contains a racy report of the recent visit of the faculty and students in Applied Science to town. The following extract will be of local interest:—

Our car was dropped off at Peterborough, and we slept the sleep of the just until seven o'clock. The time until nine o'clock was spent in getting settled and breakfasted at the Oriental hotel.

The C.G.E. Co. had kindly placed at our disposal a 'bus and two cabs, which called for us at nine and drove us to the works, where we were received by several of the officials of the Company, and made to feel at home at once. We were divided into groups, each headed by one of the officials, and a more genial and pleasant lot of gentlemen I have never met. They placed themselves entirely at our disposal for the whole day, and were most painstaking in explaining to us the various and extensive processes of manufacture carried on by them.

We first went through the building where the armatures are wound, and the machines assembled. This is a large building with a gallery running the entire length on either side, in and under which the lighter part of the work is carried on. The central floor of the building has on it the large machine tools, and is covered by an electric crane. Here the machines are assembled and tested. Space will not permit me to go into details in describing this shop, where we saw so much that was of interest. By the time we had made a hurried inspection of this building, the inner man began to demand attention, so we adjourned to the hotel again and had dinner. After dinner we went out on the sidewalk and looked pleasant while several snapshots were taken by some of the amateur photographers of our number.

When we again reached the shops our guides were again ready to continue work, and we started for the lamp factory. A great deal of the work in this department is too delicate to be intrusted to the awkward hands of men and must be performed by the nimble fingers of girls. It was surprising how interested the boys were in the various operations carried on here. The glass blowing especially claimed attention, for, although there may have been more interesting operations, there was no more interesting operator. Here Tomahawk developed a wonderful faculty for holding forth on the beauties of the work, and wanted to take each fellow back again separately to point out something that had been missed. It was very hard to induce some of our younger members to leave this department at all. Bogie and Gr-g seemed to be especially susceptible. Here we met H. B. Barnham, Sci. '97, who is employed in this department. We assured Mr. Burdett, the Superintendent, and the girls, that they were all right and tore ourselves away. Then we went through the insulating department, and saw miles of wire being covered with rubber and cotton insulation. We were very much interested also in the porcelain and carbon works.

As we had about an hour to spare before supper, we walked over and visited the Hamilton Machine works. On the way some remarks were made about two very pretty hats in which pink was the predominating shade, and which were behind a black horse. One of the boys carries the mark of a whip to remind him of the occasion. However, evidently there was no harm done, as he was noticed driving down to the station next morning behind the same black charger.

In the evening the crowning event (to the boys) of the trip took place. Mr. Stevens, the General Superintendent, kindly arranged with some of the ladies to give a dance, and with good floor, good music and pretty girls we spent a most enjoyable evening. Our hostess put me so much at our ease that we forgot that we were attired in tweed suits and heavy boots, and enjoyed ourselves to the full. The evening passed all to quickly, but all good things must have an end, and as we had to get up early if we were to see the noted Trent Valley Canal.

At 9 o'clock next morning we were loaded into the bus again, and drove out to inspect the canal. At 11.27 we bade good-bye to Peterborough with cheers for our hosts and the ladies, some of whom had very kindly come down to the station to see us off. It was a pretty tired but well-satisfied crowd that arrived in Montreal Saturday night.

Every man of us will hold a warm spot in our hearts for the gentlemen of the C. G. E. Co. who were so kind to us. We are especially indebted to Mr. Stevens, General Superintendent; Mr. Mallett, Assistant Superintendent; Mr. Patterson, Accountant; Mr. Ritchie, Wks. Engr., and Mr. Watts, of Toronto, for the pleasant way in which they gave us all the information we could absorb.

A POPULAR MISTAKE.

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The national disease of Americans is indigestion or, in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common, many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when, as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigourous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid, faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Werthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover this remedy is not a patent medicine, but it is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter), vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these pills will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonial sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

For Producing Famous Men and Dodd's Kidney Pills Cures.

Kingston, Dec. 19th.—The Limestone City has given Canada a majority of her greatest and most famous men. Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Geo. Kirkpatrick, Sir Richard Cartwright, and many other notable personalities claim the city as their home.

Kingston is no less famous as the scene of many of the most wonderful and startling cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, than for the first named reason.

Now another is added to this long list of cures. Mr. Robert Orr, Pine street, reports that after suffering for years with Bladder trouble, Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured him, though all other remedies had failed. Every city has a similar experience. Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured every time.

A Group of Little Patients at The Hospital for Sick Children.

TO LIFT THE MORTGAGE

A GREAT CHARITY'S APPEAL

The Grand Work of Ontario's Sweetest Charity. The Hospital for Sick Children — Hampered by a Mortgage of $50,000.

To love abundantly is to live abundantly. The Biblical story of the Good Samaritan is a delineation of the greatest thing in the world—love.

The Hospital for Sick Children was built by those who were large in enterprise for the alleviation of the pain and suffering of helpless little children. The building is one of the best equipped hospitals in the world. It is capable of accommodating 175 sick children. To-day there are over 100 little patients in the Hospital, all being nursed and treated by skilful physicians and trained nurses.

The work has been carried on during the past year without stint. Over 5000 children were helped back to health. Of these 633 patients were cared for in the cots. One-third of the patients came from places outside of Toronto.

The Hospital is a provincial institution. Its services are free to the children of parents who cannot afford to pay the small fees charged. Some of the most difficult surgical operations known have been skilfully and successfully performed at the Hospital. Many a parent has had cause to bless the great charity, not only for saving their child's life, but for making happy what had otherwise been a sorrowful life. Children who had been cripples for life but for the ministrations of the Hospital will grow up strong and straight, and in the years to come they, too, will bless the work of the Hospital and return thanks in some tangible manner.

In twenty-two years the Hospital for Sick Children has been the means of helping 30,000 sick children.

This is a grand institution — one worthy of the sympathy and help of everyone.

Though for 22 years the Hospital has been doing this work, the workers in the institution have always been harassed by debt—and hampered for need of funds.

This year the mortgage of $50,000 falls due, and half the amount of the mortgage must be paid off. The increase of patients during the past year precluded any possibility of saving a single dollar towards this object. The trustees of the Hospital, in this critical emergency, make a strong appeal to the people of Ontario.

They ask the aid of everyone who can spare a single dollar.

They have asked the editor of this paper to tell the story of the Hospital to its readers, to tell the story simply, to state the urgency of their need, and to appeal to them for financial aid. They need money—not alone for the mortgage indebtedness, but to meet a debt due the bank for money advanced to meet expenses incurred for medicine and food.

Last year the scholars of Ontario's Public schools contributed $1,153 towards the permanent endowment of a cot. They will complete their generous gift this year. Toronto school children gathered $1,397, and they say they will do more this year. The Sabbath school children gave nearly an equal amount.

They are doing their best to relieve the pain of their comrades in distress. And it is upon these staunch little friends of the work that the Hospital relies for maintenance.

There are 400 papers published in the province. If the readers of this paper could contribute $100 amongst them, that sum would maintain a cot for a year—and perhaps save the life of somebody's darlings.

You will find as you look back on life that the moments of joy, the moments that you recollect often, the moments when you have really lived, are those moments when you have done things in a spirit of love and charity.

The Hospital for Sick Children, "the sweetest of all charities," appeals to you on behalf of the little ones who languish on beds of sickness. They ask only for the dollars you can easily spare.

As memory scans the past, beyond all the transitory pleasures of life, there stand forward the hours when you have done some act of kindness to those round about you, perhaps little acts too trifling to speak of, yet actions which have broadened the joy in your life.

From 136 places outside of Toronto the little patients came to the Hospital this year. Perhaps it may be your neighbour's child who will need the mother arm of the institution this year.

The future of the Hospital is in the hands of its friends.

$25,000 is needed at once.

To give abundantly is to get abundantly.

Readers of this paper may forward contributions to J. Ross Robertson, chairman of the Hospital Trust, Toronto. Their gifts will be promptly acknowledged by the Treasurer, and in the columns of the Toronto Evening

BILIOUSNESS

Do you get up with a headache?
Is there a bad taste in your mouth?
Then you have a poor appetite and a weak digestion. You are frequently dizzy, always feel dull and drowsy. You have cold hands and feet. You get but little benefit from your food. You have no ambition to work and the sharp pains of neuralgia dart through your body.
What is the cause of all this trouble?
Constipated bowels.

Ayer's PILLS

will give you prompt relief and certain cure.

Keep Your Blood Pure.

If you have neglected your case a long time, you had better take

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

also. It will remove all impurities that have been accumulating in your blood and will greatly strengthen your nerves.

Write the Doctor.

There may be something about your case you do not quite understand. Write the doctor freely; tell him how you are suffering. You will promptly receive the best medical advice. Address,
Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

INGERSOLL PROVES IT.

Dodd's Kidney Pills the Only Cure for Bladder Disease.

Ingersoll, Dec. 5.—If there could be the slightest shadow of a doubt about the unfailing efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, in all cases of Kidney and Bladder Disease and Rheumatism, the experience of Mr. Michael Jherlock, of Ingersoll, would positively dispel it forever.

Mr. Sherlock suffered unceasing tortures from Bladder and Kidney trouble, aggravated by Rheumatism, for five years. Every remedy he used failed to help him, until he began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They cured him quickly, completely and permanently.

Dodd's Kidney Pills should be used by every sufferer from these complaints. They never fail to cure, and are beside, the best tonic and strengthener known.

THE PROVINCE LOST.

The Niagara Falls Power Company Retains Its Franchise and no Other Company Can Interfere.

Toronto, Dec. 21.—The Niagara Falls Power & Electric Company has won in the suit against the Niagara Falls Park Commissioners. The park commissioners claimed that the company had forfeited its charter because one clause, which said that by Nov. 1 it should have completed water connection for 25,000 horsepower and have ready for transmission 10,000 developed horse-power, had not been fulfilled. A series of questions were asked the Court of Common Pleas, and yesterday the judgment of that court was: (1) That the agreement is not void by reason of the failure of the works by Nov. 1, 1898; (2) the Government or commissioners may not, by reason of the non-generation of electricity by that date, declare the agreement void; (3) the Government and commissioners are not relieved from the agreement not to grant any other company the right to take or use the waters of Niagara River.

LADY COOK AND COMPANY.

"Tennessee Claflin" Again Going Into Business as a Stock Broker.

London, Dec. 21.—Lady Cook, who will be remembered as Miss Tennessee Claflin, announces that she is going to start the New Year as a stock broker, under the name of "Lady Cook & Company." In an interview on the subject Lady Cook is quoted as saying she intends to attend to the daily business of stock broker, and expects to get in touch with influential financial men, and thus further her ideas in the direction of redressing social wrongs. She added: "When I and my sister Victoria were bankers and brokers in Washington we often had the market in our hands. We operated for Jay Gould, Vanderbilt and Fisk."

Czar May Visit London.

London, Dec. 21.—Communications are passing between the London and St. Petersburg Foreign Offices on the proposal that the peace conference meet in London in May instead of in St. Petersburg. If this is so arranged, Queen Victoria will invite, on a concurrent visit, the Czar and Czarina, the Kaiser and Kaiserin, President Faure and other heads of European Governments.

International Congress of Women.

London, Dec. 21.—Arrangements for the International Congress of Women, to be held in London next June, are approaching completion. Lady Aberdeen, as president of the council, will undertake arrangements for a great arbitration meeting. Another discussion that is likely to prove attractive will be upon the drama as a profession.

STEERED A BALLOON.

The Daring Feat of Crossing the Channel Performed.

THE CLAYTON-BULWER TREATY.

Terrible Loss of Life Reported at Hang Chow, China—Russian Railway From Merv Has Actually Crossed Afghan Border—Lady Cook, nee Tennessee Claflin, Will Turn Stock Broker.

London, Dec. 21.—Yesterday a balloon, which ascended at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, London, crossed the English Channel to Fecamp, about 27 miles northeast of Havre.

The Daily Chronicle, which had a man on board, claims to have successfully tested Prof. Andree's idea of steering a balloon.

CLAYTON-BULWER TREATY.

Mr. White, U. S. Charge d'Affaires in London, Has Gone to Hatfield.

London, Dec. 21.—Mr. Henry White, the United States charge d'affaires, yesterday went on a two-days' visit to Lord Salisbury, the British Premier, at the latter's country residence, Hatfield House, Hertfordshire.

While the visit is said to be of a purely social nature, there is reason to believe that Lord Salisbury and Mr. White will discuss the attitude of Great Britain towards the proposal that the United States build the Nicaragua Canal, and with the view of arriving at an understanding regarding the Bulwer-Clayton treaty.

3,000 Soldiers Killed.

London, Dec. 21.—A despatch from Shanghai to a newspaper here says a powder magazine situated in the centre of the Chinese camp at Hung Chow has exploded, and that a square mile of houses has been levelled. It is estimated, according to the same authority, that 3,000 soldiers were killed, including the general commanding the forces. The American and French missions are both reported to have been damaged, but it is said there are no fatalities in them.

Dangerously Near India.

London, Dec. 21.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says that the first train from Merv, Russian Turkestan, 300 miles southeast of Khiva, arrived on Friday last, at Kushk, in the Jamshidd Province of Afghanistan, the line thus being completed to within 95 miles of Herat.

KAISER AND COUNT THUN.

Emperor William Writes to Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria Taking a Firm Stand.

Berlin, Dec. 21.—The substance of Emperor's William's autograph letter to Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria is the subject of much speculation in Berlin court circles. From an authoritative source in His Majesty's entourage, it is learned that the letter contained a detailed statement of Austrians thus far expelled from Prussia, together with the reasons for their ejectment. It also refers to the manner in which Count Thun, the Austrian Premier, publicly spoke of the expulsions, and sets forth the reasons why that utterance is calculated to disturb the hitherto good relations that have existed between Germany and Austria. The whole letter is worded with extreme caution, but through it all His Majesty speaks with firmness, making evident Germany's desire to be friendly with Austria, and on the other hand her ability if need, be, to stand alone.

WAR AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS.

Meeting to That End Presided Over by the Prince of Wales.

London, Dec. 21.—The Prince of Wales presided at a private meeting at Marlborough House yesterday, convened by him to promote a war against tuberculosis.

The Marquis of Salisbury, the Earl of Rosebery and a number of noted scientists and physicians, spoke of the urgent necessity of educating the people in the means of preventing consumption, and of checking the spread of tuberculosis among cattle.

The Prince of Wales, who promised heartiest support of the movement, said Great Britain ought to follow the good example set before her in the United States, Germany and elsewhere in the effort to stamp out the disease. He mentioned the fact that the Queen had ordered the destruction of 36 of her dairy cows which had been found to have tuberculosis. It was an example, he urged, such as the farmers ought to follow.

A NEW INVENTION

The Newcombe Piano Has It.

It consists of a Patented Practice CLAVIER or STOP which diminishes the tone when required and saves wear on the Piano; it also does away with the old way of having to press down the pedal with the foot in order to soften the tone when running the scales or practicing. Oftentimes the young pupil on the piano cannot press down on the pedal without throwing themselves out of the proper position when they should sit erect. This invention in the NEWCOMBE PIANO will enable children to begin two years earlier on the piano. In addition to the above, the NEWCOMBE PIANO is the finest made in Canada. Children often complain about practicing; they like it if they have a NEWCOMBE PIANO. Its styles are gems of art, containing every late improvement; they possess that beautiful full sweet tone which delights the singer, and so pleases every musical ear. Organs of every description at Wholesale Prices.

Big Bargains now on hand in slightly used. Upright and Square Pianos of the various makes taken in part exchange for the famous NEWCOMBE PIANOS. Every NEWCOMBE PIANO has a new registered scale and the warranty is cast in the plate. For correct and full information regarding the new invention and NEWCOMBE PIANOS, write to our Direct Representative. Easy Prices. Liberal Terms.

At the Opera House.

Although only a fair house greeted the Orrin Ober Stock Co. last night the performance was exceptionally well received. It was opened by a little curtain raiser "The Old Miser," by Gilbert Tosslck. It is exceptionally clever. Nellie Florence and the young Gilbert Tosslck both did good work. The play "For a Million," which followed, gave the best satisfaction. We feel confident that when the public learn of the merits of this company the business will increase in proportion. The The bill for this evening will be the three act comedy-drama "Grasebrooke Farm." This is a pastoral play, after the style of "The Old Homestead" and "Shore Acres."

A very attractive new billboard has just been finished, opposite the Y.M.C.A. block, for Mr. Wm. Madill, druggist, of Hunter street. The board is 18 feet by 7 feet and is built of dressed lumber, neatly finished. A pleasing background of a robin's-egg shade has been laid on with good white lead and oil paint, and the wording is done in a strong chocolate colour, creating a harmonious contrast The ornamental lettering is well executed in clear and artistic modern styles of letter, ornamented at each end with a well-drawn imitation of a bottle, bearing the label of Madill's Cough Syrup. This should make an effective "ad," and influence the sale of this popular cough remedy. The painting and design is the clever handiwork of Mr. Fred. Cook, the original sign writer.

Generous Contributions.

The Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society, desire warmly to thank the following generous contributors: Miss Currie, of Richard Hall & Son, $2; Mr. A. C. McCallum, memorial to his child who recently died, $5; Mrs. Hugh Gillespie, $2; Mr. W. Ferguson, clothing; Mr. Smeaton, clothing.

A Seasonable Gift.

A number of business men and others interested in young men are giving Christmas gifts in the form of membership tickets in the Y.M.C.A. Quite lately fourteen have been procured for this purpose. There are dozens of deserving young men and boys who would appreciate such a gift. Other citizens would do well to follow this example in helping young young men. The result can only be for good. It is an opportunity of placing young men and boys under the best influences in an association for mutual helpfulness, free from questionable influences, and equipped with helpful agencies for their intellectual, physical and spiritual welfare.

Personal.

For the sake of your family, yourself and your friends, don't delay the Christmas shopping. Henry & Co., grocers and wine merchants, are particularly anxious to give prompt service during this Christmas week. If shopping can be done early in the week it will certainly be much more satisfactory than if it is all left until the last day or two, when all will be topsyturvy. Not that we won't try to serve all, but simply the usual holiday rush will make it somewhat unpleasant to shop. For instance, the weather is likely to be cold, and ales and porters do not improve by being delayed in the cold late on a Xmas eve. Henry & Co. have an immense stock of Wines and Liquors for the holiday season, and of the best Ales and Porters, kept in the finest condition. We are always pleased to serve our customers with the best goods in the best condition, and would request our friends to order early week and avoid the rush.—HENRY Co.

Thursday, Bargain Day at Goughs.

In keeping with the spirit of this "good will" season, Gough's stores will offer special Thursday Bargains in EVERYTHING all day Thursday of this Christmas week.

Gough's stores are at their best now. Wherever you look oceans of new and stylish goods meet your eye. Thursday Prices will affirm most eloquently our oft repeated claim of—"Always the Cheapest."

RUBIDGE STREET WEDDING.

Celebration of the Nuptials of Miss Etta Thomas and Mr. J. Herbert Forster.

A very pretty wedding took place last evening at eight o'clock at the residence of Mr. W. C. Thomas, 137 Rubidge street, when his second daughter, Miss Etta S. Thomas, was united in marriage to Mr. J. Herbert, Forster, of North Monaghan.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. O. Crossley, pastor of the Charlotte street church, in the presence of about thirty guests, composed largely of the relatives of both parties.

The bride was attired in a handsome gown of green shot Russell cord silk, trimmed with cream satin and jet, and carried a shower bouquet of white bride roses. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Lou Thomas, who was gowned in poplin of a bluish gray shade, trimmed with cream satin, and carried cream carnations. The pretty little maid d'honneur was Miss Lelia Roach, of Milton, neice of the bride, who was dressed in white with pale green trimmings, and bore a basket of cream and pink chrysanthemums.

The groomsman was Mr. Jas. Campbell, of Baillieboro.

Amongst the numerous beautiful presents which were received was a handsome French clock, the gift of the Charlotte street Methodist church choir, of which the bride has been a member for some years.

The groom presented the bridesmaid with a handsome ring, and the maid of honour with a pretty bracelet, as souvenirs of the occasion.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding dejeuner was served, after which a reception was held for several hours when the bride and groom received the congratulations of their friends.

Amongst those who were present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. W. Forster, of Gananoque; Mr. F. Forster, of Toronto Junction, and Mr. and Mrs. Roach, of Milton.

PERSONAL.

Mr. A. P. Poussette is confined to his room with illness.

Mr. Lionel King returned home from Trinity University, Toronto, for his holidays last night.

Mr. Sparham Sheldrake, formerly of Lakefield, is in town, having just returned from a trip to the Old Country.

Mr. Wm. Merrill, formerly of Gough Bros', great clothing emporium, is down from North Dakota to spend the holidays.

Mr. W. F. Johnston and Mr. J. B. McWilliams were among those who registered at the Walker House, Toronto, yesterday.

Miss Daisy Hamilton, who has been visiting Miss Norah Bell, in Belleville, for past four weeks, returned home last evening.

Mr. James McCreary, who has been travelling in the United States and Canada for the past summer, is home for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. S. J. Truscott, of Stony Plains, near Edmonton, Alberta, N.W.T., arrived in town yesterday and is spending a few days with Dr. Rose, Brock street.

Mrs. W. Christie, of Gilmour street, and her daughter Mabel, are spending the Christmas holidays with relatives in Buffalo. Mr. Christie joins them in a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Levvy left town yesterday after a four months' visit with Mrs. Levvy's father, Mr. Robt. Walton. They go by way of Ottawa, Montreal and New York to their home in Philadelphia.

Miss Frankie Maybury, private secretary and massage nurse in connection with the Harmony Sanitariums in Ottawa and Toronto, has established herself in town for a time in their interests, and, she confidently hopes, in the interest of the afflicted. Her residence here for the next two or three months will be at Mrs. (Dr.) Butler's, 20 Queen street. The principle of treatment of the Harmony Sanitariums is understood to be chiefly the massage.

FELL FROM A WINDOW.

A Commercial Traveller, Well Known in Peterborough, Meets With a Serious Accident.

W. R. Carmichael, the well known drug traveller for the firm of Evans Bros., Montreal, met with a very serious accident in Millbrook on Monday night, the particulars of which have not as yet been ascertained, as the victim has not as yet recovered consciousness.

Mr. Carmichael was in Peterborough on Monday and went down to Millbrook on evening train, registering at the Dominion Hotel. He retired shortly after his arrival and was not again seen until Mr. Roper, the proprietor, was awakened in the morning at about seven o'clock by a farmer, who on driving into the village found Mr. Carmichael lying unconscious on the sidewalk in front of the hotel, in his night clothes.

As soon as the hotel was opened up the injured man was carried in and a physician summoned, with the result that it was ascertained that he was suffering from concussion of the brain, and that both feet were frozen badly.

How the accident occurred no one can tell at present, but the supposition is that after retiring, Mr. Carmichael found the room to warm, and opening the window over-balanced in some way and fell out.

During the day he recovered consciousness for a few minutes, and in answer to a question as to whether he ever walked in his sleep, replied that none of the family ever did so, and immediately afterwards lapsed into insensibility again.

It is understood that the feet are so very badly frostbitten that it may be impossible to save them in the event of Mr. Carmichael surviving the accident.

What Shall the Present be?

It ought to be something useful and durable, and no harm if it's nobby. Here is a velvety lot of holiday gifts at H. LeBrun & Co's, which are just the thing for a lady to give and that please gentlemen's fancy:

—A nobby holiday scarf.
—A swell holiday tie.
—A fine silk muffler.
—A dressy pair of kid gloves.
—A sporty pair of reindeer gloves.
—A fancy pair of silk suspenders.
—A cosy suit of underwear.
—A dandy silk handkerchief.
—A fashionable silk umbrella.
—A suit for the boy from mother.
—A warm reefer from father.
—A blizzard proof vest from wife.
—A length of cloth for a jacket from husband.

No nicer stock to select from than H. LeBrun's & Co's. No lower prices in town. No better values anywhere. Everything in ordered and ready to-wear cloth ing, in fine London and Paris neckwear, in fashionable underwear and gents' furnishings—all reduced. Our nobby neckwear has caught on like lightning. We sold so many ties and scarfs to the ladies last Saturday we had to send for repeat orders.

HOCKEY IN KEENE.

A very successful meeting of those interested in hockey was held on Saturday night, at which it was decided to organize for the season of '98 and '99. The following officers were elected:—

Hon. President—Jas. Miller.
President—A. Dawson.
Vice-President—M. Weir.
Captain—Jas. Dickson.
Sec.-Treas.—T J. Wallace.
Manager—T. Stockdale.
Chaplain—Rev. J. Bushell.
Committee—J. M. Quinn, J. McIntyre, J. McCarthy.

The outlook for hockey this season in Keene is much brighter this year than might have been expected. The club will miss Fred Quinn, their star forward, but new material is coming to the front in the form of young stick handlers, who require only practice to make them players. Jas. Dickson, the point, will again take his place on the team, thereby strengthening it very much. Practice will be held every Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings from 7 to 8 o'clock. Be on time. A dressing room for the players is being built over the corridor. Several have thrown in their lot with the boys this year, and it is to be hoped that the public will give the patronage to the boys that they merit, and attend the matches. Hockey is a high-class sport, amusing, interesting and easily understood. Watch for the announcement of the first match.

Nominations for county representatives were held Monday, when the old representatives were re-elected by acclamation.

CURLIANA.

The following skips have been selected to play in the Colts Cup Contest on Christmas Day:

Thistles.	Granites.

MORNING.

W G Ferguson	Judge Weller
J Connal	D W Dumble
D Davidson	M Hamilton

AFTERNOON.

T Rutherford	R S Davidson
S Ray	E B Edwards
D Belleghem	R B Boucher

The draws have not been made as yet, deciding which of the rinks will play against each other.

The Granites have chosen the following skips to play in the Kendry Cup series on New Year's Day:

Morning—R S Davidson, R B Boucher and J Jeffries.

Afternoon—Judge Weller, D W Dumble and E B Edwards.

Evening—G E Whitten, W L Allen and Geo Edmison.

Things are booming with the Granites this year, and last night all three rinks were filled, the scores being as follows:

RINK NO. 1.

D Walker,		K Hall,
C Fessenden,		Dr Young,
H R H Kenner,		W G Morrow,
J Jeffries, sk	16	G E Whitten, sk	15

RINK NO. 2.

W J Aylmer,		— Napier,
R Waddell,		A G Parker,
G M Roger,		Geo Giroux,
E B Edwards, sk	17	Geo Edmison, sk	16

RINK NO. 3.

H J Grassett,		— Linton,
Robt Kerr,		C N Brown,
Robt Neil,		E H D Hall,
Dr Boucher, sk	16	Geo Boucher, sk	7

At a meeting of the Thistles Committee during the evening it was decided that the six rinks playing on Christmas day could be strengthened at the discretion of the skips, although no player is to be allowed to play twice.

It is understood that two rinks of Bankers are open to receive a challenge from any two rinks in the Granite curling club.

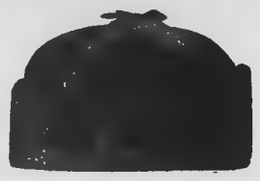
King Christmas

the "Ever Young" is Returning for His Homage.

The Yule log is being hauled; the mistletoe has appeared, and our store has become the headquarters of all those thoughtful Gift Givers who carry common sense with ideas of comfort and luxury into their Xmas giving.

FURS Handsome and Comfortable Garments for street wear during the chilly and cold days of winter, we have made up here in unusual variety. There is a look of luxury and a sense of comfort to the modest priced Fur Ruff, Caperine, Muff or Jacket; or, in fact any Fur Garment, added to its warmth and serviceableness, which makes it an ideal Xmas Gift.



FOR HER—The Xmas Gift should be something handsome, cosy, rich and warm that she'll use and enjoy. A pair of Fur Gauntlets $2, $3, $4, $5, up to $12; a Rich Ruff, $1, $2, $3, $4, $5, up to $15, extra select at $8; a Cosy Caperine $5, $7, $10, $12, up to $35; a Warm Muff $1, $2, $4, $5, up to $15; a few choice Sable ones at $6 and $8, extra at $10, and a hundred and one other articles, such as Jackets, Capes, Fur-lined Cloak, Collarette, Caps, Etc.

FOR HIM—Things of personal use and convenience—comfort-giving and serviceable—when he walks or drives he likes a warm pair of Fur Gauntlets $2.50 to $12, Imitation Fur $1 to $1.50. Perhaps a Fur Coat would be best, cheap ones at $10, $12, $15, $18 and $25. Finer qualities in Coon and Buffalo, $25, $30, $35, $40. If he has a "a driver," a pair of Fine Goat, Buffalo, Bear or Musk Ox Robes would be sure to please. We have them from $5 up to $50. Then there is a Fur Cap or a Fur Collar for his coat. Buck, Mocha or Kid Gloves and Mitts, lined with fur or with fleecy wool 50c. to 85c. Something extra would be a Fur-lined Coat, with Fur Collar and Cuffs and a fine Beaver, Melton or Pilot Cloth outside. We have have them at $50, $60 and $75.

FOR TINY TOTS—Xmas is everything—they expect great things and they all like Furs—why not give a Fur Collar, or Ruff, or Cap or Gauntlets of Pearly Grey Lamb or White Iceland Lamb. Prices start as low as $1.50 and reach $5.50 for any of the above mentioned. You'll give them extreme pleasure and save money on a doctor's bill for cold, coughs, etc. They are the cheapest wrap, in the long run, you can possibly buy for a child—as they wear well and look well for years and can be cleaned when they grow soiled. Little Ones—Ask Santa Claus to bring you Fairweather's Furs.

In buying Furs here you buy safely—we make them on the premises or at our Toronto store—(J. & J. Lugsdin's). The sewing is well done—the skins are very carefully selected—the tanning and dyeing is the best—in fact we assume all risks as we guarantee our Furs to be just as represented—and Prices are "factory prices"—no middleman's profits to pay. Buy always where you can buy good goods cheapest.

We wish one and all a very Merry Xmas.

J. W. T. FAIRWEATHER & CO.

BRITAIN NOW COMMANDS.

Gibraltar Has Been Put Into a Condition of Impregnability.

London, Dec. 20.—It is a current belief in England that Gibraltar has always commanded the straits which bear its name. That belief, however, was till recently incorrect. The straits are 12¼ miles wide, and the best guns mounted at Gibraltar would not reach across.

But now two of the newest 9.2-inch wire guns, 86 feet long, and firing a shell of 380 pounds, are being mounted on Europa Point. These guns have a range of 15 miles, and will put their shot at close quarters through three feet of iron, so they are most formidable weapons.

They can be loaded and handled by two or three men, and are so well mounted that they can fire a shot a minute. Though only weighing 87 tons, they are vastly superior to the old 38 and 100-ton muzzle-loading guns which some years ago were the best guns at Gibraltar.

A great deal of work is being quietly done upon the defences at Gibraltar, which now may be pronounced impregnable.

CAPE TO CAIRO HIGHWAY.

Encouraging News From Major McDonald of the British Expedition.

London, Dec. 20.—News has come via Zanzibar from Major McDonald, who is the head of a British exploring party in East Africa. The party started in 1897. His reports give England further cause for congratulation in her plan to civilize Africa and build a British highway from Cairo to Cape Town. Major McDonald states he established posts from the Uganda region, just south of Lake Nyanza, to the northeast of Lake Rudolf, and is now going down the River Sobat to Fashoda.

This establishes claims to enormous territories in Eastern Africa. As soon as the expedition sent out by Cecil Rhodes to establish stations and telegraph service from Cape Town to the middle lake region has accomplished its work it will be an easy link on Major McDonald's chain of posts northward, and British plans for a trans-African highway will be culminated.

AN ENDLESS CHAIN.

Of Kidney Diseases Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ingersoll, Dec. 19—The newspapers throughout the Dominion published, last week, reports of the almost miraculous recovery of Mr. Michael Sherlock, after a prolonged illness with Kidney, Bladder and Urinary troubles. Mr. Sherlock's recovery was due solely to his use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This week another case is reported. Mr. G. J. Cook, a farmer living in West Oxford township, states that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him of Kidney Disease and Lame Back, after he had suffered for over a year.

Thus it goes. The report of each cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills, brings another to light. Dodd's Kidney Pills have formed an immense endless chain of cures all round the Dominion. They have not failed once.

WHERE SNOW IS DEEP.

Mail Carrier Had to Cut a Hole in His Barn Roof to Feed Stock.

Mansfield, Ont., Dec. 17.—Owing to the great snow storm which has been raging for the past two weeks our mail carrier, Mr. J. J. Morrow of Peru, had his outbuilding so buried in snow that he had to make an entrance through the roof of his barn to provide food and water for his stock. When found he was in an exhausted condition. There are now only two mails a week, which should be daily, and a famine for wood is expected shortly if the storm continues.

Mr. M. T. Wigle

Of Kingsville, Essex Co.

CURED OF ITCHING PILES OF 23 YEARS STANDING

M. T. Wigle, better known to every one in the vicinity as "Uncle Mike," was troubled for over 23 years with itching piles. At times he was so bad he would have to quit work. The irritation became so intense with constant rubbing that they became ulcerated and would bleed. He had been treated by many physicians, but found nothing that gave him relief. Reading in the paper the cure of a friend who had suffered in a like manner, and been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment, he procured a box. After the third application he got such relief that he had the first comfortable night's sleep he had enjoyed in years. The one box made a complete cure, and he says he would not be without it for $50 a box if it could not be replaced. Mr. Wigle is a wealthy farmer, well known in the community in which he resides. It is over two years since he was afflicted, and he has never been troubled since.

Physicians fail to make a cure when Dr. Chase's Ointment gave Immediate Relief. . . .

THE WORLD'S SUPPLY.

Wheat Futures Are Lower by Reason of a Large Increase in World's Supply—The Latest Prices.

Tuesday Evening, Dec. 20.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject is narrated by him as follows:—"I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters;' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents a bottle, every bottle guaranteed, at any Drug Store.

ITALY MISTRUSTS KING MENELIK.

Latest Dispatches Indicate That Abyssinia Frontier Question Is Not Settled.

Rome, Dec. 20.—The latest despatches from Massowah are causing serious alarm here. They contradict Minister Canevaro's statements made in the Chamber of Deputies that the Italian relations with King Menelik of Abyssinia are excellent.

The military organ, L'Esercito, implores the Government not to trust the protestations of Menelik, but to send troops to Massowah.

Il Secolo asserts that King Menelik detains the Italian envoy, Capt. Cicco di Colla, as a hostage.

L'Avanti announces that Menelik is marching toward Erythrea to define frontiers, and that he marches sword in hand.

The "Hanging Judge" Resigns.

London, Dec. 20.—Hon. Sir Henry Hawkins, one of the justices of the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Judicature, and owing to the severity of his sentences known as the "hanging judge," has resigned. He was associated with Chief Justice Coleridge in the first Tichborne trial, when he particularly distinguished himself by his exhaustive cross-examination.

Russia Orders More War Vessels.

London, Dec. 20.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "The Russian Government has ordered ten new destroyers for the Pacific squadron, to be completed within two years.

"It is reported that the Minister for War, Lieut.-General Kuropatkin, will be dismissed for countermanding an order given by the Grand Duke Vladimir, who is commander of the St. Petersburg military district."

Another Massacre in China.

London, Dec. 20.—According to a despatch from Shanghai, the rebels have seized the town of Chung Yang, 50 miles southwest of Itchang, Province of Hoo Pea, on the north bank of the Yang Tse Kiang, 200 miles above Chin Kiang Foo. They have massacred a French priest and 100 converts.

FREE Medical Treatment FOR Weak Men

Who are Willing to Pay When Convinced of Cure.

A scientific combined medical and mechanical cure has been discovered for "Weakness of Men." The proprietors announce that they will send it on trial—remedies and appliance—without advance payment—to any honest man. If not all that is claimed—all you wish—send it back—that ends it—pay nothing!

This combined treatment cures quickly, thoroughly, and forever all effects of early evil habits, later excesses, overwork, worry, etc. It creates health, strength, vitality, sustaining powers, and restores weak and undeveloped portions of body to natural dimensions and functions.
